Summary and Review.

OUR latest advices by the Overland Mail are—from Bombay, August 3; Agra, July 31; Calcutta, July 30; Madras, July 28.

The papers by this mail contain plenty of odds and ends of intelligence, but little news of any great importance. Lord and Lady Mayo were still at Chini, Sir Seymour Fitzgerald cleaves to Poonah, and Lord Napier of Madras was on his way from Salem to the Shevaroy. Two Hindoo women have claimed the right of going up for matriculation at the Calcutta University. The Romish Bishop of Madras has been threatening to excommunicate any of his flock who shall join the Freemasons. One of the Oudh talookdars, Sir Man Singh, was too ill to present the Chief Commissioner with an address, reporting what he and his fellow talookdars had done with reference to questions raised under the Oudh Rent Bill. Lord Napier of Magdala had accepted an invitation to a farewell banquet at Poonah. A call of £10 per share has been made by the Port Canning Company. The Puttialah Rajah has invested £400,000 in the Four per Cent. State Loan, and the lately convicted Prince of Nepal has appealed to the High Court of Allahabad against his sentence of a year's imprisonment and a fine of 5,000 rupees.

THAT the Lord of Pattiala should have been persuaded to invest forty lakhs of rupees in Government funds indicates, we hope, the firmness of his belief in the stability of our rule. We also hope that so large an investment will encourage other of the native princes to offer like guarantees for their future good behaviour. In default of more sentimental grounds for loyalty, pecuniary reasons are not to be despised.

THE salient feature of the banquet to which Lord Napier of Magdala has been invited by the residents at Poona will, according to a Bombay paper, be the presence of ladies during the feast—"a variation on routine due to the happy suggestion of Colonel Marriott." This is certainly news to our dull minds. Is it then so unusual a thing in the Bombay Presidency for ladies to play an active part in public entertainments? If it be, we can only congratulate Bombay on having at last woken up to a sense of past shortcomings.

THE Bengal Legislative Council has passed nearly all the clauses of the Assam Tea Labour Bill, which seems to be a virtual reproduction of the Bill rejected two years ago by Sir John Lawrence. Whatever objections applied to the former apply therefore to the present Bill. The power of private recruiting for coolies through Garden Sircars has been especially denounced by the British Indian Association as a means of encouraging fraud and ill-treatment. Even the Englishman, which favours the principle, admits that full explanation of the contract he is making with the private recruiter should be secured to each coolie. It is also admitted that such contracts should specify the character of the daily tasks and the number of hours a day which the labourer would be required to work. Others besides the Englishman will agree that the clauses empowering a planter or his servant to arrest without warrant a deserting labourer "may seem harsh, and be occasionally abused;" even if they are inclined to allow that "the special exigencies of the case demand a severe remedy." To one of the new features in the present Bill the Friend of India takes strong and seemingly just exception. Even after working out his contract, the labourer is forbidden to make a new one except under the Act itself. Such a provision can only hurt and annoy the labourer instead of guarding him against foul play.

WE are glad to see that the idea of organising the ever-growing numbers of Englishmen employed on railway works in India into railway volunteer corps has not been abandoned or stamped out by official jobbery. The Viceroy has already given his official sanction to one well-considered scheme for the benefit of the East Indian Railway. The "East Indian Railway Volunteer Corps" is to have its headquarters at Jamalpore. To every hundred and fifty volunteers will be allotted a staff of one captain as adjutant and inspector, aided by a first and a second-class sergeant instructor. On this staff will devolve the work of organising, drilling, and administering. The men of each company will elect their own captain, lieutenant, and ensign, while the commandant of the battalion will appoint the sergeants, corporals, and buglers of each company, whose numbers may range from thirty-five to seventy. The Government, in its turn, is to appoint the field officers, at the rate of a colonel, a lieutenant-colonel, a major, and a quartermaster to each battalion. Arms and ammunition, found by Government, will be kept at every railway-station where a sergeant-instructor may be quartered, and for every efficient volunteer Government will grant a capitation allowance of Rs. 20 yearly. Shooting-ranges and annual prizes will be furnished at every station which can muster twenty volunteers. In presence of such inducements we may hope that at any rate one strong corps will soon be organised along the thousand miles of country threaded by the East Indian line. The experiment, once successful, should lead to the raising of similar corps throughout the country, whose services in the defence of railway lines and stations in time of danger would prove invaluable. Our regular troops would move with all the greater speed and certainty, if these volunteer battalions were at hand to guard the communications and expedite the supplies.

IT has for some time become a question whether the Durbar in honour of Prince Alfred could after all be held at Agra, in the immediate neighbourhood of a wide tract of famine-stricken country. If Rajpootana, Gwalior, Bundelkand, and the North West have escaped the worst kind of famine, there is still too much reason to fear the continuance of widespread suffering in a milder form. No humane government would dream of massing thousands of troops and tens of thousands of camp-followers in the midst of a country where prices keep very little below the famine-mark, where multitudes are still fed on public charity, where fodder, animals, and sometimes men are very scarce, and the rains, however plentiful in the long run, were late in coming. Many of the native chiefs themselves could ill afford the additional burden of a State-ceremonial on means already hampered by the drought. We are therefore not surprised to learn by a late telegram that all preparations for holding a durbar at Agra have been suspended, until something like a fair estimate can be taken of the growing crops.

MR. GREY'S committee on the village watch for Bengal has issued a report which will most likely form the groundwork of an important reform in the administration of that province. It is said to have been warmly welcomed by the Lieutenant-governor himself; but we should like to see what the zemindars whom he has been consulting will say to it. The gist of the scheme proposed is the appointment in each village of a panchayat, or village council, of three to seven members, who will have power to elect and dismiss the village chaukidar. The pay of this gentleman is to be four rupees at least a month, to be levied rateably on zemindar and villagers alike. Hitherto the zemindar has got off without paying anything, and the burden of maintaining the watchman, who seldom gets more than half his wages, has always fallen on the poor. This injustice will henceforth be remedied; the watchman will become the village servant instead of the zemindar's serf; and the foundation will be laid of that municipal self-government which has been impossible in Bengal ever since 1792. Properly paid and placed under the control of the police, the village watchman will discharge the duties he has hitherto made a mere pretence of discharging, and a long missing link between Government and people will be restored at the expense of the zemindar's unjust immunities.

THE oldest officer but three in the Madras Army died last week. General James Stewart Fraser was a cadet of 1799. In the following year he gained his lieutenancy. His first lessons in real warfare were gained ten years afterwards in the expedition to the Mauritius. In 1816-17 he was Commissioner for the restitution of the French and Dutch settlements on the Coromandel Coast; and in 1825 he was appointed to conduct the correspondence with all the settlements of foreign Powers in India. During the Coorg war of 1834 he conducted the negotiations with Coorg, and administered the affairs of the country as Commissioner after its conquest, being at the same time Resident in Mysore. In 1835 he became Colonel of the 85th N.I., and a full general in 1860. As Resident at Hyderabad from 1838 to 1853 he combined the functions of a post-master-general with the ordinary duties of a political controller-in-chief. In the days of Lord Dalhousie his time was largely employed in urging the Nizam to put his finances into order and pay up his debt to the Indian Government. After some years of fruitless dunning, General Fraser had, in 1853, to carry out Lord Dalhousie's oft-repeated threat of occupying Berar as a pledge for the future payment of the Hyderabad Contingent. He was at home on furlough when he died.

ENLARGING on the various considerations which tempt so many English soldiers in India to exchange from a homeward bound regiment to one lately ordered on Indian service, the Army and Navy Gazette asks, "how many men would re-engage if by so doing they bound themselves to complete twenty-one years' service in India?" Not so many perhaps as now, but why assume the obligation to stay out all that time? Short enlistments will soon be the rule for home service, and the spirit of that rule will have to be enforced in India also. If hereafter the term of home service should be fixed at four or five years, there is no need for placing the term of Indian service beyond seven or eight years, with power of re-enlistment for about five years more. Very few soldiers are really fit for duty after that time in so trying a climate.

MR. W. HUNTER, of the Bengal Civil Service, has, we see, been commissioned not only to compile a gazetteer for Lower Bengal, but to supervise the bringing out of gazetteers for all the other provinces.

WE are inclined to think that "Miles" has made out a good case against the maintenance of officers' messes in the native army, as at present organised. Even under the old regular system messes were often much more of a burden than a convenience, regarded from any but the social point of view. At the best they tended to encourage the extravagance they were nominally designed to check, and in very few instances did their social usefulness compensate for their notorious defects. Few Indian officers who have nothing but their pay to live upon, and would live within their means, have found in the mess system any sort of help to such an end. As things are, we have plenty of evidence from the Indian papers that messes—as our correspondent declares—"are anything but a blessing." In India it is always possible for a few officers chumming together to dine comfortably in their own quarters at a cheaper rate than they could do in the Mess-house. Restaurants in the larger stations would answer all ends of economy and social recreation.

WHAT is to be done with the Albert Insurance Company has been the question of the week. To meet an aggregate liability of £3,260,000, the whole of the assets, including the probable results of a call on the shareholders, amounts to no more than £310,000. It has therefore been proposed—not by the policyholders—to keep the old concern going by an arrangement which would cost the policyholders an average of one-fourth on all their policies, and the annuitants and creditors one-half of their claims. In pursuance of this plan a new company would be formed to carry on the business and take over the reduced liabilities of the old one, 80 per cent. of the profits being assured to the policyholders. All this sounds like a very pleasant arrangement for the existing company, but how far it would really help the unlucky policyholders is another question. Would the sacrifice they are called upon to make secure them from further loss? Or would it be better for them to realise at once their full loss and cut their connection with a rotten concern? Of the two alternatives it is not easy to say which might prove the worst. The only point on which there is any certainty is the fact established at last Saturday's meeting, that the company's money has been squandered in payments to the managers and promoters of the companies absorbed from time to time by the Albert. The evil genius of the concern seems to have been its late manager, Mr. Kirby, who got handsomely paid for enlarging its business at the expense of its solvency.

PENSIONS OF NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS, &c.—The following pensions in the non-commissioned service have been granted:—The undermentioned soldier of her Majesty's service is permitted to reside and draw his pay in India as an out-pensioner of Chelsea Hospital:—Gunner Richard Ross, D battery, 19th brigade, R.A. Drum major Robert Cureton, of the 36th (the Bareilly) regiment of N.I., is, as a special case, allowed the increased pension of his rank for service exceeding forty years with unblemished character, viz., Rs. 12 per mensem, with effect from the date of his transfer to the Invalid Pension Establishment—the pension to be disbursed in the Sirhind circle. The undermentioned out-pensioners of the Royal Hospital at Chelsea, having been permitted to reside and draw their stipends in India, payment of pension is to be made and charged accordingly:—Gunner Henry E. Murray, late of the 16th brigade, R.A., at 1s. (one shilling) a-day, from the date he ceases to receive regimental pay or allowance. Private James Doherty or Doherty, late of the 104th foot, at 1s. (one shilling) a-day, from the date he ceases to receive regimental pay or allowance. The undermentioned out-pensioner, having been permitted to reside and draw his stipend in the Bengal Presidency, payment of pension is to be made and charged accordingly:—Conductor Thomas Callaghan, an out-pensioner of the Royal Hospital at Chelsea, from the Bombay infantry, at 2s. (two shillings) per diem, paid up to Dec. 31, 1869.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

WEDNESDAY, September 1, 1869.

BRITISH TROOPS IN INDIA.

In his second letter on the rearming of the native troops, Colonel Macdonald asks, "What on earth can 65,000 European troops have to do now in India, except, as I said before, to overawe our sepoy army?" Instead of referring him to our former remarks on this point, we would commend him to the study of that interesting Blue-book, the "Report of the Select Committee on the Army in India and the Colonies," as published about two years ago. One of the witnesses most carefully questioned by that Committee was Colonel Norman; and he for one could see no reason for cutting down the European strength in India, even if the native army were reduced to 80,000 men, or two thirds of its present numbers. "The duties required of both"—said he—"are really separate, and to be judged separately for each." In fact, he regarded the European troops as needed "rather for the purpose of protecting the general interests and supporting the Government, than for the purpose of watching the native army;" although he adds naturally enough, "at the same time one would not like to see the native army without the European army." Both Europeans and natives he believed to be now "at the minimum for their duty." But for the help afforded by the police, the native army would even now be too small for India's needs. As for the Europeans, Colonel Norman holds that they are not one too many for the work of overawing the great cities, a work which native troops may generally be trusted to aid, owing to the way in which creeds and races are generally in their ranks balanced against each other.

Lord Strathmairn likewise asserted that the strength both of our white and dark troops is "determined solely by the duties required of the men." Sir W. Mansfield and Lord Clyde have both protested, the one by implication, the other in express words, against any further reduction of our European garrison, which, with all deference to Colonel Macdonald, is certainly not twice as numerous as it was in the early part of 1857. Its nominal strength then was 45,000 as compared with 65,000 now. In regard to effective strength however the relative numbers are 38,000 and something less than 60,000. That this latter figure will bear reduction, we are not going to deny. But the reduction should not be made too hastily or on too large a scale. Colonel Norman has shown that Sir H. Havelock's scheme of mounted riflemen would neither suit all parts of India nor lead to any material saving of expense. His belief in the usefulness of railways at a pinch, under present conditions, is perhaps too infinitesimal, but the reasons for his scepticism should not be lightly contemned. Without frittering our troops away in small detachments, there will always remain a number of strategic positions, to be held by a proportionate number of British troops, even when we have succeeded in keeping a large reserve in the hills. General Balfour would be content with a British garrison of about 48,000 men, a number very little in excess of that which Lord Dalhousie would have secured for India in 1856, but for the fatal parsimony of the English Government. We should be only too glad if the Indian Government could see its way to reducing the permanent strength of the British garrison by eight or ten thousand; but in view of the great reductions made in the last ten years, and of the native tendency to translate acts of economy into signs of weakness, we ought to be extremely careful against moving in this matter too fast ahead.

INDIAN JAILS.

WHOEVER wishes to get a good general view of facts connected with the latest results of our Indian rule would do well to look through the statement lately issued by the India-office with regard to the "Moral and Material Progress and Condition of India during the year 1867-68." This, the last of the yearly retrospects hitherto published, differs, for the better perhaps, from its forerunners, in respect of arrangement, the affairs of each province being treated separately, with two or three exceptions; while a short outline of the geography of each, together with illustrative maps and letterpress, imparts a new value to an excellent compilation. The geographical survey in each case gives much condensed information on the "physical outline," the "area and population," and the "language" of the province in question. Of the maps we here need only say that they go far to compensate, by their manifold merits, for the delay in issuing them.

With regard to the Post-office, our readers have already been furnished with an abstract of the Postmaster-general's own report.* We may pass on, therefore, to an interesting sketch of Jails and Jail Discipline, compiled from the larger survey prepared by Mr. Howell, Under Home Secretary to the Indian Government. It seems to have been Lord Macaulay to whom British India was indebted, among other things, for the first outlines of a prison system worthy to compare with that of more advanced countries in the West. Cheerfully supported by Lord Metcalfe, then Governor-general, his scheme was endorsed by a committee appointed in 1836, whose report, presented two years afterwards, has formed the groundwork of all subsequent legislation. Want of money and political distractions however delayed the ripening of the new seed, and not till 1844 was an inspector-general of jails first appointed for the North-West Provinces. The success of the experiment caused the turning of a temporary into a permanent post in 1850. Similar officers have since been appointed to every province in British India, except Coorg, which can hardly be considered a province proper. In 1860 another measure of prison-reform was carried out in the North-West Provinces, when the charge of the local jails, theretofore entrusted to the overworked civil magistrates, was transferred provisionally to the civil surgeons. In four years the results of the change had shown themselves in the marked improvement certified by the Local Government, in the discipline and economy of all the jails thus managed. A large reduction in the gross outlay on prisoners had been accompanied by a large increase in the profit from jail manufactures. It was not long before the new system was extended to the Presidencies of Bengal, Bombay, and Madras.

In 1864 the question of improved jail accommodation was brought by Sir John Lawrence before a committee of his appointing. The Committee's conclusions differed from those of Metcalfe's Committee in respect of the proper size for central jails and the amount of breathing-room for each prisoner. It was decided that no central jail should hold more than a thousand prisoners, and that no prisoner should have less than fifty-four feet of superficial, and 648 of cubic space.

Of these central prisons, so strongly recommended by the original Committee, the first was founded at Agra by Mr. Thomason's predecessor, Sir G. Clerk. Erelong Bareilly and Allahabad got their jails also. In 1852 a central prison was completed at Lahore. Two were projected for Madras, and an urgent request for similar prisons was afterwards made from Oudh, the Central Provinces, and Bengal. It must be remembered that in each newly-conquered province the whole work of building jails devolved on the Indian Government, its native predecessors having virtually dispensed with anything that could be called a prison. Hence the delay in carrying out the ideas of the Metcalfe Committee, on the part of a Government limited in its resources. In 1864 however a new impulse was given to the building of jails, central and other. It was found that 74,000 prisoners were yearly confined in a space fit to hold no more than 52,000. The Government therefore began speedily to order the erection of new jails on the principles laid down by the Committee, with due regard to certain limits of cost. Thirty-seven district prisons, capable of holding 20,247 convicts, have been sanctioned and begun since May, 1864, at an estimated outlay of £585,269, besides an item of £94,529, representing the value of convict labour. On central jails, if we include the grants for 1868-9, as much as £336,362 has already been laid out. The number of these jails amounts to twenty, of which three only were assigned up to 1868 to Lower Bengal, and two to Bombay. In the last-named Presidency one central jail has at length been taken in hand on an estimate of £58 per prisoner, and by this time four such prisons are in course of construction in Bengal.

The cost of building jails varies greatly in different provinces, ranging from £19 to £58 per prisoner. In the Punjab, Oudh, and the North-West Provinces the work can be done far more cheaply than in Bombay or Bengal. On two particular questions, the employment of convicts outside the walls and the cellular system, a good deal of discussion has taken place. Extramural labour was denounced by the committee of 1836 as neither cheap nor conducive to discipline. But the inspectors-general of several provinces have regarded it with favour, and reasons of policy have enforced the arrangement wherever intramural labour seemed impracticable.

With regard to the cellular system, that is, the confinement of prisoners at night in separate cells, its expense alone seems to be a fatal objection to a scheme which counts Dr. Mouat among its ablest champions. And the system itself could hardly be expected to work better in India than it has done in France, where the Government has long since discontinued it, as tending neither to the moral nor the physical benefit of the prisoners. Last year moreover the Indian Minister objected even to making trial of the system, on the ground that "the prisoners are already to a great extent classified, and that the number of habitual offenders in India forms a far smaller proportion of the gaol population than in most other countries." A climate where the thermometer reaches 120 degs. in the shade would place another hindrance in the way of such an experiment. For all these reasons the Indian Government has limited the proportion of separate cells to 15 and 17 per cent. European jailers are usually employed in the central prisons. Native medical officers are attached to both kinds of jails, and the superintendents, who are nearly all civil surgeons, are under the immediate control of the Inspector-General of their province, except in the Central Provinces, where they report to the deputy commissioner.

The death-rate in the jails has hitherto been rather high. In order to reduce it the dry-earth system of conservancy has been everywhere enforced, appliances for daily bathing have been provided, filthiness in clothes or person has been made punishable, a more generous diet than that ordained by the Committee of 1836 has lately been conceded, and sleeping-berths have done away with the mischief caused by sleeping on the ground. In 1867-68 the average death-rate for all Indian prisons fell to 3.94 per cent. In the last five years Madras, Burmah, Mysore, and Oudh show the highest, and the Punjab and North-West Provinces the lowest averages of mortality.

Indian convicts are much more carefully classified than English. Everywhere the males are kept apart from the females, the young from the full-grown, the tried from the untried prisoners. In most of the jails the female convicts are guarded and supervised by females alone, usually selected from the convict class, but sometimes hired from without. The women do nearly all the work connected with their own wards, and in many prisons help to earn their keep by spinning, weaving, knitting, and needlework. They are never ironed, nor, except in Burmah, is their hair cut as a punishment. Very little has yet been done for their general instruction, owing to the utter want of qualified female teachers. At the Central Jail of Russa, in Bengal, a European female convict has at length been told off as schoolmistress, and the Lahore Penitentiary possesses a teacher also. In the Central Provinces attempts have been made, hitherto with small success, to train native female convicts for the same purpose. The North-West Provinces lead the way in respect of classifying the male prisoners. Oudh, Burmah, and the Central Provinces come next in order with their division of convicts into four classes. In most of the old Bengal jails, which are ill-suited to the new arrangements, the prisoners all work together by day, but are kept apart according to their classes at night. Much the same conditions prevail in Bombay and Madras. It was not till 1867 that the Punjab was enabled to carry out the rules laid down on this head by the Committee of 1864.

The transfer of convicts from one class to another is viewed as an indulgence, not a right. Every prisoner has to work ten hours a-day. Of late the penal character of such work has been generally overlooked, except in Oudh and Madras, in the growing tendency to employ convicts only on work that will pay. In Madras the prisoners are generally employed on the roads, in quarries, brick-fields, and other out-door work. The system of rewards and punishments varies greatly in the different provinces. In some it seems that any prisoner may earn a remission of his sentence; in others, the remission is strictly limited to certain classes; and in some again no remission at all is allowed. Promotion to office, leave to see friends, good-conduct marks that lead to some amelioration or remission of sentence, are the usual rewards, while the punishments generally consist of flogging, ironing, extra labour, and reduced diet.

Much has already been done in the way of education, for the males at least, by the employment of well-behaved convicts as teachers. There are no reformatories on the English principle; but juvenile wards have generally been established, and boys are kept apart from adults, wherever it can be done. In Bombay there is a private reformatory unconnected with the Government prisons. In the Punjab a similar institution works in connection with the jail at Sindapore. Prisoners sentenced to transportation are now sent to Port Blair alone, except convicts from British Burmah, who are still transported to Bombay. There were 6,686 convicts at Port Blair at the end of 1866, who cost the State about £130,000 a-year. In British India generally the average net cost of each prisoner ranges from £8. 18s. in Madras to £3. 10s. in Oudh.

NATIVE ARMY BANDS AND MESSES.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—Now that the whole of the Native Infantry is on the irregular system, the difficulty of keeping up the regimental institutions in the different corps is daily increasing, and the constant changing and shifting of officers diminishes the interest taken in them. Formerly in the old regiments the same officers remained for years, and the pride in their regimental bands and messes was handed down from generation to generation. Now all is changed; and to be five or six years with the same corps is almost a miracle. The consequence is that the messes, &c., get into debt and trouble, and nobody stops long enough in the regiment to put matters right. I have known officers join a regiment in which all the regimental institutions were much involved, and from which most of the officers who caused them to be so had been removed to other corps, so that the new ones were called on to pay up in the shape of a percentage on their pay, &c. How commanding officers fill up their "inspection returns," as regards the indebtedness or otherwise of their messes, is to me an enigma. The fact is, under the present system, with only six officers, two or three of whom are frequently married, and consequently seldom dine at mess, to maintain a respectable mess is almost an impossibility. To try and cope with a Queen's regiment too, where there are thirty or forty members in the mess, as some do, is ridiculous. In the hot season, when some of the officers are absent on leave, one often has the pleasure of sitting day after day at mess alone, with nobody to talk to but the table attendants. The French have no messes in their army, and generally dine at restaurants, where everything is paid for cash. It often struck me, when in France, that if we had one or two good restaurants on the French system in our Indian stations it would be a great acquisition. At any rate, generally speaking, the messes in our native army, constituted as at present, are anything but a blessing, and are indeed a heavy burden to the officers, especially when there is so much marching about as we have now.

As to the bands, the sooner Government does what the late Marshal Niel did for those in the French cavalry the better—that is, abolish them. For to pay a month's staff pay on joining, and a large monthly subscription of £2 and £3, to hear such discordant strains as some of them produce, is downright robbery.—Yours truly,

MILES.

THE MAIRWARRA BATTALION.

The Friend of India declares that no native corps did more substantial service at the time of the Mutiny than the Mairwarra Battalion. The mere fact of its having held Ajmere with an immense arsenal when the troops in Nusseerabad mutinied was a boon to the English it would be difficult to over-estimate. Had the mutineers got possession of the arsenal with its vast stores it would have given them a prestige which would have made it impossible for the Rajpoot princes to resist the pressure of the people to rise against the Supreme Government. In subsequent actions they were always loyal, often very gallant. A single company on one occasion turned the whole of Tantia Topce's force when trying to pass the Aravul-lee. As a reward for their services, they were some years afterwards degraded to the position of a police corps. The warriors who had so bravely maintained our cause were reduced to be auxiliaries in looking after stolen cows or broken barns. This has been felt keenly by the Mairs, who are proud of their old prowess and recent exploits. The officers of the corps and the local authorities have frequently represented the injustice that was done them, and the consequent feeling of disaffection that was spreading among a people pre-eminently loyal. Again and again various members of Government have approved, and hopes have been held out to the Mairs that they would be restored to their old position. But in the tortuous piles of Indian red-tape some difficulty of expense, or expediency, or something else, has occurred, till the Mairs are in the position of men whose hope has been delayed. A longer and more determined contest than any previous one has been going on, in which brighter hopes have been held out than before. But there seems now reason to fear that again it will be found impossible to convince Government that faithful service should never lose reward, and that the loyalty of a brave people may be cheaply purchased with a few extra rupees. When Ajmere receives a new administration the Mairwara battalion should be restored to its proper place.

AN INDIAN NAVY WANTED.

The Madras Times remarks that at the present moment we are threatened by both Russia and France in the seas we were wont to regard as peculiarly our own. At the mouth of the Amoor the Russians are creating a naval depot and stronghold, which time will doubtless develop into another Cronstadt or Sebastopol. From this position Russia can advantageously attack us in China, Japan, Singapore, and even India, and cut off our trade from these places to Europe. At Suez the French are erecting powerful defences under the name of canal works, and in Cochinchina they have formed the basis of a future naval depot in the Indian Seas. For ourselves, we have been declining as a naval Power out here, while other nations have been strengthening themselves, and it will be well in case of war if we do not find out to our cost that we have put too blind a confidence in Somerset-house and its theories. We have numerous fine ports and harbours in this part of the world of great strategical importance, which we fail for some reason or other to turn to account. Trincomalee and Singapore are two magnificent harbours, which might properly form depots of two powerful squadrons of the "Royal Indian Navy," under the command of an admiral with his headquarters at the former port or Bombay. With a few iron-clad swift frigates at Singapore we could command the entrance to the China Sea and a portion of the Bay of Bengal. The squadron at Trincomalee would protect our Indian coasts and commerce from India to Europe. We can of course never hope to have such a strong naval force as we hint at in the Indian seas, so long as the British Admiralty has to provide for our wants, the Admiralty maxim being from time immemorial to take care of the Channel and the Mediterranean, and all the rest of the world will take care of itself. But the question is whether we are to wait inertly until war comes upon us and our Indianmen are burnt and sunk by dozens, or take precautionary steps which may put it out of an enemy's power to inflict any such loss upon us! At present, erratic British flying squadrons are our best hope in time of need, and we hardly think they will meet our necessities.

A LOCAL ARMY FOR INDIA.

The Bombay Gazette observe that the Empire consists of a multitude of detached countries and ports. In addition to home service there is foreign service. A conscription, which would provide for the former, would not be tolerated for the latter in the present temper of the British people. How, then, can home and foreign service be provided for without trenching on the prejudices, or, if you will, wholesome feelings of the nation? Surely the composition of the Empire suggests the answer. Once let the people thoroughly understand that the army is absolutely under the authority of a responsible Minister, and a conscription or ballot for home service would be readily adopted. Young men would willingly serve for a short period, and then enter the reserve, which would be a real and not a paper reserve. A slight alteration of the Militia laws alone would secure the end desired. All, for instance, who were not in a self-supporting corps of volunteers under strict discipline and fairly trained, might be liable to be drawn for the militia. That would exactly hit the circumstances of the State and train all classes. Then, for foreign service, the State would require an army raised, as now, by voluntary enlistment. There are always numbers of young men desirous of seeing the world, and passing some time, if not their lives, in soldiering. The army for foreign service need not be larger than would be required for furnishing garrisons abroad and providing reliefs. Consequently men and officers could be better paid. But how should India be supplied? We answer, by restoring the Local European Army in such force as would need but a comparatively small contingent of the Imperial Army to bring up the total European force in India to the required number. Thus we should have a Home Army, a Foreign Service Army, and a Special Army for the country whose case is special, India. That army might be large enough to do duty everywhere east of the Cape, or might even include the Cape, which would be a refreshing change of station. At the same time some effective alteration would have to be made in the organisation of the native force, and it could only consist in an approximation to the old model—avoiding the fatal errors which begot a mutiny in the army of Bengal. The present Native Army is little more than an expensive police force, and does not possess the essential elements of an effective fighting military machine. We look upon a conscription as inevitable in England; we feel sure that no conscription for ordinary foreign service—a rattling war would be different—would be tolerated. Consequently there must be a good army for foreign service; and when its constitution is considered, it will be found more useful and less costly to re-establish a Local European Army in India than to persist in the existing scheme of providing a garrison for this country. But no changes of any worth can be accomplished until the Court party at home is overcome, and the management of military affairs is entrusted to a responsible Minister.

THE BURMAN DIFFICULTY.

Lord Mayo's foreign policy has been again successful. In the north a new era has been inaugurated in Afghan politics, which promises to yield the most satisfactory results, and in the extreme east an impracticable potentate like the King of Burmah has been made to realise that the Viceroy will not be trifled with. There are many causes of complaint against the King of Burmah. He has for a long series of years only entered into obligations in order apparently to prove their worthlessness, and although he owed his crown in 1866 to the aid and countenance he received from Sir Arthur Phayre, he lost no opportunity of showing that he was anything but grateful to the Power which holds his rebellious sons in the captivity of a foreign State prison. Then came the treaty negotiated by General Fyche—a treaty which provided for the thorough opening up of commercial relations between the two countries, and for a regulated intercourse which could not be but beneficial to both. This treaty provided also for the abolition of the royal monopolies, and in various ways opened up to Burmah proper a vast field for the development of its trade, not only with Pegu, but with China. The King seemed willing enough to fall in with the new order of things, which even he acknowledged had become inevitable, but none the less earnestly did he strive in secret to render the treaty of no effect. One of his first acts was to proclaim the abolition of certain monopolies in favour of an ad valorem duty, but he speedily repented and proclaimed rice and cutch monopolies; and not satisfied with such a step he made over the new royal privileges to a set of harpies who were certain to speedily convert them into new sources of misery to the people. Then came the long contest about the Agency Courts, a contest in which the King and his Ministers exhibited considerable ingenuity, and which, at last, they managed to bring to a crisis, by seizing on the fact that the British Agent had placarded Mandalay with a proclamation calling on all British subjects to register themselves, as an excuse for refusing all assistance in the matter whatever. Then, again, they ventured to foster an agitation against the English, which, if unchecked, might have led to the most disastrous results. Such are the offences of the King against the Treaty. But worse is behind. We believe there can now be no doubt that the charge made by Captain Bowen, that the King had endeavoured to compass the destruction of the Momein exploring party, is well founded, and true in every particular. These offences were serious enough, but when we add to them the persistent endeavours of the King to open up relations with other foreign Powers, solely with a view to our disadvantage, and his ready disaffection towards the English, it will be seen that the Government had to deal with a question which might at any moment drift into war. The question, too, was complicated by the aspirations of a strong party at Rangoon who have for their watchword the annexation of Upper Burmah, and by popular feeling at Mandalay directed more against the present state of affairs than towards a union with the English provinces. The King has so repeatedly shown his hostility, or unfriendliness, that the friends of annexation saw in his obstinate opposition to the Treaty Courts a possible cause of war, which could only have one result. Lord Mayo was, however, firm, and the opposition of the King has been dissipated, as it had so often been heretofore. He has been made to understand that the Viceroy will insist on the fulfilment of the whole of the stipulation of the treaty, and that time will no longer be wasted in discussing frivolous objections, started with the view of putting off the performance of his Majesty's engagements. Another small war has thus been avoided, and the annexation of Upper Burmah has been indefinitely postponed. If the King can be persuaded to accept his position frankly, there is no reason why, with unrestricted intercourse between the two divisions of the valley of the Irrawaddy, all the objects pictured to themselves by the annexationists should not be attained, without the cost of a war, and without extending the frontiers of the empire to regions where we might find ourselves involved in an endless round of petty difficulties and disputes.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT TO MAJOR GWYNNE.—We regret to hear that a very serious accident has befallen Major Gwynne, commandant of H.M.'s 62nd Regiment, but at present on leave to the hills. This gentleman left Simla about the middle of July for Mussoorie by the hill route, accompanied by Captain Frazer, also of the 62nd. When within two marches of Mussoorie, the road (as often happens in the hills in the rains) gave way, and the major and his horse were precipitated into the khud. At a depth of about a hundred yards the major was flung violently against a trunk of a tree, and had his thigh broken. The horse rolled head over heels lower down, and strange to say escaped with but a few skin bruises. Captain Frazer, who immediately flung himself down the khud to the assistance of his wounded companion, got his hands much torn.

CHOLERA.—The extra supplement to the Gazette of India, dated the 21st instant, is a bulky collection of documents, deeply interesting, and yet most unsatisfactory. We have first a "Report on the Treatment of Epidemic Cholera, by John Murray, M.D., Inspector-General of Hospitals," a very able and exhaustive paper by an officer of thirty-six years' practical experience. This is followed by a series of tabular statements, of considerable value for purposes of generalisation. The last fifty-five pages contain an appendix, giving the answers of a large number of military surgeons and physicians to certain "Queries on the Treatment of Epidemic Cholera." These answers indicate such a variety of opinions with regard to every branch of the subject that the unprofessional reader is utterly perplexed. It seems impossible even to classify the opinions. A contradicts B; C considers both equally wrong; D has an entirely new view, differing in every particular from those of his three brethren; while E has as little confidence in D as in any of the others. In short, the differing opinions are nearly as numerous as the witnesses.

"Who shall decide when doctors disagree?"

Not we: we never felt so much at sea.

But really this is a very serious matter. That such terrible uncertainty should prevail among our ablest, best educated, and most orthodox medical advisers, with regard to the causes of cholera, the proper means of prevention, the most successful method of treatment, and the real secret of the cure, when a cure happens to be effected, is, to say the least, a very unpleasant reflection.—Delhi Gazette.

STATION TALK.

BEAR, July 22.—One of the most extraordinary events I have ever witnessed has just occurred here. About two P.M. the servants came in saying that a violent storm was coming. No sooner heard we this than it became as dark as eventide; the said storm was millions of locusts in the air. No sooner were they in direct position of our place than a westerly wind set in, at once arresting their progress; the violent downpour, of course, brought them all to earth. Since then no tongue can tell what the place represents; not an inch of ground anywhere but is as it were a carpet of locusts, and where they have settled for protection—such as the bridge, buildings, even the rails—is one livid mass; one can only represent it as those graphic scenes of snow-storms in America; but as millions upon millions have settled to rise no more, the stench, I fear, will be dreadful for several days to come. So we are all going in for "wills," witnessing each other's last dying speech, and so on—quite a farce in its way, yet serious enough, I assure you; for hours I have been with an entire coating of locusts.—Mofussilite Correspondent.

ALLAHABAD, July 28.—I am sorry to report that dyspepsia and diarrhoea are very prevalent in the city, and cholera also. I reported one case of cholera having occurred in the artillery in my last letter but one; since then there has been none, I am glad to say, but that unfortunate regiment, the 58th, has lost four men, and a wing has had to go out into camp again.

UMRITSUR, July 27.—It was hoped the rain would cause an abatement in the cholera visitation to which an almost solitary part of the town has been exposed, but the cases have been more numerous than before, having on one day exceeded thirty. I have not heard the numbers for the last day or two. Two cases are reported to have occurred in the old cantonment, while the much-maligned civil lines are totally free. As usual, the grain-dealers take advantage of the heavy rain to enhance rates, and so realise as much as they can before the arrival of supplies from outside necessitates a fall; but that will not last long.

BUNDLECUND, July 20.—We have now gone through above a half of the year 1869. Alas! with what a pang will those look back upon this period of time whose nearest and dearest of kin have within it been numbered with those who have passed beyond the grave. Mortality during the last quarter of this year has been fearful when compared with that of preceding years; the increase, above 25 per cent., has chiefly been caused by the inclemency of the weather, the heat being so very great and unbearable that people evidently in the bloom of health fell suddenly dead as if they had been shot. In the midst of this visitation of Providence the rebel Burjore Sing must needs make his appearance in the Jaloun district to contribute his mite also towards the consummation of fatality, as if a sufficient number had not died from natural causes. He has, however, not as yet been captured, though owing to the vigilance of the police his progress was arrested, several of his retainers captured, and himself put to flight. One of the arrested made his escape a few days after from a police thannah; but a European inspector being close at hand, soon after pursued the fugitive, whom he found concealed in an empty house, where the absconder, finding the inspector alone, tried to wrestle with him and snatch his weapon, but being physically unequal to the task, was overpowered and taken back to the thannah whence he had escaped. A few days back the Hon. Captain Fraser, officiating deputy inspector-general of police, North-West Provinces, passed through some of the districts of Jhansie, whither he came, I understand, with a view to concerting some plan for the capture of the outlaw Burjore Sing, regarding whose death a rumour had been set on foot by his friends, evidently without foundation, and with the intention of inducing the authorities to abandon further pursuit; but I do not suppose they will be caught napping. Captain Cantor, district superintendent of police, Jhansie, has gone on a couple of months' leave to the hills, leaving the district in charge of Mr. Short, assistant district superintendent. The distress in Lullutpoor is unprecedented; numbers have died and are dying from starvation, and I think it is high time for the authorities to interpose and compel vendors to reduce the prices of grain, which are rising daily, without any evident cause, as plenty of rain has fallen; besides, the granaries of some of the bunnecas in Lullutpoor, as well as in Jhansie and Jaloun, are overstocked; why then should the imposition of bunnecas be countenanced? Provisions are very dear, grain ten seers, wheat nine and a-half seers, bhoosa only fifteen seers per rupee; what then is to be done when times are so hard and money so scarce? Mr. White, the settlement officer of Jaloun, has, I understand, returned from leave, and resumed charge of his official functions. I heard this morning with regret, that owing to the pursuit of the rebel Burjore Sing during the hot winds in June last, Colonel Swiney, district superintendent of police, Jaloun, was laid up from fever and other causes for upwards of a month, but trust he has ere this regained his usual health and energy.—Delhi Gazette Correspondent.

Miscellaneous.

CIVIL.—The Pioneer announces the death, at Etawah, from rheumatic gout, of Mr. A. C. Barnard, of the Bengal Civil Service.

JUDICIAL.—It is believed that Mr. C. R. Lindsay, Judge of Moradabad, will be the new Judge of the Chief Court, Punjab.

SIMLA BANK.—The Simla Bank has, we observe, declared a dividend at the rate of 13 per cent. per annum on the operations of the past half-year.—Pioneer, July 28.

ECCLIASTICAL.—We hear that the Rev. G. Davey Symonds, Chaplain of Nowshera, is about to be removed in the same capacity to Bareilly.

DEATH ON BOARD THE P. AND O. STEAMER "DECCAN."—Mr. Danby, a passenger who left Calcutta in a very precarious state of health, died on board the steamer on Wednesday last, and his body was consigned to the deep.—Madras Times, July 24.

SOLDIERS' EXHIBITION.—A correspondent from Deyrah intimates the fact of Colonel Clarkson having been ordered to Agra to act as Secretary to the forthcoming Soldiers' Exhibition, to be held during the great Durbar.

POST-OFFICE.—Besides the introduction of a system of money orders between India and England, the Indian Daily News hears that measures are at least "under consideration" for a Post-office Order system in the Postal Department of our administration.

FLOOD ON THE JUMNA.—Even these glorious rains are not an un-mixed blessing. The sudden rise of the Jumna has evidently swept away some village on its banks. On Saturday the corpse of a woman, scores of cattle, and quantities of thatch and roof poles were seen floating past the fort here (Allahabad).—Pioneer.

MEERSCHAUM OR MERE SHAM?—It appears not to be real meerschaum that has been discovered at Simla. The Pioneer speaks of it as a new mineral, exactly resembling meerschaum in appearance, and quite as valuable a material for pipes. On analysis, it appears to be essentially a silicate of alumina, and it is proposed consequently to name it meerschaluminate!

A GENTLEMAN AND A PRIVATE.—"We understand," says a correspondent of the Delhi Gazette, "that there is at present serving in the ranks of a well known and highly distinguished regiment, now stationed at Seetapore, a representative of one of our oldest and most respectable English families. Such are the vicissitudes of fortune, which strike indiscriminately both high and low, rich and poor."

AN ODD FISH.—We understand that while the Arracan was at the Andamans one of the officers of the steamer succeeded in harpooning a large sun fish, measuring twelve and a-half feet from fin to fin, his length being some two feet less. His mouth was two feet wide; his liver was boiled down and yielded seven quarts of oil, which we have been informed is very valuable.—Rangoon Gazette, July 16.

SIR MAUN SINGH.—We are glad to hear more favourable accounts of Maharajah Sir Maun Singh. He is slowly recovering, though complete restoration to health is said to be very doubtful. Deep and long-sustained mental exertion, with much anxiety, has told on a frame never particularly strong. The Maharajah has arrived at Ajoodhia by slow stages, and already his presence is missed by the Talookdars' Association at Lucknow, of which he was the ruling spirit, bending the minds of the members to his will.

A GAZETTEER FOR INDIA.—The Calcutta Gazette of yesterday announces that "Mr. W. W. Hunter, LL.D., is appointed to prepare a Gazetteer for the Lower Provinces of Bengal." We learn from the Hindoo Patriot that Mr. Hunter's work will comprise more than the preparation of a Gazetteer of the Lower Provinces, that in fact he will superintend the preparation of the Gazetteers of all the different provinces of India, so as to secure uniformity of plan, a matter which is in the last degree desirable in an Imperial work of this character.—Englishman, July 29.

LITERARY.—The Englishman announces the death of Mr. W. H. Abbott, well known as "Pips." His health had been failing for some time, and with the view of restoring it he took a sea voyage, and was accompanied by Mrs. Abbott, but the voyage was without avail. He died on the 16th of July. Mr. Abbott was a sound and accomplished lawyer, and filled for many years the position of Registrar to the Diocese and Consulting Attorney to the Trade's Association. To the general body of Anglo-Indians, however, he will be best known as "Pips," as the writer of some of the best parodies and best versification which have appeared in Anglo-Indian Literature.

CHANDA COAL.—We understand that ten tons of Chanda coal have been sent here for trial by the G.I.P. Railway Company. A special locomotive adapted for burning Indian coals has been fitted up, and we understand the trial is to take place, under the immediate supervision of the chief commissioner, as soon as the engine arrives. Those interested in the coal explorations now being prosecuted in Chanda—and we fancy there are few of our readers who do not feel an interest therein—will be glad to learn that last week in one of the bore holes at Goughoos, about twelve miles from Chanda, an aggregate thickness of forty-five feet of coal was passed through, upwards of thirty feet being in one continuous bed.—Central India Times, July 24.

FOUR PER CENT LOAN.—The Government of India has accepted from the Maharajah of Puttiala a loan of forty lakhs of rupees, upon the conditions and as a part of the open Four per Cent. Loan. Promissory notes have been issued to the Maharajah at 2 per cent. below the market price of the 4 per cent. stock, being the profit which it is supposed the Government must have paid to contractors had this loan been raised in the open market. The Government consider it desirable to encourage native States to invest money in our securities.—Englishman.

WEATHER IN UPPER INDIA.—The news of the week is the fall of plentiful rain all over north-west India, even in Rajpootana, where famine never ceased till the speculators saw that the heavens were against them. Wheat had been selling at Ajmere at 54 seers the rupee, a rate that marks an extreme degree of misery. Now the survivors who emigrated are flocking back, and cultivation is general. We must not be too sanguine, however. Not for a few weeks will there be, as Sir W. Muir says in his last letter to the Government of India, "any decided and sure indication of the probable harvest."—Friend of India, July 29.

MARCH OF FEMALE INTELLECT.—It is after all true that two Bengali ladies are going up to the Entrance (Matriculation) Examination of the Calcutta University this year. One of them is the wife of a Master of Arts and the other of a Bachelor of Arts. This is alike honourable to the husbands as to their better halves. It appears to us that in Calcutta individuals have gone far ahead of the general mass in adopting new customs and ideas, which accounts for the strict Zenana system flourishing side by side with liberal female education. We believe there are some young ladies in Bombay also who, with a little coaching, can rival their Calcutta sisters.—Indu-Prakash, July 26.

A MISTAKE SOMEWHERE.—It appears the Nagpore paper was misinformed with regard to the accident said to have befallen Mr. Malcolm Low, Commissioner Nerbudda Division. It now says:—"We have been favoured with a communication from that gentleman himself, contradicting the statement made in our last issue, and he tells us that he has not even seen a tiger since May last. He hopes, however—and so do we—that he has not been made 'to do duty' for some one who has really been mauled. We may mention that we derived our information from a report spread by a gentleman in the station, who had stated that he got the news in a letter from a relative of his at Baitool."—Bombay Gazette.

AFGHANISTAN.—The latest accounts from Turkistan are much more favourable. The enemies of the Ameer seem to be discouraged or reconciled; and the speedy arrival of General Daoud Khan with an overpowering force will make assurance double sure. Habits of anarchy are not to be forgotten in a day; but though it may be long before Turkistan is orderly and quiet in our sense, there will probably be no serious attempt at insurrection. The prestige of the Ameer indeed seems to be steadily mounting everywhere throughout Cabul. From being as it were only primus inter pares, somewhat the greatest among many great chiefs, he is gradually coming to be regarded as a personage apart—as king and master.

A FRONTIER TRIBE PUNISHED.—In November 1867 the Salarzai section of the Boneyr tribe burnt down the hamlet of Pirsui, a Sudoom village on the extreme border of Eusufai. All efforts at adjustment having failed, the Government of India sanctioned a blockade of the offending section and of their supporters, the Swatees. Accordingly, a police force, 137 strong, was stationed at seven different posts covering about fifty miles of the border, and securing the chief passes into Swat and Boneyr. After a blockade of one year the Salarzais have at last submitted, and made amends for their misconduct. The result is considered satisfactory on the whole, inasmuch as it shows the way in which these border tribes can be brought to reason. The punishment is intolerable to them, because it either deprives them altogether of the means of getting stores from the plains, or at all events materially enhances the price of such commodities.

THE LATE CAPTAIN KNYVETT.—According to a correspondent of the Delhi Gazette of July 31, Captain Knyvett's death occurred at Jeypore, in the dak bungalow, on the 15th inst., and under most painful circumstances. Mrs. Knyvett, with the children, had arrived at Jeypore on the morning of the 15th, and awaited in the dak bungalow the arrival of her husband, with whom she was to have gone on to Beawr, to which place he had lately been transferred from Agra, and I believe on promotion. Captain Knyvett had left Beawr on the previous day, calculating to arrive at Jeypore about the same time as his family. His dak brought him in shortly after they had reached, but it brought him, in fact, succumbing to an attack of cholera, which he had taken that morning, when about sixteen miles from Jeypore. He was helped out of the carriage ashly, convulsed, and almost inarticulate. Not half an hour elapsed before Dr. Burr, the surgeon of the Residency, was in attendance; but despite all he could do, helped by a native doctor, Captain Knyvett continued to sink fast, and died that afternoon. Dr. Burr's efforts were most unremitting, and he remained with his patient throughout his illness. Captain Knyvett's remains were interred in the cemetery close to the Agency, the whole of the residents attending, Captain Powlett, the officiating agent, reading the service. The 'farewell shot' was fired by the agent's guard."

RAINFALL IN THE NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES.—The following figures represent the fall of rain at a few more stations in these provinces, up to July 23, 1869, compared with the fall of rain during the same period last year :—

SELF-ACTING PUNKAH.—We hear from Murree that Lieutenant Turnbull, late of her Majesty's 51st, and now of the 1st battalion 6th Regiment, serving at Rawul Pindee, has set up one of his (so-called) self-acting punkahs at Rowberry's Hotel there, and that Major General Haly, C.B., and other heads of departments have inspected it with interest, and apparently with approval. The mechanism is said to be simple, and somewhat akin to that which regulates the movements of a Dutch clock, but the details at our command do not enable us to give a more specific description, and we understand the invention itself is to be exhibited here during the durbar display in January next. The authorities have, we understand, with this view allowed Mr. Turnbull 15 rupees a day for subsistence and travelling expenses, and the services of two men to assist him in the fixture and manipulation of his machinery, and from all we hear his invention is likely to effect a saving for the public, and prove a boon to the perspiring denizens of this country.—Delhi Gazette.

A VESSEL DISABLED BY A SWORD-FISH.—Some short time ago there was a trial in England as to the possibility of a sword-fish penetrating the planks of a ship, and afterwards withdrawing his horn. A somewhat similar accident has occurred to the N. G. ship Hertha, which is now under repair at Singapore. The vessel was lying-to in a gale of wind at night somewhere on this side of the Cape, when a violent shock was felt under the bottom; a second blow almost immediately followed, and then a third against the rudder. The captain supposed he had struck on a sunken wreck, as the last shock broke the tiller and some of the rudder pintles, and entirely disabled the rudder. After repairing damages the ship went on to Singapore leaky, and on docking it has been found that she must have been struck by a sword-fish; a considerable piece of the bone still remained in the plank, and was taken out in the presence of the surveyors. From the injuries sustained by the ship, it is supposed that her keel first struck the fish, as a considerable hollow is broken into it, that the fish then became enraged, and attacked its supposed enemy, broke off its horn, and then gave a final blow on the rudder. Had the fish's bone not been left in the hole, the captain and surveyors would have been under the impression that the injuries were caused by a sunken wreck.—Indian Daily News.

THE EXTRAORDINARY CASE OF DACOITY.—We do not as a rule comment on cases still pending in the Courts, and if we now break through our custom in the case of Pootee Ghazee we feel assured that our object will not be mistaken. We have no desire to prejudice or prejudice the case in any way. In fact, we shall only seize and relate some of the many stories flying about town in connection with a most unusual affair. Pootee Ghazee is a young Eurasian, named Shepherd, son of the late secretary to the Port Canning Company. He was, it is said, entrusted with the management of the Soonderbun estates of our well-known fellow-townsmen, Mr. C. Lazarus. He is the same youth who, a short time ago, challenged the men of the 11th Bengal Cavalry, at the Presidency, to a trial of skill on horseback with sword and lance. He was signally discomfited, but it was then remarked that he came attended by a large following of Sikhs. His exploit on the Joymungul river seems to have been the last of a series of dacoities, the object being in most cases to seize grain. A large quantity of the finer sorts of rice was found at the cutchery, which to the uninitiated eyes of the police seems to have presented a semi-fortified appearance. It is also whispered that Pootee Ghazee and his band were well acquainted with the secret of the wrecks in the Soonderbuns, which has of late been bruited about. The principal evidence against him is that of the Bengali Naib. Not one of all his band of up-countrymen could be induced to betray their leader, showing in this respect a spirit and fidelity worthy of the noblest cause. It is a matter for much regret that a young man like Mr. Shepherd should have allowed himself to be mixed up in a case like this, and a matter of wonder that anyone should have hoped to perpetrate dacoities on such a river as the Joymungul with impunity.—Englishman.

MILITARY.—Captain Seel, of the Rifle Brigade, spoken of as a very smart officer, is likely to be appointed to the new post of Inspector and Adjutant of the East India Railway Volunteers.—We observe it stated that the officers of the Royal Artillery are about to petition Parliament for the repeal of the invidious orders that exclude them from the privileges of the Staff Corps.—The Delhi Gazette announces the sudden death from heart disease of Major-General Jones, at Murree, on the 21st July. He entered the Indian Army in 1815, and more than half a century of his life-time has been spent in India. By all those who knew him well he was much respected and beloved.—We regret to learn that Captain S. C. Walker, 19th Hussars, died suddenly of cholera on the 22nd July. He is said to have performed his regimental duties in the morning, and partaken of breakfast at mess as usual; but by five in the afternoon he was dead.—The Government of India, at the instance of the Commander-in-Chief, has ordered that cholera camps shall in no case be established in close proximity to the station where the disease may have broken out. When practicable, such camps should be formed at a distance of fifty miles from the infected station or cantonment, and within easy distance of a line of railway.—We regret to hear from Mhow that, owing to continued sickness, Major-General Adams, C.B., Commanding the Mhow Division, is obliged to proceed to England. The Major-General came out to this country in command of the 28th Regiment (the "Slashers") in 1857, and was promoted to a brigade command at Belgaum, prior to his present command, and his departure from Mhow will be much regretted by all who have the honour to serve under him.—A Court of Inquiry, composed of officers of the district, assembled on Thursday morning last, for the purpose of investigating and reporting upon the late brutal assault committed on the schoolmaster of the 62nd Regiment and his wife, as published in the Lucknow Times of Wednesday, the 21st July. Evidences were taken, and among them that of a punkah coolie, who saw the perpetrators of the outrage proceeding towards the schoolmaster's quarters and witnessed their subsequent escape. The result of the investigation has not as yet transpired, and so far the offenders have eluded the vigilance of justice and the law.—Lucknow Times, July 24.—A correspondent of the Mofussilite reports the death of the schoolmaster on the 26th July. His wife was in the hospital, lying in a very precarious state, having received several ugly cuts about the head.—The Lucknow Times has heard of the serious illness of Colonel Chamberlain, but trusts that medical skill will soon restore him to his former good health.—We understand that Lieutenant C. J. Durand, quartermaster and acting adjutant of the 4th Regiment N.I. at this station, has been nominated to the Pay Department, as Officiating Deputy Paymaster of the Allahabad Circle, and that he will shortly proceed to relieve Lieutenant-Colonel Allen, who is now at Cawnpore on his half-yearly tour of payments of the native pensioners there. The latter officer will then join his new appointment at Calcutta as Deputy Paymaster of the Presidency Circle. We also hear that the amalgamation of the Departments of Military Accounts in all three Presidencies into a single one, as announced some months ago, will very soon become a fait accompli, and will probably cause a good many changes in this branch of the service, more especially in the Madras and Bombay Presidencies.—Pioneer, July 26.—We see it stated that on the 16th July a telegram was received from headquarters by the commanding officer of the 107th Regiment at Hazareebaugh, ordering that Lieutenant Jordan was to be allowed to rejoin his regiment at the expiration of his imprisonment. Mr. Jordan, therefore, who was released on the 14th ultimo, at once proceeded to rejoin his regiment on the receipt of the order from his commanding officer. It was for trespass in the house or compound of Mr. Elias—whose wife was mixed up in the case—that Lieutenant Jordan was sentenced.

Madras.

EARTHQUAKE.—A smart shock of earthquake is reported to have been felt at Simla at ten minutes after six o'clock A.M. on Sunday, the 25th July. The vibrations lasted about fifteen seconds. The undulations were from west to east.

MADRAS PIER.—The repairs of the Madras pier are approaching completion, but we learn that the work will have to be partially suspended for a short time, as there is a want of iron. Some of the workmen have been dismissed, and will not be re-employed until material is procured to enable the persons in charge of the work to proceed with the repairs.

TRACTION STEAM ENGINES.—The meeting to form the (Bangalore) Traction Steam Engine Company, held on Tuesday, went off with the most complete success. More than the number of shares have been already subscribed for, and we understand that the list will be kept open till the end of the month, when an allotment will be made pro rata. We are informed that yesterday shares were actually sold at 4 per cent. premium. This speaks well for the confidence of the natives in the undertaking.—Bangalore Herald, July 22.

THE ECLIPSE OF LAST YEAR.—Lieut. Pogson, the Government astronomer at Madras, has submitted to the Madras Government a report in regard to the eclipse in August last. The Government notice with regret the great delay, amounting to eleven months, which has occurred in the submission of the report, which, they fear, with good reason, will much detract from the interest with which the results obtained will be regarded by the scientific public in Europe.

THE LATE LIEUTENANT BROOKING.—Mrs. Brooking, widow of the late Lieut. Brooking, who was shot by a havildar of the 35th Regiment N.I., has been granted the regulated pension of Rs. 18-10-2 per mensem from Lord Clive's Fund; and an application from H.E. the Commander-in-Chief for the special extension to the family of the above officer of the regulations relating to the grant of "Compassionate Allowances" has been forwarded to the Secretary of State for India accompanied by the strong recommendation of Government.—Madras Times.

SOUTHERN OF INDIA RAILWAY.—"Our announcement," says the Madras Mail, "that the extension of the Great Southern of India Railway was to commence at the end of the year is, we are informed, rather premature, inasmuch as the sanction of the Secretary of State to the extension has not yet been given. The ships that were said by some of our contemporaries 'down south' to have brought railway materials to Tuticorin may have been phantom ships, or they may not; but this much is certain—they did not bring materials for the extension of the Great Southern of India Railway."

AUSTRALIAN MUTTON.—It is stated that the Madras Government have sanctioned the purchase of 2,544 lbs. of Australian preserved mutton, tendered by Messrs. Binny and Co., of Madras, to be issued as rations to the British troops in Burmah, as an experimental measure.—Madras Mail.

HINGINGHAUT COTTON.—Some experiments in the culture of this cotton have been made in the North Arcot district, but the trials have proved unsuccessful from the want of rain, and although purposing to repeat the experiments, the Collector is of opinion that cotton can never become a staple product in that district, there being something uncongenial to its growth in the soil and climate.

PILGRIM SHIP.—The ship Uttir Rachman Sirusker, Nacoda Nusserooden, of 704 tons, under British colours, bound from a Jeddah to Calcutta with pilgrims and a cargo of salt, put into Narrakel on the 17th inst. in a leaky state. This vessel left Jeddah on the 17th June with 389 pilgrims, and seventy-two men for her crew, and during the voyage thirty-one pilgrims and one of the crew died; the vessel sprung a leak on the 10th inst., making about four feet of water per hour when she arrived off this port. The pilgrims and crew are in a most destitute and squalid condition. A full report of the circumstance has been made to Government.—Cochin Argus, July 23.

COCHIN.—The port of Narrakel seems to be rapidly rising into importance, if the fact of its having been largely resorted to by the shipping of late is any criterion. Since the commencement of the S. W. monsoon, the port has been visited by fourteen vessels, giving nearly 9,700 tons. Several ships have loaded there for Europe at the worst periods of the present monsoon, and the bark Douglas discharged a whole cargo of rice there within a comparatively short time, whilst communication with the shore at Cochin was quite impracticable from the state of the sea. Narrakel likewise affords facilities for repairing vessels, and the pilgrimship Uttir Rachman Sirusker, which made the port in a leaky condition, is now at anchor in the roads for repairs.

MILITARY.—Colonel Woods, the acting superintendent and agent for army clothing, is, we understand, to be appointed to the command of the Ceded districts, which is to be reduced from a divisional to a brigade command; and Captain Ross Church, now acting as presidency paymaster, is reported to be the successful applicant for the acting post of clothing agent. How the paymastership will be provided for we have not heard.—Madras Times.—With reference to the despatch of the Secretary of State on the reduction of army expenditure, we understand that H.E. the Commander-in-Chief has been requested to favour Government with an early expression of his views as to the practicability of reducing the military expenditure of his presidency, especially as regards the European force, and staff appointments, and establishments generally. The controller of military accounts has also been requested to draw the attention of heads of departments to any particular heads or items of charge which his official and general experience may lead him to regard as possibly susceptible of reduction.—Athenæum.—Colonel J. Penrose Coode, Commandant of the 8th N.I., at Trichinopoly, who has just arrived at Bangalore on sixty days' leave, has been ordered, says the Madras Mail, by the Commander-in-Chief, by telegram, to at once take command of the 35th N.I. at Vepery, a corps whose condition has aroused much public anxiety of late in Madras, notwithstanding the Chief's whitewashing order. We observe that Major-general L. marez has been appointed a Divisional Commander by the Governor of Madras, in succession to the late Major-general Faunce.

LITERARY.—Mr. A. W. Hughes, inspector of cotton for Sind, has been appointed editor of the Sind Gazetteer.—Sind News, July 22.

NORMAL SCHOOL FOR GIRLS.—We hear that the wife of his Highness Dhoondleera, alias Tattacai Shiah Sangleekur, has given the sum of twelve hundred rupees to the Girls' Normal School which is shortly to be established in the city of Poona.—Poona Observer.

REWARD FOR SAVING LIFE AT SEA.—We are glad to find that Captain Hanscom, a much-respected officer, engaged in the Bombay and Suez trade, has been honoured by the French Imperial Government with a gold medal of the first-class, for saving life at sea. On the 12th December last, whilst bringing out the s.s. Neera to India, and when off the Scilly Islands, Captain Hanscom rescued five French seamen who had been wrecked in a French lugger called the Auguste. These poor men received every kindness and attention on board the Neera in which they came to Bombay, and the Government of the Emperor has expressed the high sense it entertains of his humanity.

SUICIDE OF MR. EVANS, C.E.—We regret to learn that Mr. Evans, C.E., the resident engineer G.I.P. Railway, was found shot in his bedroom at five o'clock in the morning of the 24th July. Nothing is to be gained by concealing that Mr. Evans fell by his own hand. It appears that the deceased had been suffering from the effects of a violent sunstroke, which rendered him liable to occasional fits of mental excitement, during which he lost control of his actions. In one of these paroxysms, brought on by a long exposure to the sun on the previous day, he seized a loaded gun, and fired the contents into his body. The direction of the charge was such that it missed the breast and entered the abdomen, cutting the intestines to pieces. In this condition the unfortunate gentleman lingered till the evening of the same day, when he sank from exhaustion, and died.—Poona Observer, July 31.

A NATIVE PETITION.—The following petition was some months ago addressed to one of our high Indian authorities. It affords a striking illustration, we think, of the results of educating the native mind:—"We were glad for a time to see the transference of Mr. W—, senior judge and sessions judge of R—, to the M— collectorate, for he was a man who is not endowed with powers to distribute justice with an even hand. While he was at R— he ruined many persons by his premature justice, so that every one was disgusted with his official work. On hearing the news of the departure of this fine unevenhanded judge from this place, joy pervades through the whole collectorate as well as this town. This man's justice is as a man who born at seven and a-half months; such kind of quickness. We expected more industrious able gentlemen in place of Mr. W—, but our expectations (sic) have been utterly dissipated because Mr. T— seems to have been married to Mrs. Sleep, and Hunting is his second and more favourite wife. We have seen him many a time come to his office with his first wife hand in hand, and neglect his office work. While the Government job is thus not cared for, he flies to his second wife with sword, pistols, guns, revolvers, knives, and spoons, and such like tools; with sepoy to bring her ornaments, tigers, bears, wolves, gadflies, &c., in order that he may win her favour more and more every day. We are quite sure that as he is wholly devoted to these two wives he cannot do justice to us. Our experience of two or three years tells us that such rascally persons is appointed to important post. Now as for Mr. N—, present collector of this place, is a person of the same stamp: he is disposed to create new taxes, such as a house-tax. It gives much pain to the people gathering the tax. In all, all are fools, nonsense, foolish, devil destructive. Mr. W— is not quiet enough to live in the belly of his mother till nine months; Mr. T— is as much bold as to kill gadflies; Mr. N— is only to be a fool throughout the whole length and breadth of the collectorate, as he proved himself much painstaking man in raising Government school at R—."—Bombay Gazette.

GOVERNMENT GENERAL ORDERS.

MILITARY CORRESPONDENCE.

Adj. Gen.'s Office, Head Qrs., Simla, July 5.—No. 196.—Serious inconvenience having occurred from remissness in an important branch of correspondence, in consequence of which the C. in C. in India has remained in ignorance of opinions given by commanding officers of stations to the civil authorities on matters of much importance, his Excellency requests close attention be paid in future to the custom according to which commanding officers of every degree are required to submit to their superiors communications on official matters received from non-military authorities.

General officers commanding divisions and districts will have the goodness to enforce this rule in all stations under their command, and they will, further, forward to army head-quarters, without delay, communications and questions of every kind which may have been submitted to them, or to those under their command, for opinion or orders by authorities not connected with the army.

Attention is called to para. 1, chapter 20, "Correspondence," of the Bengal Military Regulations, which lays down the channel through which military officers' opinions are to be conveyed to H.E. the C. in C. and to Government; to paragraph 14 of the same, which generally defines the scope of authorised correspondence with local civil authorities; and to paragraphs 19 and 20, which indicate the nature of correspondence expected from commanding officers, and the necessity of observing the prescribed channel of communication.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

July 5.—No. 197.—The following letter from the Military Department, to the Controller of Military Accounts, No. 911, dated March 20 last, is published for general information and guidance:—

"I am directed to acknowledge your letter, No. 1,744e, dated Feb. 15 last, and in reply to acquaint you that a medical officer in charge of a regiment appointed to officiate in a staff appointment during the absence on furlough of the permanent incumbent will not be required to vacate his regimental charge."

RELIEFS AND MOVEMENTS—TRANSFERS—ARTILLERY.

July 5.—No. 198.—Instances having occurred where general officers, exercising their discretion, have authorised the movement of men from batteries of Royal Artillery to others of the same brigade at distant stations, at the hottest seasons of the year, and it having been brought to the Commander-in-Chief's notice that in some cases men have suffered most severely therefrom, his Excellency prohibits for the future any such movements between April 1 and Oct. 20, without special sanction received from army head-quarters through the quartermaster-general.

This order cancels, within the above dates, the operation of Adjutant-general's Circulars of Aug. 26, 1863, and No. 103 of July 21, 1865.

DRESS—CLOTHING.

July 5.—No. 199.—It is hereby notified for general information that the Government of India has sanctioned the undermentioned change in the uniform of the native infantry; and commanding officers are requested to submit their indents to the clothing department for supply of the new pattern clothing which falls due in 1870-71—Zouave tunics with slashed cuffs and serge pyjamas.

DRESS.

July 5.—No. 200.—General order No. 133, dated May 20 last, laying down the cork helmet as the future head-dress for general staff, applies to the brigade staff as well as to the divisional staff.

CLAIMS TO ADDITIONAL PAY—CIVIL AND UNCOVENANTED SERVICE.

From G. H. M. Batten, Esq., Under-Secretary to the Government of India, financial department, to the Accountant-general, Bengal—(No. 1,682, dated July 2, 1869).

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of the letter from the Examiner of Claims, Calcutta, No. 43e, dated April 30, 1869, inquiring—

First, whether "an uncovenanted officer performing the duties of another office in addition to his own would be entitled to a moiety of the salary of the appointment in which he is officiating plus the full salary of his own substantive appointment, under the ruling of the financial department, No. 2,502, dated March 16, 1860 (provided that his total receipt does not exceed the salary of the more highly-paid office), or his own salary and 20 and 10 per cent. of the salary of the acting appointment."

Secondly, what rules should regulate the salaries of ministerial officers whose salaries are "graded," by which is apparently meant progressive.

Thirdly, whether a ministerial officer, who has not attained the maximum salary of his own class, should be allowed 20 per cent. of the mean salary of the class in which he is officiating "up to the limit of the minimum salary of the latter class."

Fourthly, whether a ministerial officer drawing the maximum salary of his own class should be refused deputation allowance on being appointed to officiate in a higher class, but be permitted to draw the periodical increases of salary of that class as if he were permanently appointed to it.

Fifthly, whether the officer referred to in the last question should be permitted, in the event of his being confirmed in the class in which he is officiating, to retain the annual increases which he drew during his officiating incumbency.

2. In reply to the first question, I am desired to point out that the ruling of March 16, 1860, is one of the "old rules for the granting of acting allowances to uncovenanted servants," which, as you will observe from the order of this department, No. 308, dated the 1st ult., "have been abolished" by the order No. 122 of January 16, 1869; and to observe that, according to the last-mentioned order and the orders of this department, No. 735, dated Jan. 28, No. 1,482, dated March 5, and No. 998, dated June 14, 1869, an uncovenanted officer performing the duties of another office in addition to his own is entitled to his substantive salary and an acting allowance of 20, or 20 and 10 per cent. on the salary of the office in which he is officiating, provided his aggregate receipts do not exceed that salary, unless the Government which imposed the double duty upon him certifies that it "would have been detrimental to the public service to have made any other arrangement," in which case the proviso regarding his aggregate receipts may be waived.

3. In reply to the second and third questions, I am directed to state that the acting allowance of an uncovenanted servant officiating in an appointment, the salary of which is progressive, should be calculated at the rates stated in the preceding paragraph, on the mean salary of that appointment, provided his total receipts do not exceed its minimum salary.

4. In reply to the fourth question, I am directed to state that, when an officer on the maximum salary of his own class is officiating in a higher class, and his acting allowance calculated as prescribed above raises his total receipts to the minimum salary of the higher class, he should draw the periodical increases of salary allowed in the higher classes if he were permanently appointed to that class. I am to add, with reference to the fifth question, that he should be permitted to retain those increases in the event of his being confirmed in the higher class.

No. 1,683.—From G. H. M. Batten, Esq., Under Secretary to the Government of India, Financial Department, to Officiating Accountant-general, British Burmah.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 241 of April 16, 1869, and in reply to state that the order of this department, No. 1,482, dated March 5, 1869, does not supersede, in the case of uncovenanted servants officiating in such posts as are never held by covenanted civil servants or military officers, the rule which denies acting allowance in departments where appointments are divided into classes and sub-divided into grades to an officer acting in a higher grade of his own class.

No. 1,684.—From G. H. M. Batten, Esq., Under Secretary to the Government of India, Financial Department, to Accountant-general, North Western Provinces.

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of Mr. Deputy Accountant-general J. Eede's letter, No. 20,066 of May 15, 1869, and in pointing out that the first and second questions contained in that letter are disposed of in the orders of this department, Nos. 1,682 and 1,683 of this day's date, to state in reply to the third question, that when an uncovenanted servant officiates for another, who draws a salary and personal allowance, the acting allowance of the former should be calculated on the salary of the latter, exclusive of his personal allowance.

THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY VOLUNTEER RIFLE CORPS.

Simla, July 17.—No. 759.—H.E. the Governor-general in Council has been pleased to approve of the formation of such employes of the East Indian Railway as desire to tender their services as volunteers into a corps, to be designated "The East Indian Railway Volunteer Rifle Corps," the head quarters of which will be at Jamalpore.

2. The corps will be embodied under the operation, and subject to the provisions, of Act XXIII. of 1857, and Government General Orders Nos. 274 of 1861, 96 of 1863, and 631 of 1864.

3. For the executive duties officers and non-commissioned officers from the army, to the following extent, are sanctioned:—One captain as inspector and adjutant, with the staff salary and office allowance of a brigade major, in addition to staff corps pay; one first class and one second class sergeant inspector, in proportion of one of each class to every 150 volunteers.

4. The pay of the sergeant instructors will be determined hereafter; they will, after six months' trial, be transferred to the unattached list.

5. The non-commissioned staff will be distributed by the inspector and adjutant, under the orders of the commanding officer, and will perform all the duties of staff sergeants, keep all accounts and correspondence, prepare all returns and practice records, take charge of the arms and ammunitions, and act as instructors in every sense.

6. The sergeant instructors, as regards discipline, will be subject to the authority of the officer commanding the battalion and the inspector and adjutant only; any neglect on their part or irregularity coming to the notice of volunteer officers is to be reported for the decision of the officer commanding.

7. It will be within the power of the officer commanding the battalion, on the recommendation of the inspector and adjutant, to promote or reduce the inspectors from one class to another.

8. The entertainment of two kalassies, at Rs. 8 per mensem, for every 100 volunteers, to take care of the arms, perform fatigue duties at the ranges, &c., is also sanctioned.

9. Each company to consist of one captain, one lieutenant, and one ensign, elected by the men; one colour-sergeant, four sergeants, four corporals, and one bugler, nominated by the commanding officer of the battalion; with a minimum strength of 35 and a maximum of 70 privates.

10. The men of each company need not necessarily reside at the same station.

11. Should the number of volunteers enrolled hereafter be found sufficient, a second corps will be formed.

12. The battalion will have a staff of officers consisting of one honorary colonel, one lieutenant-colonel, one major, and one quartermaster, to be appointed by Government from among the elected commissioned officers.

13. A capitation grant of Rs. 20 per annum will be given by Government under existing regulations.

14. The funds of the corps, and the accounts connected therewith, are to be kept by the quartermaster upon the responsibility of the lieutenant-colonel of the battalion, and will be audited annually by the inspector and adjutant.

15. Wherever the head quarters of a battalion or company are fixed, or where twenty volunteers are permanently located, ranges are to be provided; their sites, to be in as close proximity to the railway station as possible, will be selected by railway engineers, in conjunction with the civil officer of the district. When railway ground is not available, a free site will be granted by the Government.

16. No range is to be brought into use until it has been approved by an inspector of musketry.

17. With a view to encourage the railway volunteers in acquiring skill in the use of their arms, annual Government prizes for matches will be granted in the proportion of Rs. 200 to every hundred effectives.

18. All matters connected with the battalion requiring the orders of Government shall be referred through the Secretary to the Government of India in the Military Department.

19. Under the orders of H.E. the C. in C., arrangements will be made for the annual inspection of the battalion, the inspecting officer forwarding his confidential report to the adjutant-general.

LAST PAY CERTIFICATES, C.S.

Financial Dept., Simla, June 30.—No. 1,717.—Read Resolution No. 409 passed in this department on the 7th ult., and appendices regarding last pay certificates to officers of the civil department.

Resolution.—In the resolution mentioned above, it is provided that the rate of absentee allowance admissible to a civil officer proceeding on leave shall in all cases be shown in his last pay certificate by the accountant general of his Presidency; but in the case of a covenanted civil servant or military officer in civil employ whose appointment has been changed within the three years preceding his furlough, the rate of furlough allowance will sometimes depend on the date on which he may make over charge of his office, and the accountant general of his Presidency will not be aware of that date at the time the last pay certificate is prepared if the absentee intends to embark at a port in a Presidency other than that in which he is employed, and has not to pass through the accountant general's station on his way to that port. For cases in which, for these reasons, the accountant general is unable to specify the rate of absentee allowance, the Governor-general in Council is pleased to lay down the following in lieu of the rules prescribed in the 6th paragraph of the above-mentioned resolution:—The accountant general of the absentee's Presidency must send him a document in the form A appended to this resolution, leaving the fifth, sixth, eighth, and ninth spaces on the face of the form blank, and forward a duplicate of it to the accountant general or district officer at the port at which the absentee intends to embark for Europe. Before the absentee's departure from his station the district officer in charge of the treasury from which he last drew pay must fill up the sixth space on the face of the original form, and fill up and attest the certificate at the end of that form. The accountant general or district officer at the port at which the absentee intends to embark for Europe must act up to the instructions in the letter to his address on the back of the form, must copy the entry in the sixth space on the face of the original form, and the entries and signature in the certificate at the end of that document into the duplicate form, and must return the original form to the absentee. If he be an accountant general, he must, moreover, forward the duplicate form to the local Government for transmission to the Secretary of State, and forward a copy of the certificate at the end of the form to the accountant general of the absentee's Presidency, with a letter in the form B appended to this resolution; but if he be a district officer he must forward the duplicate form A to the accountant general of his own Presidency, who must send it on to the local Government for transmission to the Secretary of State, and forward a copy of the certificate at the end of the form A to the accountant general of the absentee's Presidency with a letter in the form C appended. [The forms referred to above are omitted.]

MUNICIPAL.—Mr. A. C. Mangles to be vice-chairman of the Municipal Commissioners for the town of Mozufferpore, with effect from July 10.

ARRIVALS FROM EUROPE (MILITARY).—The undermentioned officers have reported their return from England:—Capt. ### THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

The general proceedings on Friday, August 20, to some of which we referred last week, were in several instances interesting, and the sections were all well attended.

In section E (Geography), Sir Bartle Frere, the president of the section, began the proceedings by a dissertation on the district known as the "Runn of Cutch." In a very taking conversational manner, the president narrated that the place so called forms part of a district lying between the Valley of the Indus and Guzerat, which is divided by geographers into the Great Indian Desert and the Runn of Cutch, which is supposed to consist of marshes and bogs not traversable. Speaking from personal observation, Sir Bartle was able to say that the so-called desert was a district about the size of Great Britain, one portion of which was inhabited by a nearly civilised, very peculiar, and ancient people, proud of their origin, and having a city which might be called celebrated, who cultivated the land, at least in places, possessed cattle, and were governed by members of a Rajpoot dynasty of 1,200 years' duration. The whole district was surrounded by ridges of sand, which were not accumulated by the action of the wind, but were of volcanic origin, some of which had comparatively recently been thrown up by an earthquake. As to the Runn of Cutch proper, so far from its being a morass or bog, it was a hard, level plain, so smooth and even, and so unbroken by landmarks, that in the mirage which prevailed there the bones of a camel lying on the ground would assume gigantic proportions, and form themselves into the likeness of a large city. So complete was the absence of landmarks that it was dangerous, if not impossible, to travel over the Runn by daylight; but at those seasons of the year when the plain was dry transit was carried on at night by the guidance of the stars and the aid of a beacon-fire kept alight by Mahomedan devotees, who one at a time lived in this region, and in succession undertook this duty. At another season of the year, the plain, being below the level of the sea, was entirely flooded with water much more salt than that of the ocean.

In the same section, the most important paper read was one by M. de Tchikatchef, of St. Petersburg, "On Central Asia." The author had excellent command of the English language, and commenced by mentioning the intended publication of a new and corrected edition of Baron Humboldt's "Asie Centrale." With regard to Central Asia, the truth was, that as long as our knowledge of Central Asia was scanty and vague, that mysterious country must have appeared, not only to the ignorant crowd, but also to many of the most enlightened and sagacious statesmen, as the natural battlefield where sooner or later England and Russia had to meet in an exterminating dogged struggle. The danger seemed so unavoidable and so urgent that no expense, no sacrifices were spared in order to postpone this disastrous crisis. Now, thanks to the indefatigable exertions of men like Montgomery, Walker, Johnson, Godwin-Austen, Schlagintweit, Swerzow, and many other recent explorers, whose important labours will be discussed in the supplementary volume of Humboldt's "Asie Centrale," the ominous crisis so positively prophesied, and so unanimously feared, turns out to be nothing more than a fantastic dream; for surely nothing could be more fantastic, nothing sadder to remind us of the stories of the Thousand and One Nights, than to see a large army with heavy artillery, not only hover like ghosts over dense clouds and eternal snows, but even after such perilous gymnastics descend into the country of the enemy and defeat the English troops who were quietly and comfortably expecting the curious visitors. Well, this was precisely that which must be admitted by the advocate of a Russian invasion of India, for we now possess numerous trustworthy documents, which prove most positively that whatever may be the starting point of a Russian army intended to reach the Punjab, no less than two, and perhaps even three, months must be spent amid snowy mountains before such an army is allowed to put their frost-bitten feet on English territory. He was far from denying that among the advocates of Russian invasion there are men of deep science and of unquestionable good faith; but they all start either from the one or the other of the two hypotheses—viz., that what has been done once may be done again, or that what is now impossible may become possible. In support of the first hypothesis, the numerous invasions of India, ascertained by history, have been quoted, and a learned French Orientalist, M. Antextremere, endeavoured even to prove that the lofty mountains which formed the northern boundary of Cashmere, and which hitherto had been considered as not having at any time yielded a passage to a military expedition, had been traversed more than once as late as in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries by considerable armies, which starting from Kashgar and Yarkand, reaching the Punjab across Thibet and Cashmere. But what did such facts prove? Only one thing, that those armies, conducted by Eastern generals, and directed against Eastern populations, were more or less placed in the same conditions under which similar expeditions had been successfully performed by Alexander the Great and the Mongol conquerors—conditions widely different from those which would be imposed upon a Russian or any other invading army, not only because Asiatic adventurers, as well as Macedonian or Roman conquerors were not encumbered by the troublesome bulk of artillery, indispensable to European troops, but because they possessed over their enemies an overwhelming superiority either of moral or of material strength, whereas, now-a-days, no invading army would enjoy this advantage. A European army might succeed in dragging its ponderous artillery over large, snowy, mountainous tracts, as the admirable expedition of Abyssinia had so brilliantly proved, but only under the express condition of having to deal with Abyssinians or any other Asiatic population, for even if that country or Magdala alone had been occupied by French, Russian, or Prussian troops, instead of by those of Theodorus, the issue of the glorious expedition might have been a disastrous one. As for those who put an unlimited confidence in the progress of engineering science, believing that after all the marvels witnessed by our age, there is no reason why the highest and the most extensive known mountains of our globe, like those of Central Asia, may not be crossed by railways and pierced by tunnels, the answer to these sanguine expectations is easy. Even granting (what certainly is an enormous exaggeration) that there is no limit whatever to the conquests of man over nature, we must not forget that the most splendid triumphs of this kind—such, for instance, as the almost finished tunnel and the mountain railway of Mount Cenis, or the gigantic American railway joining the Atlantic to the Pacific, are mere trifles in comparison with works required by the mountainous systems which separate Turkestan from India; indeed, to carry steam waggons up immense vertical surfaces, or across stupendous glaciers, or to scoop out tunnels running many hundred miles is almost as difficult as to employ balloons for the sake of such marvellous travels, and if really a time may come when peculiar steam-engines or rapid and manageable balloons shall be invented, no doubt this time is so far from us that the civilising task of England and of Russia in Asia will have been fulfilled long ago. The now barbarous populations will be perfectly able to defend themselves at that time; and the newly invented marvellous engines will be used for the transport of travellers and merchandise, and not for military expeditions. In one word, the more we contemplate the real state of things such as has been revealed to us by the recent explorations of Central Asia, the more we must admit that the phantom of a Russian invasion in India is a worn-out bugbear, and the day may not be far distant when people will smile at such prophecies, and when the inhabitants of Bombay will be as little afraid of the appearance of Russian soldiers as the inhabitants of London are of the arrival of French troops.

The paper was listened to with rapt attention, and its reading was interrupted by loud applause.

"The Irrigation of India" was the subject of a paper read by Mr. Login in the Mechanical Section; it was full of useful information on this important question. A paper on "The Vital Statistics of Bombay," and one by Mr. Hyde Clarke on "The Distinction between Rent and Land Tax in India," were also read.

Miscellaneous.

THE INDIAN CABLE.—The Great Eastern is to leave the Medway on the 10th of November with the Indian cable on board, for laying down between Aden and Bombay. The shipment of the cable commenced last week, and by Saturday afternoon close upon 300 miles had been taken in. The cable is similar to that just laid down between France and America, excepting some slight adaptation to the higher temperature of the water in which it will be laid.

AN IMPROVED MITRAILLEUR.—Major Fosberry, V.C., of the Bengal Staff Corps, who has made several improvements upon the Montigny gun, will have a trial with the weapon in a few days, in competition with other guns, and which is expected to produce most wonderful effects. Major Fosberry is sanguine that he can, at 1,000 yards distance and upwards, strike an object of small dimensions with certainty, and so annoy an enemy in advancing as to cause him fearful loss. When it is considered that 370 rifle-bullets can be discharged from the "mitrailleuse" in a minute, the destruction caused by such a terrific fire upon an opposing force would create sad havoc in the ranks, and must ultimately lead to an alteration in the present tactics of war.

A COURAGEOUS STUDENT.—In the early part of last year a young Hindoo, of Calcutta, a youth of very high caste and a medical student, animated with a craving for a wider career than seemed possible to him as he was, threw his caste and his nobility to the winds and embarked for England. He arrived in July, and immediately went down to the Edinburgh University medical classes, where in a few months he took his degree of M.D. with honours. Bearing an introduction from a Scottish clergyman to a brother clergyman here, he returned to London, and lived during the winter in the house of the latter, studying for the Indian medical service. He went into the examination in April last, and his talents and acquirements were such that his friends never dreamt of his not being successful. He passed easily in the oral examination, but did not do well in the written examination, from sheer manual inability to write fast enough to cover the ground. His distress was pitiable when he learnt his failure, and, but for a good Samaritan, he might have succumbed to the blow. Our countryman, Mr. Dougall, the gunmaker, of St. James's-street, who had become aware of the circumstances, took the poor forlorn lad to the India-office, and obtained an interview with the Marquis of Lorne, the private secretary of his father, the Duke of Argyll, Secretary for India. The heart of the young Scottish nobleman was touched; and although Mr. Dougall's request that the Baboo should be maintained at the public expense till the August examination was altogether irregular, Mr. Callum More's son promised he would see what could be done. In the course of a few days the young Hindoo was apprised by the India-office that his case had been considered by the Cabinet, and that £100 had been placed to his credit, with the condition that he should compete again in August. Last week the examination was held, and lo! the young Baboo had come out sixth upon the list. It is indicative of Mr. Bright's thirst after information, from whatever source, that he sent for the young Hindoo, and pumped him dry; and it is no less a tribute to his generosity and warmth of heart that, with real delicacy, he offered him a considerable present. The young man firmly declined the proffered assistance, but his gratitude, we may be sure, was none the less.—London Scotsman.

THE SUEZ CANAL COMPANY.—CONDITIONS OF TRAFFIC.—The Suez Canal Company have issued, in London, officially, the terms and conditions upon which vessels will be allowed to navigate the Canal in passing from one sea to the other, in compliance with the Act of Concession, dated Jan. 5, 1856. There are altogether eleven articles. By the first the navigation of the Canal is open to vessels of all nations, provided they do not exceed a certain draught of water. Special conditions are imposed upon steamers; and as to speed, upon all vessels; and provision is made for the employment of the company's pilots, whose directions are to be followed, but the captain's responsibility for the conduct and movement of his vessel remains. Certain forms have to be gone through at the offices of Port Said or Suez on ships' arrival; and every vessel is to observe certain rules during the passage, one of which relates to lights during night time. The rules as to vessels meeting seem to be clear and definite; and if they are carefully observed, accidents at such times are apparently impossible. Provision is made for cases where vessels from any cause may be detained in the Canal; and commanders, among other requirements, are forbidden to anchor unless upon superior order, or upon the request of the pilot, or to cast into the water any filth, ashes, rubbish, or indeed, any object whatever. If any article does happen to fall into the canal, a declaration to that effect is to be at once made to the pilot, who must transmit it to the agent at the nearest station; and the commander of the vessel is prohibited from searching for the object without the direct sanction of the company's agents, and the salvage, however it may be effected, is always to be made at the expense of the ship to which the recovered article will be restored. The dues payable are to be calculated on the real tonnage of the ship, which will be determined according to the ship's papers; and it will be 10*l*. per ton, and 10*l*. per passenger. Towage 2*l*. per ton. Pilotage according to draught of water. If the pilot is detained, he is to be paid 20*l*. per day; but vessels anchoring are to have a reduction of 25 per cent. upon the pilotage dues. Such are the principal rules, which seem to include every contingency to which the navigation is exposed.

ALBERT ASSURANCE COMPANY.—A numerous meeting of the shareholders in the Albert Life Assurance Company was held at the offices on Saturday, at which a resolution was unanimously passed that the concern should be registered under the Joint-Stock Companies' Act of 1862. This course was adopted in order that the shareholders, at a future meeting, might have the power to decide that the company should be wound-up voluntarily rather than be allowed to go into Chancery. Mr. Price, one of the provisional official liquidators, read a lengthened report, giving a history of the company's transactions from its formation in 1838 to the present time. A discussion took place, in the course of which much information was elicited respecting the compensation given to the officials belonging to the various undertakings which have been absorbed by the Albert, and it appeared that about twenty-five or twenty-six persons had in this way received sums varying from £150 to £15,000. Although no formal resolution was come to, a general feeling was expressed in favour of some such scheme of reconstruction as that which has been placed before the public. The Daily News points out that Mr. Price's report to the shareholders on Saturday justifies what that journal has said about the mismanagement of the Albert, though the document is not that detailed exposure which the public, and especially the policy-holders and annuitants, have a right to expect and demand. For seven years the company was steadily losing money until the total reached £1,298,333, and yet during all those years the Albert was held forth to assurers as the best and most successful of offices, and to keep up the delusion, dividends and bonuses were distributed to the amount of more than £90,000. A circular was issued to certain of the recipients of bonuses in 1863, in which extraordinary credit is claimed for the scrupulous care with which the distribution of bonuses is kept within safe limits. "Some offices," it is said, "have gone to extremes in reference to bonuses, and have vied with each other as though it were of more importance that an office should declare a large bonus than that it should be well able to meet its claims by death, thereby perverting the real object of life assurance. The Albert will not be dragged into this undue competition, but will secure business safely, and in spite of it." Thus were bonuses proclaimed and losses concealed; and so it has come to happen that prudent heads of families, who thought that in an Albert policy they had a valid security available for their children after death, now open their strong box to find that they have only one of Mr. Kirby's "kites." Ten companies were either amalgamated with or transferred to the Albert between the years 1856—1865. For four years before the latter date the Albert had ceased to make any profit, and yet during those three years the Albert paid £42,116 for the business of other companies. For the business of the ten companies the Albert gave in one form or another £283,011, which is £170,000 more than the whole profit made by the Albert since 1854—two years before the time it began to absorb other companies—until 1861, when it left off making profit altogether. Mr. Price adds that a balance of £85,538 in respect of assets, which has taken place since 1855, has arisen almost wholly upon those taken over from the amalgamated companies. To the question why was this disastrous business so recklessly and perseveringly carried on? the answer must be—Because it suited the purpose of the late manager. While the policy-holders, annuitants, and shareholders were being undone, Mr. G. G. Kirby was taking handsome percentages and buying freehold estates. Mr. Kirby was the original projector of the company; under its various titles it was always his company. He prescribed the deed of settlement which made him managing director for life, which a right to £5 per cent. upon all premiums received, besides minor advantages, such as a salary of £400 a-year, and a residence in Waterloo-place. The Daily News goes on to specify Mr. Kirby's various pickings. We hope there will be no more of that ilk in the new management.

ADVICE TO ALBERT POLICY-HOLDERS.

The Spectator shows that the effect of the proposal for reconstruction which has been put forth is that the policy-holders are to forego twenty-five per cent. of their claims; are to form a new insurance company out of their own money, as shareholders, with all shareholders' risks; are to buy the business of the Albert, which is in suspension, and are to pay for the high privilege of obtaining that business one-fifth of their own profits, and pay it to the very company which has reduced them to this position. What right have the shareholders to a shilling, let alone a shilling and full exemption from any obligation to pay off their just debts? One would think from this programme that to take premiums for years and then not pay the policies was an act of virtue, for which the premium-takers ought not only to be rewarded, but rewarded at the expense of the premium-payers. The utter absurdity, not to say the impudence of the proposal from the policy-holders' point of view, will be best seen by considering the effect of its rejection. The policy-holders, if they reject it, will get their share of all saved out of the wreck, will get their chance of anything Chancery may extract from the shareholders—Overend-Gurney's creditors have received 19s. in the pound—and may then form a Mutual Assurance Society of their own, with no taint of the old management in it, no obligation to pay away 20 per cent. of their profits, and no reduction upon their premiums except the proportional one for increased age, which in the case of the Anglo-Indians, will certainly be less than the one-fifth they are requested to throw into the gutter. What does the Albert offer them in return for all their concessions? As far as the Spectator can see, absolutely nothing, except the privilege of alleviating the sufferings of Albert shareholders.

The Economist is of opinion that it will be very wise on the part of policy-holders to accept the proposed scheme. The main objection to the proposal is that a discredited company cannot hope to retain the business, though it is assumed the scheme will not suffer by policies lapsing. The policies which will lapse will be the youngest—the best from the view of an insurance office—and this will be fatal to the scheme. Nor are the holders of the policies to be blamed for their distrust. What an insurer must look to above all is security, and no insurer can have thorough confidence in a concern which has failed like the Albert. It will be better for all concerned to "cut their loss," and make the best they can of matters by insuring elsewhere. Those whose lives are now uninsurable will no doubt suffer, but they can hardly mend matters by going on to subscribe as formerly with a doubtful company for only a portion of the original benefit.

THE KHEDIVE AND HIS MASTER.

The Saturday Review remarks that the Sultan and his vassal are brothers in arms, borrowers leagued together against the great, foolish, despicable world of Christian lenders. One good turn deserves another, and the Viceroy understands that just at this juncture he must not spoil sport. His august chief, the Lord of the Faithful, the real legitimate owner of gunboats and ironclads, the possessor of the one true theory of the relation of luxury to civilisation, is going into the market for more money. It would be perfectly monstrous if the Khedive stood in the way. Who is he that he should stop a good wholesale borrowing from the infidels? Has not he, the Sultan's dog, had his day, and an uncommonly good day too? The Sultan is now going to suggest to placid, credulous, forgiving, benighted Europe a loan of twelve millions more. He is willing, in his magnificence, to borrow at a price which will force him to pay about 12 per cent. interest. This seems heavy, but why should he mind? There will be a little cash in hand, and as he, in the height of his wisdom, is sure to have promoted civilisation, why then should he not enjoy the luxury which is its legitimate fruit? The Sultan will have his little spell of luxury, and the grand rhetoricians who pen his despatches will enjoy a little gilded hour of sunshine, and then there will be the interest to pay. But why should not the interest be paid by new loans, if in no other way? Meanwhile the Khedive will have demanded his turn. The great and splendid revenues of Egypt will surely bear a little more dipping, and what a great point may be made of the Khedive having abandoned all ambitious designs, having abjured gunboats, and having discerned that civilisation ought to precede luxury! Nothing could suit the Mahomedan Powers better. The Sultan will get money because he has got gunboats, and the Khedive will get money because he has not got gunboats, and is too high-principled to get them.

Some time or other the inevitable collapse will come; but it is only fair to acknowledge that, if both Turkey and Egypt play their cards well, the day of reckoning may be a distant one.

ENGLISH HOMES IN INDIA.

PART I.—THE THREE LOVES. | PART II.—THE WRONG TURNING.

PUBLISHERS' NOTICE.

The writer of these volumes—an accomplished member of a family whose name is conspicuous in Indian story—being now resident in India, they have not had the benefit of her final corrections. It is hoped, however, that this inevitable drawback will detract but little from the pleasure to be afforded by the perusal of the tales, which are, indeed, what they profess to be, stories of English Homes in India, represented as such homes are in different parts of the country and under various social and professional aspects. They endeavour fairly and without exaggeration to illustrate Anglo-Indian life as it is, in its many varying phases, and to bring upon the scene, in their everyday costume, many kinds of Anglo-Indian workmen, from the Resident at a Native Court, to the subaltern officer and the railway employé; and it is believed that all who have visited the countries described will recognise the truth of the portraiture.

No European in India or tropical countries should be without it.

AROMATIC TINCTURE OF QUINOIDINE.

For the Prevention of Fever, Ague, and effects of Malaria. An unfailing remedy. It may be mentioned that those who, during the campaign in the Crimea, daily took a small quantity, passed entirely unharmed through the raking fire of fever and dysentery that thinned the ranks around them.

Sold in half and quarter-pint bottles.

Prepared by THOMAS WILKINSON (late Bridge and Co.), 270, Regent-street, London, W.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.

Bilious affections and stomach complaints, induced by atmospheric heat or too liberal diet, if not early checked are often attended with serious consequences. When anyone finds his ideas less clear than usual, his eyesight dimmed, and his head dizzy, while he is indisposed for all exertion, physical or mental, he may be quite certain that he is in immediate need of some cooling and purifying medicine. Let him send at once for a box of Holloway's Pills, after a few doses of which his head will be clear again, his spirits elevated, and all his energies will be restored. Printed directions for the guidance of patients in the use of this admirable medicine are affixed to every box.

RUPTURES.—BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER

TRUSS, Perfected and Exhibited in the Great Exhibition of 1851, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London.

Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d., postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 8d. Umbilical, 42s. and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 10d.

Post-office Orders payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

NEW PATENT.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS,

&c.—The material of which these are made is recommended by the Faculty as being peculiarly elastic and compressible, and the best invention for giving efficient and permanent support in all cases of weakness and swelling of the Legs, Varicose Veins, Sprains, &c. It is porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and is drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price 4s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s. to 16s. each; postage, 6d.

JOHN WHITE, MANUFACTURER, 228, PICCADILLY, LONDON.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.—

UPWARDS OF FIFTY YEARS' experience has fully confirmed the superior reputation of these Lozenges in the cure of ASTHMA, WINTER COUGH, HOARSENESS, SHORTNESS OF BREATH, and other PULMONARY MALADIES.

RECENT TESTIMONIAL.

August 23, 1868.

Dear Sir,—Having tried your Cough Lozenges in India, I have much pleasure in testifying to their beneficial effects in cases of incipient consumption, asthma, and bronchial affections; so good a medicine ought to be known to be appreciated. I have prescribed it largely with the best results.

W. B. G.,
Apothecary H.M. Indian Medical Service.

To Mr. Thomas Keating.

Summary and Review.

OUR latest advices by the Overland Mail are—from Bombay, August 10; Agra, August 7; Calcutta, August 6; Madras, August 4.

The Indian papers are not over-burdened with news. From Bombay we get long reports of the second general meeting of the shareholders in the new Bank of Bombay. Of course the aggressive conduct of the Bank of Bengal came in for abundant notice in the chairman's speech. A good deal of discussion followed the proposal to pay a dividend at the rate of 6 per cent. only out of profits said to equal nearly 13 per cent. Prudence however carried the day in favour of keeping a large balance in reserve. Another question, as to the disposal of the unallotted shares, provoked a still sharper debate, and was left for settlement to another meeting.

THE Court of Inquiry into the stranding of the Alexandra on the eastern coast of Madras gave its verdict on the 28th of July. The captain was blamed for not coming up on deck on two occasions named; but on account of his indifferent health, his certificate has been suspended for three months only. That of the chief officer, Mr. Robson, was suspended for six months, because he made no casts of the lead, took no bearings of the light visible on shore, and failed to see that a good look out was kept. The second officer gets a caution against placing too much faith in the skipper's management, and keeping too timidly to his orders. The Court also condemns the practice of employing boys of sixteen to keep a look-out. We should have thought that young eyes within certain limits were the best adapted to that kind of duty; but a Court of seafaring judges must be supposed to know its own business.

THE idea of working the telegraph lines between military stations by means of soldiers duly trained, is at length on the point of being carried into practice. Colonel Robinson's scheme for this purpose has now been sanctioned by the Indian Government. A branch office superintended by the Brigademajor, Assistant Quartermaster-general, or some such responsible officer, will be set up in every cantonment. The soldiers employed as telegraphers will receive from two to four annas on each message sent or received correctly, provided always that they shall get no more than Rs. 20 a month in all. Orders have been already issued for beginning work at eleven of the most important European stations in British India.

THE Elphinstone Land Company had their meeting on the 5th August, but only for the purpose of postponing for another fortnight the question of accepting the offer made by the Government. Time was needed, it seems, to bring down the accounts to June, and to acquaint the shareholders with all the particulars of the proffered bargain.

EMBOLDENED by the arrangements thus proposed to the Bombay Company, the Port Canning shareholders are apparently trying to induce the Bengal Government to offer similar terms for their advantage. Much is made of the pleasing impression which a visit to the place left on Lord Mayo's mind, and it is possible that Port Canning, under fair treatment, might yet become what Dalhousie meant it to be. But it is not quite clear that Government could offer such terms as shareholders not quite in extremities would care to accept. Meanwhile, the new directors are already at issue with the shareholders on some points of privilege claimed by the former. A committee of three has been named to revise the articles of association.

MR. HICKEY's apparatus for extracting gas from sewage has again been successfully tried at Darjeeling, where the experiments were carried out on a larger scale than in Calcutta. The gas burned brightly in a full stream for more than an hour without any smell, thus meeting one strong objection to its use. The stuff in the retort seems to give out no worse smell than that of a brickkiln. It is urged that a beginning so successful should be followed up by an early application of the process to one or more of the larger Indian cities. We recommend the idea of thus utilising solid excreta to some of our own gas companies, who have not shown themselves particular as to the purity or sweetness of their goods.

No wonder that the prospects of a grand durbar at Agra grows less and less visible, if it be true that four-fifths of the cattle in the States of Scrohi, Marwar, Meywar, Kishenghur, and Mairwarra have perished from famine. In spite of the rain that has lately fallen in Rajpootana and the North-West Provinces, there is little reason to hope that the coming crops will do more than mitigate the evil consequences of past drought.

ACCORDING to the Pall Mall Gazette letters have arrived in England from Dr. Cayley, announcing the successful issue of Messrs. Shaw and Hayward's adventurous journey to Yarkand. Mr. Hayward reappeared at Leh, the capital of Ladakh, on the 14th July, and Mr. Shaw was expected to reach the same place a week later. These gentlemen are the first Englishmen and nearly the first Europeans who have made their way to Yarkand and Kashgar in modern times. More fortunate than poor Adolphe von Schlagentweit, they have lived to come home again. Mr. Shaw was the first to reach Yarkand, whither his companion, after a brief detention at Shadullah, near the Tibetan frontier, was allowed to follow but not to join him. No violence seems to have been offered them, but official jealousies kept them apart. In this way they were passed on to Kashgar, where Yakoob Khooshbeghi was then staying. With that strong-handed ruler each had a private interview. Mr. Hayward was pleased with his strong sense and enlightened conversation. His rule is described as just, liberal, and very popular. His subjects are reported prosperous, his chief cities, Yarkand and Kashgar, are large and wealthy, and the country round Yarkand is very fertile and well-cultivated. His independence of China seems to be thoroughly established; but he dreads the advance of Russia, whose outpost on the Narain is unpleasantly near him. The Khooshbeghi was induced to sanction Mr. Shaw's scheme of establishing a trade in tea between Kangra and Eastern Turkistan. A large caravan was about to leave Yarkand for Cashmere, in good time for the approaching fair at Peshawar. As for Mr. Hayward, although he was prevented from exploring the Pameer Plateau and the Chitral Valley on his way home, he has nevertheless enlarged our geographical knowledge of the country he passed through. Mr. Shaw against his own will had to come home by the Karakorum, but Mr. Hayward, being less incumbered, took his own way by the Karakah River and the Changchenmoo Pass.

ACCORDING to a writer in the Bombay Gazette arrangements are already in progress for supplying India with Australian horses—"Walers," as they are colloquially called. It seems that Colonel Ross has been despatched from South Australia by Sir James Fergusson to consult with Lord Mayo about the regular shipment of Australian horses for the use of the Indian cavalry and artillery. In fact, the colonel left India by the last Bombay Mail for England. It is proposed to make over to the Indian Government a large piece of Australian ground in the neighbourhood of Port Darwin, to the south of Melville Island, for the establishment of a depot and grazing-ground. There the advantages of good soil and pasture are combined with abundance of fresh water. If the Indian Government will engage to buy a certain number of these "Walers" yearly at a fixed rate, the South Australian Government are ready to deliver at Port Darwin as many as shall from time to time be required. So rapidly have these children of English sires spread over Australia, that horses are being actually shot down for the sake of their skins. They are harder than English and larger than Arab horses. If they prove to be anything like as strong and healthy as these latter, it would certainly be worth the while of the Indian Government to buy up animals which can be landed in Calcutta for about 250 rupees, or little more than half the price at which Gulf Arabs used to be landed at Bombay, or stud-bred horses reared at Saharunpore. For stoutness, good temper, health, and general usefulness, it is probable that nothing can surpass the Arab; but if really good "Walers," warranted to stand the climate, can be had at much lower prices, there should be no reason to sacrifice economy to use and wont.

A WRITER in the Times of India has lately been analysing some of the cases of hardship to which Colonel de Salis among others drew attention, in respect to the supersession of Imperial colonels by those of the Indian army. The results confirm what we pointed out some time back as to the general absence of real hardship in the long run. The superseded English colonels are generally younger in the service by many years than their Indian rivals. Compare for instance Major-general Galwey and Colonel Thesiger. The former, an ensign of 1835, gained his company in 1847. Colonel Thesiger, an ensign of 1844, got his in 1850, just half the time. In five years more he was a major, whereas Captain Galwey took ten years to gain the same rank. In 1857 Major Thesiger was a lieutenant-colonel, while Galwey was still waiting for his majority. The latter's lieutenant-colonelcy dates from 1860, three years after the other. Both became colonels in 1863, but even then Colonel Thesiger had a month's start of Colonel Galwey. Last year the latter became a major-general after thirty-three years' service. If Colonel Thesiger has to wait a little longer for his promotion, he has certainly had the best of the game so far. Again, Colonel Torrens, an ensign of 1849, has been superseded by Brigadier-general Stock, an ensign of 1826, when Colonel Torrens was yet unborn. The one got his company in fifteen, the other in five years; and in 1859, the year of Torrens's lieutenant-colonelcy, Stock was still a major, destined to remain so for two years more. Not much of hardship here for the English officer. General Norman we allow has outstripped a senior in the Imperial army; but he was sixteen years in getting his company, and his luck after all has been less than that of Colonel Thesiger. On the other hand, his army senior, Colonel Maxwell, has been far more fortunate than his Indian senior by ten years. Major-general Hamilton, who gained his majority in twenty-six years, just a month after Colonel Maxwell had gained his. If Indian colonels are having their turn of luck now, their comrades of the other service have little right to complain of a result which partially redresses an old inequality. And we cannot think it fair to stop the promotion of Indian officers on so slight a pretext.

IF the merchants of Calcutta are not a little more alive to their true interests, they will run a very near chance of losing for India a steadily growing trade. Ever since the Russian war the demand for Indian jute has largely superseded the old trade in Russian hemp. We are not in the way of seeing the Dundee Advertiser, but a dim rumour of the complaints made by Dundee manufacturers as to the quality of the jute lately received from Calcutta did reach our ears some months ago. Now however we learn from the Dundee paper, as quoted by the Indian Daily News, that "there is no doubt whatever that a great quantity of rubbish has been shipped from Calcutta under the name of jute—not in all cases knowingly, perhaps, but from the desire to ship largely, let the stuff be good or bad." In explanation of so grave a charge a Calcutta gentleman, writing in the Daily News, declares that many of the orders from Scotland "were peremptory for immediate shipment of the new jute of 1868;" that new jute, shipped as this was in the rainy season, loses weight on the voyage; that new jute shipped at any season is liable to sweat and so deteriorate; and that jute being "as much a perishable article as beer, hams, or cheese," the shipper is clearly not responsible for the condition in which it reaches Dundee. According to this writer the home manufacturers must be a very unreasonable lot, for "nearly every Calcutta merchant who shipped jute to England and Scotland in 1868 has received heavy claims from his correspondents for short weight, wastage, and deterioration." It is anyhow curious that the same complaint should come from so many different quarters. The explanation from Calcutta has merely provoked a fresh attack from a correspondent in the Dundee journal. According to this writer most of the unsound jute was shipped in October, November, and December, in fulfilment of orders sent by telegraph, without reference to any particular date of shipment. Moreover some parcels of new jute were sound and of full weight, while others sent in the same ship, professedly from the same district, were unsound, and wanting from twenty to thirty pounds of their proper weight per bale. The full-weight bales were "generally all sound," whereas the light bales were "invariably unsound." It is also notorious, we are told, that much of last season's jute was screwed in a damp state, for which the shipper is clearly responsible, especially as he is ordered and paid to ship the jute sound and of full weight. What further answer can be made to these statements we must wait to see. Meanwhile, as the Indian Daily News frankly admits, there must have been lax dealing somewhere; and the sooner those concerned in it mend their ways, and look a little more carefully into the condition and quality of what they send home the less danger will there be of a good business passing into other hands, if not into other countries.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

WEDNESDAY, September 8, 1869.

INDIA IN 1867-8.

AFTER treating of Indian Jails and Post-offices, the Report on the Moral and Material Progress of India takes up in separate order each of the eleven provinces ruled directly or indirectly by British officers. Lower Bengal naturally comes first, with its population of more than 41 millions and a-half spread over an area of 240,462 square miles. This gives an average density of about 173 to the square mile, or only two-fifths of the average for the North-Western Provinces, which exceeds that for England and Wales, to say nothing of the whole United Kingdom. In Calcutta however the density doubles that of London, being as much as 47,240 to the square mile. Lower Bengal moreover includes a large surface of thinly-peopled country along the borders of the Bay of Bengal and the valley of the Brahmapootra.

The growth of the native element in the Civil Service has been quickened by the counsels which the late Viceroy, himself doubtless urged on by the home authorities, sought to impress on the Bengal Government. At any rate, in 1868 we find that out of 486 appointments in that service, 363 were held by natives and 40 by East Indians. In the Education Department the natives held 102 out of 129, the highest posts being still of necessity reserved for Europeans. Even in the upper ranks of the police service natives have lately made their way, one being now a district superintendent, while five are assistant superintendents, and four are special assistants in the detective branch. So troublesome of late years has been the rush of applicants, both English and native, for berths in the Uncovenanted Service, that a scheme was at length adopted for selecting candidates by competitive examination at the rate of one out of every three nominated by the Lieutenant-governor.

Among the exemptions from the Licence Tax, it is rather strange to see the class of professional courtezans, female dancers and singers, coupled with priests and missionaries. Are we to suppose that in the fiscal world extremes meet, and that people of the highest and the lowest morals may claim exactly the same right of exemption from an impost which persons of ordinary character must bear without murmuring? Or is it their common poverty that ensures their freedom from the common lot of taxpaying mortals? The latter explanation would ignore the fact that neither priests nor courtezans are necessarily poor; so we must leave the puzzle to be made out by some shrewder Edipus. It is not even certain that the morals of some Indian priests are very superior to those of the ladies who live near their sacred shrines.

In 1867-8 the number of schools and colleges in Lower Bengal increased from 2,908 to 3,411, and that of scholars from 121,480 to 145,142. There were also 2,196 schools unaided by the State, frequented by 65,212 pupils, or more than 20,000 in excess of the previous year. About three-fifths of the outlay on the Educational Department were contributed by the State, at an average cost of £1. 2s. 10d. for each pupil. Out of 1,507 candidates for the University, 814 passed the entrance examination. Of these latter 302 came from Government schools. These figures show decided progress on former years. In respect of girl-pupils also an improvement has begun. Two thousand girls now attend the village patschalas for purposes of instruction. It was in the year under review that the Indian Government first set aside £1,200 a-year for five years in aid of Miss Carpenter's scheme for starting a female normal school in Calcutta. The challenge offered by a native gentleman of Rampore Bauleah, who promised to contribute £150 a-year if Government would provide twice that sum for a smaller normal school in that place, has also been accepted. Some other benefactors to the cause of education came forward in the same year. The late Mr. Williamson of Assam bequeathed the Government £10,000 for the diffusion of school-learning and industrial knowledge in that province. Baboo Doorga Churn Laha of Calcutta presented £5,000 towards founding university scholarships and exhibitions in the Government schools and colleges of Calcutta and Hooghly. Another native gentleman has helped to endow the aided girls' school at Bauleah, and two others have done the same for the schools of their respective villages. In the North-West Provinces the amount of Government grants in aid have also increased with the growth of local subscriptions. There it seems that one boy in every hundred attends a Government school, and that one in every 2,500 learns English. The prevalence of sickness in the Punjab has told its tale in the diminished number of schools and scholars for that year; but the Punjab came out well in the reports of Calcutta University, where forty-four out of seventy-three passed the entrance examination, four out of seven took their B.A. degree, and five out of eleven got through the first Arts examination. In Oudh, on the other hand, only seventeen candidates went up for matriculation, but fifteen passed in. Female schools in this province still suffer for want of qualified teachers, but their number has risen from six, in 1863, to twenty-four in the year under notice.

The Central Provinces, with only nine million people, have shown peculiar forwardness in the work of education. Nearly three per cent. of the people go to school, and the number of schools rose, in 1867-8, to 1,615, with an average daily attendance of 67,490. In the isolated Oorya district of Sumbulpore there are now 249 schools, with 13,276 scholars, as compared with the four schools and ninety-five scholars of six years before. Bombay, however, with its 2,089 schools and 137,587 scholars, seems to keep ahead of all the other provinces in respect of educational progress.

Lower Bengal in 1867-8 spent more than a million sterling on public works. Of that sum nearly a-half was laid out on high roads, some of which had been heavily injured by the great Ganges flood of September, 1867. Military buildings swallowed up £131,000, and civil buildings £161,000, while £120,000 went as a loan to the East India Irrigation Company. The military works in the Punjab cost more than £360,000, and nearly £286,000 was laid out on the roads. In the Central Provinces want of labour, the result of the lower prices of food in the coast districts, materially checked the progress of the Godavery Navigation Works. Everything was done however to open out the river as far as the second barrier at Enchampilly. A hundred miles of the Wurdah river were also surveyed, as well as a line of road from Chandah to the third barrier. Bombay spent on public works no less than £1,366,188, or half-a-million more than Madras. The outlay on military works in Oudh came up to £116,517. In the North-West Provinces irrigation works seem to form the chief source both of outlay and of income, on the part of the Government. These works involve an outlay of something more precious than mere money. Colonel Dyas is mentioned as "the third chief engineer of irrigation of these provinces in succession, who within the last seven years has succumbed in the prime of life to the effects of climate, toil, and exposure, endured without sufficient break or relaxation." Men like Baird-Smith, Turnbull, and Dyas are not to be picked up at any moment, but the good results of their strenuous energy and informing intellects remain behind to keep their successors and subordinates up to the mark. A better school for engineering ability and zeal in the public service could not easily be found than that which these men have trained under their own eyes.

Matters concerning land revenue are sure to form a conspicuous feature in these yearly reports. The terms of a new ten-year settlement for Assam were arranged in the year under review. The increased assessment was fixed at two shillings a beegah—about a third of an acre—on garden land, from nine to fifteenpence on low rice land, and from sixpence to a shilling on other kinds of land. In the North-West Provinces the principle of a permanent settlement for all estates that yield a certain steady profit is being gradually carried out. More than 13,000 square miles have already been thus settled, while above 58,000 square miles have been settled for thirty years and upwards, besides nearly 7,000 miles settled for a shorter period. The rate of assessment on the cultivated land in these provinces averages about three and threepence an acre, the standard of assessment being now 55 per cent. of the assets. In Oudh the rate per acre of cultivated land is a fraction over four shillings. Hitherto the grants of waste land in Oudh have brought profit only to the native settlers, the climate in some districts having told heavily against European speculators. In the Gondah district however the white settlers have fared better, thanks to a kinder climate and its natural consequence, a more plentiful supply of labour. Places which but a few years ago were dense jungle have already become marts for European goods. Latterly the spread of railways has made the Government averse from granting wooded lands which might furnish fuel for the lines.

Settlement surveys are progressing in the Punjab. Only 174 square miles have been settled permanently, but the land settled for 30 years and upwards amounts to 26,710 square miles, that settled for 10 to 30 years to 40,166 square miles, while 18,328 square miles have been settled for shorter periods. On cultivated land the rate per acre is about two shillings. Of about 61½ million acres already surveyed and assessed little more than 6,000,000 are under irrigation, nearly 15,000,000 of land being worked by other means. In the Central Provinces 5 out of 18 districts had still to be re-settled. In Burmah, where the land is mostly tilled by its owners, the people have hitherto been slow to accept Government leases for 5 or 10 years in preference to the old system of yearly settlements at a fixed rate. They are beginning however to see the advantage of a plan which saves trouble to all concerned. About 44 per cent. of all the land in Berar is reported as under cultivation.

The reports of work done by the Forest Department are interesting and generally hopeful. The great sāl forests of Bengal contain plenty of young trees, but they will hardly bear cutting for the next thirty or forty years, except in one place, where timber enough for forty or fifty thousand sleepers may still be had. The forests in British Sikkim are hard to get at. Even the tropical forests in the Western Doorgs of Bhotan could furnish but a limited quantity for present use. Those of the North-West Provinces continue to yield a net profit of about £20,000. In the Punjab, where the Forest Department seems only now settling into proper order, nearly £60,000 was realised by the sale of 1,569 deodars. Several forests of good teak have been discovered and reserved in the Central Provinces, where the Government officers have to keep special watch against the danger of summer fires, caused by the parching heats that sometimes set the grass ablaze. In one tract the danger was forestalled by setting fire to the grass while it was yet green. With regard to the unreserved forests, every care is taken not to let them fall into the hands of mere speculators, and to adjust the dues to the means and necessities of the poorer millions. From Madras we learn that the system of forest-conservancy has been much improved, and that a new lease for ninety-nine years has been secured of the valuable teak forests in South Malabar. In Mysore the Forest Department was unusually successful, if a net outcome of £27,352 be accepted as evidence to the point. Bombay reports itself fairly satisfied with a net profit some ten thousand pounds less. But after all the true advantage of a forest conservancy is not to be reckoned by rupees and annas. Throughout a large part of India, from Berar up to the Punjab, the quantity of land which has been or is being reduced to barrenness by the disappearance of forest timber in past days is enormous. In this, as in so many other directions, it was Lord Dalhousie who first showed the way of deliverance from a growing evil. His famous minute about planting trees all over the waste places of the Punjab heralded the efforts which have since been made both there and in other provinces to repair the mischief caused by past neglect of the simple rule that in all dry countries trees are the best safeguard against utter drought. Since the development of railways and manufactures in a comparatively coal-less country, the temptation to cut down trees has become many times stronger. It is for the Forest Department to insist, as far as it can, on the absolute need of taking all feasible measures not only to keep up the present supplies of timber, but to make all possible amends for the sterility produced by former carelessness.

Notices of Books.

Institutes of Hindu Law; or the Ordinances of Menu, according to the Gloss of Calluca: Comprising the Indian System of Duties, Religious and Civil. Verbally translated from the Original, with a Preface, by Sir W. Jones. Collated with the Sanscrit Text by G. C. Haughton. Third Edition, with Preface and Index, by Standish Grove Grady, Barrister-at-Law, Recorder of Gravesend, Reader on Hindu, Mahomedan, and Indian Law to the Inns of Court, Author of "The Hindu Law of Inheritance," and of "The Mahomedan Law of Inheritance and Contract." London: W. H. Allen and Co.

The rapidity with which the editor of the Third Edition of "Menu" has made his name known as an Indian lawyer is only equalled by the rapidity with which he presents the Indian public with the results of his studies. The "Institutes of Menu" comprise, as Sir W. Jones says, "that system of duties, religious and civil, and of law in all its branches, which the Hindus venerate as having been promulgated in the beginning of time by Menu, son of Brahma;" certain it is that "The Institutes" may be regarded as the fountain of Hindu law. Its utterances have never been doubted or overruled, and it is of as great weight and authority now in all our Courts of Law in India and the Privy Council at home, as it was considered by the Hindus when it was first propounded by Menu to the Divine sages more than 880 years before the birth of our Saviour. The work has been some time out of print, and has been selling at a very high price; the late edition was, moreover, in a very cumbersome form; and as the editor has made it one of the Class-books for study in the Inns of Court, with the sanction of the Council of Legal Education, he conceived it to be his duty, for the benefit of students, to publish a cheap edition, which will not be altogether unacceptable to the judge and the practical lawyer. He has added to the work a very full Index, which it much needed, as there was great difficulty, particularly among English students, in finding any passage which was required, and consequent loss of time in searching for it. To the lawyer the utility of the Index will be at once perceptible, for a law book is like a sealed book without a good and copious Index, with plenty of cross references. This is what the editor has just given to the profession, and it cannot fail to enhance greatly the value of the work. The price of it is also a matter of importance.

JUDICIAL.—A telegram from Bombay announces, on the authority of the Times of India, that Sir Richard Couch, Chief Justice, has been appointed Chief Justice for Calcutta, and Mr. Justice Westropp Chief Justice for Bombay.

HOUSES IN CALCUTTA.

The Englishman deems it a most serious thing for a community to find themselves saddled with a class of houses wholly unsuited to their wants. It is growing daily more evident that this is the case with us English in Calcutta. We have changed so much during the last thirty or forty years that the houses of our predecessors have become intolerable burdens to us, and burdens apparently which we cannot get rid of. The question, What shall we do with them? would be ordinarily one for landlords rather than for tenants. Elsewhere, if a man cannot afford to pay for a dear house, some one is sure to have a cheap one to offer him; but here it appears to be no one's business, or no one's interest, to build houses of moderate dimensions, for the only class willing to invest in bricks and mortar would add greatly to their troubles by doing anything likely to cheapen the big houses which they have already built. Calcutta was made a city of palaces when the people of Calcutta were princes; and there is no one left to build for us, and very little space left to build on, now that we are all men of moderate means. It is evident we cannot look to natives to furnish us with suitable dwellings at moderate rents, or even to reduce the rents of the palaces which we are obliged to take, though we do not want them. It is equally evident that house-rent paid for room one does not need has become a source of enormous and lamentable waste, already well-nigh intolerable. We must put our own shoulders to the wheel if anything is to be done; and this we can only do by collective effort. Individually, we are more than ever birds of passage. If Europeans did not build houses forty years ago, when they looked upon India somewhat as a home, there is very little chance of their doing so now that their main object is to get away from India as fast as possible. Whether or not there is any probability of a company undertaking the work of building houses adapted for men of moderate means, there is certainly very little chance of its being done in any other way. The times, we fear, are against even this. Who is likely to venture on taking even a small share of such a risk, while the effect of the opening of the railway to Bombay is still unknown? Where, moreover, is the ground to be obtained within a reasonable distance of the business part of the town? Whenever the houses are built we sincerely trust they will not take the abominable form of rows of buildings. Nothing could be less adapted to the climate or the domestic peculiarities of Indian life. If we could all vacate the place for a few days with our goods and chattels, and hire an earthquake or some other convulsion of Nature to destroy Chowringhee, it would be an unmixed benefit to all but the owners of the houses. No more ordinary or unsensational solution of the problem seems within the bounds of probability. In the meantime we must go on paying the penalty of former greatness, a fate all the more bitter that the greatness was one in which we had no share.

BONUS COMPENSATION.

The Madras Times thinks there ought to have been no great difficulty in a committee of officers carrying out Lord Salisbury's liberal intentions. For instance, Colonel A., of the 50th Regiment N.I., desires to retire from the service, and claims ten thousand rupees, which, under the Company's Government, he paid for purchase of steps in his regiment. He is prepared to make oath that he borrowed this money from banks or sowcars at high interest, and that in accordance with the customs of regiments under the old regime the sum claimed was duly paid away in douceurs to senior officers, who retired from the service under such inducements. Does he obtain the sum claimed, or one-half, one-third, nay, even one twentieth part of it? Very likely not, for the committee, whether from choice or necessity, will not regard the claim from a broad, or liberal point of view, but consider it as a professional actuary or accountant would entertain it; and even if it should admit such a sum ever having been paid, it balances the personal advantages obtained by more rapid promotion, &c., against the sum claimed in such a manner as to cause the claimant to consider himself lucky if he is not actually proved to fill the position of a debtor instead of a creditor of the Government at the end of its discussion! But this is not all. The claim is of course disputed by the committee until it is proved, and proofs are by no means easy to be obtained. It is many years since the transfer of India from the Company to the Crown occurred. "Step accounts" in regiments have been destroyed or lost as worthless paper. "Step secretaries" are dead, or retired from the service, or have forgotten the circumstances at issue. There are a thousand difficulties in the way, in short, of an officer attempting to prove the justice of his claim as the committee would have him prove it, and the consequence is that officers despair of obtaining compensation from the committees appointed to award it them. Now, we consider, for the sake of Lord Salisbury's honour, as well as for the credit of Government, a public inquiry should be made into the manner in which these compensation committees have discharged the duties entrusted to them when acting under the instructions of the Indian Government. There can be no mistake about Lord Salisbury's intentions in the matter, his lordship having plainly stated in Parliament that this bonus question was one of the grievances of Indian officers, for which he had made especial and liberal provision, and he went on further to say that he trusted Indian officers would cease to petition the House further in the matter, as this, among other grievances, had been liberally provided for. The officers concerned accepted the promise given them by the Indian Secretary of that period, but that promise has not been kept, and the grievance remains the same as ever. We have no doubt Lord Salisbury's intentions were liberal, and that if carried out in their integrity they would have satisfied all concerned, but they have been misconstrued, and the consequence has been that a grievance, which was allowed by the Government and the House to be a real one, has remained unredressed, to the discredit of the authorities and the heavy loss of their veteran servants. We trust that the matter may again be brought before the House without delay, and that returns may be called for the various claims settled or quashed by the compensation committees, together with explanations of the decision arrived at in each case.

OUR RELATIONS WITH BURMAH.

The Englishman points out that those who hold that the annexation of Upper Burmah is advisable, hold that it is expedient, because it would result immediately in a vast development of trade, and in the opening up of that communication with Western China about which so much has been said and written. They further contend that the British advance would give unmixed satisfaction to the Burmese, who, as a people, would be only too glad to emancipate themselves from the grinding reign of favourites and sycophants under which they now groan. British rule would secure for the Burmese people a stable and assured peace, and an unrestricted field for the development of their industry and energy. Instead of living at the mercy of governors, whose principal thought is to amass riches ere they can be supplanted, they would cultivate their fields without fear of oppression, and without fear of injustice on the part of the officials. These advantages are said to be so well appreciated, that to obtain them the Burmese would willingly accept a foreign yoke, and willingly be rid of the capricious tyranny of the descendants of Alompra. On the other hand, it is urged that the king is not unpopular, nor is his rule hated with that thoroughness which would make any change welcome, even a foreign rule. The people have still a singular reverence for the Royal Family, and especially for the king, and we are told to remark that the efforts to raise a popular rebellion by various scions of the Royal stock have invariably failed. They would scarcely have failed so signally had the people been anxious to rid themselves of the king and his system. Then, again, so far from the reverence for the person of the king having died out, we find, on going into the matter, that even in our own provinces the people yet retain feelings of affection and regret for the king reigning at Mandalay. Recent processions at Rangoon show that they still keep up amongst themselves the remembrance of the old Royal customs. But while we admit that the probable commercial results of the annexation of Upper Burmah would be such as to startle the most doubting, the political bearings of the question lead to the conclusion that the annexation would be a great mistake—the pear is not ripe; the people are not, so far as the evidence before us can be relied on, prepared, as yet, to accept an English Commissioner in the place of the king. But besides the popular feeling, we should have to consider how France, from her out-look at Saigon, would view such a stride on the part of England, and what relations it would entail on us in regard to Siamese, Shans, Karens, Khakhyens, Tibetans, and Chinese. In the north, we should have to push the frontier further and further until we reached Upper Assam, and this would bring us into hostile contact with the jealous and unfriendly officials of Tibet, and would complicate our relations with such rude tribes as the Kookies, Shindoes, and Nagas to an extent which cannot now be estimated. It would also entail upon us a large addition to our military strength and a series of frontier troubles to which those at the other extremity of the Empire would be nothing. Lastly, to push our frontier just now up to the borders of China, where a Mahomedan power just emerged from a state of rebellion is still struggling for existence, would inevitably lead England into new quarrels with the Central Government of China, and open up questions which the Home Government are in no humour to entertain. The British boundary could scarcely march with the Panthay frontier without raising questions of the recognition of the Mahomedan power not only difficult in themselves, but involving issues which the Government of India could neither discuss nor decide. On this ground alone then we think that Government is to be congratulated on its having succeeded in overcoming a difficulty with Mandalay, which, with less firmness and less moderation, might have developed into one of the most important wars it has ever waged.

THE PROFESSION OF CATTLE POISONING.

The Englishman observes:—The startling revelations of Captain Hedayat Ali, following as they have done upon the discovery that at Mymensingh cattle poisoning has been systematically pursued by the

STATION TALK.

LUCKNOW, July 31.—Major Chamberlain, I am sorry to say, is very ill, and although he has leave to go to the hills, great care will be necessary in respect to his mode of transit. We all deeply regret his illness, and heartily hope that he may, ere long, be restored to his wonted health and strength. The gallant officer has uniformly given satisfaction to the numerous attendants upon his court, and the memory of him will continue green. The matter of Mr. Bickers and his domestic troubles goes into another court, and some time must elapse ere an adjustment of these worries can be arrived at; it is a very great pity that such cases come before our public tribunals. I defer any comments for the present, as we still hope that amicable arrangements may be arrived at, and a house divided against itself yet be re-united. I understand Mr. Currie (Assistant Secretary to the Chief Commissioner) takes the City Magistracy, and Major Macgregor reverts to cantonments as magistrate there.

mochees, ought to attract the careful attention of the Government. In India a drought tells with twofold severity on the people; it destroys their crops, and it destroys the cattle. By destroying the cattle it cripples their efforts to recover themselves, and prevents them from turning to full account the return of favourable seasons. Without his cattle a ryot is a comparatively helpless being, a man whose energies are paralysed, and whose industry is robbed of half its fruits. If then it could be proved that cattle poisoning is a trade, no punishment would be too severe for the villains who follow such an atrocious livelihood. Now that Mr. Westland has joined the Bengal Office the matter might, perhaps, be taken up with advantage. He might be able to tell the Government the facts connected with the trade of cattle poisoning, as carried on in the Jessore district. We believe there are at the present moment nearly a dozen men imprisoned in the Jessore Jail for cattle poisoning. This alone would seem to show its prevalence. The poisoners, as a rule, seem to be chamars. These men have certain sirdars, who parcel out a district amongst themselves, and monopolise the trade in skins within the limits they have assigned themselves. They seem to receive advances for skins from Calcutta, and to thrive greatly as a rule. Their modus operandi is in itself suspicious. Certain diseases are very common amongst the cattle of Lower Bengal, partly from climatic influences and partly from the habitual neglect from which the cattle suffer. Should one or two head of cattle in a village be attacked by gootie, the ryots are startled by the appearance amongst them of a small colony of chamars; and speedily by a liberal use of arsenical balls the pestilence, rinderpest, cattle plague, or whatever it may be called, sweeps through the herds, carrying dismay and despair to the hearts of many a poor villager. With the machinery at the disposal of the Government, it ought not to be a matter of very great difficulty to discover and stamp out an offence of this sort. It certainly presents no such difficulties as encompassed the suppression of the Thugs. Pending a full inquiry into the whole matter, the Government might deal a fatal blow at the illegal trade in skins, and at the profits of the poisoners by issuing orders to all magistrates to prevent the sale of the skins of cattle which are known to have died of disease in any shape. The bodies of such animals might be burnt or otherwise disposed of. If this cannot be done, the skin might be cut in such a way as to make it worthless. The ryots will not complain of these orders, as they get nothing for the skins of the dead cattle. The body is thrown out of the village or hamlet, and is then left to the chamars and the vultures.

IRRIGATION IN THE NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES.—Too much praise cannot be given to the Irrigation Department of the North-Western Provinces. Last year the Ganges, Eastern Jumna and Rohilkund Canals irrigated 1,425,702 acres, or 89 per cent. more than in the preceding year, and 96 per cent. more than in the famine years of 1860-61. The Lieutenant Governor remarks that it would be hardly possible to over-estimate the blessings conferred upon these Provinces by this extended irrigation. The money value to the State is estimated at nearly the third of a million sterling, at the rate of Rs. 2-2 per acre. But gratifying as this is, far more remains to be done. To say nothing of fertile waste not yet under the plough, there are still nearly eleven millions of acres which depend on the heavens alone for their cultivation.

MAILS TO INDIA, ETC.

The Mails to all parts of India, VIA SOUTHAMPTON, are now made up at the General Post Office, London, every Saturday at 8 A.M., and those VIA MARSEILLES every Friday, at 6 P.M.

For Ceylon, China, Straits Settlements, &c., the dates of despatch up to the end of September will be as follows, viz. :—

VIA SOUTHAMPTON, at 8 A.M., on the Saturdays, August 7 and 21, and September 4 and 18.

VIA MARSEILLES, at 6 P.M., on the Fridays, August 13 and 27, and September 10 and 24.

RATES OF POSTAGE TO INDIA &amp; CEYLON.

LETTERS.
Via Marseilles, under ½ oz., 1s. 1d. | 1 oz., 2s. 2d. | each additional ½ oz. 1s. 1d.
Via Southampton, under ½ oz., 9d. | 1 oz., 1s. 6d. | each additional ½ oz. 9d.

NEWSPAPERS.
Via Marseilles, under 4 oz., 3d. | 8 oz., 6d. | 12 oz., 9d. | each additional 4 oz., 3d.
Via Southampton, under 4 oz., 2d. | 8 oz., 3d. | 12 oz., 4d. | each additional 4 oz., 1d.

each additional 4 oz., 6d.

Via Southampton, under 1 oz., 1d. | 2 oz., 2d. | 4 oz., 4d. | 8 oz., 8d. | 12 oz., 1s.
each additional 4 oz., 4d.

The postage on letters may either be paid in advance or left to be paid on delivery, at the option of the sender; but in all cases where the postage is not fully pre-paid, the Letters will be charged, on delivery, with one additional rate of Ninepence, besides the usual postage.

This increase of postage will not affect the Letters of Officers of the Army and Navy serving in India and Ceylon; such Letters will continue to enjoy the privilege of transmission at the reduced postage of Sixpence the half-ounce, via Southampton, and Tenpence the half-ounce via Marseilles.

In the case of Newspapers, Books, &c., the prepayment of the postage is compulsory. Parcels must not in any case exceed 5 lbs. in weight, or be of greater dimensions than twenty-four inches in length, and twelve inches in width or depth.

A French line of Mail Packets leaves Marseilles every fourth Saturday. Postage for Letters and Papers to India and China the same as is charged by the English Mail, via Marseilles. Letters intended to be forwarded by these Packets must be specially addressed—"By French Mail Packet from Marseilles."

Up to the end of September the dates of despatch from London will be the Thursday evenings July 8th, August 6th, September 2nd, and by supplementary Mail on the morning following.

GULMURG, CASHMERE, July 25.—For a poetical description of Gulmurg, vide "Ince," page 163, para. 6, and may the Lord forgive him! This is perhaps the most thoroughly forsaken place on the face of the wide world; picture to yourself the Currah inhabited by blacks, and you have a faint idea of Gulmurg. A cloud settled over the devoted spot five days ago. A second deluge has ceaselessly poured down on us ever since, exhaustless as the widow's curse! Who? What brought us unhappy wretches to this inferno? Surely the devil, who, as Sancho Panza remarks, never sleeps. The fashionable amusement is lying in bed; for myself I never get up—in consequence have become mouldy. Here come more kilters toiling up the valley, evidently more fools rushing into the trap! Presently I shall, with Quilp-like satisfaction, see the poor things trying to find a dry place to pitch their miserably-soddened tents. Vain search! However, bad as this place is, Sreenuggur is even worse; the "Piffers" could not stand it; thermometer 90 degs., swarms of flies, and myriads of mosquitoes. Now, when people accustomed to ardent lime-kilns, by courtesy called stations, such as Kohat, Bunnoo, &c., &c., find a place too warm, you may take your oath there is something wrong with the climate. Not even the fascinations of the demi-monde can make the wildest Lothario tarry in Sreenuggur. Apropos of these ladies, I expected on my first arrival to meet a Noor-Mahal or Lalla Rookh at every turn of the road. I was disappointed. A plainer-headed lot I have never seen; to their little native peculiarities they add every European vice; they swear roundly in four languages, viz., English, French, Cashmeree, and Hindustani; they drink the fire-water like Red Indians; they sing English songs of doubtful tendency; and cheat grandly at cards! I have heard of one very young gentleman losing a considerable sum to a third-bridge "Lais" at "Beggar my neighbour." Now an afternoon spent in the bazaar playing "Beggar my neighbour," with a negress Traviata, although doubtless amusing, cannot be an elevating or improving pastime. It is somewhat curious that the leaders of the demi monde in Paris and Sreenuggur should bear the same name: "Cora Pearl," of Paris, the "Royal Pearl," of Sreenuggur, both very decent people in their way. We have no literature up here whatsoever, except a few unreadable shilling volumes. Why will people lug about rotten books? It puts an utter stop to all exchange of reading. What in return do I get for one of my standard works, such as "Pendennis" or "Adam Bede?" Three hundred pages or so of miserable trash, in a thunder-and-lightning cover, the letter-press beneath the criticism of a plough-boy. Every one seems to have given up shooting; they live on the reminiscences of past sport; some of these, if strictly according to fact, are somewhat startling. It is strange, but true, that the duration of hand-to-hand fights with bears, &c., &c., and the ferocity displayed by the animals is in exact proportion to the amount of alcohol imbibed by the narrators of these marvellous tales. Up to glass No. 3 of gin and water the bears are comparatively well behaved, indeed rather friendly than otherwise. At No. 4 they begin to show signs of temper by gnawing a few coolies and otherwise making themselves generally obnoxious. No. 5, look out! Bears desperately wounded, begin a light lunch off gun-barrels, shikarries, and anything they can lay hold of!! No. 6 generally closes the horrible tale. A phalanx of remorseless and cruel ibex reinforce the bears! dauntless hunter driven at last to the pinnacle of the beetling crag. They charge, they charge! habet! he totters! he falls from the giddy cliff and his chair at the same instant, grasping an imaginary rifle in one hand, and a real tumbler in the other! Notwithstanding all that has been said and sung to the contrary, Cashmere is decidedly the most unhealthy part of India, everybody more or less seedy; never mind, the 15th of October must come at last!—Pioneer Correspondent.

OPIMUM SMUGGLING.—The Indian Daily News says an annual loss of revenue of sixty lakhs of rupees is entailed on Government by the smuggling of Malwa opium. The Government of Bombay is about strengthening its preventive police on the Kattywar coast to stop the export of smuggled opium.

Miscellaneous.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.—Mr. Thomas Hyde has been chosen by the Secretary of State from a large number of candidates for the appointment of Chief Engineer of the Kidderpore Dockyard and Surveyor of Steam-vessels to the Government of India.—Pioneer.

MR. MAINE leaves India by the mail steamer of the 9th October, and matters are likely to be so arranged that Mr. FitzJames Stephen will not leave for India until some nine or ten days after Mr. Maine's arrival in England. It is considered desirable that the honourable gentlemen should have an opportunity of conferring with one another.

THE NEW FILTER.—A very extended trial, says the Pioneer, is to be given to the filter designed by Dr. Macnamara for the use of troops. They are to be supplied to a regiment or battery at Allahabad, Meerut, and Meeran Meer, and at all the stations in the presidency division where there are British troops. The material employed is animal charcoal.

A RUMOURD LAW SUIT.—We hear that a Mr. John Kuott, who was private secretary to the Nawab Nazim of Bengal, soon after his quarrel with Rajah Prosunno Narain Deb and Colonel Mackenzie, has instituted proceedings in the Court of Queen's Bench for the recovery from the Nawab of a sum of ten lakhs of rupees.—Englishman.

AN INNOVATION.—The Soonee Mussulmans of Calcutta have broken through an old custom. They lately buried the body of Moulvie Khader Hossein, Second Arabic Professor of the Calcutta Madrasah, in a wooden coffin, not, as usual, in a mere sheet that dust may at once return to dust. Some five hundred Moulvies were present.—Friend of India.

RAJPOOTANA.—The latest reports from Ajmere and Rajpootana are cheering. During the week ending July 23 rain had fallen plentifully and generally throughout the entire tract of country. In Ajmere itself the fall was two inches. The weather was still cloudy, and more rain was expected. Ploughing and sowing were in active progress everywhere. The price of cattle had risen considerably, the best proof, perhaps, of returning agricultural activity.—Pioneer.

CENTRAL PROVINCES.—Owing to the favourable weather, the crops in the Central Provinces are reported to be most flourishing, and cholera and small-pox had in a great measure disappeared. Both diseases, however, still continued to rage in the Sangor district with the most fatal results. In Belaspore dysentery was said to be carrying off a number of the weakly people, and numbers of the cattle had died from the constant wet weather.—Englishman, August 5.

THE FOREIGN-OFFICE.—We hear from Simla that the Foreign Secretary, Mr. Seton-Karr, goes home for two years, leaving India in October next. It is added that he is not likely to return, but whether this be on account of his health, or that he aspires to Parliamentary honours, or is otherwise affected by "the infirmity of noble minds," we know not as yet. If he should not return, Mr. Aitchison will probably have the "pucka" appointment.

ANTIQUITIES FROM GWALIOR.—The metal images recently dug up in the fortress of Gwalior were made over to Maharajah Scindhia on the application of the Gwalior vakeel, but his Highness has generously returned them to the political agent, on learning that the Government wished to preserve them. As these bronze Buddhistic images are apparently of great antiquity, and consequently of interest to archaeological science, the Governor-general in Council has been pleased to present them to the Indian Museum, where they are to be deposited.

CIVIL.—We are sorry to see that Mr. A. C. Barnard, C.S., died at Etawah of rheumatic gout.—We hear from Lucknow that it is probable Mr. Charles Currie will officiate for Colonel Barrow, C.B., as Financial Commissioner of Oudh, should the latter avail himself of privilege leave, as he intends at present. Major MacAndrew would in that case officiate as Commissioner, and Mr. Quinton as Secretary to the Chief Commissioner. The changes, if any, which will take place consequent on Sir George Couper's leave are not yet known, but it is generally understood that Mr. Currie will carry on the current duties of the office during the two months during which the Judicial Commissioner will be absent.—Pioneer.

BOKHARA.—The troops of the King of Bokhara in occupation of Shereabad have been recalled to Bokhara, it is said, because the King is preparing himself for one more struggle against Russia. It is reported at Cabul that the Russian General at Samarcand has required the co-operation of the King of Bokhara in an invasion which he projects of the Shuhr-i-Subz district, declaring that in case of the King's refusal he would himself be treated as an enemy to Russia. The adherents of the King are consequently attempting in a half-hearted way to preach a jehad against the infidels. This is a thing, however, which cannot be done in a whisper or with reservation, and it is not likely to produce any general rising. On the other hand, we do not believe that the Russians contemplate any immediate invasion of the Shuhr-i-Subz. This pretence of aggression is probably assumed as a measure of defence. While in apprehension themselves of attack, the people of Southern Bokhara will not be likely to incommode the Russians in their more urgent work of restoring their domination in the north.—Pioneer.

SHIPWRECK AND LOSS OF LIFE.—We have to report the loss of the Jurnita, a N. G. ship, 1,146 tons, which left Akyab with 142,100 baskets of rice. She sprung a leak shortly after leaving that port, and while off the Island of Cheduba went down. The whole crew, with the exception of four men, appear to have been lost; these landed at Kyook Phoo, and two had arrived in Akyab. The four men are said to have been thirteen days nearly starved, and enduring all the inclemencies of the weather.

OUR PRESTIGE ON THE FRONTIER.—A circumstance connected with the late abortive raid in Huzara may be held significant of our improved prestige on the frontier. The Huz-unzis, hitherto always consistently rude in their communications, have, on this occasion, volunteered an exculpatory statement denying all complicity in the aggression. They add that though they have ventured several times to petition for the release of the Khan of Agrore, yet that they acknowledge it to remain entirely within the right and power of the British Government to do as seemeth it good in the matter.—Pioneer.

BURMAH.—The news from Mandalay is still satisfactory. The new court had not been opened when the last mail left, for Major Sladen was about to take sick leave, and Captain Strover, his successor, had not arrived. Major Sladen's report on the Momein expedition has been sent to Government, with an elaborate review of the question of routes to Western China by General Fyche. We trust the Government of India will publish both in this country, with its "resolution" on the subject. The question is almost purely commercial, and, after Captain Bowers' report, there is no need to wait for the action of the Secretary of State. If Major Sladen is able to return to his duties soon, the next cold season ought not to be lost.

THE CHANDA COALFIELD.—Since the last news of the Chanda Coalfield was published, borings have been made, says the Pioneer, at different spots with good success. A seam of coal, 101 feet below the surface, was reached at a boring within two miles of the town of Chanda itself. But about twelve miles from Chanda, near Goooons, an unusually large bed of coal has been discovered at a depth of eighty-eight feet six inches. This deposit contains a thickness of twenty-eight feet in workable condition. Mr. Fryar, the mining geologist, deputed by the Geological Survey, reports that the comparatively small depth at which this thick coal-bed is found, at a comparatively great distance from the spot where it crops up to the surface, shows that it is in a nearly horizontal position, "a circumstance which not only adds to the facility of working the coal, but shows that the bed is within easy depth in all parts of the field." This Goooons coalfield is separated from the main Chanda bed by a tongue of talcheen rocks. By itself, however, it fills two square miles on the British side of the Wurdah River, and is estimated to contain at least eighteen millions of tons.

DR. PETTENKOFER'S CHOLERA THEORY.—The local governments and administrations have been instructed to institute experiments for testing, in some well-selected civil stations, Dr. Pettenkofer's theory regarding the origin and propagation of cholera. This theory is that the infecting matter of cholera is developed from a germ, which, as long as it remains a germ, is powerless to produce disease, but which is developed into infecting matter in the sub soil, if this affords a suitable nidus. After development (if the superincumbent layers are permeable) the infecting matter ascends and the disease is evolved. The infecting matter may enter water and poison it, but the germ cannot be developed in water. The conditions in the sub soil which produce the infecting matter are a certain degree of moisture (a soil may be either too dry or too wet to favour the development of the germ, and thus increase or decrease of moisture, as the case may be, will produce the same result), and the presence of organic matter, which washes down through any permeable soil, and accumulates in the sub-soil water. The chief point to be observed in testing this theory is the association of the occurrence of cholera in any locality with a change in the amount of sub soil moisture. The mode of testing the increase or decrease of this is by ascertaining the variations of the water-level in wells reserved exclusively ad hoc, and this is easily done by means of a simple apparatus. This information has been officially communicated to the press.

TELEGRAPH EXTENSION TO MILITARY STATIONS.—Last year the Government of India approved generally of the principle of connecting the chief military stations and commercial cities in India by branch lines with the main wires of the Indian telegraph system, and of instructing soldiers in telegraphy, with a view to the more economical working of the branch offices. The Government has now sanctioned a scheme submitted by Colonel Robinson for working the telegraph at military stations by military agency. The scheme is a simple one, and involves very little expense. At all cantonments there is to be a branch office under the superintendence either of the Assistant Quartermaster-general or the Brigade-major, or some other responsible officer. The only accommodation required is a table, on which to place the instrument, and a chair; the battery, if one is used, being in the verandah or under the table. The soldiers are to receive from two to four annas, according to the local traffic, for every message they send or receive correctly, but the maximum of their earnings is not to exceed Rs. 20 a month. The duty of the staff officer will consist merely in seeing that the soldiers do their duty properly, and in posting the returns to be sent to Calcutta. The Government will thus receive twelve annas for each message, and this will cover the cost of the battery, wear and tear of instruments, and interest on capital. Orders have been issued for commencing operations at the following stations—viz., Kamptee, Nowshera, Meera Meer, Roorkee, Sealkote, Dugshai, Subathoo, Kussowlie, Peshawur, Attock, and Jhelum. The above is official information communicated to the press by the Government of India.

THE DROUGHT IN THE NORTH-WEST.—Had rain not fallen in time in the North-Western Provinces this season it would have proved a calamity as serious perhaps as that of 1866 in Orissa; for not only was the last season impoverishing, but the stocks have been expended. It is gratifying, therefore, to learn from the last official report on the subject—dated the 24th July—that rain has been vouchsafed sufficient to remove for the present all apprehension of agricultural failure. The districts, for which anxiety was before expressed, have been refreshed by a general fall adequate for the purposes of ploughing and sowing; and there is every prospect of the continuance of favourable weather. The Jhansi Division, the worst conditioned, has had plentiful showers, and on the 16th a heavy storm passed over Ajmere (likewise suffering from drought), filling the tanks and saturating the soil. Some apprehension is still entertained as to whether the rain in Rohilkund is sufficient for the rice-sowings generally; but present appearances justify the expectation that the deficiency will shortly be made good. Locusts are still reported in several districts. Some injury to indigo is attributed to them in Jounpore, and to the young cotton in Bundelkund; but, ordinarily, little loss appears to follow their visits. Notwithstanding the improving prospects of the season, there has been a simultaneous rise in distant parts of the country, indicative of short stocks, and showing what a calamity was impending had there been any failure in the monsoon. The scarcity and dearth are now telling severely on the non-agricultural population. In Bareilly, for example, where there was no special distress before, the Collector has been obliged to open out seven relief-houses in the district. It has been proposed, therefore, that the embankments of the Rohilkund Railway might be commenced at an early date. The works of the left Ganges Canal in the Moradabad district afford labour to six or seven thousand destitute persons. Writing on the 19th from Jhansie, the Commissioner, Colonel Lloyd, says:—"Ploughing and sowing are going on everywhere; and prospects of a khureef now seem good: an unspeakable relief. But still the distress is, and will continue for some time to be, very severe; especially it is felt by women and children, who now crowd to the works and poor-houses, while the men go to work in the fields." And until the autumnal crops provide the poorer classes with a fresh supply of the cheaper grains, the stock of which is now quite exhausted, we must be prepared for this state of things.—Indian Daily News, July 31.

MILITARY.—The promotion of Colonel Hamilton to the rank of major-general creates a vacancy in the brigade command, to which, we understand, Colonel Woods succeeds; his appointment is expected to appear in the next Gazette, but it is uncertain as yet whether it is to be to the command of Bellary, Malabar, and Canara, or Trichinopoly. The last is said to be sought for.—Madras Athenæum.—We see that Dr. J. Dougall, of the Madras Medical Service, has been appointed to the political agency at Mandalay as medical officer.—The head-quarters and 200 men of the 23rd Punjab Infantry (Pioneers) have been detached, says a contemporary, for employment on the Murree and Abbottabad road during the present season. It is reported from Deyrah that Colonel Clarkson has been ordered to Agra, to act as secretary in connection with the forthcoming Soldiers' Exhibition, to be held there at the time of the great durbur. The 58th Regiment, with the exception of a small detachment to be left to garrison the fort, has been ordered to move from Allahabad to Etawah at once. Capt. Gregson has gone to the latter station to provide accommodation.—Delhi Gazette.—A committee, we are told, is about to be named, with Major-general Troup as president, to visit Delhra, and report whether there is convenient ground available at that station for the lines of a regiment of British cavalry should the Government consider it desirable to place one there.—Pioneer.—The Delhi Gazette hears from Mhow that, finding no change for the better, the medical authorities have ordered Major-general Adams, C.B., commanding the Malwa division, to proceed to Poona for change of air, and if he should not be benefited within a short time to proceed on to England. The major-general was to leave Mhow by doolee dak to Khundwah, an apothecary accompanying him. Colonel Longden, of the Royal Artillery, was to assume command of the station.—Cholera is reported to have made its appearance in H.M.'s 14th Regiment at Cawnpore, nine men having been carried off in three days. Hardly any of those attacked have survived. The affected companies have been sent into camp several miles from the station. The epidemic does not appear to have prevailed in any degree among the native population.—Our Nusseerabad correspondent's letter of the 26th ult., says the Delhi Gazette, mentions the fact of a portion of one of the new barracks there occupied by troops having fallen; and the dangerous condition of other similar buildings. Great indeed is the P.W.D. of India! It sets honour, honesty, common sense, public opinion, and the Government of India at defiance.—We regret to have still to report the continuance of cholera in the 62nd Regiment, although so far it has nothing of an epidemic character. We have been informed that yesterday no less than nine persons fell victims to diarrhetic cholera, all belonging to the 62nd Regiment, and among them the hospital sergeant. Orders have been issued for the removal under canvas of two more companies, and it is more than probable that the whole regiment will before many days receive orders to march into camp, perhaps at Alumbagh.—Lucknow Times, August 4.—We regret to observe the death announced of Lieut. C. T. Harison, R.A., at Barrackpore, of brain fever, on the 4th August.

ARRIVALS.

July 31. British Statesman, Tulloch, London.—Aug. 1. Ganges, Quinn, Calcutta; Wilshere, Smith, Liverpool.—2. Str. REAPPEARANCE OF THE BORER.—The Neilgherry Excelsior says that that bore of the planter, the coffee borer, has again made its appearance in the Wynad and Neddiwuttum, and is committing great ravages. Out of a patch of five thousand trees, 12 per cent. were destroyed in the course of ten days, and had to be uprooted. This is only a case in point.—Madras Athenæum.

Madras.

MR. WALTER HECTOR MASKELL, of the Middle Temple, has been admitted and enrolled as an advocate of the Madras High Court.

OOTACAMUND.—The medical men of Ootacamund are languishing of ennui from having no work to do. Their position is truly lamentable, for on all sides they hear of nothing but mutual congratulations on the exceptional healthiness of the station, and their eyes are saddened by the sight alone of round and rosy cheeks and sparkling happy eyes. At Coonoor it is no better, every one is healthy, and the weather is delightful, while all vegetation is a-glow with spring tints.—Madras Mail.

QUESTIONABLE CONVERTS.—A correspondent of the Bangalore Spectator writes:—"You'll doubtless remember that some four or five Europeans joined the Mahomedan faith about the beginning of this year, and the exodus of two of their number to Hyderabad. Well, one of these worthies, Abdool Rehman, alias Thomas Larkin, has been prowling about Trimulgherry for the past few days, and on the plea that he is tired of the Mussulman faith, tried to re-enlist into one of the European regiments. It has not been our misfortune to come across a purer type of the rambling vagrant than Abdool."

RAILWAY CONTRACTORS.—The Madras Presidency has not been so fortunate as Bengal in its railway contractors; the contract system there has repeatedly and utterly broken down. The consulting engineer, after an inspection of the North-West line of the Madras railway, reports that on several sections it has been necessary to take the work out of the contractor's hands. On this side of India we have found the contract system, if expensive, yet compensatory, from the rapidity and punctuality of execution it ensured. But in Madras it is in speed, even more than in economy or quality of work, that contractors have proved a failure.—Pioneer.

MILITARY.—It is reported that H.M.'s 2nd Battalion 19th Foot will be sent from Bangalore to Fort William, and the 1st Battalion 21st Fusiliers will come from Kurrachee and garrison Bangalore. The F Company Sappers and Miners will be sent from Bangalore to Port Blair, and the E Company from Port Blair will take the place of the former. H.M.'s 90th Foot will be sent to Bombay by rail from Kamptee to Bombay, and embark in one of H.M.'s Indian troopships on the 1st of October next. The 35th Regiment Madras Native Infantry located at Vepery will be sent to garrison Palaveram in the beginning of next year, as the military authorities consider two regiments of Native Infantry sufficient to garrison Madras.—Madras Mail, July 29.

CURIOUS SUPERSTITIONS.—Belshazzar was "weighed in the balances and found wanting."—not so the Maharajah of Travancore, who, according to a time-honoured custom, has now proposed to perform the ceremony of Thooloparam. This costly ceremony, according to the Western Star, is performed by his Highness being placed in one scale, with an equal weight of gold in the other. The gold thus obtained is afterwards distributed among the Brahmins according to each one's privilege, and it is only after the performance of this ceremony that his Highness is supposed to be sanctified. There is another ceremony, which consists in his Highness passing through the belly of a cow of gold; this is termed Erniagherpum. This, it is proposed, to celebrate next year. All these costly ceremonies, combined with the coming Moorajebum will, our contemporary believes, absorb a good portion of the surplus revenue of the State, as the Sirkar itself does not wish it to lie idle in its coffers. It is a suggestive circumstance that the Rajahs of Travancore have not long survived the performance of these ceremonies. Royalty in the State is short-lived, and the Brahmins are the gainers thereby. It is much to be regretted that Travancore still retains relics of barbarism but little in harmony with its enlightened administration.—Madras Mail.

AMMONIA FOR CHOLERA.—Dr. Young, at Bellary, writes to us as follows:—"To avoid misconception, I reply to the broad hint contained in the letter from the irrepressible 'Jones,' which appeared in your issue of July 27. The plan adopted was simply to inject about eight drops of fluid ammonia under the skin, on the back of the hand, with an ordinary hypodermic syringe. At the time of injection, the man spoken of was almost completely comatose, and his pulse could be felt, with difficulty, only as a small thin wave. Without the injection, this man would have died, as I have seen many other die under similar circumstances. Three hours after it he was out of danger, except from the fever which usually attends convalescence in such cases. In this instance there was no secondary fever, but it would be rash to attribute this freedom to the remedy employed, without further experience. Ordinary measures, which it is needless to detail, but of which every medical man is cognisant, were employed, subsequent to the injection, to remove cerebral congestion and to restore healthy secretions. The only inconvenience that arose from using the ammonia in this way was caused by its caustic action, resulting in destruction of the skin and superficial tissues, at the point of injection, and leaving a wound about the size of a rupee, which took about three weeks to close.

I do not call this a 'cure for cholera.' 'Jones' is responsible here, but I consider it useful as a powerful stimulant in extreme cases, when other means have failed. Judging from the result, in this solitary instance, I believe it likely to be beneficial, not only in the last stage of cholera, but also in other cases of rabid blood poisoning, such as snake bite." We think Dr. Young has done well to make his treatment of the above case public. If it was not a cure, we can only say it looks uncommonly like one.—Madras Mail.

STATION TALK.

MALWA, July 30.—We have had strange kind of weather this season; up to the present the fall of rain in this province has been scanty, not more than five or six inches having fallen in some places, while under ordinary circumstances we should have had at least fifteen. The crops however, though backward, look well, and should the rains prove favourable next month, there is every prospect of a good harvest. The new road between Neemuch and Mhow is progressing, though slowly. This I believe is not the fault of the executive officers, but of Government, which doles out the funds parsimoniously; so that I question whether it will be possible to run a mail-cart on it for another ten years. The unfortunate Marwarrees are truly to be pitied; they fled from their famine-stricken homes at the close of the last rains, and after undergoing no end of hardships, most of those who survived ventured back during the hot season; but, alas, their cup of tribulation was not yet full, and as they are now streaming back once more with ranks sadly thinned, the old, the weak, the children, with nearly all their cattle, have been swept away. Exposure to the weather, starvation, fever, and cholera have done their work silently but effectually; and yet the poor creatures do not repine at the bitter calamity that has befallen them. I hear his Highness Holkar is seriously ill, and that he has deputed one hundred Brahmins to Oonkernath and seventy to Adjein, to offer up prayers for his recovery. His lilliputian Highness of Dhar, I hear, is not driving his "state coach" in the tracks laid down for him by his political sponsors, and consequently it has been found necessary to depute an officer to Dhar to enter a mild protest against such reckless conduct; but I am afraid it will not have much effect, as he is said to be rather wanting in his upper regions. During the late severe visitation of cholera at Dhar, Rs. 7,000 were expended in tying ropes, with garlands attached, across the several streets of the town, feeding Brahmins, and similar absurdities. Her Highness the Begum of Bhopal, I hear, is living rather too fast; her mamma's mantle does not appear to have fallen on her shoulders, and the politicals are sadly perplexed as to what course they should pursue with her Highness. She is too old to be dry-nursed, but I have no doubt the present able agent to the Governor-general will hit on some expedient to bring the young lady to a proper sense of her duty.

KOTREE, Aug. 2.—The floating dock at Kotree has at last been completed, floated, and practically tested, and the result is a success surpassing the most sanguine expectations of all. It was originally designed by Edwin Clark, the well known engineer, and being sent out to this country in pieces, it has been put together again under the superintendence of Mr. Jacobs. To give all possible clat to the interesting occasion, Captain John Wood, the agent, invited the principal members of the Sind Railway and Indus Flotilla to luncheon on board the steamer John Jacob on the 31st ultimo; and to enable those in Kurrachee to be present, a special train was provided for their conveyance to Kotree. On the 29th ultimo, the Mammoth, as the dock is familiarly named, was floated and moored close to the company's jetty! Its capabilities were then apparent to every one; and by its construction there will be no longer any necessity for keeping up a separate dockyard at Keemaree, which has been hitherto the case, and which entailed not only the maintenance of two separate establishments—one at Kotree, and the other at Keemaree, but caused great trouble in bringing vessels for repair a considerable distance, and involved a great loss of time. After the dock (which is 300 feet long, 60 feet wide, and 12½ feet deep) had been minutely inspected, and its appliances admired for their mechanical ingenuity and originality, the company adjourned on board the steamer John Jacob, which had been tastefully decorated with flags and flowers, where they did ample justice to a sumptuous collation. Captain Wood occupied the chair, and did the honours of the day with that courtesy and kind heartedness for which he is so favourably known. In proposing the health of Mr. W. M. Andrew, the chairman of the united companies, he alluded to the large number of the employes present on the occasion—the thews, sinews and brains, as he aptly termed them, of the undertaking, and briefly alluded to the “forging of the missing link,” which was, he said, the only means that would give that large increase of traffic which was confidently looked for by all who were intimately acquainted with the resources of the surrounding provinces.—Times of India Correspondent.

Miscellaneous.

ARRIVALS.—The following passengers arrived on August 6 per steamer Asia, Capt. Paterson, from Calcutta:—Capt. and Mrs. Rowkins, Mr. G. J. Roberts.

STEAM TO COCHIN.—We learn that the B. I. S. N. Company intend to run steamers to Cochin and the Malabar Coast during the N.E. monsoon. The first steamer was to leave Bombay on September 7.

G. I. P. RAILWAY WORKS.—We believe, says the Jubbulpore Chronicle, that the Nerbudda bridge is sufficiently far advanced to admit of a locomotive going over it.

THE INDO-TURKISH TELEGRAPH.—It seems that although in May last Mr. H. J. Walton, the director of the Mekran Coast and Submarine Telegraph, reported there was every probability of the extension line from Guadar to Jask being completed by the end of the following month, it is not likely that the work can be finished before the end of the present month. The delay is owing to the large mortality amongst the constructors' camels, and to the intense heat of the season.—Times of India.

KURRACHEE.—We learn that the Political Superintendent and Commandant-in-Chief, Sind Frontier Field Force, Jacobabad, has found it necessary to suspend the whole of his office establishment; and that two of the senior clerks have been made prisoners, pending an investigation into the charges brought against them; and which, we are informed, are of a very serious nature.—Sind News, August 2.—Mr. John Barron, chief clerk, is elsewhere named as one of the alleged culprits.

RAJCOTE.—We learn from Rajcote that there was a breach of the peace committed a few days ago by a party of schoolboys, who mobbed and pelted the missionary of the Irish Presbyterian Mission, located there, and his catechist, a converted Banian named Khimjee. The case was tried before the Station Magistrate on the 3rd August, and the instigator of the assault was fined in the sum of Rs. 15. We also hear that the weather has cleared up since the last week, sowing operations are being vigorously proceeded with, and that there is every prospect of a good harvest.

IMPORTATION OF AUSTRALIAN HORSES.—We understand that Colonel Dalrymple Ross arrived at Poona on Wednesday last, for the purpose of laying before his Excellency the Governor the advantages that might be gained from the establishment of a regimental depot in Australia. Colonel Ross, we believe, has been sent by the Australian Government to confer with the Viceroy and the Governors of Madras and Bombay on the subject of remounting the cavalry in India with Australian horses, and has come provided with the fullest particulars on the subject, and, we understand, gave evidence before General Troup's committee at Simla. Colonel Ross is now on his way back to England, and will leave Bombay by Tuesday's steamer.—Poona Observer.

TRADE AT KURRACHEE.—There are at present five vessels in harbour, namely, the Ma'ta, Summer Cloud, Channel Light, Delhi, and Glencol. Of these no less than four will sail from port in a week or so; so that in a short space of time we shall not have a single English-rigged vessel in our harbour. Stagnation in trade has prevented vessels from making this port since the last few months; and in proof of this we may mention that towards the end of next month we need expect only four of them to arrive here with general cargo. These are the Morning Glory, Sultana, Parana, and Mountain Laurel, which sailed from England on the 3rd, 12th, and 15th May, and 5th June respectively. The ship Beth Sham, of 663 tons, was loading in the London Docks for Kurrachee when our last English mail left.

BRITISH AND INDIAN COLONELS.—“To the Editor of the Times of India. Sir,—I wish to goodness all this fuss about ‘British and Indian Colonels’ had not taken place at the present time, as I, an old officer of upwards of forty-two years’ service, seem certain to be victimised if the promotion from colonel to major-general in the Indian army is temporarily stopped. A British colonel, writing in your paper of the 5th inst., states: ‘I might adduce several more cases, such as Colonels McMahon and Waiters, who are still commanding their regiments against Colonels Brown and Vaughan, very much their juniors, who are now brigade-generals.’ The Colonel quite forgets that brigade and divisional commands allotted to the British and Indian colonels are quite distinct, and the senior colonel of either service must, if competent, be promoted to the rank of brigadier-general or major-general to fill a vacancy.—A LOCAL COLONEL.”

JUDICIAL.—The following arrangements have been made, which will provide for the administration of justice in Kurrachee for a short time, till a judge can arrive from England to take charge permanently, we earnestly hope, of the duties of judge of the Sudder Court. Captain Grant will leave Hyderabad at once, and take up the office of judge of the District Court, Major Widdicombe acting as judge of the Sudder Court. Captain Boulton, the deputy collector and magistrate of Mahomed Khan's Tanda, will take Captain Grant's place at Hyderabad, Mr. Forbes thus gaining a step. On the departure of Colonel Lambert, on furlough, about the end of next month, Major Lionel Dunsterville, the collector of, Shikarpore, will act for him. Captain Gillespie, the deputy collector of Kotree, will be posted to Shikarpore as collector; Mr. Tyndall, at present in charge of Halla, acting as first-class deputy collector of Kotree.—Our Paper.

THE SIND RAILWAY.—The following, which we take from a Kurrachee paper, is the official account of the recent damage done to the railway:—“The agent of the Sind Railway states, under date 22nd July, 1869, that he, in company with the chief engineer and consulting engineer of railways, proceeded as far as the Mulleer on a pilot engine to inspect the damage caused by the heavy rain. They found the embankment approaches to Mulleer bridge had sunk considerably, and to such an extent as to render it unsafe. Between Landi and Joongshai further reports of similar damage has been received, hence I have thought it advisable to stop the traffic for two or three days in order that all necessary repairs may be effected. Passengers by this morning's trains will be conveyed back again, and pending the resumption of the usual train, the best co-operative arrangements with the Post-office will be made for the conveyance of the mails between Kurrachee and Joongshai by trolley. The resumption of traffic will be duly notified.”

A TRIFLING MISTAKE.—Do many of our English readers find their home letters sometimes take a trip to Banbury before coming out to Bombay? The military letter which should have reached us last week did this, not by any fault of its own, for “Bombay” was plain and big at the bottom of the address, “Marseilles” equally plain in a corner at the top, and postage to the value of two shillings and twopence in the other corner. The same thing happened two or three months ago, causing us then, as it has done in this instance, a good deal of disappointment, and a loss besides which can be estimated in rupees. It may not matter much whether the Duke of Argyll or Mr. Grant Duff has a full or a thin House to listen to his Indian Budget, but it is surely reasonable to insist that the English Post-office should recognise the geographical fact that there is a place called Bombay, and that it is not in Oxfordshire. We are glad to take this opportunity of acknowledging the care and accuracy with which the onerous work of “sorting” appears to be performed on the steamers between Suez and Bombay. We have not had one occasion to complain, and others, we are sure, will agree with us in pronouncing the system of “sea-sorting” a decided success.—Bombay Gazette.

CHAPLAINS.—TRAVELLING EXPENSES.

July 21.—No. 2,141.—The following extract from an ecclesiastical despatch from the Secretary of State to the Government of India, No. 11, dated May 20 last, is published for general information:—"I desire that in this and every case of a chaplain who may receive, while out of Europe, his nomination to her Majesty's Indian service, his personal travelling expenses to the station to which he may first be posted on appointment be defrayed by Government."

LEAVE TO ROMAN CATHOLIC CHAPLAINS.

July 23.—No. 2,195.—Read extract from proceedings of the Government of India in the Military Department, No. 3, dated May 1 last, recommending certain rules for granting leave to Roman Catholic chaplains.

Office memorandum from Home Department, No. 329, dated July 14 last.

Resolution.—The Gov. gen. in Council observes that in a despatch from the Court of Directors, dated Jan. 14, 1853, it was remarked "that as Roman Catholic priests form no part of the public establishment * * the general rule must be maintained inviolate that they are to receive no stipends from your Government except for services actually rendered to the troops."

In view of these orders, which in principle appear correct, H.E. in Council thinks that it would be objectionable to prescribe any rules recognising a right to privilege or other leave on the part of Roman Catholic chaplains. But so long as the sanction of the brigadier commanding is obtained to the absence of a Roman Catholic chaplain, and arrangements are made for the performance of his duties during his absence, the Gov. gen. in Council is of opinion that no objection should be taken to the passing of the sanctioned allowances. Any application to the brigadier commanding for leave of absence on the part of a Roman Catholic chaplain should be endorsed with the approval of his ecclesiastical superiors.

FORFEITING APPOINTMENTS ON FURLOUGH, C.S.

July 13.—No. 1,900.—From G. H. M. Batten, Esq., Under Secretary to the Government of India, Financial Department, to the Chief Secretary to Government, Fort St. George:—

"I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 220 of May 10, and enclosure, and in reply to state that when a covenanted civil servant forfeits his appointment by proceeding on furlough under clause (b) of section 8 of the Furlough Rules of June 16, 1868, the forfeiture takes place from the date on which he makes over charge of his duties."

UNCOVENANTED SERVICE LEAVE OF ABSENCE.—OFFICIATING APPOINTMENTS.

July 12.—No. 1,821.—Read—A letter from the Officiating Accountant-general, Bombay, No. 917a, dated 9th ult., and enclosure, inquiring "Whether, when an uncovenanted servant has been allowed leave under special circumstances on the express condition of forfeiture of full pay during absence, and it is not practicable to obtain the services of a competent unemployed substitute for him on fifty per cent. of his salary, the officiating appointment may be made on full pay, no extra expense being incurred thereby."

Resolution.—The Governor-general in Council is pleased to empower local governments and administrations to grant at their discretion more acting allowance than the rules authorise to the substitute of an uncovenanted absentee whose salary is less than Rs. 200 per mensem, whenever they may consider that the allowances provided by rule are on public grounds insufficient, provided that the total acting allowance does not exceed the amount of salary forfeited by the absentee, and that thus no extra charge to the State is incurred.

LEAVE.—QUARTERMASTERS.

No. 206.—In continuation of the orders Nos. 258 and 259 of 1866, and No. 65 of 1869, the following letter from the military department Government of India, to the military department, Bombay, No. 572, of June 26, is published for information:—

"I am directed to acknowledge your letter No. 2,388, dated June 3, 1869, inquiring whether the general order which requires an officer of the Indian army who may have continued in his appointment as adjutant on promotion to the rank of captain, shall vacate his appointment on going on furlough, is applicable also to officers similarly situated holding the post of regimental quartermaster."

"2. In reply, I am to state for the information of the Right Hon. the Governor in Council, that the order in question must be held to apply to both appointments."

ADVANCES OF PAY TO OFFICERS IN EUROPE.

Simla, July 28.—No. 2,278.—Read the following:—

Financial.—No. 223.

India Office, London, June 24, 1869.

To H.E. the Right Hon. the Governor-general of India in Council.
My Lord,—With a view to the proper adjustment of advances made on account of pay, &c., to persons engaged in this country for service in India, I have directed that they shall, in each case, be furnished with a certificate from the Accountant-general, stating whether any advance has been issued here or not; and I have to request that no issue of pay may be made to such persons in India without the production of the certificate in question.

THE ALBERT ASSURANCE COMPANY.

A meeting of policy-holders of the Albert Insurance Company, convened by the provisional official liquidators, was held on Thursday, at Liverpool; Mr. Isaac Penney presided. In the course of the proceedings Mr. Price stated that he and Mr. Lewis had had an interview that morning with the Manchester committee, and they had resolved that if possible the liabilities of the company should be taken over by some other well-established office, and that steps should at once be taken to see if that could not be done. Failing that, they thought the next best thing was to reconstruct upon what would virtually be a mutual insurance basis. After a long and very noisy discussion, a resolution proposed by the Rev. Canon Grey was adopted declaring the scheme of reconstruction proposed by the provisional liquidators to be "crude and inequitable," and that it was not practicable for the meeting to frame any modification of it. After a number of resolutions and counter-resolutions had been moved, questions asked, and explanations given, in the course of which Mr. Lewis assured the meeting that all the propositions were beset with difficulties, and that they might still have to revert to the liquidators' project for reconstruction, it was resolved that a committee of six gentlemen be appointed to represent the Liverpool policy-holders.

A public meeting of policy-holders in this company was held on Friday, at the Arundel-hall, Strand; the Hon. J. Tobin in the chair. Mr. Hunter referred to many of the statistics which had been put forward in connection with the present state of the company. From these figures he came to the conclusion that, if the whole assets of the company were realised, they would amount to 2s. 7d. in the pound, and upon this the shareholders proposed to reconstruct the company. He believed that the scheme proposed by the liquidators was a sham, and the committee, of which he was secretary, recommended the policy-holders not to agree to it. After some discussion, Dr. Morgan's resolution—"That this meeting, while expressing its confidence in the present committee, urges it to confer with other committees formed for the purpose, so that the whole of the policyholders' power to act might be concentrated in one strong business committee," was carried unanimously.

On the same afternoon a numerous meeting of policy-holders was held at the Guildhall Coffee-house, when a report was adopted declaring that the scheme of reconstruction shadowed forth by the official liquidator did not represent the interests of the policy-holders, and ought not to be sanctioned by them. Resolutions were also passed thanking the provisional committee for their past services, and in favour of making an application to the Vice-Chancellor to remove Mr. Kirby from the position of co-liquidator.

Disapproval of the reconstruction scheme was also expressed at a meeting of policy-holders held at the Whittington Club; and a motion was adopted urging the various committees which had been formed to confer with each other, in order that a concentration of interests in a powerful central body might be the result.

At Birmingham a meeting of policy-holders pronounced in favour of re-establishing the concern on the purely mutual principle, or of selling the assets and liabilities to a responsible company.

A meeting of the Albert policy-holders in Shrewsbury and the district was held at the George Hotel in that town on Thursday, the Mayor, Mr. Thomas Groves, presiding. The meeting was well attended. The Mayor and Mr. Morris explained the present position of the proceedings affecting the company and the object of the meetings now being held, and after some discussion it was resolved to adjourn the meeting to Tuesday, the 14th instant, by which day the meetings called by the present liquidators would have been held, and the policy-holders would be in a better position to consider the course they should take.

At the chambers of Vice-Chancellor James, on Friday, an application was appointed to be heard in the matter of the Albert Life Assurance Company before Mr. Allen, the chief clerk, on the part of Mr. White, Mr. Best, and Mr. Holt, that they should be at liberty to attend the proceedings before the judge, and to have notice of the same. Mr. Musgrave (Lewis, Munns, and Co.) appeared to oppose the application on the part of the provisional liquidators of the company, Messrs. Kirby and H. Price. An application was made for an adjournment on the part of Mr. Manning, the solicitor to the petitioners, as he was out of town. The Chief Clerk granted an adjournment. It should be understood that although the petitions to wind-up the company are advertised to be heard next Friday at Shire, Guildford, they will not be taken till the following Friday, and then before the Vice-Chancellor, in town.

A meeting of policy-holders was held in the St. John's School-room, Osborne-street, Hull, on Saturday; the Rev. H. W. Kemp in the chair. The Chairman was glad to find that the policy-holders in Liverpool, Manchester, and, in fact, in every part of the kingdom, were determined not to put up tamely with their loss, and were determined not to accept any scheme of reconstruction drawn up only in the interests of the shareholders, ignoring entirely the interests of the policy-holders. If they accepted the reconstruction scheme proposed by Mr. Kirby, they would let these people off very easy, and condone all their misconduct, and release them from their liabilities. The policy-holders, he believed, would have the whole thing thoroughly looked into, demanding a complete history of the Albert Company from the very beginning. In fact, they would do all they could, not only to prove the liability of the shareholders of the Albert Company, but the shareholders of all the companies that had been incorporated into that society. Mr. Ayre (the Secretary) read the sub-committee's report, which recommended that counsel's opinion should be carried out. Mr. Crosley's opinion was that the Hull policy-holders should put themselves in communication with other policy-holders throughout the country, and state that they were about to present a petition for the purpose of obtaining a compulsory order to wind up the company, and intended to appear on the hearing of the petition before the Vice-Chancellor, and oppose any order for the voluntary winding up of the concern. Among other points of agreement, Mr. Settle carried a proposal, "That, in the opinion of this meeting, no reconstruction scheme shall be taken into consideration until after the 17th of the present month."

An influential meeting of policy-holders of the Albert Life Assurance Company was held at the committee-room, Cannon-street Hotel, on Monday. It was numerously attended, and included representatives of some of the London banks, and also of the Calcutta and Bombay policy-holders. Arrangements were made for securing united action at the meeting on the 9th inst. on behalf of the policy-holders and annuitants.

An influential meeting of policy-holders was held on Monday night at the Clarence Hotel, Manchester, when two resolutions were passed recommending the Manchester committee not to concur in any arrangement so long as Mr. Kirby continues liquidator; and, in case of the affairs being wound up, requesting the committee to insist that liquidators shall independently represent the interests of the policy-holders.

Miscellaneous.

DEATH OF GENERAL G. MOORE.—The death of General G. Moore, colonel of the 8th Bombay Native Infantry, took place at Oxford-terrace on August 18, aged seventy-eight. He was at home on furlough, not having retired. He entered the service of the Indian army in 1807.

BILLS ON INDIA.—Tenders for £325,000 in bills on India were received on Wednesday, the 1st inst., at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—to Calcutta £282,000, and to Madras £43,000. The minimum price was fixed at 1s. 11d. Tenders on those presidencies at 1s. 11½d. will receive about 30 per cent.

AMMUNITION.—It is rumoured that the authorities intend to adopt the segment shell, notwithstanding the doubt that exists—a doubt reasonably founded on the late experiments—of its superiority over the shrapnel. We do not profess to vouch for the truth of this, but mention the rumour as it has reached us. It is hardly conceivable that any final conclusion has yet been arrived at on the subject.—Broad Arrow.

THE STAR OF INDIA.—Among the recipients of the honourable decoration of the Companionship of the Star of India we are glad to notice the name of Surgeon-Major J. Arthur, late of the Madras Fusiliers. Dr. Arthur did prominent and efficient service during the Indian Mutiny, and was at that time recommended for the Companionship of the Bath; but having retired from the service, he was found to be disqualified for the intended honour. We are glad that the regulations of the new Order are somewhat less strict, and that Dr. Arthur is thus able to obtain a well-deserved recognition of his services.—Lancet.

EXPORTS OF BULLION TO INDIA by the P. and O. steamers through August are recorded in G. de Quetteville's (late Low's) "Indian Circular" to have been as follows:—Gold, from Southampton to Bombay, £11,500 (per Nyanza, August 14); gold, from Southampton to Madras, £1,464 (per Delhi, August 7); Marseilles, £1,300 (per Massilia, August 15). Gold, from Southampton to Bombay, August 21 and 24, £100,100; silver, £15,200; and £9,900 from Marseilles August 29. Gold, from Southampton to Madras (August 21), £5,200. Gold, from Southampton to Calcutta (August 21), £20,000; and from Marseilles to Calcutta, silver, £29,500.

DEATH OF GENERAL CONRAN, R.A.—The death of General George Conran, Royal (late Madras) Artillery, has to be recorded. He died on August 28, aged seventy-six. He entered the East India Company's service in 1810, and arrived in India in July, 1811, having obtained his commission as second lieutenant in the Artillery. He served with Sir John Doveton's force from 1814 to 1817, and in the Mahratta campaigns of 1817 and 1818 in the first and third divisions of the army of the Deccan. He was present at the siege of Asseerghur, April 9, 1819. The late general obtained his commission as lieutenant May 19, 1814; captain, May 21, 1823; major, May 1, 1833; lieutenant-colonel, Feb. 26, 1840; colonel, August 2, 1850; major-general, Nov. 28, 1854; lieutenant-general, Jan. 24, 1865; and general, Dec. 14, 1868.

THE "CROCODILE," 3, Indian troopship, Captain George W. Watson, has been placed in dock at Portsmouth, to have her bottom cleaned and newly-coated over with anti-fouling composition, before being again employed in her Indian troop relief service.

VISIT OF THE BENGAL PRINCES TO WINDSOR CASTLE.—On Friday afternoon his Highness the Nawab Nazim, of Bengal, with Prince Ali Kudr Bahadoor, Prince Soliman Kudr Bahadoor, and suite, accompanied by Colonel Layard, of the Bengal Staff, and Captain Daubuz, left the Alexandra Hotel, Hyde-park, on a visit to Windsor Castle. The Princes drove to the Paddington Station of the Great Western line, and left London in a saloon attached to the 1.20 P.M. train for Windsor, where they arrived at about two o'clock. The Princes proceeded to Windsor Castle, and were shown over the private and state apartments of the palace by special order. After inspecting the castle, their Highnesses returned to the Windsor Station of the Great Western Railway, and returned to Paddington in a saloon attached to the 4.27 P.M. train which, arrived in the metropolis at 5.30 P.M. The Princes were to leave London this week on a visit to Manchester and other towns in the manufacturing districts of the north.

THE ABYSSINIAN EXPEDITION.—The Broad Arrow understands that a narrative of the unparalleled blundering, which led to the Abyssinian Expedition, and the excellent strategy which brought it to a successful termination, is being compiled in the War-office, for official circulation, if not for eventual publication, and that the introductory portion, containing a preliminary account of the country, is already in type. The great danger into which an official military narrator of military events is likely to fall, is not wholly unlike that which we find our foremost scientific men incapable of resisting, namely, a tendency to exaggerate the difficulties of success, as a means of enhancing the reader's estimate of the energy and perseverance of the successful individual. The temptation to magnify the natural obstacles presented by the country in the style of "Nobody's" silly letters to the Times, will, we hope, be avoided in the compilation in question. In every instance honesty—and by honesty we mean the strict, unembellished telling of a tale you have undertaken to tell—is the best policy.

THE NEW RIFLE.—We understand that the 200 Martini-Henry rifles which are about to be issued to the troops for trial will be disposed of as follows:—One hundred will be sent to India, to be divided among the three Presidencies; fifty will go to Canada, as the station which, as regards climatic conditions, stands in the most direct opposition to India; and the remainder will be issued to the troops at home. The arms will be fired as much as possible, moved from one station to the other, taken on the march, passed from regiment to regiment, and subjected to as many of the vicissitudes of actual service as can be imitated or produced in peace time. About a million rounds of ammunition will be manufactured for this trial; but we regret to hear that the strengthened or "bottle-necked" cartridge is not yet decided upon, and it will therefore be necessary to supply the long cartridge, which is not unlikely to prove somewhat weak on service. That the "bottle-necked" or shortened cartridge will ultimately be preferred we do not doubt, and it is unfortunate that some of these cartridges, with arms to match, could not have been issued at the same time as the others for comparative trial.—Pall Mall Gazette.

FIELD EQUIPMENT IN INDIA.—We understand that the Indian field equipment committee have recommended the adoption of the modified French rifling in place of the Woolwich rifling originally proposed. It will be recollected that two riflings were in competition—the first being a modification of the French groove suggested by Colonel H. Maxwell, Royal Artillery, superintendent of the gun factory at Cossipore; the other that form of groove known as the "Woolwich." The French groove gave slightly better accuracy and a somewhat lower trajectory, but it was thought that the wear of the guns after continued firing was somewhat greater with the French rifling. And as the question of wear is one of importance, the committee in their preliminary report recommended the Woolwich system; but when the two guns came to be exactly measured to the thousandth of an inch, it was found that the modified French groove had really worn less than the Woolwich groove, and the guns will therefore be rifled in accordance with this experience. The question of ammunition is still in abeyance, awaiting the report of the Dartmoor Shrapnel versus Segment Committee; but as that report was, we believe, signed on Saturday, the uncertainty on this point cannot be of much longer duration.—Pall Mall Gazette.

DEFENCE OF BOMBAY.—The India Government are building two iron-clad ships in the river for the defence of the Bombay Harbour. The Abyssinia is being constructed by Messrs. Dudgeon, of Poplar. She is an iron ship, flat-bottomed, with twin screws of 100-horse power each, 1,800 tons, carrying two turrets with two 10-inch muzzle-loading rifle guns in each. The broadside is protected by 6-inch armour plates under, and 7-inch over, the water line, on Bellerophon backing—viz., 10 inches teak, with horizontal iron stringers and iron skin. The turrets are protected in the lower part by a circular breastwork of 7-inch plates on Bellerophon backing; the turrets themselves carry 10-inch plates round the ports, and 8-inch plates on other portions, the backing in each case being Bellerophon. A sister ship to the above is being built at the Thames Ironworks, Blackwall. With these two turret ships, backed by a fort on the Oyster Rock, an iron fort on the middle land, and seven or eight Moncrieff guns in low earthworks under the light-house, Bombay Harbour will be perfectly secure. We should be glad, however, to learn whether the forts are being constructed, or the Moncrieff carriages made. It should be borne in mind that Bombay is one of the most important harbours of India. From it we draw our chief cotton supplies, and its protection is a matter of the greatest moment.—Globe.

ORIENTAL MSS. IN THE BRITISH MUSEUM.—A total of 757 Oriental manuscripts were added to the collection of the British Museum during the past year, consisting of 355 in Ethiopic, 266 Persian, 66 Arabic, 21 Coptic, 13 Hindustani, 5 each Hindi, Telugoo, Afghan, and Toorkic. 4 each Hebrew and Armenian, 3 Sanscrit, 2 each Burmese and Cingalese, and 1 Tamil. The Hamilton and Abyssinian collections are included in the above total, the former of which consists of 352 manuscripts, chiefly Persian and Arabic, selected from a collection of about 1,100 volumes found in India, chiefly at the time of the mutiny, by the late Colonel George William Hamilton, Commissioner of Delhi, and including a large number of books from the Royal Library at Lucknow. The Abyssinian collection, which is due to the late war, was presented by the Secretary of State for India, and comprises 339 volumes, handsomely written on vellum, selected from about 1,000 books captured at Magdala. Sixteen volumes originally belonging to the same collection were set apart for presentation to her Majesty, six of which were retained for the Royal Library, and the rest returned to the Museum. This unequalled collection embraces the whole range of Ethiopic literature, all branches of which are most fully represented, and it forms also a curious series of Abyssinian caligraphy and miniature painting, ranging from the 15th to the present century.

THE MONTIGNY GUN.—The experiments with the Montigny mitrailleuse, which Major Fosbery, V.C., lately brought to this country for trial, await the arrival of a Gatling repeating gun which has been ordered. The two weapons will then be tried one against the other. There is no intention, we believe, of placing the mitrailleuse in competition with field artillery, because it is felt that, whatever value these weapons may possess, they can never usefully supersede field guns. The Gatling gun was tried at Shoeburyness a few years ago, and did not then find much favour. We understand, however, that the details have been greatly modified, and, it is said, improved since that time. The French still maintain the secrecy with regard to their mitrailleuse that they have all along observed. It is known, however, that they possess several hundred of these weapons, that they have formed them into batteries of eight mitrailleurs, and that they intend that each division of infantry shall be accompanied in the field by its mitrailleuse battery, just as it is accompanied by its batteries of artillery. But there is no intention whatever of reducing the proportion of the latter, with which, the French consider, like ourselves, the mitrailleurs do not really enter into any sort of competition. The experimental inquiry into the relative efficiency of the Montigny and the Gatling will be referred to a special committee. Among the tests to which they will be subjected will be travelling over rough ground—a test which is said to have severely tried the mechanism of some of these weapons abroad.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Spirit of the Home Journals.

THE ALBERT ASSURANCE COMPANY.

In the opinion of the Saturday Review, if all concerned in the management stood for the same persons as all interested in the company, we should not so far as we can see, feel any particular pity for the victims of the catastrophe. In the absence of any evidence that the directors acted fraudulently by the shareholders, the fall of the Albert must be attributed to the extraordinary carelessness or the extraordinary blindness of the latter. Either they did not trouble themselves about what was going on, and never examined into the stability of a company in which they had thought fit to invest their money, or they were content with statements too obviously imperfect to be called deceptive. Either way, whether they were inexcusably indolent or inexcusably trustful, they must bear their own burden. Unhappily, however, the proprietary of the Albert is neither the only nor the worst sufferer. It is the holders of policies and annuities, amounting even at their present value to £1,297,932, that claim our sympathy. We shall not presume to suggest what course it is best for them to follow under this terrible disaster. Probably the best means of escaping or mitigating the loss with which they are threatened will be by the adoption of some such scheme as that proposed by Dr. Farr in the Times of Wednesday. One piece of advice, however, we will offer, and that is to have no mercy on the Albert shareholders. They are the persons ultimately responsible for what has happened, and every shilling of the loss that can be thrown upon their shoulders is put in the right place. It would be far better to be content with diminished policies and increased premiums under the management of a committee of policy-holders, than to try to make the loss smaller by trusting the very men whose doing it has been that there has been any loss at all. But it will be a matter for profound regret if the failure of the Albert should prove to have no lesson for insurers generally. As to the moral that ought to be drawn from it, there can, as it seems to us, be no doubt whatever. What is wanted by policy-holders is adequate knowledge of the state of the company's affairs at the time they effect their policy, and of the changes which they afterwards undergo, and this knowledge can only be obtained through the sanction of the State. To say with the Times that Government ought not to "be required to protect private interests which the individuals themselves are perfectly competent to protect for themselves," is to misrepresent facts. An ordinary insurer has very few means indeed of ascertaining the character of the office to which he is about to entrust his premiums. He can compare their several prospectuses, and can even be on his guard against new companies and unusually easy terms. But after he has taken these elementary precautions, what more is there left for him to do? Whatever else he can get in the way of information must be derived from the company's own statements, made under no special sanction and subjected to no external test. If Insurance Companies were compelled to disclose all the particulars of their business, and if the honesty and accuracy of their returns were guaranteed by authorising the Government at any time, and compelling it on the requisition of a certain number of policy-holders to institute a searching investigation into the affairs of a suspected company, no one would be the worse except those whom it is well to visit with exposure, if not with punishment. With the means of comparing one company with another thus afforded, it would be possible for the first time to exercise proper prudence in choosing an office. As long as this necessary safeguard is withheld, Life Assurance must remain the lottery that it practically now is.

FAMINES IN INDIA.

The Times observes that we have not succeeded, with all our wealth, ingenuity, and power, in preserving the people of India from the perils of starvation, but we have most materially reduced those perils. Famines occur less frequently than in ancient times, and when they do occur the mortality is far less. Perhaps those who remember that three short years ago 750,000 people died from want in a single province of the Bengal Presidency may think we have little credit to claim for ourselves, but if the famine of 1866 be compared with the famine of 1770 the difference will soon appear. In 1770 ten millions of people perished, and half the land of Bengal, it is said, returned to jungle. Again, in these North-Western Provinces, the famine of 1837 was far more fatal than that of 1860. The intervening years had brought improved roads, improved enterprise, and comparatively rapid communications. Grain was poured into the suffering country in such abundance that, as an official report stated, the Great Trunk-road was actually worn out by the traffic of 15 days. Probably, if the worst should happen, we may succeed in rendering the visitation lighter than that of nine years since, but all the conditions of the case are against us. No railway enters Rajpootana—indeed, there is nothing to attract one. The opium of Malwa excepted, this vast tract of country produces nothing—no iron, no indigo, no coal, no jute, no cotton, not even any timber. There is a railway projected from Baroda to Delhi which would cut right through it, but the works are not yet in progress. The country, as we have said, is not under our own administration, and though all its princes are indebted to us for protection and amenable to our influence, it is not easy to move them to any purpose. Nevertheless, the Government will do what it can, and its first step has been to postpone the great durbar. By the light of this announcement we can appreciate the apologies offered for the Indian Budget in the late debates. How is a financial balance to be maintained in a country where a bad season may at any time render a whole province insolvent, and bring an enormous expenditure upon the Government besides? When it was urged that all our expenditure upon works of irrigation had scarcely added perceptibly to the revenue of the empire, it was forcibly answered that such works might have produced their due effect in saving that revenue from abrupt decline. How often have our canals averted or mitigated the horrors and losses of an actual famine? How far would they serve to circumscribe the operation of the very famine now perhaps impending? It was stated in our Calcutta correspondence that in the North-Western Provinces alone the State canals last year irrigated 665,023 acres of land above and beyond the area irrigated in the year preceding. What may we not owe to that progress before the present year is out? Is it a small matter to reduce or bring within compass the effects of these periodical visitations? When it is alleged that the revenue of India barely equals its expenditure, and that the outgoings always balance the income, should it not be remembered that, except for the public works on which we spend so much, the income over large tracts of the country might fail altogether?

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S (Ex. Army Med. Staff)

C H L O R O D Y N E

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE. The Public, therefore, are cautioned against using any other than DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.

Remedial Uses and Action.

THIS INVALUABLE REMEDY produces quiet, refreshing sleep, relieves pain, calms the system, restores the deranged functions, and stimulates healthy action of the secretions of the body, without creating any of those unpleasant results attending the use of Opium. Old and young may take it at all hours and times when requisite. Thousands of persons testify to its marvellous good effects and wonderful cures, while medical men extol its virtues most extensively, using it in great quantities in the following diseases:—

Diseases in which eminently useful—Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Colic, Coughs, Asthma, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Whooping Cough, Cramp, Hysteria, &c.

Those exhaustive diseases—Fever, Ague—so common in tropical climates, are rapidly arrested, and the cold stage in a few moments checked by a timely dose, when warmth and a general glow of the system is established, and comfort secured.

As a Sedative, Neurotic, and Antispasmodic, it is unequalled by any other known Medicine, and not to be surpassed in its specific effects.

Extracts from Medical Opinions.

The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Cholera was Chlorodyne.—See Lancet, Dec. 31, 1864.

From A. Montgomery, Esq., late Inspector of Hospitals, Bombay:—"Chlorodyne is a most valuable remedy in Neuralgia, Asthma, and Dysentery. To it I fairly owe my restoration to health after eighteen months' severe suffering, and when other remedies had failed."

Dr. Lowe, Medical Missionary in India, reports (Dec., 1865) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne was administered, the patient recovered.

Mrs. Forbes, wife of the Chaplain at Paris:—"I cannot speak too highly of Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne. I have not in any single instance been disappointed with the result, even in aggravated cases of Indian Cholera."

Extract from Medical Times, Jan. 12, 1866:—"Chlorodyne is prescribed by scores of orthodox medical practitioners. Of course it would not thus be singularly popular did it not supply a want and fill a place."

Extract from the General Board of Health, London, as to its efficacy in Cholera:—"So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too forcibly urge the necessity of adopting it in all cases."

CHLORODYNE, the Great Remedy for CHOLERA.—See Report in the Times, Sept. 6, from the Malta Correspondent, who states, August 24th, that "104 cases and eighty-one deaths occurred at Messina; 60,000 people fled from the town, which is in a most deplorable condition; that Chlorodyne has been found most efficacious as a remedy, and a number of persons are reported to have been saved by its use."

Now as there are various imitations sold under the name of Chlorodyne, containing Indian Hemp, Morphia, &c., ingredients highly adverse to the cure of Cholera, the public are cautioned against the use of any compound under the name of Chlorodyne, unless it bears the name of Dr. J. Collis Browne, who coined the word Chlorodyne to designate his wonderful discovery, which he fully tested for many years in her Majesty's Service before introducing it to the public, the wonderful success of which has given rise to various imitations totally different to genuine Chlorodyne. See the decision of Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood, reported in the Times, July 13th, 1864.

The extraordinary medical reports on the efficacy of Chlorodyne renders it a subject of most vital importance that the public should obtain the genuine, which is now sold under the protection of the Government of Great Britain, authorising a stamp, bearing the words "Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne," without which none is genuine. Sold in bottles, 1s. 1d., 2s. 6d., and 5s. 6d., by all Chemists. Sole Manufacturer, J. T. DAVENPORT, 33, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London.

THE CHANNEL ISLANDS. By Professor D. T. ANSTED and Dr. R. G. LATHAM. With numerous Illustrations in the best style of Wood Engraving, from Drawings by PAUL J. NARTZ. A new Edition, 5vo., cloth gilt, 18s.

This work is got up in a most elaborate style, and is a handsome gift-book for the present season.

London: WM. H. ALLEN and Co., 13, Waterloo-place, Pall-mall, S.W.

ORIENTAL PENMANSHIP.—KEY of rapid Proficiency in the Written Character of the Hindustani and Persian Languages, both as regards Writing and Reading, embodied in a Copy Book, on a method invented and successfully adopted by SYED ABDULLAH, Professor of Oriental Languages.

A Specimen Copy will be forwarded on enclosing twenty-six stamps to Messrs. ALLEN and Co., 13, Waterloo-place, London, S.W.

CURES OF ASTHMA AND COUGHS by Dr. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS.

From Mr. C. Collins, Chemist, Brettell-lane, Stourbridge:—

"I am much pleased to say that your Pulmonic Wafers give general satisfaction. Several of my customers have taken them for asthma, coughs, &c., and in every case they have had the desired effect. In my opinion, they surpass anything that has been offered to the public."

They give instant relief to ASTHMA, CONSUMP-TION, COUGHS, COLDS, and all DISORDERS of the BREATH and LUNGS.

To singers and public speakers they are invaluable.

Price 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 6d. per box.

WHITMORE'S COMPOUND LINI- MENT OF ARNICA.

A SPECIFIC for the CURE of RHEUMA-
TISM, LUMBAGO, SCIATICA, SPRAINS, CON-
TUSIONS, WEAKNESS OF THE JOINTS, CHILBLAINS,
&c. It is also an excellent remedy as a stimulating application to the surface of the chest and back in bronchitis, inflammation of the lungs, pulmonary consumption, and whooping cough. When the liver is inactive, rubbed over it, its stimulating properties have a beneficial effect, and in all cases where counter irritation is desirable, it will be found invaluable.

In bottles, small, medium, and large.

WILKINSON'S BRONCHIO- THORACIC LOZENGES.

Prepared from the receipt of an eminent Physician, and experience has fully justified their recommendation as the most speedy remedy in irritation of the throat, catarrhal coughs, bronchitis, incipient consumption, spitting of blood, &c., &c. To public speakers and vocalists they will be found invaluable, as they impart a clear and beautiful tone to the voice. Free from any preparation of opium, and of an agreeable taste, they are applicable to all.

In bottles of one uniform size.

WHITMORE'S STOMACHIC AND LIVER PILLS.

Composed of the Extracts of DANDELION, TURKEY RU-BARB, and JAMAICA GINGER.

No Pill is so efficacious in promoting digestion, strengthening the stomach, correcting acidity, preventing or removing headache, giddiness, &c., arising from a costive habit, debilitated stomach, or torpid liver.

They require no change of diet, and those of the most delicate constitution may take them with safety.

Taken as an adjunct with WILKINSON'S SARSAPA-
RILLA with the greatest success.

In bottles, small, medium, and large.

Prepared by THOMAS WILKINSON (late Bridge and Co.), 270, Regent-street, London, W.

"INDIAN BAEL," for Diarrhoea, Dysentery, &c. Imported by J. G. GOULD, Pharmaceutical Chemist, 194, Oxford-street, corner of Orchard-street, Portman-square, W.

AN ENTIRELY NEW METHOD of FIXING ARTIFICIAL TEETH, without springs or wires, or any painful operation, more natural and durable than any introduced, giving a facility in mastication and speech hitherto unattained. To be had only of Mr. ALFRED JONES, Surgeon-Dentist to their late
R.H. the Princess Augusta, the Duchess of Gloucester,
&c., 64, Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square. At home
from Eleven till Five.

RUPTURES.—BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER

TRUSS, Perfected and Exhibited in the Great
Exhibition of 1861, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 229, Piccadilly, London.

Price of a Single Truss, 10s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d., postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 8d. Umbilical, 42s. and 52s. 6d., postage, 1s. 10d.

Post-office Orders payable to JOHN WHITE, Postoffice, Piccadilly.

NEW PATENT.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS,

&c.—The material of which these are made is recommended by the Faculty as being peculiarly elastic and compressible, and the best invention for giving efficient and permanent support in cases of weakness and swelling of the Legs, Varicose Veins, Sprains, &c.
It is porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and is drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price 4s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s. to 16s. each; postage, 6d.

JOHN WHITE, MANUFACTURER, 229, PICCADILLY,

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.—

UPWARDS OF FIFTY YEARS' experience has fully confirmed the superior reputation of these LOZENGES in the cure of ASTHMA, WINTER COUGH, HOARSE-NESS, SHORTNESS OF BREATH, and other PUL-MONARY MALADIES.

RECENT TESTIMONIAL.

August 23, 1869.
Dear Sir.—Having tried your Cough Lozenges in India,
I have much pleasure in testifying to their beneficial effects in cases of incipient consumption, asthma, and bronchial affections; so good a medicine ought to be known to be appreciated. I have prescribed it largely with the best results.
W. B. G.,
Apothecary H.M. Indian Medical Service.

To Mr. Thomas Keating.

KEATING'S CHILDREN'S WORM

TABLET.—A PURELY VEGETABLE SWEETMEAT, both in appearance and taste, furnishing a most agreeable method of administering a well-known remedy for INTESTINAL or THREAD WORMS.

It is a perfectly safe and mild preparation, and especially adapted for Children.

KEATING'S PERSIAN INSECT DE- STROYING POWDER.—This Powder is QUITE HARM- LESS TO ANIMALS, but unrivalled in destroying

Fleas, Bugs, Beetles, Flies, Cockroaches, Beetles,

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS

Are the best, the cheapest, and the most popular remedies: at all seasons, and under all circumstances, they may be used with safety, and with the certainty of doing good. Eruptions, rashes, and all description of skin diseases, sores, ulcerations, and burns are promptly benefited, and ultimately cured, by these healing, sootheing, and purifying medicaments. The Ointment rubbed upon the abdomen checks all tendency to irritation in the bowels, and averts diarrhoea and other disorders of the intestines frequently prevailing through the fruit season and autumn. Heat lumps, blotches, pimples, inflammations of the skin, muscular pains, neuralgic affections, and enlarged glands can be effectively overcome by using Holloway's remedies according to instructions.

ENGLISH HOMES IN INDIA.

PART I.—THE THREE LOVES. | PART II.—THE WRONG TURNING.

PUBLISHERS' NOTICE.

The writer of these volumes—an accomplished member of a family whose name is conspicuous in Indian story—being now resident in India, they have not had the benefit of her final corrections. It is hoped, however, that this inevitable drawback will detract but little from the pleasure to be afforded by the perusal of the tales, which are, indeed, what they profess to be, stories of English Homes in India, represented as such homes are in different parts of the country and under various social and professional aspects. They endeavour fairly and without exaggeration to illustrate Anglo-Indian life as it is, in its many varying phases, and to bring upon the scene, in their everyday costume, many kinds of Anglo-Indian workmen, from the Resident at a Native Court, to the subaltern officer and the railway employé; and it is believed that all who have visited the countries described will recognise the truth of the portraiture.

Summary and Review.

OUR latest advices by the Overland Mail are—from Bombay, August 17; Agra, August 14; Calcutta, August 13; Madras, August 11.

Ball-giving seems to be the salient feature of the news sent home by this mail. The Maharajah of Jeypore has given a ball to Lord and Lady Mayo at Simlah; the Gaikwar has given a ball or two at Muckapoor; and the Governor of Bombay has given a ball at Poonah. Each of these ceremonies is said to have come off with brilliant success, although one discontented voice from Simlah jars upon the general unison. The Maharajah of Jeypore spared no expense to do honour to the chief guests of the evening. After leisurely drawing his white kid gloves over his dusky hands,—imagine a stately Hindoo rajah in gloves of Parisian make!—his Highness stood up for a quadrille with Lady Mayo, with whose help he got through all the figures very successfully. He seems to have bestowed "the most profound attention" upon his novel duties, but to have been rather puzzled as to the propriety of taking the ladies' hands during the performance. The Gaikwar of Baroda has also dared the same departure from native usage. Many years ago we remember hearing another Rajah avow his readiness to join in the dances of Western civilisation if somebody else would set the bold example. Now that two chiefs of note have broken the ice in this matter, we shall expect to hear that the Rajah of Pattialah is taking lessons in the waltz. He too, it seems, is going to have a ball in honour of the Viceroy.

As for the Gaikwar, he not only danced quadrilles and a set of Lancers, but went in for the Polka and the Varsoviene. This emulation of the West in respect of the lighter social refinements is pleasing to contemplate, but we hope that his Highness's progress westward will not end here. There are a few other things of greater importance in which, if all reports be true, he might take a lesson from his English models. A little more of Western kindliness and equity in his dealings with his brother and his subjects would compensate for any backwardness in his devotions to Terpsichore.

BEFORE leaving Simlah the Maharajah of Jeypore accepted Lord Mayo's offer of a seat in his Legislative Council, in acknowledgment of his liberal behaviour during the late famine, and of his enlightened efforts to advance the well-being of his subjects. He has done much for their education; he has laid out much money on roads and irrigation works, supervised by English engineers, and his jail at Jeypore is a marvel of good management. Ram Singh is one of the leading princes of Rajpootana, remarkable for his good qualities of head and heart, and fortunate in the training he received from his tutor, Sheodeen Singh, who afterwards became his prime minister. Since that gentleman's death in 1864, Ram Singh has been his own Vizier, with a council to aid him. A part of the countenance now bestowed on him may be due to the fact of his having granted to Government a perpetual lease of his moiety of the Sambur Salt Lake. If the Jodhpore Rajah will only follow his example a death-blow will probably be inflicted on salt-smuggling in those regions.

ACCORDING to the Englishman's Kabul correspondent, it is again reported and generally believed that Shahnawaz Khan is master of Herat, whither the ex-Ameer and his nephew have also found their way. Ibrahim Khan, the normal Governor, was a fugitive on the road to Kabul. Abdurrahman Khan is said to have started from Herat with a few thousand troops for an attack on Candahar. If so, it is likely that Daood Khan, the Ameer's general, would forestal him with a timely reinforcement of six regiments, besides a force of cavalry under Fattah Mohammed Khan. Azim Khan is supposed to be tampering with the Belooch chiefs of Candahar. Sirdar Ismael Khan, whose intrigues Shere Ali thwarted betimes by sending him off under a guard from Kabul to the British frontier, got away from his escort and was last heard of on his way to Swat. There may yet be trouble in store for the Ameer, but thus far he has spoiled his enemies' plans. Turkistan is restless, owing perhaps to the advance of the Ameer of Bokhara in pursuit of his rebellious son, who is said to have found asylum with the Governor of Afghan Turkistan. Alarmists will probably trace the finger of Russia in this move of the Bokharese Ameer. Meanwhile, Shere Ali is said to be strengthening his relations with the Khushbeghi, who, having cemented his conquests from Chinese Tartary, wants to exchange envoys with the Ruler of Kabul.

FROM many parts of India come distressing accounts of the spread of cholera. It has not yet ceased from troubling Allahabad; it is raging in Bhopal, Umritsur, Lucknow, Assam, Akyab, Mairwarra; and is beginning to be heard of at Subathoo, Dinapore, and several other stations. Fever has broken out again in Hooghly and Burdwan, and sickness in other forms seems to be very rife. At Bangalore more than one successful instance of the new remedy for cholera—ammonia injected into the veins—has been recorded. One man, said to have already collapsed, was restored to life by this process. It is curious to think how vainly medical science still gropes about for light on this question. There seem to be two opinions even on the wisdom of moving a tainted regiment into cholera camps.

THE weather reports are generally encouraging. Rain had fallen just in time to save the crops in the Central Provinces. Later still we are told that "bountiful rain" had visited the cotton crops of Berar and Hingunghat. Khandeish has been watered with genial showers. On the 12th August at Mhow nearly three inches fell in as many hours. Opium prospects are less bright, it appears, than those of cotton. Indigo is said to be in a very poor way this year. The Tirhoot crop will be less than half of last year's, that of Bengal not much better. This failure, reckoned at a quarter of a million, will not be counterbalanced by a slight increase in the inferior kinds of indigo raised in Benares and the North-West Provinces. On the other hand, we are glad to hear good reports of the tea-gardens in Cachar.

ACCORDING to one of the Madras papers the Chemical Examiner at Madras found arsenic in the stomach of the lady whose body was disinterred at Secunderabad. The inquiry into the cause of her death was therefore renewed, with what result we have yet to hear. A local Nilgherry paper asserts that Captain Boardman, the supposed culprit, has been acquitted of all share in the alleged crime; but the statement has not been confirmed.

THERE is no accounting for certain tastes, except perhaps by the rule of contrary. Some English ladies go to a good deal of trouble and expense to make their fair white skins look brown, or to turn the natural darkness of their looks to gold. Waists of comely proportion are reduced by tight stays to an unnatural smallness. Well-shapen feet are distorted by tight ill-made boots, and so on. A similar mania for being other than themselves no doubt possesses the natives of most other climes. Young India affects the fashions of Europe in dress, food, and language. But we never before heard of an educated Bengallee sighing for the possession of a white skin. Yet such, according to a Calcutta paper, is become the darling wish of at least one respectable Baboo in the City of Palaces. This was the letter sent by such a person to a well-known chemist in the city:—

"Dear Sirs,—I beg to know that is there any such a medicine in your shop that can make the whole body white, and is unequalled over the whole world, and also you will kindly let me know its price as soon as possible."

Science has worked wonders and so has education, but we fear that no amount of chemical knowledge will avail to wash a blackamoor white, any more than education can ever wholly or permanently change the inner man. Perhaps a little more of the latter medicine will teach the Baboo to be satisfied with his natural complexion, instead of seeking for impossibilities.

THE Indian Army has sustained a tangible loss in the death of Colonel A. Robertson, a Madras infantry officer of 1833, whose turn for engineering afterwards led to his employment on various public works in the Bengal Presidency. As Superintending Engineer of the Lahore and Peshawar Road, his efficiency has been proved by the results accomplished in the management and the steady progress of that great work, and to him will belong the chief credit of having planned and brought within reach of early completion the marvellous tunnel under the Indus at Attock.

A "GENERAL OFFICER," writing to the Times, wishes to follow up our present policy in Afghanistan with similar movements in the direction of Beloochistan, which "covers the whole left front of India" from Kurrachee to Dera Ghazee Khan, commands the Bolan Pass, the high road to Candahar, and protects the left flank of our friend Shere Ali. A commanding influence in the country nominally ruled by the Khan of Khelat—is he even the nominal ruler of Beloochistan?—would further benefit our trade, and counteract any evil designs of Persia, whether against the Afghans or the Beloochies. We had always thought that, thanks to General Jacob and Sir H. Green, some influence of this very kind was already wielded by us in that direction. If more be needed, there should be no difficulty in making the proper impression on a collection of tribes remarkable, we believe, for docile obedience to their chiefs. We have only to keep these in good humour, and those will give us no trouble.

At last it seems that public outcry has forced the military authorities to abolish one if not two glaring absurdities. After several good men have fallen victims to the practice of leaving ball-cartridges at all times in the soldier's pouch, it has finally been resolved that in future all service ammunition, when not required for practice, for guard duty, or for special emergencies, shall be stowed away in the regimental magazines. In no case is it to be left in the men's pouches after the particular occasion for its use has passed by. We may thank his Royal Highness for this tardy concession to common sense. All that is needed is to keep the ammunition within easy reach of those who from time to time are required to use it. The fear hinted by a contemporary, that it might not be ready to hand in the event of a mob's attacking the barracks would have no sort of foundation if each company kept charge of its own ammunition.

THE rumour of an innovation yet more wonderful has reached the Pall Mall Gazette. We fear however that our contemporary is a little too sanguine. The Horse Guards must have breathing time between one great effort and the next; especially when the next, as reported, involves the abolition of compulsory shaving. It is a serious question, that of beards, and pipeclay still lives. It must surely have been hard hit however, if there be any truth in the rumour that soldiers shall henceforth be allowed to wear beards like any other Christians. Martinets have always declared that hair on the face or even on the head was fatal to cleanliness and martial uniformity, as if beards were necessarily unclean, and any two soldiers were exactly alike in height, figure, or features. What will they say to this alleged proclamation of war against the razor? It is dreadful to think that soldiers in time of peace should be free to wear the beards which necessity tolerates in time of war. Let not the martinets despair however. They may yet succeed in enforcing their cherished uniformity by means of bearded instead of shaven chins.

THE Albert policy-holders have utterly rejected the scheme of reconstruction put forward by the provisional liquidator. So unanimous was their action at the recent meetings that Mr. Price and his supporters at once shelved their original project, and proposed to treat with some well-established company for the transaction of the business hitherto done by the Albert. Mr. Kirby has applied to the Vice-Chancellor for leave to retire from the direction of the defunct concern. The policy-holders have started a central committee, with which the local committees will act in concert, utterly ignoring the present directors, and asserting the rights of their constituents against the shareholders of all the companies amalgamated by the Albert.

MR. SHERIDAN's parliamentary constituents seem to look unkindly on their member's dealings with the Albert Company. They cannot reconcile the £40,000 he is said to have made out of that connection with their own ideas of propriety. Some of them are for eliminating him at once without any inquiry. Others are willing to hear him first, and a third party would postpone all inquiry to a more favourable season. It appears that Mr. Sheridan has expressed his willingness to defend himself before a public meeting. We shall be curious to hear what he has to say.

COMMENTING on Captain T. Lewin's very amusing report on the Hill Tribes of Chittagong, the Englishman expresses a hope that it will be reproduced in this country for general reading. It is not unlikely, we believe, that the wish will soon be gratified, under the auspices of Messrs. W. H. Allen and Co.

INDIA IN 1867-8.—II.

THE official report on India's moral and material progress contains so many plums worth extracting, that we may well be excused for helping ourselves to a few more of the good things thus placed within our reach.

The unequal and frequently excessive incidence of the salt duties has long been a subject of fair-seeming reproach against the Indian Government, and popular rumour continually accredits that Government with some scheme for equalising the common burden. From another document it seems that the Indian Government did last year propose to carry out such a scheme; but in what way? By raising the duties in Bombay and Madras, although it appears that 60,000,000 consumers of salt at the lower rates of duty consume nearly twice as many maunds a year as 70,000,000 do in Upper India under the higher rates. It is also reckoned that out of the 13½ million maunds yearly manufactured, at least a million somehow escape all duty. Everyone knows that low rates of duty tend to kill smuggling, and the natural inference in this case is that the rates on the Bengal side ought to be lowered to the Bombay level. With good reason therefore has the present Secretary of State declined to sanction the converse scheme sent home for his opinion, and suggested that a lower rate of duty in Bengal would at once ensure a larger revenue and a smaller amount of smuggling and illicit manufacture. In the Report however it is the manufacture, more than the duty, which passes under review. A sudden rise in the price of salt in Cuttack caused the Government to consider several schemes for a revision of the processes of making and distributing the salt. All that the Government did was to sanction an increase to the preventive force in Balasore and Cuttack, to re-establish the pass stations of Howrah and Sealdah, and to recommend a revised system of issuing licences. All such measures are at best but uncertain and costly means of checking an acknowledged evil. The whole yield netted on the salt-tax in 1867-8 was only two millions and a-half, or about £140,000 less than the year before. If that revenue cannot be altogether spared, why not exact a uniform duty of one or one rupee and a-half per maund?

The number of emigrants despatched from India to the colonies in 1867-8 was 5,154, or about half the number shipped off in the previous year. Jamaica and St. Vincent took not a man between them. Mauritius in its then state of depression received only 313, while 3,001 went off to British Guiana, which would have taken more yet if it could have got them. Trinidad absorbed 1,870. Of returned emigrants, 1,797 came from Mauritius, 322 from Réunion, and 397 from British Guiana. The savings brought home by these last amounted to £10,654, or an average of more than £31 to each of the 371 depositors, not to speak of remittances made through local banks and the cash and jewels each carried about him.

To Assam, Cachar, and Sylhet the number of emigrants decreased by 3,554. The tea districts of Assam received from the Calcutta depots 2,902; Cachar, 5,929; and Sylhet, 102. Of the whole number only 26 absconded. The percentage of females was 110·84 for Sylhet, but 78·7 elsewhere. Of the 57,651 coolies in the tea districts in 1867, as many as 3,928 died during the year, 2,014 deserted, 12,365 were released from engagements or transferred elsewhere. As a check on so high a death-rate in the future, the medical inspectors have now been empowered to reject all applicants who may seem really unfitted for the climate and the peculiar work of the tea plantations. In spite of all drawbacks tea culture was still "a very important branch of industry in Assam." If some of the factories were closed, no garden worth cultivating has been given up; none indeed but new ones formed for speculative purposes. The three sales of waste land which took place during the year brought in a reasonable price, although 271,134 acres of waste land previously sold were given up by the purchasers. The tea-gardens of Cachar, as actually cultivated, comprised about 25,000 acres, which yielded an outturn of about 3,163,310 lbs. of tea. In Sylhet 173,000 lbs. of tea were gathered from an area of 2,458 acres. At Dacca two experimental gardens in the hands of natives were expected to produce good tea. The twenty estates in Goalpara, of which two only are managed by Europeans, produced 5,170 lbs. of tea on the same acreage which the year before had yielded 4,914 lbs. In all the tea districts, including Chittagong, there was increased production often without any increase of cultivation; so that Calcutta exported 8,789,344 lbs. of tea in the year, or 1,634,112 lbs. more than the year before. Labour is still the great want, and if the Coolie Labour Act, now being passed through the Bengal Legislature should avail, as the planters hope, to remedy that want, the Indian tea trade will some day rival the production of Indian cotton.

Mr. Bright has just been telling us that Lancashire wants nothing but a sufficient supply of raw cotton. In the production of this important staple India bids fair to distance all rivals, if nothing untoward should occur to check the growth of her present trade. Unfavourable seasons will sometimes leave their mark. In 1867-8 excessive rains followed by heavy floods played havoc with the cotton crops in the Central Provinces, whence less than half the outturn of the previous year was exported. Thanks however to an improved process of packing and to the better management on the Great Indian Peninsular, what cotton did leave the province was forwarded in good condition without delay. The exports from Bombay amounted to 1,224,050 bales, or 284,371 more than in 1866-7. Under the working of the Cotton Frauds Act, the cotton now sent to market is "infinitely cleaner and purer than it was four years ago;" and the produce of Candeish gained the first prize for quality at the late Akola Exhibition in Berar. This year the whole of that district was sown with Hinganghat seed. In Berar the cotton prepared for export increased from 42,510 bales in 1866-7 to 187,599 bales in the following year. Experiments made with various seeds resulted in favour of the Berar seed, which was found to yield 100 lbs. an acre, while the yield from New Orleans seed was 94 lbs. The Hinganghat seed answered only in certain districts. It has been widely sown however by way of experiment in twenty-four districts of Lower Bengal. During the year a great many new steam-gins were set at work in Ahmedabad, Broach, and Surat. Four new steam-presses were started in Bombay, and about forty hand-presses in Surat and Broach.

The prevalence of a different kind of traffic between India and Nepal was brought this year under the notice of the Indian Government. It was found that a great many British subjects of both sexes had been sold as slaves to the Nepalese, and that much of this odious traffic was owing to the scarcity that prevailed in Tirhoot and Chumparun. The sale of children by starving parents forms no uncommon feature in the history of Indian famines, but the authorities in this case were powerless to prevent a traffic carried on outside the British pale. Appeals, however, were made to Jung Bahadoor, who sent back as many of the slaves as could be discovered. Some of these, especially the girls, demurred to the severance of their new ties, and were allowed to revisit or remain in the land of their adoption. Further steps have been taken to put down the traffic with the concurrence of the Nepalese Government.

The public dispensaries have everywhere been doing increased work. Four new ones were established in Bengal, several in Oudh, thirteen in the Punjab, eight in Madras; while those in the Central Provinces have in six years increased from ten to sixty-six. In the maintenance of these private charity is largely supplementing the State subscriptions. Vaccination is also steadily gaining ground, just as opinion in England is beginning to waver, on grounds more or less specious, as to its real efficacy. In India however the scepticism is mainly limited to those who have never yet tried Dr. Jenner's substitute for inoculation. The returns from the various provinces show a steady increase in the number of persons vaccinated, and a large percentage, about 80 per cent., of successful cases. More than 198,000 people were vaccinated in Bengal alone. The Government is busily striving, by means of popular treatises and official perambulations from village to village, to win the native mind from its fond adherence to the faith of Lady Mary Montagu.

The cultivation of Cinchona, that blest specific for a fever-ridden people, is thriving apace. In Darjeeling the number of plants propagated during the year far exceeded that of any former year. The Government plantations now contain 1,558,878 plants, cuttings, and seedlings. Six hundred thousand more are said to be distributed among private growers. Madras shows a total of 2,353,370 plants, an increase of about 400,000 on the previous year. In Mysore the cultivation "continues to thrive."

We are sorry to see that the cattle plague, which lately formed so alarming an addition to the risks of English stock-owners, has taken up its abode in British Burmah. Something similar, at any rate, to the Russian rinderpest carried off 50,000 head of cattle in Akyab alone, causing not only serious loss of property, but sad hindrance to farming progress in a land where the work is all done by oxen. There is reason to fear that this scourge is just as endemic in Burmah as fever in Hooghly. In 1864 a medical officer was deputed to inquire into the nature of the disease, but failed to discover any means of cure. It is easy to talk of separating healthy from diseased cattle, but not so easy to apply the theory in "a country where for many square miles together, petty landowners cultivate holdings of a few acres in close neighbourhood."

Notices of Books.

Handbook of Military Arithmetic. By T. Anderson. (Gleig's School Series.) London: Longmans. 1869.

Another manual of arithmetic. The one before us, however, seems to be a novelty in its way, the production of which may be justified by the extent to which it fulfils its ostensible purpose. It is essentially a book for soldiers, written throughout with special reference to military needs and usages. There is at any rate a practical look about a question like this: "If 15 field-battery horses consume 1,050 lbs. of oats in 7 days, how many horses will 150 lbs. of oats ration for 5 days?" If such a process helps to make a rule-of-three problem easier to average minds, Mr. Anderson's little book deserves all praise. Besides the ordinary rules of arithmetic, it contains a number of rules and exercises bearing on "musketry instruction," which doubtless enhance its practical value for the barracks.

The World we Live In; or, First Lessons in Physical Geography. The Earth's History; or, First Lessons in Geology. By D. T. Ansted, M.A.F.R.S., &c. London: W. H. Allen and Co. 1869.

Professor Ansted has the knack of writing in good homely English things "easy to be understood" of homely folk. These two little volumes make up between them as handy and complete a text-book of geological grammar as the young student need desire. "The World we Live In" gives in a condensed yet thoroughly readable form the pith of the Professor's larger work on Physical Geography, while "The Earth's History" is an equally successful attempt to describe the changes that have continually been taking place in the "rocks" which everywhere encrust our earth. To clearness of exposition—as exemplified for instance in the description of a glacier—the author adds a becoming freedom from rash dogmatism on points too often fiercely contested by rival schools of geologists. Like Socrates and Newton, he knows enough of his subject to feel, and is honest enough to confess, how short a way that knowledge can lead him. One or two slips in his ethnology have somewhat surprised us. What authority is there, worth naming, for tracing the old Egyptians, Copts, Assyrians, and even Jews and Arabs, to a negro stock? Such a jumbling of three distinct types must surely be accredited to a pre-scientific age. And how does he make out that the English race is a mixture of Teutonic, Slavonic, and Celtic elements? Its connection with the second of these we must take leave to deny. But flaws of this kind are apparently few, and detract very little indeed from the intrinsic value of the Professor's work.

INDIAN ROADS.

The Pioneer asks whether, in our eagerness to extend our railway and irrigation projects, we are not in some danger of losing sight of the very important fact that unless these are accompanied by a comprehensive system of main and branch roads we cannot hope for much increased security either from famine or from political difficulties. The present policy of the Government of India is to devote a small percentage of revenue to making roads, and it is perhaps near the truth to say that less than a quarter of a million sterling is all that is spent annually over the whole of India for this purpose. Taking 10,000 rupees as the average cost per mile of all classes of roads in various parts of the country, this sum would give us, say, 250 miles of main and branch roads per year, and on the assumption—a safe one—that for every 100 miles of railway or canal we require another 100 miles of road feeders, the above rate of progress would scarcely give India a decent road system by the end of the present century. The cross-country track has, no doubt, served India for centuries after a fashion, but in an age of railways, telegraphs, and canals, it is an anachronism. Neither railways nor canals can be worked to their full capabilities if they are fed by roads that are closed for five or six months in the year. It is presumed that there is no one so insane as to urge that made roads are less necessary in India than in other countries, even disregarding their character as feeders of railways. Roads, even when not directly, are indirectly largely reproductive to a State. This, though difficult to prove in figures, is recognised all the world over. How is it then that India, with its magnificent credit and unbounded future, is allowed to lag behind in this respect? The difficulty is of course money; but this difficulty may at once vanish if roads can only be looked upon as works no less urgently requisite for the country than railways and canals. Instead of charging the present generation with the construction of our roads at a snail's pace, raise the money by a funded loan, and let India have her roads at once, and pay a yearly tax for the use of them. If India could be polled to-morrow on this, there would be no doubt as to the answer. Three millions sterling would give this country the nucleus of a splendid road system, and this could be done without extra establishment in three years. It is within the mark to say that the present staff of P.W. engineers could spend say ten times the amount on roads they are now allowed. As it is now, establishments are kept up on work road to expend some trifling allotment in twelve months, which they could easily dispose of, if necessary, in one month; and the money is frittered away year after year by different officers, who, never hoping to see their work completed, cannot be expected to take a real interest in the work, or display the energy that would be shown, as a matter of course, if they could be allowed to see some definite result from their labour.

THE DEBATE ON CENTRAL ASIAN AFFAIRS.

In the opinion of the Times of India the debate on Central Asian affairs was satisfactory, both on account of the unanimity of the opinions which it called forth from the speakers on both sides of the House, and the distinctness with which the present situation was defined by the Under-Secretary of State. There was nothing particularly novel in his speech, hardly anything that has not been repeatedly urged upon the public mind, in our own columns and elsewhere, both as regards facts and the inferences to be derived from those facts. Yet it would not be attributing to it due praise if we did not allow that, considering the peculiar difficulty of the subject as regards the audience, it was a clever exposition of a definite policy in connection with Indian foreign affairs. As an official statement, its importance can hardly be over estimated, while it cannot fail to produce a happy effect both here and in England in dissipating, for a time at least, all those ideas of a new and aggressive policy which some have manufactured for themselves out of the flimsy material presented by recent events. It will remove, on the other hand, the not unreasonable fear that in the course of time, in the midst of our constant changes, we shall light upon a Secretary of State who should in some way yield to the unreasoning clamour which has for the last two years especially been raised by the Serampore journal and some of its echoes. At the same time we must protest against the line of demarcation drawn by the Times, in its leading article on the subject, between the two schools of policy which divide between them the support of all who give a thought to the question in the two countries. The writer, arguing, it would seem, from the correspondence furnished to the columns of his paper from Calcutta, would have it that all the wisdom and calm sense which has guided matters into their present channel is to be found in the British Isles, and that Indian opinion all sets in a contrary direction. How opposed to fact is this broad distinction it is needless for us to state. We could point out not a few writers and speakers in England who have shown most alarming symptoms of Russophobia, while it would not be too much to say that more than two-thirds of the Indian press have consistently supported the Central Asian policy of Sir John Lawrence. The danger of attaching too much weight to the communications of a "Special Correspondent," stationed in a remote locality, and that Calcutta, with strong local and traditional prejudices, and therefore a limited insight into matters of Imperial interest, was never, perhaps, better exemplified than in this instance. Had the Times writer taken the least trouble to ascertain and assess the opinions of the journalists of India generally, he would not have fallen into a mistake, about as absurd as if one were to judge of the tone of political thought in France by the utterances of the Moniteur, or to attribute to the whole population of the United States the fierce hostility to England which is breathed forth by certain Irish organs of the New York press.

THE ABYSSINIAN WAR EXPENSES.

The Bombay Gazette pities poor Sir Seymour Fitzgerald. At one moment he is blamed for having been the cause of the insufficiency of the transport arrangements, at another he is taken to task for their having been excessive. His Excellency is attacked for being the cause of the elephants, the camels, and the mules having been sent to Abyssinia, whilst at the same time an assertion is made that Sir Robert Napier was all along prepared to take his chance with and trust to the carts of the country as the means of transport for his force! Now, we have all along understood that however the Governor and the Commander-in-Chief may have differed as to the original organisation of the transport, yet as regarded the description of animals, and the number to be employed, Sir S. Fitzgerald merely directed that such as were in the opinion of Sir Robert Napier necessary should at once be collected. The question too occurs to us, that if the elephants, the camels, the mules, and the fleets were to be dispensed with, how in the name of fortune was the force to be landed in Abyssinia, and how was the march on Magdala to be made! To say that the elephants were an incumbrance and ate their heads off is to say what is not true, as the animals in question were of incalculable use in carrying artillery and materials to the front. As regards the suggestion that a commission should be sent to Bombay, we cordially endorse it—if the committee will pay the piper. On questions of local policy we have frequently had occasion to differ with Sir Seymour Fitzgerald, but we have never made any secret of our opinions that the Government of Bombay, and in particular Sir S. Fitzgerald, had never had justice done them for their exertions in preparing for the expedition, and we take the liberty to remark, that if a commission were to come to Bombay, they would probably find that the supervision here as regarded the expenditure incurred by the Abyssinian preparations was quite as stringent, if not a great deal more so, than that exercised at the same time in London, Egypt, or Calcutta. It is in fact notorious, that at the latter place, in spite of remonstrances from Bombay, the rates paid for shipping taken up for the purposes of the expedition were ridiculous, if not outrageous, judging them by the Bombay standard of rates.

AN AFGHAN "COUP D'ETAT."

The Englishman remarks that the Ameer Shere Ali Khan has successfully carried out a coup d'etat, and stifled an incipient revolt in the bud. The most trustworthy account of the matter would seem to be that the Ameer, having proof that his nephew, Sirdar Ismael Khan, meditated a revolt, suddenly surrounded the chief's house and arrested him together with two of his brothers, and almost before they were aware of the blow that had fallen on them they were on their way, with an escort of three hundred horsemen, to Peshawur. On the road Sirdar Ismael Khan managed to escape. He has taken refuge in the difficult mountain country overlooking the Khorum valley. From the recesses of the Sufeid Koh he will endeavour to make his way either westerly to Meshed across the Hazara country, or northwards to Badukshan and Balkh, where it is said that his cousin, Sirdar Ishauk Khan, has again appeared in arms in the interests of Azim Khan. Ismael Khan has been for a long time disaffected. He has seen himself subordinated to the Ameer's son, Yakoob Khan, between whom and himself there early appeared feelings of rivalry and dislike. The determination of the Ameer to recall the jaghires of his chiefs, and so consolidate the whole military strength of the kingdom in his own hands, pressed with great severity on Sirdar Ismael Khan, who occupied a sort of independent position, a position so important as to make his alliance indispensable to the ruling Ameer. The father of Sirdar Ismael Khan was Amen Khan, Governor of Candahar, the chief who commenced the civil war, and who fell at the battle of Kujhbaz, after he had slain in personal combat Shere Ali's favourite son, Mahomed Ali. At the next great battle, that of Shekoabad, the individual valour and conduct of Shere Ali was fast turning the scale in his favour when the whole of his Candahari levies went over in a body to the side of the enemy. From this time Ismael Khan has been at the head of a separate division of the rebel army, a division composed almost exclusively of Candahari troops, and formidable by its numbers, experience, and training. When Sirdar Abdool Rahman Khan was repulsed before Maimanah, and it was clear that Shere Ali was stronger than his enemies, Ismael Khan drew off from Azim Khan's army with his division, and after holding a neutral position between the two forces for some time, finally he offered his services to Shere Ali. The Ameer refused to admit him within his lines, fearing to trust himself again to the fidelity of the Candahari troops and their leaders. But, though he thus temporised, he suggested to Ismael Khan that Cabul was poorly garrisoned, and that he might prove his faith to the cause of the Ameer by an independent enterprise. The Sirdar seized the suggestion and marched at once on Cabul, which he captured after some sharp fighting with the garrison of the Bala Hissar. For this great service he has demanded greater reward. He has asked for a semi-independent position, and he has absolutely refused to be separated from his troops. His position became, therefore, one of serious menace to the Ameer. He has now been charged with planning a revolt and seized. He would have been deported but for his escape. His popularity is great, and his military talents considerable. His escape is therefore a misfortune for the Ameer, and his recapture a matter of moment. That the Ameer should have been in a position to thus overthrow, so suddenly, so formidable a chief proves how largely, even at this early period of his reforms, the army has become a royal force, as distinguished from a feudal levy.

AFGHANISTAN.—Alluding to a report that the Ameer Shere Ali had been shot at and wounded in Cabul by some accomplice of Sirdar Ismael Khan's, the Bombay Times says that as there would have been nothing very extraordinary in the circumstance, had it been true, the rumour met with some credence; but it is now known to have owed its origin entirely to a writer of Cabul news at Peshawur, who, being a Suddozye, entertains only feelings of bitter enmity towards Shere Ali, who is a Barukzye. The latest authentic intelligence represents the Ameer as in his usual health and sound in mind and body. Nothing further of a reliable nature has been heard of the disaffected Ismael Khan, but it is believed he has sought consolation and shelter with that interesting but mysterious potentate, the Akhoond of Swat. Towards the Khans implicated with Sirdar Ismael Khan the Ameer is pursuing a policy of clemency. Several who had been arrested and thrown into prison have been released on bail. As another specimen of the extraordinary items of intelligence manufactured by a certain class of news-writers in Bokhara, Cabul, and Peshawur, it may be mentioned that they are now giving out that the Emperor of Russia, greatly disquieted by the reception accorded to the Ameer of Afghanistan at Umballa, has resolved to checkmate "the designs of England in the East," by having the Shah of Bokhara feted at St. Petersburg! "It is the pleasure of the Russian Emperor that the Shah of Bokhara should be called to St. Petersburg and shown the same honours that were shown to the Cabul Ameer, lately called to Hindostan by the Viceroy of India, and that certain stipulations as regards future arrangements between the Government of his Majesty and the Czar may be there entered into. Bokhara letters assure us that the Russians are now sincerely desirous to take the King under their shelter, the more so since they have heard accounts of the mighty reception given to the Cabul Ameer by the English." It is again rumoured that Herat has fallen before Sirdar Shahnawaz Khan, and that Sirdar Ibrahim Khan, son of the Ameer Shere Ali Khan, has fled towards Cabul. Sirdars Azim Khan and Abdool Rahman Khan are said to have proceeded to Candahar. These rumours, however, require confirmation.

Bengal.

GRAND BALL BY THE MAHARAJAH OF JEYPORE TO THE VICEROY OF INDIA.

The ball given by the Maharajah of Jeypore to their Excellencies the Viceroy and Lady Mayo came off on the 6th ultimo, and was a very brilliant and successful affair. All Simla was present, yet, owing to the large extent of dancing space secured by the excellent arrangements of the managing committee, there was no perceptible crushing. The Assembly Rooms were most tastefully decorated for the occasion. There were two large dancing saloons and a well-mirrored and otherwise richly furnished drawing-room. The walls of the saloons were draped in fluted folds of white muslin, terminating at the top and bottom in light blue, so as to represent a cornice and entablature of that colour. Over this background fell deep lace-edged festoons of a white gauzy material, streaked with amber ribbon and studded with silver rosettes. The stage was turned into a dais for the Viceregal party, and, what with large mirrors, lounges, and rich carpeting, was in itself a gorgeous apartment. The supper-room (which had been run up for the occasion) was draped with pink and white. There was space for covers for some hundreds, and what with rich plate and crystal, fragrant flowers and rare ferns, and costly wines, viands, and confections, it truly presented a sight to set before a king. The band of H.M.'s 41st Foot, as also that of the Viceroy, were in attendance. Both played the National Anthem on the arrival of their Excellencies, but the dance music was by the 41st band, who did it well—that is, with less brass than usual.

At half-past nine the ball was to open, but before nine had struck there came a terrible downpour of rain, accompanied by storm-like blasts of wind, which lasted with more or less violence for upwards of an hour. Despite this extinguishing weather however, the hundreds of mussaulchees employed contrived, with astonishing success, to keep, not merely alight, but blazing, the thousands of iron braziers (stuck aloft and kept well supplied with oil wood), which, at quarter gas-lamp interval, brilliantly illuminated the two miles of road between Viceregal Peterhoff and the Assembly-rooms. Shortly after ten Lord and Lady Mayo and a strong personal staff arrived, and were received with Royal honours by the Ghoorka Guard of Honour, the Viceregal and Forty-first bands, his Highness the Maharajah and suite, the Political Agent, Jeypore, and the committee of management, receiving their Excellencies at the outer entrance. His Highness led the Viceroy to the throne chair on the dais, but his lordship remained standing for some minutes, apparently to view to greater advantage the brilliant scene before him. And truly brilliant that scene was! The room was full and ablaze with wax-light, the chaste hues of the draperies making the rich and varied uniforms show to the very utmost advantage. There were not a dozen black coats to be seen, yet there were fully two hundred males present. Almost every uniform known in British India had a bedecked wearer present. The Viceroy wore the full dress of a lord lieutenant of a county; the members of Council, secretaries, and political agents, official uniforms of blue and gold. His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, who, with Lady Mansfield, had arrived some time before the Viceregal party, was in full military costume, with broad blue ribbon, star and medals. There were a number of major-generals present in (even to sword and spurs) the full dress of their rank. Then there were staff corps men by scores, Highlanders in kilts, Hussars of the 11th and 21st, horse and foot artillery men, and cavalry and infantry officers of almost every corps, and assuredly of every grade. The gold and scarlet, and gold and blue, and black and silver, actually made the ladies look as if but sombrely attired; and yet tiaras, necklets, bracelets, &c., of rich jewels flashed on more than one fair form. The tout ensemble was pronounced to be as imposing as anything of the kind Simla had ever previously seen.

The ball opened with quadrilles. In the leading double quadrille the Maharajah had the honour of having the Countess of Mayo for partner; in fact it had been arranged that his Highness should open the ball with her ladyship, and for fully a week previously he had been under Terpsichorean instruction. Contrary to the expectations of nearly all present, his Highness acquitted himself remarkably well—with great composure and such tolerable knowledge of the figures, that the very worst that could be said of his performance would be that it was stiff. His Highness, however, took a long time to put on his white kids, a feat which he executed without the slightest hurry, though, at the moment, the observed of all observers, for the other "sets" had voluntarily broken up, and, with the whole company, ladies and all, had grouped themselves round the leading set, to see how his Highness would get through his first quadrille. At first there was a slight inclination to titter, but it soon passed away, for there was really nothing to laugh at, and when the quadrille had concluded the universal verdict was "that Jeypore had done remarkably well." The bearing of the Countess of Mayo was very kind and encouraging, and such as to make the native prince feel that the great honour vouchsafed him was not grudgingly accorded. Her ladyship once or twice, with a good humoured smile, prevented the Maharajah from making a dancing blunder, and the whole five figures of the quadrille (a simple one) were got through without a single mistake. His Highness "walked" through the figures slowly, but with the most profound attention to the novel and arduous task he had to get through. He is about thirty-four years of age, low-statured, and sickly-looking. He speaks English, but after the manner of one who has tried to acquire it in adult years, and not been very successful. His first quadrille is, however, a matter of great prospective social importance, as regards the native population. The Maharajah of Puttiala, who is coming up to outdo Jeypore with a ball of his own—and of whom more anon—will probably have to undergo a similar ordeal.

General dancing was kept up with great spirit until about half-past twelve, when the "Roast Beef of Old England" summoned the company to supper. The repast was served in the best style, and evidently no expense had been spared. The ornamentation was in excellent taste; the wines and viands good.

After supper Lord and Lady Mayo retired with the same honours as on their arrival, the Maharajah escorting their Excellencies to the outer threshold—an attention his Highness further paid to several of the early-going ladies, all of whom, with a shake of the hands, very cordially assured him that his ball had been a most successful one. Those who do not go home until morning, or rather until daylight does appear, kept up the dancing until half-past four, the Maharajah staying to see the last man off.

The cost of the ball must have been very heavy, and when all bills have been audited will probably be found to exceed Rs. 20,000. Lord and Lady Mayo have expressed themselves highly pleased with the manner of their entertainment.

The Rajah of Puttiala, it is said, is furious, and swears he will spend half a lakh of rupees to outdo Jeypore—a Rajpoot from an out-of-the-way corner of India, who has had the impertinence to entertain the Viceroy within his (Puttiala's) own territorial bounds! Then Rewah, who is coming, will endeavour to outshine both.

STATION TALK.

DELHI, Aug. 9.—Our Commissioner, Colonel McNeile, returned on the 4th and resumed charge of his office from Mr. J. Oliver, who has been officiating for him. I am glad to say the station is healthy, and very few would care to leave it, if we could get a few more refreshing showers, but the want of rain is much felt; I mean by the residents of Delhi, not the cultivators, for whether there is heavy rain or long drought the prices of grain seldom vary.

DINAPORE, Aug. 9.—Sickness, I am sorry to say, is on the increase, both amongst Europeans and natives; diarrhoea the chief complaint with the former, cholera with the latter. As regards the lower order of natives, the only wonder is that these and similar diseases engendered by poor living, low, damp, dirty dwelling places, without an attempt at ventilation, filthy habits, and all that is loathsome and nasty, do not ravage the country with ten-fold severity. And as if living together huddled up like pigs in a sty in the dark, poisoned atmosphere of miserable hovels with beds of toadstools on the walls, and plots of rank grass on the roofs, amidst quagmires, pools of stagnant, slimy water where snakes and frogs keep house, were not enough to work the destruction of the unfortunates whose lot is cast amongst this squalor, misery, and want, the season must come to the help of the destroying angel with its melons, cucumbers, and other trash equally destitute of nourishment, that constitutes the diet of the poor at a time of the year when it is most to be avoided. Having on a former occasion commented upon the numerous bazaars and villages that crowd the station and its immediate neighbourhood, it is needless to recur again to the subject. Most of these slums are not a whit cleaner than they should, many considerably dirtier than they might be, and were it not for the presence of the Europeans in the station, it would perhaps be just as well to abstain from all attempts at hygiene and the enforcement of sanitary rules, amongst a lot of poor wretches who on an income fluctuating between three and four rupees a month, with a wife, and a family of balbaches to support, cannot be expected to have much sense for the beautiful, but let them live and die after their own fashion, and as they have done since the days of the dynasty of the Krishens, instead of bothering them with advice on the benefits of the dry earth conservancy system, and the efficiency of carbolic acid as a disinfectant agent.

UMRITER, Aug. 10.—No abatement in the cholera visitation; it is, in fact, raging with greater virulence than ever, and while we have a pure unclouded sky over us, so pure and so blue that one might imagine it was never going to rain again, a large proportion of the native dwellings in the plague-stricken town are scenes of sorrow and lamentation for the dying and the dead. Yesterday the deaths from cholera alone amounted to the enormous number of 110, and yet there is no efficient aid of a professional character afforded to our civil surgeon. He has native doctors to the number of six or eight, but we ought to have as many European medical officers besides. The Deputy Inspector-General of Hospitals at Meer says he has no one to spare. Where are Drs. Scriven, Brown, and others connected with the Medical College of Lahore, so close at hand? In an emergency like this all considerations of every other kind than care for an afflicted population should be summarily set aside, and every available man sent to the scene of desolation. Reports of the most fearful character regarding the horrid state of some parts of the town have gone up to Government, and unless the most stringent measures regarding the general conservancy of the town are adopted (and that is not likely to be the case under the present regime, for the reasons I have already stated to you), it is impossible to say what the further result may be. We want a man of intelligence, discretion, and energy in the Deputy Commissioner's place, one who will use his own judgment, and not listen to the eye-wash reports of interested parties themselves totally unfit to carry out the prompt, effective measures indisputably essential to the restoration of the town to the state of ordinary good health from which it has been so miserably raised by neglect and carelessness. You may say this is strong language, but milk-and-water writing [will not do in such times, when hundreds of our fellow-creatures are dying around us, because, mainly speaking, those who should have done their duty have so grossly neglected it.

ALLAHABAD, Aug. 11.—I have nothing of importance to communicate to you this week. There is a slight abatement in the epidemic which has carried off hundreds of natives. The change is indicated by there being more recoveries than before. Since my last four cases have been brought to my notice as having occurred in Cannington, three of which have recovered; one (a recent attack) is still suffering. I have not heard anything remarkable as regards the state of affairs in the railway barracks. I trust everything is as it should be. Ague and fever are very prevalent also. The 58th Regiment has been divided into two detachments; one, under command of Colonel Hood, has been sent away towards Cawnpore, I believe, and the other, under Captain Green, towards Jubbulpore. I am sorry to hear that the Hon. the Chief Justice of the High Court is still unwell; he attended the Court for a few days, but his medical advisers insisted on an entire rest from work. I am told he is suffering from diarrhoea. The Municipal Commissioners have asked Mr. Gilbert Hickie for full particulars regarding his invention of not only rendering filth harmless, but of turning it to good account. Government appears to look upon the invention with favour. The conservancy arrangements in the city appear to be bad; there are many complaints, even from the natives, of the dirty state of streets and bye-ways. I am told that want of money prevents the commissioners from providing a suitable number of conservancy carts; the same circumstance is in the way of their having proper drainage.—Delhi Gazette Correspondent.

HYDERABAD, DECCAN.—Our Hyderabad correspondent writes that Sir Salar Jung has it in contemplation to introduce a measure of great importance, and which cannot but prove of benefit to the country generally. He has been so struck with the working of the English system of Small Cause Courts that he is about to introduce similar tribunals in the Hyderabad territories. The new Courts will be presided over by Moonsiffs and Ameens. He will have considerable difficulty in supplying the necessary staff for the new Courts, for there are few amongst the respectable portion of the Hyderabad community who know anything of law or procedure. If, therefore, the Minister carries out his intentions, he will have to indent for officers on the Madras Presidency. A general hope is expressed that the Minister will not turn to the Bombay Government for help. The minor Civil Courts throughout the Nizam's dominions are already largely filled by Mahratta Brahmins, and any further importation of this caste would be felt as an infliction. Captain Havelock, of the Contingent Cavalry, is now stationed at Akola with two companies of infantry. The appointment of a British officer to command the sepoys is a very proper arrangement. The recent instances of insubordination amongst the sepoys show that it was not made a day too soon for the peace of the station and the maintenance of proper respect for the Civil power.—Englishman Correspondent.

Miscellaneous.

HIGH PRICE OF PROVISIONS.—A letter from Bareilly on the 10th instant informs us of the high price of provisions there. The ordinary food of the poorer classes is at famine price:—wheat seven seers to the rupee, and other grain in proportion. Distress is in consequence very great; but both work and food are being provided by the State and by the community.—Delhi Gazette, Aug. 14.

LEGISLATION.—At the meeting of the Legislative Council of India on August 11th the hon. Mr. Maine was to move that the Bill to provide against European Vagrancy be referred to a Select Committee, to report within three weeks. The Secretary of State has consented to the measure, and the deportation of European vagrants will be provided for.

A HARD CASE.—The Government of India is sometimes shamefully mean. It has just declined to exempt wound pensions from the payment of income-tax. "What," asks a contemporary, "would Lord Mayo think and say were he a poor officer, in receipt of a miserable allowance for the loss of a leg in the battle field? A little liberality to incapacitated soldiers can never do harm, while mulcting them of a portion of their pensions can yield but a very sorry sum to the State, and at the expense of disgusting men who are entitled to generous consideration."

ECCLESIASTICAL.—The Bishop of Calcutta is said to have completed his visitations to Assam, and to be now about to proceed to Sylhet, Cachar, and Shillong.

CENTRAL PROVINCES.—By letter dated at Nagpore last Wednesday we (Times of India) learn that rain had come just in time to save the crops in the Central Provinces. The genial showers had also extended to Khandeish, where agricultural prospects are at present good. In a telegram to the Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, dated the 14th, it is also stated that there has been a fine rain throughout the Berars, extending into the Wurda district, so that the Hingunghat—the premier staple of the central cotton-field—is now tolerably safe for the season. On the 12th, at Mhow, there was very heavy rain, nearly three inches in as many hours.

EDUCATIONAL CESS.—Some anxiety is felt regarding the delay of the Government of India in issuing final orders on the educational cess in Bengal. The delay is due to the fact that since the departure of Sir R. Temple the members of the Government have been overworked. As Mr. Ellis has charge of the Home Department, the papers are before him, and he is new to the whole discussion of the last ten years. He is, however, so familiar with the successful working of the cess in Bombay, and has such just views of the wrong done to the country by the comparative exemption of the Bengal zemindars from taxation, that there can be no doubt as to the conclusion to which he will come.

THE DOVETON COLLEGE.—It is said that the Rev. R. Robinson has been appointed Head Master of the Calcutta Doveton College. We wish the new head master all success in the difficult task of redeeming the character of an institution that once stood as high as it has now sunk low; but it is due to preceding head masters to observe that it is not to them that the decline of the Doveton is to be attributed. Constant and ignorant interference from outside with details of work and discipline would sap the influence of the best masters, and ruin any educational institution. Probably the best master the institution ever had warned the committee years ago of what they were fast bringing matters to. The committee could not see it then, and we question whether they would admit it even now.

MR. LATHAM AND THE EUPHRATES ROUTE.—We (Englishman) hear that Mr. G. Latham, the Arab howadji, or traveller, has joined the D.P.W. in Calcutta. Like Waghorn, Burton, and others, Mr. Latham started from Bombay alone and unaided, and at his own expense and risk, to find a new and nearer route to England via the Persian Gulf and the Valley of the Euphrates. His object was to cross Mesopotamia and Syria to Iskanderoon on the Mediterranean. At Basra he was taken prisoner by the Turkish authorities, but was afterwards permitted to proceed to Bagdad on a Turkish steamer conveying Turkish troops and Bashi Bazonks. At Bagdad an explanation as to the object of the journey had to be given to Namik Pasha. We understand Mr. Latham is still pushing his project at home.

TEA AND INDIGO.—The prospects of tea cultivation in Cachar are said to be unprecedentedly favourable this year. It is becoming a system on the estates to pluck little at first, and a larger proportion later in the season; whereby the flushes of the plant are found to be much finer and the out-turn much larger. The prospects of indigo, on the other hand, are far from bright. It is estimated that the crop in Tirhoot will this year amount to about 20,000 maunds, whereas last year it was 45,000; that in Bengal to 20,000, in place of 35,000 as last year; that of the Benares district shows a slight increase—being probably about 32,000 maunds, or 7,000 more than last year. This slight increase in the crop of the North-West is of small importance however, the more so as it consists of what is termed "low" indigo; and the price of the finer sorts cannot but be high. Drought, followed by inundation, is said to be the cause of this failure, and the loss involved is estimated at a quarter of a million sterling.

THE REVENUE.—The Government of India have now, we believe, received the accounts which show the "actuals" of the revenue and expenditure in the year ending March last, as compared with the "regular estimate." That estimate showed a deficit of £970,471, due chiefly to the payment for barracks out of revenue. We shall not be surprised if this is much more than doubled, and if the current year, which was expected to show a nominal surplus, is not also added to the long roll of deficit years, in spite of the one per cent. income-tax. There is a heavy diminution of the land revenue, owing to the liberal policy in treating the scarcity since the blunders in Orissa. To this no one can object. The opium revenue will be some £450,000 short, due to an inexcusable over-estimate of the Malwa drug. The Bengal crop of this season has, however, turned out much better than was expected, giving 47,000 chests instead of 40,000; but much of this will be counterbalanced by the fall in price from Rs. 1,330 a chest, as estimated, to Rs. 1,250, the price realised on August 12. If next year we are not to have a two per cent. income-tax, expenditure must be kept down. We regret to say that the educational grants will suffer as much as others. The Bengal Government has been cut down so much as one lakh of rupees. If the Duke of Argyll and his Council would only reduce the Home expenditure, especially on troops, Persia and China, as Lord Lawrence has advised! Lord Mayo should invite the Council to revise its clerks and store establishments, and reduce its large cash balance.—Friend of India.

CHOLERA.—Cholera is fast spreading over the face of the land. At Umritsur and a few other places it is severe, but it prevails in one type or another everywhere. At Jhansie it has entered cantonments, we regret to learn. The Reverend M. W. Hime, the Garrison Chaplain, one man and three children of the 93rd, died on Saturday, Sunday, and Monday last. One man, a woman and a child of the 93rd detachment at Sepree have also died. From Subathoo also we learn that cholera has come there. When our letters left the disease had attacked only the patients in the Hospital of H.M.'s 41st. The scourge has reached Agra also. Cantonment has hitherto been and continues to be comparatively free, but many in the city and suburbs have been carried off. There have been we believe a few cases in the Central jail, and some, we learn with much regret and concern, in the Roman Catholic institution. We continue to hope that the disease, now of a type possible to keep in check by the timely application of remedies, will not increase in virulence, and that a change in the weather may sweep it away altogether.

THE ORIGIN OF THE SOONDERBUNS.—The mystery of the origin of the Soonderbuns is not yet unveiled. Some time ago a paper by Mr. Rainey, of Khoonah, was read on this subject before the Bengal Asiatic Society. A discussion took place on it, in which the Rev. Mr. Long mentioned he had seen, in 1848, at the Bibliotheque Royal, Paris, a map, more than two centuries old, of the Soonderbun districts, in which five cities were marked down. Mr. Rainey, in consequence of this statement, wrote to Paris and procured a tracing of this map, as well as of two others, which were exhibited before the Asiatic Society at the meeting of Aug. 5. The society will probably publish the map with a descriptive account. The names of the cities are Tacuculi, Cuspathuz, Noldy, Dapara, and Tipuna. They are all about the latitude of Saugor Island, and were not far from the sea coast, but now they must be far inland, from the vast accretion of land to the Soonderbuns. Some may probably have been washed away by the shifting rivers, and others may still be in the heart of the jungle, awaiting the exploration of a party which the Government might send in the cold weather. Can any of our readers throw light on the fate of these cities?—Englishman.

THE SAMBUR SALT LAKE.—The Maharajah of Jeypore has leased in perpetuity his moiety of the Sambur Salt Lake to the Government of India. His Highness very cheerfully agrees to the arrangement, and not without reason, for he has made a good bargain from a pecuniary point of view. A considerable sum will be paid down at once, and should the maximum annual quantity of salt raised exceed a certain number of thousands of maunds, his Highness will be entitled to a royalty on the excess. The remaining portion of the lake belongs to the Maharajah of Joudhpore, who will probably similarly dispose of his right to work it. The possession of the entire lake by the Government of India will give a death blow to the extensive smuggling of Sambur salt now going on, as all raised will henceforth pay duty at the lake itself—an arrangement which will place Government in a position to reduce its salt patrol and preventive establishment. The Sambur Salt may be said to manufacture itself. The lake annually dries up, and then its site is found covered with an encrustation of efflorescent salt, so thick that the condiment can be dug out in large blocks. Probably about 80,000 tons of salt are thus raised.

ASSAM.—Very severe cholera, we learn from the Indian Daily News, has visited the various districts of Assam, and there has also been an outbreak of some severity in Shillong, which is unusual, cholera not having previously visited that district. It is to be hoped that the authorities have fully informed themselves of the matter, and collected authentic records of the date of its appearance, and the course it took. So far as is at present known, it appears to have travelled from the Purneah district, where it has been very severe, through Rungpore and Cooch Behar. We regret to learn, from the same source, that a murrain has caused fearful destruction amongst cattle in Assam. As many as seventy carcasses per day have been thrown into the river at Debrooghur. The disease is said to have attacked wild buffaloes and tigers, and, ultimately, even pigs. It appears to be of the nature of the cattle plague, so well-known in Europe, and is highly contagious. In Debrooghur it might easily have been stamped out, had the law permitted the immediate slaughter of the cattle first affected. The stench arising from the river was almost unbearable from the putrifying carcasses floating down in such numbers.

MILITARY.—Major-General Travers has obtained the Allahabad Division, in succession to Major-General Harris, deceased. Major-General Troup being at present on special duty on the Stud Committee, Brigadier-General Stannus, C.B., will command the Meerut division till his return.—Dr. Hugh Johnstone made over charge of his office, as house surgeon of the Medical College Hospital, to Dr. Mackenzie, on the 3rd ultimo, and left the Presidency to join his new appointment as Residency Surgeon at Mandalay.—Colonel Worgan, Royal Artillery, has been appointed to officiate as Inspector-General of Ordnance; and Lieutenant-Colonel Shekleton, Royal Artillery, to officiate as Deputy Inspector-General, with charge of the Poona Arsenal, during the temporary absence of Colonel Aitken.—It was stated the other day that the 58th Regiment from Allahabad had been ordered to Etawah for a change, so as, if possible, completely to shake off cholera; but the authorities at Etawah have objected to their going there while any symptom of cholera was among them, so the Commander-in-Chief has directed that the regiment be broken up into two detachments, each going about thirty-five miles out from Allahabad, apart from the other. We observe an announcement of the death of Lieutenant G. T. D. Sutton, R.A., at Agra.

THE STATE OF TONK.—We learn that the young Nawab of Tonk is to be invested with the government of that State on the 1st of January next. A political officer will however reside with him for another year. It will be remembered that the old Nawab, Mahomed Ali Khan, was removed from his position, and deported last year by the Government of India, in consequence of gross misgovernment, the crowning instance of which was complicity in the murder of his powerful feudatory, the Thakoor of Lawa. The Tonk State will of course, even after the removal of the political officer, remain under the general supervision of the Agent to the Governor-General in Rajpootana. The late ruler was the most bigoted of all the Rajpoot chiefs; none but strictly orthodox Mahomedans could hold civil or military offices under him. Tonk in this respect contrasted strangely with the other Rajpoot principalities, in all of which persons of every creed are employed. This exclusiveness would be all right enough had the Nawab no Hindoo subjects; but he has many, and to them his government must be unpopular. Colonel Eden states in his report for 1867 that there are few States, and none with such small means, so difficult to administer as the possessions of Tonk. Divided into six detached districts, hundreds of miles apart, supervision is a difficult task, while the necessity of maintaining a separate executive staff in each district renders the government very expensive.

MAJOR-GENERAL HARRIS.—The sudden death by cholera, on the night of the 31st ultimo, of Major-General Philip Harris, commanding the Allahabad division, will be learned with concern in many stations of India, but here it has caused general and profound sorrow. His courtesy and kindness make it impossible for even a mere acquaintance not to like him. The considerate way in which he exercised his command ensured the regard, as well as the respect of his officers; while by the men, especially of the 58th, he was positively beloved for the unremitting anxiety he had shown for their health and comfort during this long and severe visitation of cholera. It is probable, indeed, that his death is in great part due to the labour and exposure he underwent on their account. It is well-known here that the general visited one or more hospitals, often at several miles from the station, every day, and that on these visits he addressed kind and cheering words to every patient, especially every cholera patient, in hospital. This tender solicitude for the men under his command is touchingly shown in some of the last words he uttered. A few hours before his death he said to the doctor by his bedside:—"As long as I recollect it; remember, if it should please God to take me, don't let the troops be ordered out." General Harris was first attacked at four A.M. on Saturday morning, and a few minutes before eight on the same night he died. It is consoling to know that he suffered but little pain, and that he preserved his faculties till the last. General Harris, during nearly the whole of his long service, had been employed on the Staff. For several years he was adjutant of the 70th N. I. He next commanded a regiment in the Gwalior Contingent, conferred for his distinguished service at Maharajpore. He subsequently served at Canton in 1857, and, on his return to India, was appointed to the command of the 101st Regiment. He then obtained the Barrackpore Brigade, whence he was transferred to Agra. His short tenure of the Allahabad command is now a matter of sorrow to the whole division.—Pioneer, Aug. 2.

STATION TALK.

YERCAUD, Aug. 7.—The night before last is one which will be long remembered. The rain, which had been threatening all day, came down literally in torrents, accompanied with thunder and lightning. Never within the memory of the oldest residents has such a storm been known. The best built roofs were unable to keep out the rain, and we understand that in some cases even the kitchen utensils were required to catch the rain as it poured in. The drains overflowed, and the floods carried everything before them. Next morning early it became known that the bund of our pretty lake, unequal to the strain of containing such a vast accession of water, had burst. The whole of the contents of the lake disappeared in a few hours, and terrible must have been the rush of water. We have not heard of any loss of life, but the damage to property must be immense. What the day previously had been the ornament of the hills is now a desolate swamp. The roads have been cut up, and in parts entirely washed away. There does not appear to be any serious damage done in Yercaud itself, but the fear is that should we have another such storm the bund of the tank near the church (already full to the brim) may share the fate of its less fortunate rival. In this case the effect to the contiguous property would be fearful.

MOULMEIN, July 23.—Since the despatch of my last letter to you—the receipt of which you have so politely acknowledged by the mail just arrived—nothing of interest has occurred at Moulmein. We have had a good many inches of rainfall, and have been much annoyed by troops of howling pariah dogs, which infest this place, I am told, at this time of the year especially. Talk of “the dog nuisance” at Rangoon! This must beat Rangoon hollow; there never was a more unearthly noise than that these animals make all the live long night. It is neither a bark nor a howl that the creatures indulge in, but a downright yell. Our Padre, not being able to put up with the serenades to which the Moulmein dogs have been pleased to treat him of late, has determined on shooting them whenever opportunity offers; the consequence is that at dead of night the report of a gun is heard, followed by a piteous howl—the last, it is hoped, the animal fired at will ever indulge in. The Staff Officer here made a bag, they tell me, of twenty-three dogs the other day; notwithstanding which their number does not decrease; in fact, they say it is just the contrary! The new law courts, I observe in the papers have not been opened as yet at Mandalay; the delay probably is attributable to Major Sladen's ill-health. Dr. Dougall, who went up as Officiating Residency Surgeon at Mandalay, is said to have found Major Sladen in a better state of health than he expected. There is nothing stirring either in town or cantonment. I heard casually the other day that the 37th were about to lose their commandant, who is shortly going away on leave, on private affairs, for six months to India. As the gallant officer proceeds under the furlough rules of 1796, the command is one to which full allowances are attached; consequently, it is surmised that some officer senior to the second in command, now present at the headquarters of the regiment, will be sent from India to assume command of the corps. The 37th Grenadiers have been unfortunate in losing their commandant. Colonel Owen, who had brought the regiment over from India, was much liked and respected in it; he had been some years with the regiment, and was ordered only so recently as April last to the command of the Tonghoo force. His successor was Colonel Macaulay, the present commandant of the 37th, who has been three months with the regiment, and is now proceeding on leave to India. Notwithstanding Colonel Macaulay's short service with his regiment, his approaching departure is viewed by all members of the community with sincere regret. He is most popular here.—Athenæum Correspondent.

Miscellaneous.

CAPTAIN BOARDMAN.—The Neigherry Excelsior has heard that the serious charge brought against Captain Boardman not having been proved, that gentleman has been discharged from arrest. We trust that Sir Salar Jung will see the propriety of restoring Captain Boardman to his appointment.

MILITARY.—In consequence of temporary requirements, the Hyderabad Subsidiary Force has been formed into a Divisional command, the division of the Ceded Districts, i.e., Bellary, becoming a Brigade command. It is considered probable that Major-General Shubrick, at present commanding in the Ceded Districts, will be transferred to the newly-formed Divisional command.

JALNAH.—We regret to learn that within the past two weeks nearly fifty persons have died of cholera at Kamptee. His Excellency Sir Salar Jung has provided a medical dispensary, which is now largely resorted to by the people. At nightfall bands of native children sally forth, lanterns in hand, chanting in a wild strain native hymns, which have for their burden a prayer addressed to the Almighty that the epidemic may soon disappear.

AUSTRALIAN HORSES FOR INDIA.—The Indian horse-market is constantly being replenished with Victorian and other Australian stock. The Andromeda recently sailed for Madras with sixty splendid horses, comprising about forty thoroughbred Touchstones, selected from Mr. Lyall's stud; several of the Snowden and Prince William stock, bred by Mr. Mitchell, of Table Top, and some few thoroughbreds from Mr. McLeod's, of Gipps Land. Many of these horses will, it is expected, be brought out at the Christmas and January meetings in the Madras Presidency.—Melbourne Argus, July 17.

TREVANDRUM.—Our latest advices from Trevandrum state that great rejoicings are held in honour of the accouchement of her Highness the Junior Rance of a princess, on the evening of the 20th ult. The event is one of the utmost significance both to the Royal house of Travancore and the country generally, as, of four children born of her Royal Highness, the present is the only princess to perpetuate the dynasty, the succession being well known to lie in the female line. The Senior Rance unhappily continues without issue, and the contemplation of such another contingency as adoption, to which the two Rances owe their elevation, cannot be very pleasurable to the loyal subjects of the Raj.—Cochin Argus, August 6.

AMMONIA FOR CHOLERA.—A correspondent writing to the Indian Daily News from Bellary says, with reference to the recommendation that ammonia should be injected into the blood as a cure for cholera as well as for snake-bites, that it has been the cause of one cure there. A private of the 60th Rifles was attacked with cholera in its worst form; everything that could be thought of was done for him, but without avail; the man was gradually sinking, and indeed was “given up,” as the saying is, and none thought he had the least chance of living, when Dr. Young, the Surgeon of the 60th, opened a vein in the supposed dying man's arm, and injected ammonia. From that moment the man began to improve, and continued to do so until his recovery was complete.

COMPENSATION TO LOCAL OFFICERS.—The Madras Times announces that the Secretary of State for India having sanctioned the grant of compensation to those local officers who, on the reorganisation of the Madras Native Army then under Sir Gaspard Le Marchant, were superseded in regimental commands by staff corps lieutenant colonels, Government have authorised the adjustment of their claims to the extent of Rs. 42,598-5-7 as follows:—

Lient. col. G. A. Fulton...	Rs. 7,326	5	6
„ G. Smart .....	4,353	0	3
„ A. D. McDougall .....	8,857	0	0
„ A. Cannon .....	8,598	8	5
„ K. Macaulay .....	8,952	7	3
„ C. Pulley .....	1,220	2	0
„ W. J. Doveton .....	3,289	14	2

The above list is complete, but the sums claimed by some of the officers are, it is said, considerably in excess of the amounts sanctioned by Government.

THE GOVERNOR OF MADRAS.—His Excellency the Governor visited the cholera sheds attached to the General Hospital on Saturday, and conversed with such of the parties as were in a condition to be spoken to. We believe his lordship did not, in customary phrase, “express his satisfaction” with the state of affairs which he witnessed. On the contrary, he pressed his handkerchief to his face in a way that spoke eloquently of the foul smells that are to be encountered in that shelter for cholera-stricken patients. These sheds are quite unfit for their purpose, and are, indeed, a disgrace to the Presidency. They never were fit for the reception of patients, being destitute of the accommodation required alike for purposes of decency and of sanitation; but now that they are rotten and dilapidated, they are not fit to shelter human beings. It is the less excusable to put patients into these sheds that there are wards in the hospital itself altogether unoccupied. This brings us to notice an anomaly in the permanent condition of the hospital that requires to be considered by the proper authorities. The division of the space is such that one part of the hospital is regularly crowded in an unhealthy manner, while others are not half occupied or not occupied at all. We believe that at this moment the surgical wards are full to overflowing, and that many patients are perforce refused admission; while at the other end of the building are spacious wards with hardly a patient, and at least one ward—the ophthalmic—without any patients at all. Of course, the medical men who have charge of these empty or half empty wards object to give up any portion of their space to other departments—it is the nature of man to guard jealously anything in which he has any sort of right of possession—but it is not the less certain that the unequal division of space greatly cripples the usefulness of the hospital. If any particular department of the hospital is fortunately empty, it would surely be a sensible act to devote its space to other departments that are unfortunately crowded.—Madras Times, Aug. 7.

Bombay.

PREMCHUND ROYCHUND'S TWENTY-FIVE LAKH LOAN.—The first of the suits by the old Bank of Bombay against the other banks in town whose managers attended the meeting on the 27th April, 1866, when the loan of 25 lakhs was granted to Premchund Roychund, came on for hearing in the High Court before Mr. Justice Westropp and Sir Charles Sargent, on Saturday, August 14. The Bank of Bombay claim in this action Rs. 1,96,620, from the Oriental Bank. Messrs. Pigot, Scoble, and Green (instructed by Messrs. Rimington, Hore, and Langley) appeared for the plaintiffs, and the Advocate-general, and Messrs. Marriot and McCulloch (instructed by Messrs. Acland, Prentis, and Bishop) for the defence. The issues were raised and Mr. Pigot occupied the day with his opening statement of the case. The evidence was commenced on Monday, August 16.

MILITARY.—The Times of India announces the death, in Bombay, of Capt. B. J. Bonnor, of the Royal Artillery. Capt. Bonnor had come to Bombay from Nagpore on medical certificate, with the object of proceeding to England, and was staying at the bungalow of Mr. Andrew Hay, Malabar Hill, where he was attacked by diarrhoea and dysentery, from which he died at about four o'clock on Saturday afternoon, August 7. The deceased gentleman was thirty years of age. He was buried at half-past five on Sunday evening in the Colaba cemetery, with military honours.—A Kurrachee contemporary hears that a small body of horse is to be raised from the Murree tribe, to protect the Sind frontier, at a cost of Rs. 600 per man. The troopers in the Sind Horse are mostly Punjabees. The Murrees make excellent, hardy soldiers; there are some of them in the Belooch regiments already.

N.B.—80 lbs. equal to 1 maund; 8 maunds equal to 1 candy.

THE PERSIAN GULF.—Sheik Salim, the Joasme Chief of Shargah, lately committed a serious breach of the maritime peace by attacking the Chief of Rasul-Khyra with a view to expel him and instal his own brother as chief of that place. On receiving intelligence, Colonel Pelly, the political resident in the Persian Gulf, immediately steamed across the Gulf to Rasul-Khyra coast, and surprised Sheik Salim, who had already landed some 1,500 men from thirty-two crafts, and who then lay encamped on the shore line with his inland flank secured by a creek in which his crafts were hauled up. The Chief of Rasul-Khyra had called in the aid of the Amulgawein Chief, who had despatched about five or six hundred men by sea, and landed them at the town of Rasul-Khyra. Fighting had taken place both before the town and at an island a little to the westward, and some casualties had occurred on either side. On being warned by Colonel Pelly, Sheik Salim and his brother at once broke up their camp and returned home with their forces. The prompt measures adopted by Colonel Pelly have met with the approval of the Government of India.

A NOVEL REMEDY FOR INFANTICIDE.—The Sumsher Bahadur takes to heart the infanticide prevailing in Ahmedabad. The Hindoo widow, who gives birth to an illegitimate issue, either leaves it in some open place, or murders it, or gets it murdered. The Ahmedabad paper, therefore, cannot understand how Government can rest content without devising some measure to save the lives of these innocent Hindoo children. Its own suggestion is that the authorities should issue a proclamation saying that any woman who has an illegitimate issue may secretly leave it in charge of the police thanadar, who will quietly receive it, without making any inquiry, and without revealing anything about the matter. Any Government servant found revealing the secret, if he happens to know it, must be subjected to some heavy penalty. Any midwife, or any other person, bringing such offsprings under the protection of Government, may receive a certain reward—such offsprings to be brought up either in the hospital, or in the pinjrapole. The writer cites the instance of England, where so much is done to prevent infanticide.—Guzerat Mitra.

THE GAIKWAR OF BARODA.—While the Maharajah of Jeypore has been entertaining in the north, the Gaikwar of Baroda has not been behind in the west. He had not, like the Rajpoot Prince, a Viceroy's fete, but he had, through the railway, an opportunity of inviting as his guests people from all parts of the presidency. On the 7th of August his Highness gave a ball and a supper to his own people of Baroda, and on the 11th of August a still more grand one to guests invited from far and wide. Mukkerpoora however, where the palace is, is some six miles from Baroda, and thither ladies and gentlemen were conveyed from the station in carriages, or on richly caparisoned elephants. What makes these balls more deserving of notice than their magnificence however is the fact that the Gaikwar, like Jeypore, danced with his guests, taking part in four sets of quadrilles, besides the Lancers and Varsoviennes. His Highness is reported to have surprised everybody by the correctness of his dancing; indeed, he is said to have even come to the rescue of people who found themselves in difficulties! The day following the ball was devoted to an entertainment of quite another character—viz., elephant and rhinoceros fights "for the gratification of out-station visitors." To residents at Baroda there would be nothing new in the spectacle. It is due to the Gaikwar to add that, with all his faults, few native princes show so great a desire to be a good neighbour to English officers and their families as he does. He is constantly organising some hunt or tumasha specially for them. We must not however dwell on the fact that his poor subjects have to pay for it all.

DEOLALEE DEPOT.—The position of Deolalee, near Nassick, on the brow of the Western Ghats, is in so many respects suited as a resting stage for departing and arriving European troops, that we should exceedingly regret any circumstances arising to bring it into discredit. But it cannot be ignored that for some time past much and frequent sickness has existed amongst the troops temporarily located at that station. An approximate list with the causes of death since the 12th ultimo appear below, exhibiting the high number of seventeen deaths in twenty-one days, out of an aggregate of 500 souls. The children appear to be the chief sufferers. Previously to the setting in of this mortality, low fevers were reported to be very prevalent indeed. Typhoid fevers also were not unknown at the station, sometimes terminating fatally. If there are any preventable causes of which this unfortunate mortality is the result, they should be inquired into at once by competent persons, with a view to establishing the value of Deolalee as a resting place for troops upon the move, especially in the monsoon; and the troops now there should be removed if this measure be proved necessary. Possibly the temporary barracks, which are remarkably well ventilated by the stiff breezes of this season, are just a little too airy for many constitutions. Moreover, we gather that the absence of a regularly organised cantonment sanitary system, rigidly carried out by experienced officials, may possibly be found to have led in part to the present unfortunate mortality. This, at any rate, is capable of remedy. It behoves Government to let new troops enter the country under better auspices and more congenial circumstances than Deolalee apparently affords just at present.—Times of India.

SOLDIERS' INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION, AGRA.—The following is the committee appointed on the Soldiers' Industrial Exhibition, to be held at Agra in January next:—President: The brigadier general commanding Agra brigade. Members: Officers commanding regiments of British and native cavalry and infantry and batteries of royal artillery in the Agra brigade; the deputy inspector general of hospitals, Indian medical service. Secretary: Lieut. col. J. P. Clarkson, Bengal infantry.

SPECIFICATIONS OF INVENTIONS (JULY).—The undermentioned specifications of inventions have been filed, under the provisions of Act XV. of 1859, in the office of the Secretary to the Government of India in the Home Department. Copies have been sent to one of the Secretaries to each of the Governments of Bengal, Fort St. George, Bombay, and the North-Western Provinces:—Mr. B. Leslie, of Dalhousie-square, in the town of Calcutta, for an improved system of constructing arches applicable to roofs, floors, and bridges. Mr. R. Brunton, civil engineer, residing at Kurrachee, in the Province of Sind, for an improved machine for raising water, to be styled "Brunton's improved Noria." Mr. J. MESS AND BAND DONATIONS.—With the sanction of Government, it is hereby notified that officers of the British army serving with native regiments as probationers for the staff corps, shall not be required to pay mess and band donations, but shall be placed on precisely the same footing as attached officers. On the expiration of their probationary period, however, it will be incumbent on such officers to pay to the institutions of the regiment to which they are posted on final admission to the staff corps, the donations and subscriptions required from officers borne on the permanent establishment of regiments. With reference to the foregoing notification, paragraphs six and nine of the pamphlet alluded to in G.O.C.C., May 9, 1865, are cancelled, and the following substituted:—Para. 6. Officers attached in excess of the establishment and probationers for the staff corps, are to pay no donation for one year. At the expiration of that period it will be incumbent on them to pay the donation on the scale laid down in paragraph 5; the former to the corps to which they are attached, and the latter to the regiment to which posted on admission to the staff corps. Para. 9. The monthly rates of subscription from all members of the regular establishment of regiments, married or single, to be Rs. 8, that of attached officers and probationers for the staff corps Rs. 5.

(This is in substitution of the order published in G.O. of 1869.)

PAY OF NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS.

July 21.—No. 767.—The following military letter from the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India, No. 156, dated India-office, London, June 17, is published:—

To H.E. the Right Hon. the Governor-general of India in Council.

My Lord,—I have received and considered in Council your letter No. 23, in the military department, dated Jan. 19 last, regarding the issue of the pay of their departmental rank to non-commissioned officers borne on the strength of line corps, though absent therefrom on local departmental service for the period intervening between the date of their leaving India and their discharge.

2. I concur in the opinion expressed in paragraph 2 of your letter as to the hardship which would be entailed on such non-commissioned officers by being restricted to the pay of a rank below that which they have attained as the result of efficient or meritorious service.

3. Considering, however, that such meritorious service has been rendered to the Indian and not to the Imperial Government, the difference between the pay of the departmental grade of such men and that of sergeant—i.e., their regimental rank—should be considered as a debit against Indian funds.—I have, &c., (Signed) ARGYLL.

ASSISTANT INSPECTOR-GENERAL OF RAILWAY POLICE.

July 22.—No. 2,009.—Under sanction of the Government of India in the Financial Department, H.H. the Lieut. governor is pleased to declare that the officer holding the position of assistant inspector general of railway police will, for the purpose of regulating officiating promotions, be regarded as a district superintendent of police drawing a salary of Rs. 700 per mensem.

The promotion, however, of the assistant inspector general of police will be regulated by his standing in the department.

POWERS OF CANTONMENT MAGISTRATES.

July 29.—No. 184.—The Viceroy and Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to invest the cantonment magistrates at Mhow and Morar with the powers of a civil judge, with the view of enabling them to dispose of cases which are beyond the competence of the Courts of Requests and Small Causes in those cantonments.

COMMANDING OFFICERS' CERTIFICATE FOR CANDIDATES FOR THE STAFF CORPS.

July 29.—No. 238.—The following corrections should be made in the form of commanding officers' certificate, prescribed for candidates for the staff corps entering the survey department as probationers, in the home department notification No. 49, revenue (geographical), dated Feb. 9:—

For "Completed three years' duty with a regiment on the —, two years of which," &c., read "Completed two years' duty with a regiment on the —, one year of which," &c.; and for "Passed the examination in the native languages, which qualifies for staff employ," read "Has passed the examination in the native languages by the higher (or lower, as the case may be) standard."

LEAVE AND ALLOWANCES.

July 26.—No. 2,236.—Read the following orders of Government in this department, ruling that a covenanted civil servant, who forfeited his appointment by proceeding on furlough, was entitled to salary of any office to which he may have been appointed on his return from the date of appointment, not of assuming charge.

Letter to the Examiner of Claims, Calcutta, No. 639, dated Feb. 3, 1865.

Financial Notification, No. 1,796, dated Aug. 10, 1865.

Resolution.—The Gov. gen. in Council is of opinion that, under the new leave rules, and with reference to the lately increased rates of subsistence allowances, it is unnecessary to continue the exceptional rule by which an officer in the covenanted civil service, who returned from leave without holding an appointment, was permitted to draw the pay of his first post from the date of his being appointed thereto.

For the future no officer will draw the pay of any appointment until he has actually taken charge thereof.

PENSIONS AND GRATUITIES.

July 30.—No. 2,324.—Read again—

Financial Despatch from H.M.'s Secretary of State for India, No. 47, dated Jan. 26 last, authorising the admission of mint artificers generally to the benefit of the uncovenanted service pension rules; and Order thereon by the Financial Department, No. 1,377, dated March 9.

Resolution.—To remove certain misapprehensions in regard to the scope of the orders of the Secretary of State for India referred to above, the Gov. gen. in Council is pleased to rule that a mint artificer will be held entitled to the benefit of those orders only when it can be shown that he has been engaged in service of a nature to affect his health prejudicially.

DRESS.—SUBORDINATE MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

No. 801.—The Right Hon. the Governor-general in Council is pleased to direct that the following dress shall be worn by the subordinate medical department in India:—

Apothecaries and Assistant Apothecaries.

Winter Uniform.—Coat.—Patrol jacket of dark blue cloth, same shape as worn by officers of the British army, quite plain, and with red stand-up collar and cuffs, hooked at the neck, and with six small gilt buttons down the breast at equal distances.

For apothecaries, a narrow double gold cord round the collar.

For assistant apothecaries, a narrow single gold cord round the collar.

Buttons.—Gilt, with the crown and letters V. R., with the words "Bengal (Madras or Bombay) Subordinate Medical Department" within a star raised thereon.

Summer Uniform.—Coat.—Plain white tunic (American drill), with stand-up collar, six small gilt buttons at equal distances down the front.

Trousers.—Oxford-mixture cloth, with a silver cord down the outward seam, or white linen, according to the season.

Forage Cap.—Blue cloth forage cap with black silk oak leaf band and "Bengal (Madras or Bombay) S. M. D.," embroidered in gold in front, and patent leather peak.

Helmet.—Grey felt, with plain white pugree.

Boots.—Ankle.

Gloves.—White.

Sword, Scabbard, and Belt.—Same as issued to warrant officers of the ordnance and commissariat departments.

Jacket.—Plain blue cloth, with red facings, lined with black silk, silver-plated cord shoulder-straps, ten small gilt buttons down the breast at equal distances.

Waistcoat.—White Kerseymere, one row of eight small gilt buttons at equal distances down the front, or white linen, according to the season.

VETERINARY SURGEONS' UNIFORM.

July 27.—No. 784.—The Right Hon. the Governor-general in Council is pleased to direct that veterinary surgeons of the Indian army shall, for the future, wear the uniform prescribed for the veterinary staff at page 115 of her Majesty's dress regulations for the army for 1864, the provision of full dress being left optional.

This order is applicable to the three presidencies.

OFFICERS.—DOING DUTY.

Adj. gen.'s Office, Head Qrs., Simla, Aug. 2.—No. 220.—Officers of the Bengal Presy. arrived from England at Bombay en route to this command are to report themselves on arrival at Allahabad or Mooltan, to the officers commanding at those stations. [See G.O. No. 265 of 1868.]

The officers commanding at Allahabad and Mooltan will, as a temporary arrangement, appoint officers of field rank to do duty at the station, and attach captains and subalterns to native regiments, and submit a report for the further orders of the C. in C. in regard to the disposal of the officers concerned.

The Brigade major, Bombay, is requested to point out this order to all officers arriving for the Bengal Presidency.

Officers who arrive at Calcutta from England will report themselves, as heretofore, to the general officer commanding the Presidency division.

The above order does not affect officers of H.M.'s British service, or those returning to appointments on the staff.

THE LATE MAJOR-GENERAL P. HARRIS.

Head Qrs., Simla, Aug. 2.—The C. in C. in India has received with deep regret the announcement of the death of Major gen. P. Harris, whilst in command of the Allahabad division of the Bengal army.

The conduct of this officer during the late outbreak of cholera at Allahabad was beyond all praise, and his Excellency feels it but just to General Harris's memory to place on record his high sense of that officer's zeal and devotion to duty, and of the noble example which he set to all those under his command during an exceptionally trying period of sickness and anxiety.

ARRIVALS FROM EUROPE.—The undermentioned officer has reported his return from England:—Lieut. Burrowes, district superintendent of police, Central Provinces; date of arrival at Bombay, July 8.

POLICE EXAMINATION.—NORTH-WESTERN PROVINCES.—Mr. Yeatman, officiating district superintendent of police at Allahabad, has passed the requisite examination in the police department.

EDUCATIONAL.—The officiating chief commissioner has appointed a local committee of public instruction at the stations of Nagpore and Jubbulpore, and has nominated a number of gentlemen as ex-officio members, with power to add to their number.

RESIDENCE IN ENGLAND.—MEDICAL SERVICE.—With the sanction of her Majesty's Secretary of State for India, it is notified that an inspector or deputy inspector general of hospitals who has completed his tour of service, and has reverted to British pay, may reside in England, qualifying at the same time for higher pension.

CORRIGENDA.—In notification No. 353, dated July 23, appointing local committees of public instruction, for "the Rev. G. Cooper," read "the Rev. J. G. Cooper, superintendent of the Free Church Mission Schools, Nagpore;" and after "the Rev. J. Stuart," add "superintendent of the Church of England Mission Schools, Jubbulpore." The Rev. Mr. Champion's name should be omitted.

DEPARTURES.—The undermentioned officers have reported their departure on the dates specified:—Major-gen. Stewart, C.B., of the Bengal staff corps, G.G.O. No. 666, per Sumatra, July 6. Surg. Hutchinson, M.D., of the medical department, G.G.O. No. 764, per Deccan, July 19. Capt. Warner, deputy commissioner, Dumoh, reported his departure from Bombay on the 3rd inst., on m.c., to Europe. Lieut. col. Briggs, infantry, retired, G.G.O. No. 683, per Carnatic, June 29, from Bombay.

MAGISTERIAL POWERS.—The undermentioned officers are invested with the powers of a subordinate magistrate of the 1st class, as described in section 22 of Act XXV. of 1861, from June 1:—Messrs. Rose, Reade, Smith, White, Macintosh, Whiteway, and Alexander. The undermentioned officers are invested with the powers of a deputy collector from June 1:—Messrs. Lyall, Harkness, Evans, Kinsey, Martin, La Touche, Smeaton, Finlay, and Robinson. The undermentioned officers are invested with the powers of a deputy collector for the trial of suits under Acts X. of 1859 and XIV. of 1863, from June 1:—Messrs. Rose, Macintosh, Knox, and Reade.

EXAMINATIONS IN THE NATIVE LANGUAGES.—The undermentioned officers of the British Burmah Commission have passed the prescribed examination in Indian History, Political Economy, and Jurisprudence:—Lieut. Gower, assistant commissioner of the 3rd grade; Lieut. Cooke, officiating assistant commissioner of the 3rd grade. The undermentioned officers of the British Burmah Commission have passed the examinations prescribed for junior officers in that province in the several subjects noted in each case:—Burmese, Lower Standard (old rules): Capt. Fryer, assistant commissioner of the 2nd (but officiating in the 1st) grade, with credit. Law, Revenue, and General Duties, Lower Standard (old rules):—Mr. Lloyd, assistant commissioner of the 3rd grade, with credit. Law, Lower Standard: Lieut. Gower, assistant commissioner of the 3rd grade, with credit; Capt. Evanson, officiating cantonment magistrate of Rangoon; Ensign Butler, officiating assistant commissioner of the 3rd grade; Lieut. Cooke, officiating assistant commissioner of the 3rd grade. Higher Standard: Mr. Buckle, assistant commissioner of the 3rd (but officiating in the 2nd) grade, with credit. Revenue, Lower Standard: Lieut. Gower, assistant commissioner of the 3rd grade, with credit; Capt. Evanson, officiating cantonment magistrate of Rangoon, with credit; Ensign Butler, officiating assistant commissioner of the 3rd grade. The undermentioned candidates are reported to have passed the Lower Standard in Hindoostanee on August 5:—Lieut. Wintle, royal horse artillery; Lieut. Hardinge, royal artillery; Capt. ### THE ALBERT ASSURANCE COMPANY.

A large and excited meeting of policy-holders in the Albert Assurance Company was held at the London Tavern on Sept. 9, Lord W. Hay in the chair. At one time the scene of confusion was of such a character that no one could be heard. Amid a host of motions submitted to the meeting three were carried. The first rejected the scheme of the liquidators, and appointed a committee of policy-holders, who, in concert with similar other bodies, should consider the state of the company, and report upon it; the second empowered the committee to test the liability of the shareholders in all the amalgamated companies; and the third declared in favour of the policy-holders having the control of the proceedings consequent upon the company's insolvency, the directors having forfeited the confidence of the meeting. The following gentlemen were appointed the committee:—Mr. J. D. Bell, Plowden Buildings, Temple (Representative of Calcutta Policy-holders); Mr. James Bird (of W. Bird and Co.); Mr. James Cundy (of Barber, Son and Co.); General Cunningham (chairman of the London and Delhi Bank); Mr. P. H. Edlin, Q.C., Temple; Lord William Hay, Cleveland-row, St. James's; Mr. J. H. Matthew's (of Grindlay and Co.); Mr. J. A. Murray (of the Record and Writ Clerks' Office); Mr. Octavius Ommaney, of Parliament-street; Mr. Thomas Webster, Q.C.; and Mr. James Wyld; and these gentlemen received power to add to their number. The Birmingham committee met again on Friday, Mr. Councillor Lowe in the chair, and appointed a deputation consisting of the chairman (Mr. Lowe, of the firm of Mapplebeck and Lowe), the secretary, Mr. Griffiths (Griffiths and Browett), Mr. Morgan, solicitor, and Mr. Naish (Naish, Osborn, and Eden), to attend the meeting of representatives of the various London and provincial committees, to be held at the Guildhall Hotel, Gresham-street, London, on Wednesday next.

Mr. S. Lowell Price, one of the official liquidators of the Albert Life Assurance Company, has issued a memorandum addressed to the policy-holders, answering various objections which have been raised to the reconstruction scheme proposed by the provisional liquidators. Mr. Price defends the scheme from the charge of having been conceived in a spirit unduly favourable to the shareholders, and states that the main reasons for making the proposal were, firstly, a belief in the necessity of forming a company limited by shares as part of the machinery of reconstruction; secondly, the importance of securing the co-operation of the shareholders in carrying out any plan for saving the business; and, thirdly, because in the light of previous experience they believed it would be of advantage to the policy-holders to afford even this slight inducement to each shareholder to endeavour to meet his obligations rather than to succumb in terror or to attempt to evade them. Mr. Price then states that, finding, from the tone of recent meetings and other indications, that there is a strong preponderance of opinion in favour of a transfer of the liabilities to some sound and well-established company, he has taken steps to open negotiations with the most eligible offices at all likely to entertain the subject. Mr. Price concludes by suggesting to all interested the desirability of forming a committee, composed of men of high position, to give him their counsel and assistance. The memorandum is signed by one only of the liquidators, as Mr. Kirby is, it is stated, desirous to retire at once from the office, and an application to the Vice-Chancellor for leave to do so has been made.

The committee of policy-holders of the Albert Assurance Company, which was appointed at the recent meeting at the London Tavern, held a second meeting at the offices of the company on Monday, and were to meet again on Tuesday. It is satisfactory to see that no time has been lost in adopting the necessary steps in view of the hearing before the Vice-Chancellor on Friday next.

Miscellaneous.

BOMBAY ARMY.—A divisional command in the Bombay Presidency is vacant by the return home of Major-General Adams in bad health. We believe it is not unlikely that it will be filled by Colonel John Adye, of the Royal Artillery.

BALLED AMMUNITION.—A special general order has been issued from the Horse Guards stating that henceforward the service ammunition of the army is to be removed from the pouches and placed in the regimental expense magazines. In cases where this may be inconvenient, general officers commanding districts are to use their discretion, and report to the Commander-in-Chief their reasons for making an exception. Proper care is to be taken that the key of the magazine is at all times in possession of some responsible person in camp or barracks, with a view to the immediate issue of the ammunition if wanted on emergency. Guards and escorts, or parties detached in aid of the civil power, will invariably have the requisite quantity of ammunition served out to them before going on duty. This supply is to be collected after the duty has been performed, and returned into the magazine.

ROYAL ARTILLERY.—Lieutenant-General D. G. Anderson has been appointed Assistant Adjutant-General in India, vice Colonel Wallace, C.B., whose tenure of office has expired.

OVERCROWDING.—At a meeting of the Academy of Sciences in Paris, Baron Larry, who recently complained that he had been unable to procure hospital tents during the Italian campaign, took part in a discussion on the malady which afflicts silkworms. "Don't agglomerate your worms!" he cried; "we lost thousands of soldiers by agglomeration. Let them have room and a profusion of air!" Notwithstanding the difference which separates a soldier from a cocoon, we have no doubt that overcrowding is bad for both.

THE RELIEFS.—"Non-purchase" writes to a contemporary "to allude in your columns to an injustice that will be done to some of the higher members of what are known as the 'new Line regiments,' if the roster for relief in India, as published some months ago in your journal, should be adhered to. These regiments were amalgamated with the Imperial Army in 1862, from which date their service in India is supposed to have commenced, though, as a matter of fact, their period of service in this country dates from their original formation, and already extends, even in the case of the three junior regiments, to nearly sixteen years. What I would now hope to bring to the notice of the authorities by your assistance is that these regiments consider they have a claim to be relieved from service in India before any new corps now in that country that embarked for foreign service later than July, 1862, and that they should stand on the roll of those to go home next after the 2nd battalion 24th Regiment, and that the last of them should embark for England before the 96th Regiment, which went on foreign service in 1863. Supposing the arrangements you have already published to stand good up to the winter of 1872-73, the five regiments for relief in the season 1873-74 should be the 106th, 107th, 108th, 109th, and 96th."

DEATH OF COLONEL ALARIC ROBERTSON, OF THE INDIAN ARMY.—There has just passed from among us an officer—Colonel Alaric Robertson—who has rendered conspicuous services to the Indian Government, although these services were tardily recognised and but scantily recompensed. Colonel Robertson entered the Madras army in 1833, and retired in 1864, and during that long service of thirty-one years the Indian Government had not a more zealous, hard-working, or devoted servant. He was posted to the 48th Regiment of Madras Native Infantry, but his turn for mechanics and engineering led to his employment in the Department of Public Works, and it was in this department that his talents developed, and his conspicuous services to the State were performed. After serving in Madras he was transferred to the Bengal Presidency, where he ultimately became superintending engineer of the Lahore and Peshawur road, the great military line of communication to our north-western frontier. His zeal and indomitable energy contributed principally to the successful accomplishment of this great undertaking, and his vigilant superintendence saved vast sums to the treasury. His natural talent for engineering surmounted difficulties of no ordinary kind in this great Government work, and he had the merit of introducing a system in the management of the Lahore and Peshawur road which was attended with great economy and success. His latest great work is the tunnel under the Indus at Attock, now on the point of being completed. But great as were Colonel Robertson's claims to admiration as a successful and accomplished engineer, and though the Lahore and Peshawur Road and the Indus Tunnel are his monuments in India, his intimate friends will dwell with still greater pleasure on the memory of a man they respected for his pure and honourable character, and loved for his kind, unselfish, and genial disposition.—Standard.

INLAND GOVERNMENT RAILWAYS MADE BY INDIAN CAPITAL.—A Calcutta Merchant has thus written to the Times:—"The last Indian mail mentions that the Rajah of Puttiala had subscribed 40 lacs of rupees, or £400,000, to the recent 4 per cent. Government loan for reproductive public works, the Government, with wise liberality, letting such a wholesale native customer have their 4 per cent. paper at 2 per cent. under the market price of about 95 and thus borrowing at something under 4½ per cent., the issue price of 93 being still 3 per cent. better for them than the rate at which the previous loan came out. Puttiala is one of the native States which stood firmly by us during the Mutiny; the Rajah is said to have some two millions sterling in the same unproductive shape as many other native princes and landholders hold their money—gold and silver and jewels; and it is added 'that the Governor-General and Secretary of State are very desirous of encouraging other native princes to follow this example.' We may well believe this, for it would be the best possible way of providing funds for the great railway extension the Government are themselves to make to get the people of India to lend it at such rates as 4½ and 4¾ per cent., with the additional advantage of binding them closer to us on the principle 'that no savings-bank depositor is ever a rebel.' Your city readers well know that under the East India Loan Bill, just passed, the Indian Secretary has power to borrow in this market eight millions when he pleases, if he can get the money, or any material part of it, in India itself in this way, at about 4½ per cent. I dare say he will be glad enough to do so, and this commencement will therefore interest them. It will interest, also the holders in this country of some eighty millions of guaranteed railway stock, and their position, already very strong, will be strengthened still more by everything that aids the Government in carrying out their plan of themselves making some 7,000 miles of railway lines, not rival or competing lines, but practically extensions and feeders of the existing 5,000 miles made by companies. A very natural regret has often been expressed that the natives of India hold so little interest in Indian railway stock, but it will come to the same thing if they will lend their money to the Government to make railways, canals, &c., and it is quite possible they may do so, as they are a curious set, and may not well understand private railway companies, even though guaranteed by Government."

INDIAN TROOPSHIPS.—The following are the arrangements decided upon for carrying out the Indian reliefs this season. The Serapis will leave Portsmouth on the 20th instant, calling at Queenstown and embarking the head-quarters and six batteries 9th Brigade Royal Artillery, with which she will proceed to Alexandria, returning to Portsmouth on the 4th of November with the 90th Light Infantry. The Crocodile will leave Portsmouth on the 1st ultimo, calling in at Queenstown and embarking the 39th Regiment, with which she will proceed to Alexandria, returning to Portsmouth with the 1st Battalion 23rd Royal Welsh Fusiliers on the 15th of November. The Serapis will start from Portsmouth on her second voyage on the 14th November, with the 15th Hussars and one battery 9th Brigade Royal Artillery, and will return to Portsmouth on the 20th December with the head-quarters and A, B, C, D, E, and G Batteries 14th Brigade Royal Artillery. The Crocodile will start from Portsmouth on her second voyage, with drafts, on the 21st of November, and will return to Portsmouth on the 31st of December with F Battery 14th Brigade Royal Artillery, and drafts. The Serapis will leave Portsmouth for the third time, with drafts, on the 30th of December, and will return to Portsmouth with the 2nd Dragoon Guards on the 4th of February. The Crocodile will leave Portsmouth on her third journey on the 6th of January, calling in at Queenstown and taking on board the 1st Battalion 17th Regiment, and returning to Portsmouth on the 16th of February with the 82nd Regiment. The Serapis will leave Portsmouth on her last journey on the 15th of February, calling at Queenstown and embarking the 66th Regiment, and will return to Portsmouth on the 23rd of March with the 93rd Highlanders. The Crocodile will start from Portsmouth on her last journey on the 22nd of February, proceeding to Queenstown to embark the 89th Regiment, and will return to Portsmouth on the 3rd of April with the 102nd Fusiliers. The 81st Regiment will leave Queenstown for Gibraltar, in one of the other transports, on the 23rd of February, and the 83rd will proceed on from Gibraltar in the same vessel. The troops returning home will proceed as follows:—The 90th Light Infantry will leave Bombay by transport on the 1st proximo, the 1st Battalion 23rd Fusiliers on the 12th prox., the head-quarters and A, B, C, D, E, and G Batteries 14th Brigade Royal Artillery on the 16th of November, F Battery 14th Brigade Royal Artillery on the 27th of November, the 2nd Dragoon Guards on the 1st of January, the left wing of the 82nd Regiment on the 12th of January, the head-quarters and remainder of the regiment embarking at Aden on the 22nd of January; the 93rd Highlanders on the 17th of February, and the 102nd Fusiliers on the 28th of February. The head-quarters and right wing of the 7th Royal Fusiliers will, most probably, leave Bombay for Aden in the same transport with the left wing of the 82nd Regiment, sailing on the 12th of January and arriving at Aden on the 20th.

CHOLERA AT AKYAB.—Advices from Akyab to 1st August received in Bombay, state that cholera was raging to an alarming extent in that town and the districts, driving the population of whole villages from their homes, and preventing immigration from Chittagong, without which the cultivation of the rice crop has become an impossibility, and thus a large area of ground, formerly under cultivation year after year, is now lying waste. Official statements go so far as to say that there would be no rice for export at all next year, and that the whole of the grain sown would barely suffice for the home consumption of the country. This is rather an exaggerated statement; but there is no doubt that from the above causes, so far as Akyab is concerned, the export of rice will be on a smaller scale than for several years past. The rains have been plentiful; but the effects of cholera, and consequent want of labour, have quite neutralised their effect.

THE MAHARAJAH OF JEYPORE.—The Maharajah of Jeypore has accepted the appointment of member of the Governor-General's Legislative Council. His accession will be of great advantage, for not only is he a chief of ancient lineage and large territorial influence, but he is also a most enlightened and liberal ruler of his own States, and at the same time firmly attached to British interests. Lord Mayo is to be congratulated on his choice, and the Maharajah to be complimented on his readiness to quit for a time the pleasures of independent sovereignty for the labour and restraint of imperial legislation.—Pioneer

SARSAPARILLA.

WILKINSON'S (late Bridge's) ESSENCE or FLUID EXTRACT OF RED JAMAICA SARSAPARILLA, prescribed by the Faculty for purifying the blood, debility, liver complaints, and freeing the system from the effects of mercury. Exclusively used in India and the Colonies as a prevention to tropical diseases.

"Superior preparation that may always be relied upon."—Sir Astley Cooper.

"We are in every respect satisfied with it."—Lancet.

"We recommend your Sarsaparilla as the best."—Medical Review.

Sold in quarter, half, and pint bottles.

CAUTION.—Many spurious, worthless, and injurious preparations are offered to the public. See that both bottle and label have the name and address.

QUINTESENCE OF JAMAICA GINGER AND CAMOMILE.

WILKINSON'S PREPARATION OF GINGER and CAMOMILE has long been deservedly known as an excellent domestic medicine. It is a most efficient stomachic tonic, and the best remedy for flatulency and disorders arising from impaired digestion.

It is not affected by climate.

No European in India or tropical countries should be without it.

AROMATIC TINCTURE OF QUINOIDINE.

For the Prevention of Fever, Ague, and effects of Malaria. An unfailing remedy. It may be mentioned that those who, during the campaign in the Crimea, daily took a small quantity, passed entirely unharmed through the raking fire of fever and dysentery that thinned the ranks around them.

Sold in half and quarter-pint bottles.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.

The constant changes of temperature, with rapid alternations of drought and rain, are causing daily derangements in chest, stomach, and liver. For rectifying the slightest or most serious disorders of these organs nothing has yet been found so constantly successful as Holloway's Pills, which may be taken by any one without fear of injury. These Pills exercise so salutary an influence over the organs of digestion that almost any ordinary food may be eaten with impunity, and they strengthen the weakest stomach against acidity, flatulency, and heartburn. Their aperient qualities speedily relieve both nausea and biliousness. They remove all obstructions in the system, and healthfully restore its proper function to every organ.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER

TRUSS, Perfected and Exhibited in the Great Exhibition of 1851, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London.

Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d., postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 8d. Umbilical, 42s. and 52s. 6d., postage, 1s. 10d.

Post-office Orders payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

NEW PATENT.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS,

&c.—The material of which these are made is recommended by the Faculty as being peculiarly elastic and compressible, and the best invention for giving efficient and permanent support in all cases of weakness and swelling of the Legs, Varicose Veins, Sprains, &c. It is porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and is drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price 4s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s. to 16s. each; postage, 6d.

JOHN WHITE, MANUFACTURER, 228, PICCADILLY, LONDON.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES.—

UPWARDS OF FIFTY YEARS' experience has fully confirmed the superior reputation of these Lozenges in the cure of ASTHMA, WINTER COUGH, HOARSENESS, SHORTNESS OF BREATH, and other PULMONARY MALADIES.

RECENT TESTIMONIAL.

August 23, 1869.

Dear Sir,—Having tried your Cough Lozenges in India, I have much pleasure in testifying to their beneficial effects in cases of incipient consumption, asthma, and bronchial affections; so good a medicine ought to be known to be appreciated. I have prescribed it largely with the best results.

W. B. G.,

ENGLISH HOMES IN INDIA.

PART I.—THE THREE LOVES.

| PART II.—THE WRONG TURNING.

PUBLISHERS' NOTICE.

The writer of these volumes—an accomplished member of a family whose name is conspicuous in Indian story—being now resident in India, they have not had the benefit of her final corrections. It is hoped, however, that this inevitable drawback will detract but little from the pleasure to be afforded by the perusal of the tales, which are, indeed, what they profess to be, stories of English Homes in India, represented as such homes are in different parts of the country and under various social and professional aspects. They endeavour fairly and without exaggeration to illustrate Anglo-Indian life as it is, in its many varying phases, and to bring upon the scene, in their everyday costume, many kinds of Anglo-Indian workmen, from the Resident at a Native Court, to the subaltern officer and the railway employé; and it is believed that all who have visited the countries described will recognise the truth of the portraiture.

Summary and Review.

OUR latest advices by the Overland Mail are—from Bombay, August 24; Agra, August 22; Calcutta, August 20; Madras, August 18.

The postponement of preparations for the Agra Durbar, as announced here by telegram some weeks ago, figures among the chief items of news brought by the present mail. Colonel Roberts, the Assistant Quartermaster-general, who was to have chosen and laid out the ground for the intended gathering, has been told to delay his departure until further orders, and no further move is to be made in the matter until something like an estimate can be taken of the ensuing Khareef crop. In other words, there will probably be no durbar at all in the North-West, where prices continue forbiddingly high, and large numbers of the people are likely to be supported on public alms for some time to come. No amount of rain can make up for the loss of cattle in Rajpootana and the adjacent provinces. It is thought however that not a few of the native princes will be invited to meet the Duke of Edinburgh in Calcutta.

It is generally believed that the Indian Government will leave Simlah about the 20th October for Calcutta, departing as usual just when the climate of the Himalayas is nearest perfection in English eyes. Lord Mayo however, it seems, will yet linger a little on that side of his world, to look at the snowy ranges from the slopes of Kemaon and inspect the new sanatorium (or sanitarium—which is it to be?) at Ranikhet.

MEANWHILE Lord Mayo and his Council have not been neglecting business. The Bill against European vagrancy is receiving its last touches. The delay in passing it has been caused in part by a legal difficulty which the passage of the India Bill of last session in this country has only just removed. By virtue of that Bill it has become possible at once to repeal some obsolete clauses in the Charter Act of William IV., which debarred Europeans from living in Upper India without a licence. The new Vagrancy Act empowers Government to deport at the public expense any vagrant willing to go home.

Should he refuse to clear off by a certain time, or venture to show himself again in India, he will be liable to fine and imprisonment. The Bill thus fails to deal with those hardened beggars who prefer loafing where they are; but this drawback seems inevitable under the present conditions of the Merchant Shipping Act. Probably however the machinery of the law may admit of being so worked as to render life in India intolerable to loafers of this particular stamp.

IN view of the further expenses entailed by the famine, and of a serious falling off in the opium revenue to the tune of more than half a million, Lord Mayo has been enforcing on all departments the duty of a pitiless economy. Each local Government has received a circular, warning it that "the ordinary expenses of the Empire shall not for the future exceed by a single rupee the revenue of the year." It is evident that even the small surplus foretold by Sir R. Temple will be transformed into a larger deficit. The spirit of economy is even to be carried into the region of pens and paper. Steel pens are as much as possible to supersede quills—an agreeable prospect for those who cannot write freely with the former. Quill pens in hot weather are often aggravating things, but scratchy steel pens are for many people a worse infliction still; and to our experience their practical cheapness is not at all apparent.

THE Bengal Legislative Council has passed through Committee the Tea Labour Bill, after a hard fight on certain clauses which place the time-expired labourers on the same footing in the matter of their new contracts as labourers engaged for the first time. This part of the Bill was carried by the casting vote of the Lieutenant-governor in a committee of eleven. Equal protection of coolies and masters was the plea advanced by the majority for what seems like a retrograde step in quite a wrong direction. It assumes on the part of coolies of several years' standing a hopeless inability to protect themselves, and on the part of their employers an inveterate dislike to fair play. The Viceroy however or the Home Secretary may perhaps see fit to veto this part of the Bill.

THE collapse of the Albert Assurance Company seems to have caused in India a sensation almost greater than the failure of the Agra Bank. It could hardly however have come on many of the sufferers out there as a surprise, seeing that the mismanagement in this country had for some years caused great uneasiness and evoked many remonstrances from the company's Indian supporters. For some time past a steady fight had been going on between the Indian and the English managers touching the amount of assets to be kept in hand for the protection of the former. The policy-holders in Calcutta have already begun to consider what they should do in the present emergency, and the news they have by this time received of the decree of liquidation and the measures taken by their fellow-sufferers at home will no doubt impress upon them the wisdom of concerted action for the common advantage.

CHOLERA continues to rage in many parts of India. At Gwalior the scourge has proved nearly as fatal as at Umritsur. In Lucknow it seems to defy all medical treatment, everyone attacked there being carried off. It was hoped that Dr. Young's method of injecting ammonia into the veins would rescue some few of the sufferers from death, but the hope has apparently not been fulfilled. The injections did sometimes expel the cholera, but still the patients died, whether from the ensuing fever or the intense heat of the tents in which they lay. Such at least is the account derived from one channel. Another and perhaps later informant describes the pestilence as abating, and the fatal cases in the 102nd Foot as comparatively few.

MESSRS. SHAW AND HAYWARD were both by the last accounts at Leh, on their return from Yarkand and Kashgar. The Khoosh Beghi seems to have treated Mr. Shaw with especial kindness, making him costly presents in return for his Kangra tea. Mr. Shaw declares that the population of Eastern Turkistan are "ravenous" for the tea, and have an especial liking for the green teas from the Kangra Valley. A large kafilah was shortly expected at Leh, whence it would proceed by Kooloo to Palampore, in time for the next November fair.

IN England we are told that organ-grinders and other wandering musicians gain a livelihood from the money paid them to desist from torturing sensitive people's ears. In some parts of India a similar kind of tax is levied, it seems, on the purses of people whose tender hearts bleed at the sight of sufferings not their own. The bahilias or bird-catchers of Agra are wont, it seems, to sit down in malice prepenance at the doors of Sarajies, a class of Hindus to whom all life is sacred, and to keep on torturing birds until they are paid to leave off. Cruelty to animals, especially oxen, is by no means uncommon in the land where animal life is accounted sacred by the laws of Manu. If Hindu religiousness cannot prevent the wanton torturing of poor birds, we hope the magistrates will use their ample powers to that end.

ANOTHER paradise for old Anglo-Indians seems still to want its due number of inmates. At Castra in Tasmania there are still a few thousand acres to be had for a mere song—about thirty or forty shillings an acre, we believe. When a few more families have taken up the balance of land set apart for them by the Tasmanian Government, the latter will at once proceed to furnish the settlement with proper roads. Colonel Maxwell Shaw, one of the settlers, writes in unmixed raptures about the healthiness of the place, the richness of the soil, the beauty of the scenery, and the abundant fish in the rivers. The healthiness of the climate by the Mersey, he declares, has "made me young again. I feel strong to labour as I never did before. At threescore years and seven I accomplish work which I could not have attempted in my early manhood." O fortunatos minium sua si bona norint Indicolos! But perhaps the colonel's memory has not grown quite so young as his heart and muscles.

IN his delightful report on the Hill-tribes of the Chittagong Frontier, Captain Lewin enables us, among many other things, to realise the atrocious dealings of Bengallie mahajuns with the victims of their deep-laid wiles. From his account of the arts they use to ensnare the simple dwellers in the Chittagong hills, we can guess at the nature of the provocations which drove the Sonthals into insurrection in 1855. The poor hill-man borrows on some occasion a few rupees from a neighbouring mahajun. Unable to read or write, he signs a deed binding him to pay some enormous amount of interest. In due time we will suppose the money has been paid, and the bond apparently destroyed. Presently however the crafty money-lender brings a suit before the Civil Court for the recovery of the original debt with interest up to date. He then, if possible, bribes the summons-bearer to report, falsely of course, that the summons has been duly served. Failing that, in the event of the victim setting out to defend his case, he contrives to meet him on the way, tells him it was all a mistake about the summons, and carries him home to eat and drink at his expense. Of course a decree is given against the defendant for default. Or perhaps the poor wretch has paid half his debt, and compromised for the remainder on the mahajun's promising to withdraw his claim. The suit goes on however, and judgment in full is given against the absent debtor. In this way the net is woven round the poor innocent fly, until he becomes the slave for life of that most pitiless of spiders, the Bengallie mahajun. "For him he toils; for his profit he clears a joom, raises cotton, or hews out a boat; and even death does not release him, for the load descends upon the shoulders of his son." No wonder that the hill-people find such a yoke intolerable, and hate their Bengallie neighbours with a hatred which now and then breaks out in deeds of violence. They would be less than men if they did otherwise. To protect them against such infernal trickery, something more was needed than a law limiting the amount of interest recoverable to 12 per cent., and compelling immediate enforcement of all decrees. Much good however has already followed the appointment of officers like Colonel Dalton and Captain Lewin to watch over and rule the wilder races in Chittagong, Assam, Sonthalistan, and elsewhere. What Outram did for the Bheels and Macpherson for the Khonds, these others are now doing for other portions of non-Aryan India. Captain Lewin speaks of the atrocities above described as already becoming things of the past in his particular district. But are there no parts of Aryan India, the plains of Bengal for instance, where the plague of dishonest money-lending still scourges a poor if highly civilised peasantry? Cannot Government help these also by means of savings-banks, takkavi loans, and so on?

WHAT is the meaning of the still unsettled quarrel between the Grand Turk and his once-favoured subject, the Khediv of Egypt? The latter took his former scolding to all appearance with the most exemplary meekness; and it seemed as if his explanations and assurances ought to have eased the mind of his moralising master. But the Sultan would not be satisfied with a soft answer that yielded little or nothing. His second letter to the Viceroy looks like an attempt to sound the lowermost depths of that ruler's patience. He insists that the Egyptian army shall be cut down to thirty thousand men; that the needle-guns beyond that number shall be countermanded, as well as all the ironclads now building; that the taxes shall be collected in the Sultan's name, and the Budget be annually sanctioned by the Porte; that no more loans shall be raised without leave from Constantinople; and that the Khediv's negotiations with foreign Courts shall always be conducted through the Turkish Ministers. Some of the privileges granted in the Firman of 1867 are to be recalled. Whenever his Highness shall have accepted all these conditions his Majesty will be glad to receive him at Constantinople. Indeed his appearance would of itself be hailed as a token of his assent. The Viceroy of Egypt in short is ordered to descend from the rank of a semi-independent feudatory to that of an Indian Viceroy. What is the true reading of this deliberate insult to a prince who, power for power, might safely defy the whole strength of the Ottoman Empire? If the Sultan has spoken for himself and his own authority alone, it is hardly likely that Ismael Pasha will pay much heed to his harmless threats. But how comes his Majesty to have spoken out so boldly all of a sudden? Has any European Power prompted him thus to snub the potentate whom a few months ago he graced with a new title? For the credit of our Government we trust that England at any rate is not that Power? We have made sacrifices enough for Turkey without sinking to the final imbecility of helping her to place her foot on the neck of Mohammed Ali's enlightened descendant. Our true interest, if anything, lies in the very opposite direction. On the inevitable collapse of the Turkish Empire Egypt will naturally fall to its present ruler, if nothing be done meanwhile to weaken his position and disable him from serving us in respect of India.

A MOHAMMEDAN GRIEVANCE.

THE same kind of difficulties which attend the progress of educational reform in this country are beginning to demand attention in India also. There as here the principle of a uniform unsectarian education in State-aided schools is found to be widely at variance with the desires or the prepossessions of a multitude of opponents. If English Protestants and Irish Catholics alike rebel against the exclusion of dogmatic theology from any system of popular education, we need not feel surprised at the complaints which the Mohammedans of Bengal are uttering against the ascendancy of a similar principle in their own country. Apart from the shock sustained by their religious prejudices in seeing the children of the true believers brought up in the same schools with the sons of Hindu "swine," under the noxious influence of Hindu teachers, these gentlemen bitterly resent the working of a system which practically shuts them out from many of the careers opened to their fellow-subjects, and turns the very seats of Mohammedan learning into fresh centres for the diffusion of anti-Mohammedan ideas.

The Mussulmans of Lower Bengal muster strong not only in Calcutta, but in many of the larger towns and cities. Their collective wealth is considerable, and their natural energy proverbially great. But from one cause and another they have lately found themselves beaten hollow in the race for advancement by the more numerous children of the soil, the despised professors of an older creed. Unlike their brethren in the North-West, they have seen one avenue after another in the sphere of Government closed against them by the new conditions of entrance. In the higher walks of education they fail to compete with the crowd of young Hindoos, who pass up from the lower schools into the University, and thence win their way upwards in all the professions and in the departments of public service. This alone must be gall and wormwood to the countrymen of India's penultimate masters. Even the medical profession knows but few of them, on account of the social disesteem felt by the Mussulman gentry for all medical men save the Hakim or pure physician. Something of a like prejudice still lurks in English society, and the barber-surgeon of our Middle Age still has his counterpart in the Mohammedan Sawbones of to-day.

It may be said that most of these disabilities are due rather to the force of circumstances and to the backwardness or the false pride of the Mohammedans themselves, than to any unfairness on the part of their rulers. But it is doubtful whether the same plea can fairly be allowed for debarring them from the special benefits of institutions founded for their special use. In England indeed we have sometimes laid ruthless hands on endowments bequeathed to a particular class for a particular object. But even in Ireland we refrain from meddling with private endowments for a particular church, and even in Ireland our rule rests on a broader footing than it can ever do in India. There at any rate all attempts to square the general practice with our newest theories of Government must be carried out with very great circumspection. What seems to be the salient grievance of the Mohammedans, lies in the alleged perversion of their own particular colleges to ends neither contemplated nor warranted by the action of their founders. For their use arose two colleges or Madrissas, one founded in Calcutta by Warren Hastings, the other at Hooghly by a rich and pious Mussulman, who endowed it handsomely for the benefit of his fellow-worshippers. For about forty years the Calcutta Madrissa continued under native control, discharging however inadequately its apparent purpose. The reforms of the next ten years culminated in 1829, when the Madrissa was divided into two departments, one for the purely Mohammedan classics, the other for English and general scholarship. Unluckily the English department teaches nothing but the rudiments of English, and the Mohammedan student is thus placed at a serious disadvantage as compared with his Hindu rivals, who at their University can always secure the best teachers in the highest branches of that study. And to add to the chances against the former, the Hooghly Madrissa, founded by a Mohammedan for the higher education of Mohammedan youths, has been filled of late with scholars of other creeds and races. In view of these things, the Mussulman community have some right to feel aggrieved. They ask that the Hooghly College may be restored to its original uses, and that in both Colleges the standard of education, especially in English, may be so raised as to enable the students to take their degree in Arts, and start fair with their Hindu countrymen in the race of life. That their demands are not at first sight unreasonable, may be gathered from the sympathy avowed with them by several of the Anglo-Indian journals, and yet more by the Commission which the Bengal Government has just appointed, to consider the best means of raising the education of the Mohammedans to a level with the needs of the present day. If they have suffered any wrong or the appearance of it at our hands, by all means let the remedy be quickly found.

RECLAMATION OF WASTE LANDS.

THE worst of seriously trying to develop the latent wealth of so vast a country as India is, that you hardly know where or how to begin. There is so much worth doing in all directions, while the means of doing anything considerable within a reasonable time are necessarily limited by a regard for pounds and shillings. More roads, railways, canals; more aids to intercourse with neighbouring countries; more outlay on cotton-fields, tea-gardens, forests, coal mines, cinchona; more efforts to reclaim wide areas of waste land, and to save good land from growing barren, make up a bewildering total of questions clamouring for early settlement. Rajpootana is a wilderness that was once a garden. The Ruin of Cutch was not always a great salt-marsh. Populous cities once flourished in the Sunderbunds. Assam might easily be transformed into a tea-planters' paradise. Want of proper irrigation retards the material progress of Southern and parts of Northern India. The trade of India would be vastly benefited by a road from some part of British Burmah to the south-western frontier of China. For these and such like purposes a hundred millions sterling would not go very far; but where is the market in which half that sum could be raised on the credit of an alien Government, which already taxes the people of India as much as it safely can, and spends a third of its yearly income on a doubtful insurance against a general revolt?

We are not therefore sanguine of an early attempt being made to grapple with the question of reclaiming the briny desert known as the Ruin of Cutch, to which Sir Bartle Frere drew the attention of men of science at the late meeting of the British Association. But an Indian officer, encouraged by Sir Bartle's remarks, has since unfolded in the Star a feasible-looking scheme for making money out of a district nearly as large as Wales. The Runn of Cutch, dividing the district of that name from Sindh, is for six months of the year a great salt lake, dotted with isles of rock, where a few wild asses manage to browse on the scattered tamarisk-shrubs. During the other six months these islands rise out of a broad sea of hard sand, encrusted all over with a glittering surface of crystallised salt. This Runn is probably the dried-up bottom of a large inland sea, whose upheaval to its present level has been caused by one of the earthquakes common in that part of India. That it is still overflowed during the monsoon is owing to the combined action of wind and rain, the former blowing across it the waters of the sea, mingled with the river-floods swollen by the latter. Except for the salt obtainable from its surface, the whole of this broad tract serves no other purpose than a resort for antelopes and wild asses. Once on a time however a considerable part of it seems to have been a fertile plain watered by a branch of the Indus until the Sindians cut off the waters of the river, and "Sayra" became a desert.

Be that as it may, the writer in question maintains the possibility of reclaiming the desert and bringing rivers of water into the dry place at a cost by no means serious. He would first cut off the present influx of sea-water from the Gulf of Cutch by means of dykes, and then flood the Runn with fresh water from the Bunnas and Loonee streams on its northern border. Other embankments should be thrown up to form broad highways between Guzerat, Kattiawar, Cutch, and Sindh; all intercourse between those several districts being at present cut off even in the dry season by the almost utter absence of fresh water in the Runn. All the manual labour needed for these ends could be obtained in plenty from the adjacent provinces. The opening out of a direct highway from Sindh to Guzerat would alone go far to justify the cost of its construction. A regular supply of fresh water for irrigation might easily be assured by leading a canal from the Indus down to Lovegaum in Guzerat; the excavated earth forming the roadway. In this way a marvellous transformation might in a few years be brought about at an outlay certainly not exceeding £2,000 a-mile. An unhealthy swamp would speedily become green with grass, and in due time the meadows might be taught to bear rich crops of rice, cotton, sugar-cane, and even corn. Such is the prospect set out before us, and very tempting is the look it wears. If the Indian Government has too many irons in the fire already to think of undertaking this venture also, could it not persuade some of the native princes in that part of India to lay out some of their hoarded treasures on a work so likely to benefit themselves?

At the opposite side of India may be found a wilderness of nearly the same dimensions, but of a different character. Unlike the Runn of Cutch, the Sunderbunds are a broad tract of overgrown jungle, intersected everywhere by a multitude of streams, and tenanted chiefly by swarms of tigers and other wild beasts. Once on a time a number of cities stood where nothing can now be seen but dense jungle, useful only for building boats and supplying Calcutta with firewood and charcoal. It is certain that human life once stirred busily in solitude long since given over to tigers, buffaloes, and deer. From time to time attempts have been made to reclaim the outskirts of this desolate region, but from one cause and another they have ended in failure. With his usual shrewdness Lord Dalhousie in 1853 started one more scheme for abating the gigantic nuisance of a wilderness whose rank, poison-teeming jungles "spread disease and death over the whole country." The paramount object, he declared, in issuing grants of waste land in the Sunderbunds, was not to improve the revenue, but "to effect a clearance of that pestilent jungle in the shortest possible period, and to remove the stigma which most justly attaches to the existence of such a nuisance almost within sight of the capital." Fifteen years have passed, and the Sunderbunds are still in effect as crying an evil and as unexplored a waste as ever. Can nothing be done here also to counteract a growing danger, and to guide Nature's careless fertility into a safer and more profitable channel? With a soil fit to grow anything, and a water-power unmatched elsewhere, how long is the great delta of the Ganges to remain a paradise for beasts of prey, instead of adding one more province to the wealthiest of our Indian possessions?

RE-ORGANISATION OF THE MADRAS ARMY.

The Madras Times observes that the officers of the old Indian army are fast passing away from the scene, and the question the authorities would do well to ask themselves in time is this, "Where is the reserve to come from to replace those now with the native army when they are expended?" Captains may now do the work of Adjutant, Quarter-master, and Wing Subaltern, but, when the present supply is used up, or should the emergency arise, and a sudden call be made for officers to serve with the native army, where are they to be found? Officers for this particular work are not made in a month or two, or even in a year, nor can they be had "to order." The return, then, to some system of regimental promotion appears to be absolutely necessary if the native army is ever expected to take the field; and the sooner young officers are sent out from England and posted to regiments, as of old, the better for the army and for them. Service with European troops invariably engenders a dislike to serve with natives, and this feeling, which is perfectly natural, need occasion no surprise. That such would be the case was clearly pointed out by the late Sir James Outram in his very able minutes on the amalgamation of the two services in 1861. Another great advantage of the four battalion system would be the retention of one of the four at the regimental depot, where men could be enlisted, drilled, and equipped, and then passed on to those on service. The depots formed in 1857 have left their marks to this day upon the Madras native army, and if we pass down the rear rank of a native corps and pick out every stunted, wretched specimen of humanity carrying a musket whom we shall find there, and inquire where he enlisted, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred the reply will be "at the depots." The very name "depot wallah" has in some corps become synonymous with that of an undersized weakly private, and a term of reproach. We remember hearing of one regiment on service in Burmah, in 1858, which received among a draft of men, a father and two sons, all of course under twenty-two years of age, of the regulated height, &c., and all chucklers! Now a thing of this kind would not be likely to occur where one battalion of a regiment was recruiting for any of the others. Knowing that they might be called on to serve with any one of the four battalions, the officers would be careful to enlist only eligible men, and not the stunted incapables who were taken into the service in 1857-1858, many of whom still remain to delight the eyes of reviewing and other officers. The numerical strength of a native regiment in the present day is very small. Six hundred privates with sixteen native commissioned and eighty-one non-commissioned officers make up the complement of fighting men, and what with men sick in hospital, sick absent, on furlough, on guard, and at drill, it is not often that more than 400 can be got together for parade purposes; and very small indeed such a corps looks on the ground either in line or column. Even were it possible to send the whole 600 privates of a regiment as at present constituted into the field, it would not be long before this number became so reduced by sickness, death, and other causes as to render the corps a mere skeleton, and consequently very inefficient. Major Chesney points all this out very clearly, and fully demonstrates the want of elasticity of the present system. While his scheme does not necessitate any present increase in the number of officers or men, it opens up a way whereby the army can be increased in a very short time, and without any of those objections which could reasonably be urged against the depot system of 1857.

THE FAMINE IN UPPER INDIA.

The Englishman holds that notwithstanding the favourable reports sent in by the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces to the Government, the special reports sent in by the collectors to the Famine Relief Committee by no means indicate much present improvement in the condition of the people. At nearly all the principal towns the price of grain was rising, and additional relief works would have to be opened at some towns where none had previously been required. The greatest sufferers hitherto have been the agricultural population, but now that the rain has enabled them to commence work in the fields, their places have more than been supplied by the mechanics and artificers who cannot obtain food at its present high rates. At Bareilly a committee has undertaken to provide work for 500 persons in clearing tanks, &c., 1,000 are to be provided with work at the Central Jail, and 3,000 on the Bareilly and Besulpoor Road. The Nerwadhia Road will furnish employment for another thousand, the road to Budson for a similar number, and the Besulpoor Road for the same. Five hundred persons will also be employed in cleaning the drains in the city, and one thousand in filling in and levelling the old brick kilns near the city. As no relief works were before necessary at Bareilly this shows to what an extent the distress has suddenly risen in the city, as 6,000 of the people to be employed are residents of Bareilly itself. The Municipal Octroi Tax on grain has been abolished, and poor-houses opened for the aged and infirm. At Jhansie in the week ending the 15th of July 46,092 persons were relieved, at Lullutpore 51,914, and at Bijour, during the following week, 13,095. The total expenditure by the Relief Committee up to the present time has amounted to Rs. 107,510-2-10.

DESTITUTE EUROPEANS.

The Bombay Gazette thinks that the off-hand style in which the Supreme Government allows destitute Europeans to be shovelled into Bombay, and then repudiates its liability to supply a fair contribution in cash towards their shelter and sustenance, would be laughable if the subject were not so grave. Here is the Strangers' Home nearly bankrupt and utterly destitute, with, yesterday, ninety men under its roof and fifteen rupees in the treasury! Its credit with the treasurers is exhausted, for the treasurers have advanced some five thousand rupees, and wisely refrain from advancing any more. The charitable public has subscribed Rs. 70,882 in four years, and kept the institution in bare life; has, in fact, helped, and willingly helped, the Government to do its duty by flinging this "benevolence" into the treasury. Our own Local Government, face to face with the facts, knowing the extent of the evil, is quite willing to parry it, and, anticipating the sanction of the Supreme Government to a regular annual grant of Rs. 10,000, paid Rs. 500 of public money into the coffers of the Home. What does the Supreme Government do? It sanctions the advance of Rs. 5,000, but refuses to pay up arrears, and coolly proposes to grant in future a sum only equal to that which may be subscribed by the public! This is reversing the proper order. Private charity is the supplement; the fund contributed by the State should be the main body of support. For the amount derived from the State Treasury could be relied on, would be a certain income; the amount derived from the public must be uncertain. Even if we admitted, which we do not, that all the destitute Europeans, deserving and undeserving, should be supported by private charity, it might still be urged that Bombay does not supply all the destitute. They flow in—they are sent in from all quarters; and it is unjust to throw the whole burden on Bombay. We are far from wishing to stop the current of charity; on the contrary, we admire the motives and applaud the acts of those who have aided the Strangers' Home. But considering the perverse view taken by the Supreme Government, it is worth reflecting whether charity should not cease until Government is disposed to take a less incorrect view of its duties. Why do not our Olympian legislators pass a Vagrancy Law, and bring the whole question into a manageable shape. The men destitute from no fault of their own ought to be separated and differently treated from the inveterate loafer; and all, if possible, should be required to work. The Government may be sure that the public will do its part if they will do theirs. A strong memorial or appeal has been sent in to the local Government, whose goodwill and sound sense are known; and we trust it will be forwarded to Simla, accompanied by a special request that the Supreme Government will reconsider its harsh decision.

OUT OF EVIL COMETH GOOD.

The Friend of India remarks that since famine began towards the close of last year, the Government has spent some five lakhs of rupees on roads and irrigation works, on which 20,000 starving poor have been employed every day. Including military buildings, a sum of more than eight lakhs has been spent in the first six months of this year. The Government of India has increased the number of executive engineers under Major Forlong from two to six, and has doubled the estimated expenditure for which he asked in his first scheme. The principal chiefs of Rajpootana have now been induced to make grants for roads. The Maharajah of Oodeypore has given Rs. 170,000 for the current year, and has promised Rs. 60,000 next year. The Jodhpore chief has asked Government to construct the whole of the Agra and Ahmedabad road through his territories for 105 miles, and a branch of forty miles to his capital, and promises to pay the cost, or 7½ lakhs, at the rate of a lakh of rupees a year, less the twenty per cent. always given by Government on such grants. Thus from Neemuch and Mount Abo in the south for three hundred miles to the north, Rajpootana will be opened up by roads, while proper public buildings are being erected. The unfortunate residents will not much longer be forced to drive about in cow-carts over the sandy tracts which even in the stations are called roads, or to wander from station to station over pathless plains and rugged hills on camels, with guides running before them. Soon the railway will pierce the province, and ten years hence its most inaccessible parts will be as much within reach of Bombay and Agra as any portion of the North-West. The moment the lines to be followed by the railways from Agra and Delhi to Jeypore and Neemuch, and from Nemuch to the West, have been fixed, a larger system of roads must be planned. With a Chief Commissioner to itself under the Government of India, Rajpootana should gradually rise to the level of more favoured provinces. Meanwhile it still suffers; the famine has been so sore, the loss of cattle so great, and the emigration so extensive, that it will be some time till prosperity returns. Still the labour gangs are large. We lately represented the existence of some injustice to the labourers on the part of the contractors. We are now informed that everything is done to prevent abuses. No one has been sent away from the works, and the pay of a feeble person, with wife and child, rises from three to six annas a-day as they become fitted by food for ordinary task-work. Much of the future of Rajpootana will depend on the conduct of its chiefs, to whom ryots are wealth, and who are beginning to understand what enlightened self-interest means.

RAMPORE.—We learn from Rampore that his Highness the Nawab has been plunged in grief by the death of his daughter on the 28th July. She was a gifted young lady, and very pious, having learnt the Alkoran by heart.—Indian Daily News.

PETITION OF THE OFFICERS OF THE ROYAL (LATE BENGAL, MADRAS, OR BOMBAY) ARTILLERY.

TO THE MOST HONOURABLE THE HOUSE OF COMMONS IN PARLIAMENT ASSEMBLED.

The Petition of —

HUMBLY SHEWETH,—Your petitioner is a member of her Majesty's Royal Regiment of Artillery, but formerly belonged to the Hon. East India Company's Artillery Regiment serving in the Presidency of —.

In the year 1862 your petitioner was invited to volunteer in writing for general service in the Royal Artillery, he being assured by the terms of the invitation that if he did so all privileges which he enjoyed as an officer of the Hon. East India Company's army would be guaranteed to him.

At the time your petitioner, influenced by this promise volunteered for service in the Royal Artillery, her Majesty's Indian Staff Corps had been established about a year, the conditions of entry into it being as follows:—

After passing certain examinations in the languages, &c.,—

To obtain the rank of captain, twelve years' service, four having been on the staff of the army, were necessary.

To obtain the rank of major, twenty years' service, with six years' staff service.

To obtain the rank of lieutenant colonel, twenty-six years' service, with eight years' staff service.

Your petitioner need not point out to your most Hon. House that to the great majority of officers of the late Indian artillery, whose service had been altogether regimental, such conditions were simply prohibitory, and they had in consequence no choice but to volunteer for general service. In the year 1866 her Majesty's Secretary of State for India removed these restrictions upon the Indian staff corps service in the following words [vide despatch of Oct. 1866]:—"Every officer of the Indian army who entered the service previous to Sept. 20, 1858 (when the Hon. East India Company's Government ceased to exist by an Act of Parliament) shall have the right of election to enter the staff corps." Your petitioner deeply regrets to state that, in spite of the promise upon which he volunteered for service in the Royal Artillery, viz., that his privileges as an Indian officer should be guaranteed to him, the Secretary of State for India declared, upon a reference being made to him, that your petitioner "had ceased to be an Indian officer," and upon this illegal decision was grounded an act of injustice, the redress of which forms the subject of this prayer to your most Hon. House. Your petitioner alludes to the invidious exclusion of the officers of the Indian artillery from the right of election to enter the Indian staff corps, accorded to the remainder of the Indian army in 1866, in consequence of petitions presented before your most Hon. House. Your petitioner respectfully begs to point out that such exclusion, besides being, as your petitioner firmly believes, contrary to the intention of your most Hon. House in the redress of the grievances of Indian officers, and deficient both in legality and equity, could not have been grounded upon any proposed benefit to the public service, but on the contrary materially injures it by depriving the staff of the Indian army of the services of officers peculiarly educated and fitted for staff service.

To sum up, therefore, your petitioner states,—

1st. That the fact of his having elected for general service in 1862, on certain conditions, cannot do away with the fact of his being an officer in the Hon. East India Company's service previous to September, 1858, and therefore debar him from the choice offered to all such officers but himself.

2nd. If the choice of unrestricted entry into the staff corps had been offered to your petitioner at the time he was offered service in the Royal Artillery, he would have preferred the former.

3rd. That the choice of unrestricted entry into the staff corps has been offered to the officers of the late Hon. East India Company's infantry establishment, and should, therefore, in common justice, be offered to their artillery.

4th. Your petitioner's agreement to serve in the Royal Artillery was grounded upon the guarantee given him that his privileges as an Indian officer should not "cease," and some of those privileges, as pension, military, and orphan funds, &c., have in fact been continued to him; he therefore prays your most Hon. House that the choice of unrestricted entry into the staff corps, accorded to other branches of the late Hon. East India Company's army, on their transfer to the Crown, be not, against the precepts of law and equity, denied to him.

THE ALBERT LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY.— PROCEEDINGS AT CALCUTTA.

On Wednesday, the 18th August, the committee representing the policy-holders in the Albert Life Assurance Society met the members of the local board of direction by request. The object was to ascertain to what extent the position of the policy-holders had been prejudiced by the proceedings of the Board. The position taken up by the board on the other hand was, that they had done everything in their power, as far as their position allowed them, to protect the interests of the Indian assurers, and to maintain intact in India a fund sufficiently strong to meet all the probable liabilities of the Indian branch. The meeting extended over two hours and a-half. The directors instructed the manager, Mr. C. H. Ogbourne, to read certain extracts from their proceedings, and from their correspondence with the head office. From this it appeared that from 1861, inclusive, a sum of £220,000 had been withdrawn from India by the home board, and that a further sum of £50,000 had been paid in England on what might be termed the company's Indian account, thus bringing the total derived from the India branch up to £270,000. Against these enormous withdrawals the Calcutta board had protested repeatedly, and in the very strongest terms. Indeed, on 16th February last they wrote a letter reviewing the whole question, and declaring that unless the understanding came to in October, 1866, was adhered to, and the Indian fund kept at £100,000, invested in Government securities, they would resign, and published their reasons for taking so important a step, and one so certain to prejudice the company in the eyes of the public. They next went over their relations with Mr. Neale, and fully explained how it was that they consented to his withdrawing a sum of £40,000 from the Indian surplus funds. Mr. Neale came out, it appears, armed with full powers, and if he had not been allowed to withdraw the £40,000—and he was only allowed to do so under stringent terms and conditions—he might have withdrawn all the funds. The directors throughout acted under the opinion of the Advocate-General. The Indian branch has now invested in Government securities more than 7½ lakhs of rupees, and in addition it holds at the different agencies securities, not immediately convertible, to the extent of some two or three lakhs; so that the assets of the Indian branch exceed, if anything, £100,000. The directors, finally, read a resolution in which they strongly condemned the conduct of Mr. Neale, and expressed their indignation at the course he had pursued, and concluded by declaring their intention of immediately publishing and circulating to every policy-holder a pamphlet embodying the explanations made to the committee and containing the extracts which had been read.

This course met with the hearty approval of the committee, who then proceeded to pass the following resolutions:—

Resolved—"That after the explanations afforded by the Calcutta board, and their statement that they consider themselves no longer directors of the Indian business, the inquiry committee solicit the gentlemen forming the late Calcutta board will be good enough to continue their services, in conjunction with Mr. Ogbourne, in the interests of the policy-holders, until relieved by some one properly authorised by the Court of Chancery."

The second resolution was as follows:—

Resolved—"That the policy-holders be recommended to continue to pay their premia to any two of the following gentlemen, viz., S. A. Apcar, Esq., G. M. Blacker, Esq., Baron Dowleau, F. G. Eldridge, Esq., M. Rustomjee, Esq., C. Sanderson, Esq., who have consented to receive the same as trustees for the policy-holders, subject to the money so received being returned to the latter in the event of no satisfactory arrangements being carried out for the resuscitation of the company, or its amalgamation with some approved office."

The premia to be paid at No. 5, Chowringhee, and all remittances to be forwarded to "the trustees of the policy-holders."

We are sure the policy-holders will be satisfied with this result, and in knowing that the committee are earnestly considering the best practical steps to be taken for their protection. We have been asked to mention that funds are urgently needed, and we feel sure that the policy-holders will not object to contribute to the moderate extent asked for by the committee, viz., two rupees for each thousand rupees assured.—Englishman.

According to the Indian Daily News, the announcement of the suspension of business by the Albert Life Office occasioned, for a time, something like a little panic in the city. Some considered it the greatest blow that had fallen upon Indian society since the failure of the Agra Bank. Others thought it worse than that, as the class of people who make provision in like offices have generally no means to accumulate money in banks and have no means of again making a start in the world. Others, again, are too old to pay the high Indian premiums on fresh assurances; and altogether the case is a lamentable one. Many policies are also held as securities for loans; and in these cases loss and possibly trouble will result.

STATION TALK.

MOOLTAN, Aug. 9.—Such a violent rainstorm as that which suddenly burst over us between three and four this morning I have seldom if ever witnessed before. It continued descending in torrents for almost two hours without any cessation, and daybreak revealed the whole place more or less under water. The damage to house property must have been very considerable, but I have been unable to ascertain the amount, owing to an inability to leave the compound, which is one vast sheet of water, two feet deep! There is no doubt that a great change has come over Mooltan in this respect during the last few years, and the rainfall is steadily increasing each year. I had been informed by respectable native residents of the place that in former days sometimes two and three years would come and go with scarcely any rain to speak of. The change is undoubtedly owing to increased irrigation.

MUSSOORIE, Aug. 14.—Notwithstanding our nice weather the prices of the common necessities of life have risen. Atta is to-day, 14th, selling in the bazaar at 7½ seers the rupee; rice (coarse), 6 seers, fine rice, 5 seers; flour, 6 seers; gram, 8 seers. These articles were not dearer than they are now during the famine of 1860-61. We may imagine the pressure prices like the above have on the poorer classes of the native community. Surely with the present price of provisions in the N.W.P., and no real certainty of speedy relief, the Government have more important and far more serious matter to consider and legislate upon than arranging for the great Dmbar. I may mention that Mussoorie is, and has been, so far this season, remarkably healthy, though the very crowded state of the bazaars would almost appear to invite disease and sickness.

UMRITSUR, Aug. 16.—You will have probably received authentic accounts of the dire progress of our plague, and of its having carried off two men in the fort of Govindghur. The most stringent precautions are being taken there to prevent, if possible, the further ravages of the disease. There are several barracks in the former cantonment, and these have been thoroughly fumigated and put in order for the reception of the men should it be ultimately found necessary to remove as many as may with safety to the place be removed from the fort. You may possibly have seen or heard of some strong correspondence, and the action taken thereon by the authorities as to the absolute necessity of preventing the cultivation of high crops and of rice within municipal boundaries. It was an absolute mania with some people, and the most positive orders were given on the subject. I certainly think rice cultivation objectionable within a given distance of a large population so easily affected by malaria as that of Umrtsur; but do not individually consider high crops injurious to the degree assumed by others. But these are the orders which have, I believe, received the countenance of the Lieutenant-governor. Well, would you believe it, that in the face of these orders, and to show how carefully the health of the population is looked after, I found in my wanderings through the town on Saturday morning, several large patches of Indian corn and similar cultivation in the very centre of the place, one a very extensive one, under the care of one of the honorary magistrates! I saw localities totally uncared for and unlooked after that are simply and literally hot beds of sickness and death, for it is near one of them that the cholera broke out with the greatest virulence in the Ramghurrea Kutra. I saw a tank named Pelum Dass ke Talao, in which, though pukka (no outlet), the water was so fetid that the people of the neighbourhood considered it unsafe to bathe in it. I did see three men washing themselves on the steps, but they alleged they had nowhere else to go. You will probably hear a good deal more from these parts, for the state of affairs is creating a general feeling of indignation.

LUCKNOW, Aug. 16.—The station is very quiet just now, and it is difficult to make up a letter for the Delhi. However, I will take, as Owen Meredith says, a "little look across the crowd" of Lucknow, and see what I can do for you. What do I find in the first place, why, that cholera has nearly if not altogether left the troops; it is said to be still in the city, but not to any very great extent; the 62nd are yet in camp, but doing comparatively well. Colonel Barrow, financial commissioner, has left for the hills; he was escorted to the station by the talo-kdars, the talookdaree band playing as the train moved off "Thou art gone from our gaze," &c. Mr. Currie has taken his place. Major McAndrew has stepped into the Commissionership of Lucknow, and Mr. Harrington, settlement officer, has succeeded Major McAndrew. Lieut. Currie, the assistant secretary to the Chief Commissioner, has got the city magistracy, and his post is filled by Lieutenant Horsford. Descending to the shades, we find Mr. Sharpe, traffic manager O. and R. Railway, has resigned, and is likely to be succeeded by a Mr. Conroy. Sir Maun Singh's illness has, they say, ended in insanity, and that his estates have been put under the Court of Wards, doubtless to the disgust of those who persist in his being all right in the attic. Surely it is not difficult to have the point settled. I saw some letters in the Delhi lately about a little insect which appears in the rains with red velvety body, and which some call the Indian cochineal. If you turn up your file for 1856 you will find some account of the little fellows written by an old contributor (N*) of yours which may be interesting to your correspondent. Grain very dear; gram has risen to 11 seers per rupee. A visitor to Cawnpore informed me that the starving poor of Jhansi are flocking into that station.

MORAR, Aug. 17.—The country continues to look green, and cholera in the city of Gwalior, where it appears to have been as bad as at Umrtsur, has moderated—such is the intelligence brought by a well-informed party who visited the Lashkur yesterday. The descriptions given of the filth in the city transcend belief. His Highness the Maharajah had gone lately to a country residence some distance off for change of air, but has now returned to the capital. The cholera camp is not yet struck, but nothing particular on the subject has reached me; the fell disease made its appearance in the fortress, and there were a few casualties among the troops during the past week. Prices of grain on the 13th inst.: Wheat, 8 seers 6 chittacks; gram, 8 seers 10 chittacks. To-day, the 16th: Wheat, 7 seers 8 chittacks; gram, 7 seers 12 chittacks. These are the prices, I believe, of the best qualities—a rather gloomy prospect for people earning four and five rupees a-month; good grain is difficult to be had, owing to the enormous destruction by drought; butter makes a good substitute for those who can afford the expense of it. A good many people have been leaving lately, some on medical certificate and some on privilege leave.

AJMERE, Aug. 17.—The distress here is very great. Atta is selling at 4½ seers the rupee, barley at 5½ ditto. The rain seems to have come to an end; everything is beginning to look brown and burnt up again. What will be done if all this continues, goodness only knows, hardly a soul will be left alive. As it is, even, whether the rain comes or not, distress will increase steadily for the next few months. It is dreadful to see the state of nearly every one belonging to the lower classes. Gaunt, wretched, and emaciated to the last degree, they look as if death would be welcome to them. Whatever can be done, is done, "but what is that among so many?" The famine sheds are not at present crowded, as most of the foreigners started for their homes on the first fall of rain. The worst of these famine sheds is, that they do not relieve the very portion of the community that ought to be helped. We most of us know the objection that the respectable poor at home have to the work-house, and how they prefer almost any privation to going there; I really think it is worse in India. All the tramps and beggars of Ajmere and the neighbouring districts flock to the sheds, but the saddest part of the famine is not, I fear, yet known. If Government will persist in not interfering with the bunnias, why can it not do the same as several native States have done, viz., buy an enormous quantity of grain and sell it at a fixed rate? This of itself would bring the bunnias to their senses. There is plenty of grain concealed in the district, but these worthies will not bring it in, and sit placidly looking on at their countrymen dying by inches. Free-trade sounds well, but in a crisis like this, and with the class of men it protects, it is simply a curse. I do not advocate oppression, but while there are pits full of grain all over the place, these blackguards ought not to be allowed to raise the rate beyond a certain point, to be fixed by the authorities. The bunnias would not lose by this, they simply would not gain so much. It is a sad mistake to sacrifice thousands of lives to a theory, and Government will find this out when it is too late.—Delhi Gazette Correspondent.

Miscellaneous.

CIVIL.—A deputy magistrate in Bengal has lately been degraded says the Pioneer, for sending in fictitious returns of the examination and discharge of witnesses. It seems this officer was accustomed to discharge them punctually enough in the first instance, but only to summon them again and again later on.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.—The superintending engineer of the Orissa Circle on the 2nd July reported to the Government of Bengal the successful opening of the Kendrapara Canal from Cuttack to tide-water. By means of this canal Cuttack is now connected with the port of False Point, and will be accessible at all times of the year from the seaboard. The canal is available for steamers of small size.

FANCY BALL AT CALCUTTA.—Referring to a state fancy dress ball to be given in Government-house, Calcutta, during the visit of his Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh, the Englishman says:—"The arrangements are likely to be on a scale of unusual magnificence. No uniforms will be allowed, except to officers over fifty-five years of age, and the ball will be a general fancy dress one, and not one confined to any particular period."

THE AGRA DURBAR.—Colonel W. Roberts, v.c., Assistant Quarter-Master General at army head-quarters, who was to have started for Agra in the middle of August, for the purpose of selecting and laying out camping ground for the troops during the projected durbar, has been directed to delay his departure till further orders. It has been determined to suspend all preparations for the assemblage of troops, or in other words for the durbar, until the prospects of the coming rain crops are more secure.

DOUBTFUL ECONOMY.—The Duke of Argyll has, we are glad to hear, risen from the petty grievances of the uncovenanted service to a sense of the dignity and responsibility of his own high position. He has accordingly desired "that the consumption of quill pens should be curtailed and that of steel pens proportionately increased." All the superior officers of Government have been accordingly directed to make a careful inquiry as to this momentous matter.—Pioneer.

A RAJAH WITH MANY NAMES.—The Maharajah of Jeypore, like Miss Angelina Wilhelmina Amelia Skeggs, has a name one dwells on fondly. We learn it from the Gazette of India, which informs us that "His Excellency the Governor-General is pleased to nominate his Highness Saranadi Rajah Hindostan Raja Rajendra Sri Maharaja Dmraj Sival Ram Singa Bahadur, K.C.S.I., of Jeypore, to be an additional member of the Council of the Governor-General for the purpose of making laws and regulations only."

THE LATE SIR H. LAWRENCE.—It will be generally interesting to know that Lady Edwardes has completed, and is on the point of publishing, the "Life of Sir Henry Lawrence," which was left in an unfinished state by her lamented husband. It is hoped that she may be induced to undertake also a memoir of the great and good man whose name she bears. In this view, we are desirous to state, that if any gentleman will kindly forward any letters, anecdotes, or reminiscences of the late Sir Herbert Edwardes, either to Major J. B. Urnston, Murree, Punjab, or to Lady Edwardes herself, care of Messrs. H. S. King and Co., 65, Cornhill, London, the service will be gratefully acknowledged.—Pioneer.

CHOLERA AT UMRITSUR.—A telegram from Umritsur informs the Delhi Gazette that the deaths from cholera there were 104 on the 13th, 101 on the 14th, and ninety-six on the 15th August.

ECCLESIASTICAL.—We see the announcement of the death, from cholera, of the Rev. M. W. Hime, Garrison Chaplain at Jhansie.—We regret to learn of the death of the Rev. Mr. Henry, missionary, at Lahore, on the 16th of August, of cholera, after about eight hours illness.

DACOITIES.—The Englishman hears from the Soonderbuns that dacoities have by no means ceased with the arrest of Pootee Ghazee and his gang. Several are reported to have taken place in the last month, in one of which three men are said to have been killed, one of them having had his arm cut completely off by a blow from a tulwar. The latest rumour is that a large native landholder affords shelter and encouragement to the dacoits.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.—The Lahore paper, in welcoming Major Macleod Innes back to the Punjab, says:—"It is probable that he will not for the present resume his appointment of Controller of Public Works Accounts, now filled by Colonel W. Smith, but act for Colonel Drummond, as under Secretary in the Railway Department, on his taking furlough to England. Mr. Conway Gordon will probably be appointed as Consulting Engineer to Government on the State Railway to Peshawur; and no better appointment could be made, as Mr. Gordon's energy and ability are well known to Government, and the State railway will, to all appearance, be the better for an infusion of both."

PORT CANNING COMPANY.—The Calcutta papers find it necessary, after certain surmises they made, to explain that Mr. Swinhoe, the late chairman of the Port Canning Company, has not gone to Bombay, but had left Calcutta for a few days on a visit to his property in the Soonderbuns, a movement which was construed into a flight to Bombay for purposes foreign to the interests of the company. One of the papers asserts that Mr. Swinhoe "has no intention of creating any division among the shareholders of the Port Canning Company," but resigned his seat at the board, because his views regarding the management of its affairs did not coincide with those of the other directors.

RESULTS OF MILITARY LABOUR.—The Sanitary Commissioner, with the Government of India, bears testimony to the happy results of the Commander-in-Chief's experiment of employing European troops in large numbers on the construction of hill roads. The officer in command of one large detachment, consisting of about 650 men, thus engaged during the hot season of the past year reports:—"The moral, physical, and pecuniary advantages to the men cannot be over-estimated. Their behaviour was excellent, and they manifested great interest in the works." The Sanitary Commissioner, however, is of opinion, and the Government of India in the Military Department concurs in it, that this employment is useful only as a prophylactic, not as a curative measure, and that only already healthy men should be applied to such duties.

OUR COTTON EXPORTS.—The three ports of Western India, or Bombay, Carwar and Kurrachee, exported 1,294,291 bales of cotton last year. Although the crop suffered from drought and blight, the export was the largest ever sent, being somewhat greater than in the preceding year, which again showed a considerable increase on its predecessor. The increase is likely to go on so long as dhollera keeps above 10d. a pound. The area under cultivation was 2,165,714 acres. The export from all India in 1868-69 was 697,630,796 lbs., against 614,056,049 in the preceding year. Against a possible reduction in price hereafter we may fairly set the continued improvement in the cultivation and preparation for the market. But this will be secured only by an improved Act to prevent adulteration. The penal provisions of the present Bombay Act are so insufficient that the Commissioners report adulteration and fraud as on the increase. The Bombay Government has expressed its satisfaction with the results of the markets established to promote fair dealing, and of the systematic experiments to improve the cultivation.—Friend of India.

CIS-SUTLEJ STATES.—The Punjab Government have appointed a commission to examine into the state of things at Puttialah, under the Agent, General Reynell Taylor. The members will be Mr. James Macnabb, C.S., Major Tighe, and Mr. J. W. Smyth, C.S., and the Commission will meet at once. We trust sincerely that the Commission will be directed by Government to inquire, not alone into the subject of the Puttialah administration, but also into that of Malair Kotlah and Nabha. We consider that in the whole of India there is no subject on which a commission is more necessary than the direction of the Cis-Sutlej States, by General Reynell Taylor. His maladministration has become a burthen too grievous to be borne; the honour of the princes under his charge has been diminished or destroyed; whilst he is notoriously in the hands of men who, if the interests of the Cis-Sutlej States were considered, should be banished to the South of the Jumna. General Taylor is a fine cavalry officer, and an honourable well-meaning man; but, from the time that the English have been connected with Upper India, there is no man who has done more to ruin our good name, and to turn loyal and honest allies into discontented intriguers and traitors than he.—Indian Public Opinion.

MILITARY.—A correspondent writes to the Delhi Gazette from Morar, on the 12th inst.—"I am sorry to say cholera is again prevalent here, and in the fortress of Gwalior. The wife of Lieutenant Stoddart succumbed last night, and Dr. Hales, whose exertions have been most unremitting, is dangerously ill. These cases occurred in the fortress. At head-quarters two companies are in camp."—At Jhansie cholera has entered cantonments, we regret to learn. The Reverend M. W. Hime, the Garrison Chaplain, one man and three children of the 93rd, died on Saturday, Sunday, and Monday last. One man, a woman, and a child of the 93rd detachment at Sepree have also died.—Delhi Gazette, August 14.—A correspondent informs the Pioneer that the cases of cholera amongst Europeans (military), but including wives and children of soldiers, amounted on the 8th August to 238, at the following stations:—Allahabad, Jubbulpore, Saugor, Lucknow, Seetapore and Morar,—of which 202 were fatal. Of these deaths nearly half, viz., 86, we are told, were at Allahabad alone.—A 22 Royal Artillery, commanded by Captain Manderson, now stationed at Jutog, has been ordered to march so as to arrive by the 15th November at Umballa, where a trial is to take place between the 7-pounder steels guns of the former battery and the 9-pounder Armstrongs of D Battery A Brigade Royal Horse Artillery, which is to be halted at Umballa, en route to Sealkote, for the purpose of carrying out the experiment.—Mofussilite.—The Delhi Gazette hears that Captain and Local Lieutenant-Colonel Hastings, of H.M.'s 1-6th Regiment, at Rawul Pindee, is likely to succeed to the command of the garrison at Attock on the departure of the present incumbent, Brevet Major Radcliffe, of the 88th Regiment, with his regiment for Bombay during the approaching cold season.—A rumour, the correctness of which is not vouched for, has reached the Englishman that Major the Hon. E. R. Bourke, the present Military Secretary to his Excellency the Viceroy, is likely to proceed to England shortly, and to be succeeded by Colonel Sir Seymour Blane.—Painful reports continue to be received from Lucknow regarding the health of the regiments quartered there; two or three are said to die every day in one or other of the corps.—The Lucknow Times has been "credibly informed" that in the 62nd Regiment no less than forty-five men had succumbed to the pestilence between the 1st and 18th of August. The 102nd Regiment is also said to have been losing some two or three every day.—The men of the 41st Regiment at Buxa are in very bad health from fever, and the death-rate has been very high since they arrived in January last. Every man has had to take an ounce of lime-juice per diem for some time.

CIVIL.—We regret to announce the death of Mr. H. Ryland, Deputy Collector and Magistrate of the Nowshera Districts, which melancholy event occurred on the 13th instant. We have not yet been informed of the immediate cause of the death of this lamented gentleman, but it is said to have been apoplexy.—Sind News, August 16.

MILITARY.—On the termination of his period of staff service as Assistant Adjutant-general, Royal Artillery, Colonel Wallace, C.B., has been highly eulogised by the Commander-in-Chief, Lord Napier of Magdala. His Excellency desires to record his appreciation of Colonel Wallace's "valuable services in the department of the Adjutant-general of the Army," and to offer him his acknowledgments and thanks for the assistance he has given, and "the zeal and judgment with which he has conducted his duties."

GRANT MEDICAL COLLEGE.—The project for a Guzerati Vernacular Class in the Grant Medical College is at last fairly moving forward. From correspondence exchanged between the Principal of the College and Mr. Cowasjee Jehangir, it will be seen that this gentleman has liberally aided the movement, which in turn will prove of great service in extending the usefulness of the Cowasjee Jehangir Hospital at Surat and other benefactions made from time to time by that gentleman for the benefit of Guzerat. The new vernacular class is also aided by the liberality of the following gentlemen, who each endow it with a scholarship of Rs. 10 per mensem—namely, the Honourables Munguldass Nathoobhoy, Byramjee Jeejeebhoy, and Mr. Kessowjee Naik. His Highness the Gaikwar, many of whose subjects will derive advantage from the services of the future students, has also generously sent Rs. 2,000 for the general purposes of the class.

THE SUPERSEDED COLONELS.—"Hiems" writes thus to the Times of India:—"The griefs of the British colonels are so affecting that I have been tempted to extract the melancholy roll from pp. 13 and 14 of the last Bombay Army List. I have excluded men of the Ordnance Corps. The first row of figures in each column shows the date of entering the service; the last row in each the number of years in the service in both cases:—

The afflicted will be seen by this comparative statement to have more than five years average advantage over the Indian colonels in this presidency. Moreover, they have not paid much more hard cash for their promotion, which cash they will receive again. That which the Indian colonels have invested in promotion is gone—gone as if flung into the sea, as far as prospective repayment goes. If the same test is applied to the generals in the Bombay list the same result will be found—this, namely, that the average length of service of the Indian generals is greater than that of the British generals. If, therefore, the colonels of the Indian service are regaining their former relative position as regards British colonels (which they are not by any means doing, as a rule), it is merely the fortune of war. Did they grumble when the Crimea sent boys, comparatively, in the British service over their heads? Not a bit of it. Let these then bide their time, and comfort themselves with the reflection that, as yet, they are at the top of the wheel, with an average five years before them ere they can fairly cry out that they are hurt.

A NARROW ESCAPE.—Captain Mignon and Lieutenant Cumberland, who occupy the same bungalow at Hyderabad, very nearly both of them lost their lives on Sunday night. Captain Mignon left his chair in the drawing-room and walked into the verandah. He had scarcely reached the verandah when the whole of the roof of the bungalow fell in with a great crash. The chair Captain Mignon had just left was smashed to atoms, and all the furniture in the room shared the same fate. Captain Cumberland had taken a chair into the verandah that evening—an unusual thing for him to do—and so escaped in the same way. It is a most singular and most providential circumstance that both gentlemen should have left the room as they did; and it is more particularly so, as at the time when the roof fell in (10.30 P.M.) they might have been caught in their beds. It appears the bungalow was injured by the late heavy rains, and in repairing the roof the workmen had piled on it a large quantity of materials, which caused the roof to give way.—Our Paper, Aug. 13.

MR. SHRIPAD BABAJI THAKUR.—We think that Mr. Shripad Babaji Thakur, the "rejected candidate" at the last Civil Service competition, whose case has excited so much interest both here and in England, very ill-advised to commit himself to the following statements, which we find in his memorial to the Civil Service Commissioners, reprinted in a late number of the Indu Prakash:—"That Shripad Babaji Thakur upon matriculation at the University made for himself no declaration of his age, nor was required to do so, and that he was and is ignorant of the statement of age made on his behalf. That there was much looseness in the practice concerning entries of this kind." We can only account to ourselves for the first statement by supposing that Mr. Shripad uses the word "declaration" in some technical sense, as equivalent to "solemn declaration" or "declaration on oath;" for nothing can be more certain than that Mr. Shripad did sign a printed letter of application to the Registrar of the University requesting permission to present himself at the then ensuing Matriculation Examination, and that his signature to this letter was written on a line which was the first of a dozen lines, and that the remaining eleven lines were filled up with particulars of his birthplace, birthday, father's occupation, and other information required for statistical purposes by the University. This information must have been filed in by himself or under his directions, and his signature on the first line must certainly be regarded as covering with its sanction all that followed. But "there was much looseness in the practice concerning entries" of age. This is a point on which there is much misapprehension. The facts are these. Up to the year 1863 the University, in the list of particulars already alluded to required to be given in by each candidate, only asked the "age." The vagueness of this requirement was found to cause considerable inconvenience, in consequence of the different methods of reckoning age employed by natives and Europeans. In the year 1864, accordingly, the University substituted for the indefinite entry, "age," the sufficiently definite one of "birthday according to Christian or native chronology." A native youth might be called sixteen, or only fifteen, according to the method of reckoning employed, but he could hardly have two birthdays. Now Mr. Shripad matriculated in the year 1864, and in that year the improved form was in use.—Bombay Educational Record.

GOVERNMENT GENERAL ORDERS.

THE CALCUTTA MINT.

Simla, July 31.—No. 2,323.—From R. B. Chapman, Esq., officiating secretary to the Government of India, financial department, to the Mint Master, Calcutta.

The comptroller-general of accounts has submitted to the Government of India your letter to his address, No. 250, dated July 3, and his reply upon the question as to how a manufacturing establishment like the Mint is, consistently with the "present stringent orders regarding Budget allotments," to be worked so as to produce the utmost profit to the State.

2. A cognate difficulty has been already raised in your remonstrances respecting the retrenchments from your Budget estimate by the Supreme Government. In my No. 1,726, dated June 30, 1869, you were told in reply that it was well understood that, the busier the Mint was, the greater would be the profit to the State, and that the Government would of course be glad at any time to provide funds to keep the Mint in full working power, in case the demand for its services should increase beyond the expectation of Government, as found when framing the Budget. The Budget estimate of a reproductive institution like the Mint is, in fact, only the best forecast that the Government can make of the probable expenditure upon it.

3. It would be plainly contrary to all economical principles if you or any officer in charge of a similar manufactory were to understand the Budget orders, as, by an ordinary limit of expenditure, preventing the profitable employment of the machinery at his disposal in the execution of authorised demands upon it. Such a misapplication of the Budget system would be wholly unjustifiable.

4. If at any time you should find yourself unable to meet demands for the services of the Mint which you could otherwise, in your opinion, profitably comply with, merely because your Budget provision is exhausted, it would be your obvious duty immediately to apply to the Government to replenish your funds; and in case of need you might even well take upon yourself the responsibility of forestalling the orders of the Government, which would, if the profit of the transactions were clear and immediate, be certainly favourable; for the increase of expenditure would be compensated by a still greater increase of receipts. The Budget system is not applicable to the expenditure of an establishment working for a profit, and which makes profits in proportion to the activity with which it is employed, in the same way as it is to the ordinary expenditure of the administration.

MEDICAL CIRCLES.

Simla, August 4.—No. 817.—With reference to G.G.O. No. 603, dated June 6, 1867, the following modifications in the circles of medical superintendence of the Indian medical service are authorised :—

The stations of Kurrantadhee (Buxar) and Arrah are transferred from the Allahabad to the Dinapore circle.

The station of Segowlie, from the Dinapore to the Allahabad circle.

REVENUE SURVEY DEPARTMENT.

No. 50.—The following promotions are made from the dates indicated :—
Messrs. T. D. Moran, 5th division, Lower Provinces, and J. N. Stoeke, 4th division, Lower Provinces, sub assistants 3rd grade, to 2nd grade, from Aug. 3.

Mr. R. C. Ewing, 6th division, Lower Provinces, sub assistant 4th grade, to 3rd grade, from June 9.

RAILWAYS.

Head Qrs., Simla, July 24.—No. 215.—In continuation of G.O. No. 191, of June 10, 1868, the C. in C. is pleased to direct that in all cases of troops proceeding by railway, a British officer is invariably to be present with the baggage of the troops at the railway station in such reasonable time before the departure of the trains as should ensure the baggage being properly weighed and loaded or packed in special vans, under the operation of G.O. No. 259, dated Aug. 17, 1868.

2. Officers will hereafter be held liable for all claims made by railway companies consequent on the neglect of this order.

3. In cases of difficulty or delay which may be experienced in getting the baggage weighed or packed owing to the backwardness or inactivity of the railway authorities, such should at once be reported to the officers superintending the despatch of the troops.

No. 216.—Inconvenience having been experienced owing to detachments, individual officer, soldier, &c., proceeding by railway, horse van dak, bullock train, &c., not being provided with passage warrants for the entire journey, despatching officers are, whenever practicable, to supply such warrants for the different requirements of this journey from stations of departure to destination.

Attention is also called to G.O. No. 31, dated Jan. 30, 1868, which directs that separate warrants are required to be furnished for the several lines of railway.

FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT—ACCOUNTS.

Simla, August 11.—No. 2,284a.—The following extract from a resolution passed by the Government of India in the financial department, No. 2,284, dated Simla, Aug. 11, 1869, is published for general information :—

Para. 3. The Right Hon. the Governor-general in Council is determined that, as far as it lies in his power, the ordinary expenses of the empire shall not for the future exceed by a single rupee the revenue of the year. If, from adverse circumstances, the income declines, the charges of every department must be proportionately reduced. Political and financial considerations of the highest importance are involved in this determination, and H.E. the Viceroy in Council has fully resolved to adhere to it.

4. The distribution of the Budget grants is based on a careful investigation and comparison of national requirements, and the Viceroy in Council is determined that the grants made shall, no matter at what inconvenience, be regarded as final, and shall neither be exceeded nor re-appropriated except under circumstances of peculiar exigency.

5. H.E. the Viceroy in Council expects the cordial support of every officer of the Government in carrying out a resolution which is so evidently a matter of political necessity, and which must commend itself to the judgment of every man who has given any thought to the financial position of this great empire.

6. The subordinate Governments are of course bound, as a primary duty, to use the most honest and rigid economy in the preparation of the estimates of their requirements; but it would be wholly impossible for the Government of India to promise that, even after that shall have been done, the entire estimates will be granted without scrutiny or retrenchment.

7. When, as is usually the case, the acceptance of the demands of the several subordinate administrations would create a large deficit, the Government of India has before it only two alternatives—to impose additional taxation, or to curtail the estimated expenditure.

8. It is one of the most important duties of the Supreme Government to decide which alternative shall be adopted; and if the latter, where, upon a comparison of the entire demands of the Empire, it is right and expedient to enforce the needful economy.

9. The circumstances appear to the Viceroy in Council to exclude the propriety of remonstrance against retrenchment by a subordinate administration, except upon the most undeniable grounds.

10. The completed accounts of the year 1867-68 show an actual excess of ordinary expenditure over ordinary income of no less than £1,007,695. The revenues of 1869-70 are expected to exceed the revenues of 1867-68 by £1,030,397, leaving a small margin of £52,702, which might be allowed for increase of expenditure in 1869-70 over 1867-68 consistently with the maintenance of an equilibrium. The military estimates, however, after the exercise of all possible economy, show an increase, as compared with 1867-68, of £246,533, and the ordinary charges of the Public Works Department show an increase of £50,781, so that the Government of India had to meet a net deficiency of £244,612, either by reducing the estimated civil expenditure by that amount, or by the actual expenditure of 1867-68, or by imposing additional taxation.

11. Having, in the exercise of its high functions, rejected this latter alternative, the Government of India distributed the deficit in the manner it deemed most fair and most expedient among the several subordinate Governments and administrations.

ABSENTEE ALLOWANCE, C.S.

Aug. 12.—No. 2,527.—With reference to paragraphs 3 to 8 of the despatch from the Secretary of State, in the judicial department, No. 19, dated Jan. 21 last, the Right Hon. the Governor gen. in Council is pleased to declare that the absence allowance of officers of the covenanted and uncovenanted civil services shall not, in the case of officers who may be granted leave after the date of this notification, in any case exceed the rate of Rs. 833-5-4 a-month, or £1,000 a-year. All provisions of absentee rules for a larger maximum allowance are hereby abrogated.

LEAVES—UNCOVENANTED SERVICE.

Aug. 12.—No. 2,575.—Extract from a resolution passed by the Government of India in the financial department on Aug. 12, 1869:—

“Para. 2.—With reference, however, to the second question of the P.W. department, the Governor gen. in Council observes that there is apparently no reason for maintaining a distinction between uncovenanted and other servants of Government in respect to the period for which they may be continuously absent from duty without severing their connection with the public service. H.E. in Council is, accordingly, pleased to rule that an uncovenanted servant, after a continuous absence from duty for five years, shall be considered to be out of the Government service.”

HYDERABAD SUBSIDIARY FORCE.

Simla, August 10.—No. 839.—The services of Major gen. G. De Sausmarez, of the Madras establishment, commanding the Hyderabad subsidiary force, are replaced at the disposal of the Government of Fort St. George for appointment to the divisional staff of that presidency.

It having been decided, subject to the sanction of the Right Hon. the Secretary of State for India, to make the Hyderabad subsidiary force a divisional command in place of the Ceded Districts, which will for the future, be a brigadier-general's command, H.E. the Governor-general in Council is pleased to appoint Major gen. R. Shubrick, commanding Ceded Districts, to command the Hyderabad subsidiary force, in succession to Major gen. De Sausmarez.

FURLONGS, &c., OF CHAPLAINS.

August 13.—No. 2,671.—Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India, in his despatch in the ecclesiastical department, No. 14, dated June 30 last, has signified his approval of the resolution of the Government of India in the financial department, No. 322, dated May 3 last, on certain points connected with the furlough and pensions of chaplains, published in the Gazette of India of May 8 last.

LOSS OF THE "CARNATIC."

The Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamer Carnatic left Suez for Bombay on Sunday, September 12, under the charge of Capt. P. B. Jones, R.N.R., an old and experienced officer of the company. She carried twenty-two first class passengers, twelve second, one native servant, and one child—in all thirty-seven. She had a general cargo from Liverpool, together with £38,000 in specie. A telegram received from Suez last Thursday states that at 1 A.M. on Monday the Carnatic was wrecked off the Island of Shadwan, near the entrance of the Red Sea from the Gulf of Suez, and the mails, specie, cargo, and baggage went down with the ship. The greater portion of the passengers and crew were landed on the island, and arrived at Suez in the Sumatra on Wednesday, but it is feared that twenty-nine persons perished. The Island of Shadwan is of some extent, with high land in the centre, and is about ten or twelve miles from the main land coast of Egypt. Whether the Carnatic was driven to it by stress of weather, or got ashore in a fog, is yet to be learnt. The charts of the Gulf state that the average depth round the island ranges from 40 to 120 fathoms. The Carnatic was built in 1862, of 1,254 tons register, with engines of 400-horse power. Her extreme length was 294 feet. Her crew, with officers, engineers, and waiters, numbered about eighty hands. The fate of those of the passengers and crew missing is doubtful. It is surmised they went down in the ship or were swamped in a boat as the vessel foundered. The Carnatic is valued at £80,000, which will be a loss to the company, as they are their own insurers. A fall of £2 took place on Friday in the company's shares. The cargo and specie were fully insured at Lloyd's and at Liverpool. The following is a list of the passengers saved:—Captain R. A. Cole, a native man servant, Major George Pearse, Mr. Stutz, Mr. Andracc, Miss F. R. Cameron, Mr. P. D. Alexander, Mr. T. J. Jeffery, Mr. J. F. Burkenshaw, Mr. W. Goad, Mr. A. Morton, Mr. Felstead, Mr. Haggerston, Mr. Lyne, Mr. Elton, Mr. Jones, Mr. Morrell, Mr. W. Martin, Mrs. Stewart and infant, Mrs. Flood, Mr. J. E. Gilliland, Major Champain, Mr. L. Clark, Mr. G. Preece, Mr. Taylor, Mr. Aspinall, Mr. W. P. Johnson, Mr. Preston, Mr. Hickson, Mr. W. C. Lauder, and Mr. C. Marks. The following are missing:—Passengers, Captain Pope, Mr. Pidding (Peninsular and Oriental service), Mr. Thompson, Mr. Warren, and Mr. Cuppage. Officers and crew, Mr. Ransford, surgeon; Mr. Gardner, purser; Mr. McIntosh, purser's clerk; Mr. Bogue, chief engineer; Mr. McColl (Mr. Caw?), fifth engineer; F. Fergusson, steward; Woods, Spratt, Harper, and fifteen natives.

The only mail on board was the Indian mail, which left London, via Southampton, on the 28th of August, and via Marseilles on the 3rd of September. Captain Pope (lost) was en route to join his regiment in India, as also was Mr. Cuppage, an ensign—the latter was son of Brigadier Cuppage. Mr. T. A. Thompson (lost) was a surgeon in the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation's service, and was proceeding to Bombay to join his ship. Mr. Warren was also in the company's service. A special officer of the London Salvage Association, Captain Grant, left London on Friday night with two divers for the scene of the wreck, to recover, if possible, the specie, or part of it.

The Peninsular and Oriental Company have since received the following telegram:—

"SUEZ, Sept. 18.

"Carnatic struck reef two miles north of Shadwan.
 "When left part of starboard bow and after foretopmast nearly level with the water and only visible.
 "Ship supposed to have parted amidships, and afterpart sunk in deep water.

THE ALBERT ASSURANCE COMPANY.

A joint meeting of the London committee and provincial committees of policy-holders was held on September 15, at the Guildhall Coffee-house, Lord W. Hay in the chair, at which delegates from the provincial committees of Liverpool, Manchester, Birmingham, and Hull were present, when resolutions to the following effect were passed:—"That the plan of reconstruction proposed by the provisional liquidators be rejected; that the company ought to be compulsorily wound up, under the Joint-Stock Companies' Act, with the powers conferred by the 96th section; that the liquidation should, in the opinion of the meeting, be conducted by two liquidators (to be chosen by the joint committee) acting under the supervision and control of a committee of seven policy-holders, four to be a quorum; and that the members of the committee be Lord W. Hay and Mr. J. Cundy, for London; Mr. J. T. Bell, for India; Mr. Walker, for Liverpool; Mr. J. Lowe, for Birmingham; Mr. R. Smith, for Manchester; and the Rev. H. W. Kemp, for Hull."

Five petitions praying for the winding-up of the Albert Assurance Company were presented on Friday to Vice-Chancellor James, who disposed of them in Chambers. His Honour, in making the order for compulsory winding-up, directed that the committee for conducting the affairs of the company should consist of shareholders as well as policy-holders. Costs were allowed only to the two petitioners representing these bodies and to the provisional liquidator, as the judge considered that a public company was "not a carcass to be preyed upon."

It has been resolved, on the part of several shareholders of the Albert Life Assurance Company, to commence a criminal prosecution against the directors for conspiracy and fraud. On Saturday an application was made to Mr. Knox, at Marlborough-street, to grant summonses against several directors and the managing director, by name, to answer the charge of conspiring together between the years 1864 and 1869 to defraud certain persons of various sums of money. Mr. Knox granted the summonses, and fixed Saturday next for the hearing.

Miscellaneous.

THE AGRA BANK (LIMITED) have declared an ad interim dividend for the six months ended the 30th of June last, at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable on the 1st of October.

BILLS ON INDIA.—Tenders for £325,000 in bills on India were received on Wednesday, the 15th inst., at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—to Calcutta £315,900, and to Madras £9,100. The minimum price was fixed at 1s. 11d. Tenders on those presidencies at 1s. 11½d. will receive about 15 per cent.; those above that price in full.

THE FOSBERRY MITRAILLEUR.—The mitrailleuse gun, which Major Fosberry, V.C., of the Bengal Staff Corps, has had charge of, and upon which he has made certain alterations, is now placed under the direction of a committee, of which Colonel Wray, C.B., R.A., is president, and will be reported upon to the Secretary of State for War after being put through various trials at the select committee range, Royal Arsenal, Woolwich.

THE "SERAPIS."—The Indian troopship Serapis, Captain J. C. Soady, went out of Portsmouth harbour on September 14 to ascertain the deviation of her compasses, and for a trial of her machinery after repairs. She is appointed to leave on 25th September. The Indian troopship Crocodile, Captain Watson, has been undocked at Portsmouth, after necessary repairs. She is appointed to leave for her first trip on the 2nd October.

THE NEW LINE REGIMENTS.—To the Editor of the Army and Navy Gazette.—Sir,—Referring to an article in your last publication, headed "The Reliefs," it is surely a fact that the Indian service of the "New Line Regiments" dates from 1862, and, consequently, they are all entitled to be relieved from service in India before any regiment that arrived subsequent to their formation. The officers are under that impression, and are looking forward to the time when their turn for home service with head-quarters shall arrive, and, among those greatly interested is yours truly, A NEW LINE OFFICER.

THE SUEZ CANAL.—The latest advices with regard to the progress of the Suez Canal are to the effect that the Bitter Lakes had on the 5th inst. about 3·20 metres wanting to bring them up to the level of the Mediterranean. Hence, as they wanted on the 15th of August 5 metres to bring them up to that level, it appears they have risen 1·80 metres in 21 days, being at the rate of about 9 centimetres a day. It therefore now seems highly probable that the Lakes may be filled before the 17th of November. The completion, however, of the rest of the works in time for the proposed opening on that day is still considered in some degree uncertain.

EXPORTS OF BULLION by the P. and O. steamers from the 4th September to the 12th September have been as follows:—From Southampton to Bombay, gold, £138,850; silver, £26,200. From Marseilles to Bombay, silver, £14,500; Southampton to Ceylon, gold, £20,000; Southampton to Madras, gold, £11,300; Marseilles to Madras, gold, £10,000, silver, £1,200; Southampton to Calcutta, gold, £20,000; Marseilles to Calcutta, silver, £5,076. The export of bullion by the steamers of the Messageries Impériales from Marseilles were as subjoined:—To Galle, gold, £10,000; to Pondicherry, gold, £550; to Madras, gold, £1,060, silver, £1,564; to Calcutta, silver, £16,756.

GREAT SOUTHERN OF INDIA RAILWAY.—An extraordinary general meeting of the Great Southern of India Railway Company is called for the 5th of October, "to consider a communication made to the directors by the Secretary of State in Council of India in reference to the question of the extension of the company's railway to Tuticorin, and to obtain the consent of the proprietors to the conditions which the Government of India have determined upon in relation thereto; and, further, to obtain the assent of the proprietors to the necessary variations in the existing contract with the said Government, and to the adoption of such other measures as the circumstances of the case may require."

THE REPORT OF THE DARTMOOR TRIALS.—The report of the Dartmoor Committee is completed, and the main conclusions of the committee are substantially as follows:—"On the main point, the question of 'Shrapnel v. Segment,' the issue is a compromise. It is proposed to retain segment shell in the service, but to reduce the proportion to 60 per cent., at the same time introducing shrapnel

(which, it will be remembered, have not hitherto entered into our field equipment) in the proportion of 40 per cent. Thus both shells may score a triumph, but a triumph which will probably satisfy neither. It is only proper to postpone any comments on this decision until we have had an opportunity of making ourselves acquainted with the details of the report—which we are assured, and are prepared to believe, has been prepared with extraordinary care and labour—and of examining the arguments by which this recommendation is justified. The common shell, we believe, is to be entirely withdrawn. As this would leave our field artillery without the means of attacking houses, field entrenchments, or material defences of any description (for both segment and shrapnel are alike useless, or nearly so, under these conditions), and would reduce it to an artillery capable only of acting against the exposed personnel of an enemy, this recommendation is understood to be supplemented by one to introduce a field howitzer, throwing a shell of large capacity (possibly also at high angles) and giving us that increased shell power of which the want was remarkably demonstrated in these experiments. We trust that the recommendation to remove the present common shells from our field service limbers will be regarded as strictly conditional upon the introduction of field howitzers, otherwise we shall be left without any common shell at all. The Armstrong E time fuze has, we believe, been condemned, and the Boxer wood time fuze will be introduced into the field service. The service percussion fuzes have also been condemned, and some other pattern will have to be adopted for use with the segment shell, with which it is proposed to use percussion fuzes chiefly if not exclusively. This result is, perhaps, the most important achieved during these trials, for translated into plain English it means that at the present moment our field artillery has not a fuze which it can depend upon (the whole of the shrapnel equipment and Boxer fuzes being experimental only); and this, if we are not mistaken, was the impression which most visitors to Dartmoor carried away with them. At this moment no general who had any consideration for the life of his men would think of advancing them under cover of the fire of our field artillery, because the premature shell explosions due to defective fuzes would entail an amount of destruction among his troops which could not be risked. It is well to know the worst, and worse than this we could hardly know. It is only fortunate that there is a trustworthy construction of time fuze at hand in that which, as we have stated, the committee propose to adopt. As for a concussion fuze, some recent experiments with the old-fashioned but very simple and ingenious Freeburn fuze encourage the hope that it may be re-introduced. If we are not misinformed, the committee have made another recommendation which will excite some discussion, and that is to substitute the 12-pounder for the 9-pounder for horse artillery. —Pall Mall Gazette.

WHOM SHALL WE BLEED ?

The Pall Mall Gazette points out that many of the policy-holders of the Albert originally insured in other companies, which did a safe business, had men of substance and character for their directors, and were finally amalgamated in the odour of solvency. This was especially the case, we believe, with some of the country offices swept in by the Albert net. With regard to insurers of this class their position is this. They selected their office on the faith of the local or personal reputation of those who conducted it. The managers take their money, and make certain promises in return. By-and-by—without asking the consent of the policy-holders—these managers make over the obligation to perform these promises to some one else. It is obvious that this transfer may entirely change the whole character of the transaction. A pays his premiums because he trusts B to pay to his family the amount for which he insures. Thereupon B sells the right to receive future premiums and the obligation to pay the amount represented by them to C, and very likely before A dies there has been a further transfer of the right and the obligation to D. At the close of his life, therefore, A may find himself dependent for the satisfaction of the claim which will arise at his death upon men of whom he knows nothing, or knows enough to make him distrust their honesty. He has had no part in the agreement by which one company has been amalgamated in another, his consent was never asked, and he had probably no opportunity of raising any objection. Indeed, it is expressly stated by Mr. E. Vansittart Neale, one of the Albert directors, that policy-holders have absolutely no legal right whatever to ask for any information from the directors. Why, then, should the original shareholders and directors be excused from the liability they voluntarily took upon themselves? We know of no reason why any such exemption should exist, and it would be well to have it ascertained whether any such exemption does exist. The absorbing company is only, as it were, an additional name to the bill, which does not release the drawer from any of his liability. It may be hard on a shareholder who is under the impression that he has long ago got rid of his obligations to find them suddenly revive in their original dimensions, but it is harder still that A should find that the liability has been made over to men of straw. Nor are the shareholders of the amalgamated offices the only source from which funds may be forthcoming. There are sundry persons living and dead to whom large sums of money have been paid, or are now owing, on account of these very amalgamations which have proved the ruin of the company. Any claims put forward on their behalf should be scrutinised with the utmost minuteness. It would be well if the Albert, which has destroyed so much property, could be made to explode a reputation or two into the bargain. It is your "respectable" speculators who do the real mischief on these occasions, and it might be a useful warning to their fellows to exhibit one or two of them in their true colours. We are convinced, indeed, that the more sharply the knife is applied to life insurance the better in the long run it will be for the public. There are companies in existence at this moment whose sole chance of staying off the insolvency which must come some day is the hope entertained by the assurers that the office will last their time. They know they have blundered in choosing their office, or that the character of the business and the constitution of the company has been completely changed since they made their choice, but they hold their tongues, and go on paying their premiums because they argue that their doing so may enable the office to tide over its present difficulties, and so postpone the inevitable crash until they can no longer be injured by it. This reserve on their part should be met by equally resolute investigation on the part of the younger policy-holders, since it is for their interest that they should know the worst now, when they have still the option of transferring their payments without serious loss.

C H L O R O D Y N E

Remedial Uses and Action.

THIS INVALUABLE REMEDY produces quiet, refreshing sleep, relieves pain, calms the system, restores the deranged functions, and stimulates healthy action of the secretions of the body, without creating any of those unpleasant results attending the use of Opium. Old and young may take it at all hours and times when requisite. Thousands of persons testify to its marvellous good effects and wonderful cures, while medical men extol its virtues most extensively, using it in great quantities in the following diseases:—

Diseases in which eminently useful—Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Colic, Coughs, Asthma, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Whooping Cough, Cramp, Hysteria, &c.

Those exhaustive diseases—Fever, Ague—so common in tropical climates, are rapidly arrested, and the cold stage in a few moments checked by a timely dose, when warmth and a general glow of the system is established and comfort secured.

As a Sedative, Neurotic, and Antispasmodic, it is unequalled by any other known Medicine, and not to be surpassed in its specific effects.

Extracts from Medical Opinions.

The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Cholera was Chlorodyne.—See Lancet, Dec. 31, 1864.

From A. Montgomery, Esq., late Inspector of Hospitals, Bombay.—"Chlorodyne is a most valuable remedy in Neuralgia, Asthma, and Dysentery. To it I fairly owe my restoration to health after eighteen months' severe suffering, and when other remedies had failed."

Dr. Lowe, Medical Missionary in India, reports (Dec. 1863) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne was administered, the patient recovered.

Mrs. Forbes, wife of the Chaplain at Paris.—"I cannot speak too highly of Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne; I have not in any single instance been disappointed with the result, even in aggravated cases of Indian Cholera."

Extract from Medical Times, Jan. 12, 1866.—"Chlorodyne is prescribed by scores of orthodox medical practitioners. Of course it would not thus be singularly popular did it not supply a want and fill a place."

Extract from the General Board of Health, London, as to its efficacy in Cholera.—"So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too forcibly urge the necessity of adopting it in all cases."

CHLORODYNE, the Great Remedy for CHOLERA.—See Report in the Times, Sept. 6, from the Malta Correspondent, who states, August 24th, that "108 cases and eighty-one deaths occurred at Messina; 50,000 people fled from the town, which is in a most deplorable condition; that Chlorodyne has been found most efficacious as a remedy, and a number of persons are reported to have been saved by its use."

Now as there are various imitations sold under the name of Chlorodyne, containing Indian Hemp, Morphia, &c., ingredients highly adverse to the cure of Cholera, the public are cautioned against the use of any compound under the name of Chlorodyne, unless it bears the name of Dr. J. Collis Browne, who coined the word Chlorodyne to designate his wonderful discovery, which he fully tested for many years in her Majesty's Service before introducing it to the public, the wonderful success of which has given rise to various imitations totally different to genuine Chlorodyne. See the decision of Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood, reported in the Times, July 13th, 1864.

The extraordinary medical reports on the efficacy of Chlorodyne renders it a subject of most vital importance that the public should obtain the genuine, which is now sold under the protection of the Government of Great Britain, authorising a stamp, bearing the words "Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne," without which none is genuine. Sold in bottles, 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d., by all Chemists. Sole Manufacturer, J. T. DAVENPORT, 33, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London.

Price 6s., by post, 6s. 6d.,

THE TEXTILE MANUFACTURES AND THE COSTUMES OF THE PEOPLE OF INDIA

Prepared under the Authority of the Secretary of State for India in Council.
By J. FORBES WATSON, Reporter on the Products of India.

Imperial quarto, morocco back, cloth, with numerous

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

THE TIMES.—"On no point, perhaps, in regard to India, has greater ignorance prevailed in England than in respect to the clothing of her vast population. Late as it is, and for the first time within the last hundred years of our Indian domination, the work just completed by Dr. Forbes Watson supplies this great and almost unaccountable want of information, and supplies it, too, in a most complete and intelligible manner. It would be impossible to follow Dr. Watson's work in detail; but, whether to the manufacturer or to the general reader, the interest throughout will continue unbroken. His book is written in a clear and thoroughly intelligible style throughout; it is handsomely got up, and embellished by numerous coloured photographs, from which the various styles of costumes and portions of clothing, male and female, will be more readily understood than from mere descriptions."

THE ATHENÆUM.—"We may safely say that a more important work on the manufactures of India has never been given to the public, than the Industrial Museum, and this Commentary by Dr. Forbes Watson. Advantages are sometimes slow to follow, even when the channel for them has been skillfully made and clearly marked out, but we certainly do anticipate very great results from this work, and that before long its author will be acknowledged to deserve a place amongst the real benefactors of India."

THE EDINBURGH REVIEW.—"It is a matter of national importance to study and ascertain what the traditions of India in respect to dress really are. This task has been most ably performed by Dr. Forbes Watson in the volume before us. We call attention to the work and to the subject, not as a matter of mere curiosity, but as an inquiry of direct interest to the manufacturing industry of Europe. Dr. Watson has evidently brought his personal Indian experience to bear upon a mass of materials which, in less skilled hands, would most likely have proved wearisome and unintelligible. As he has arranged his details, they are as entertaining to the general reader as they are full of information and instruction to the manufacturer."

THE MORNING POST.—"The conception of this splendid work reflects the highest credit upon the wisdom of the department to which we are indebted for its publication; and the manner in which it has been executed by its author. No one can fully appreciate the value of this work without seeing it, because neither analysis nor extracts can give any idea of the immense mass of minute facts which it contains, and the admirable manner in which they are grouped and made subservient to the practical requirements of the manufacturer and the merchant, and the cravings of the student of ornamental art. The illustrations are as magnificent as they are appropriate. In fact, as mere productions of beauty and taste, they give the work the air of a book of art luxury, and we have no doubt that from this feature it will find many admirers and purchasers beyond the ranks of trade and commerce."

THE ART JOURNAL.—"The work, indeed, is as well fitted, as far as embellishment is concerned, for the drawing-room table as it is for the study; and its contents will be found far more interesting to the general reader than its mere designation would lead to a supposition that it might be. The motive and purpose of its publication is highly creditable to the present Home Government of India."

WHITMORE'S COMPOUND LINI- MENT OF ARNICA.

A SPECIFIC for the CURE of RHEUMA-
TUSIONS, WEAKNESS OF THE JOINTS, CHILBLAINS,
&c. It is also an excellent remedy as a stimulating application to the surface of the chest and back in bronchitis, inflammation of the lungs, pulmonary consumption, and whooping cough. When the liver is inactive, rubbed over it, its stimulating properties have a beneficial effect, and in all cases where counter irritation is desirable, it will be found invaluable.

In bottles, small, medium, and large.

WILKINSON'S BRONCHIO- THORACIC LOZENGES.

Prepared from the receipt of an eminent Physician, and experience has fully justified their recommendation as the most speedy remedy in irritation of the throat, catarrhal coughs, bronchitis, incipient consumption, spitting of blood, &c., &c. To public speakers and vocalists they will be found invaluable, as they impart a clear and beautiful tone to the voice. Free from any preparation of opium, and of an agreeable taste, they are applicable
to all.

In bottles of one uniform size.

WHITMORE'S STOMACHIC AND LIVER PILLS.

Composed of the Extracts of DANDELION, TURKEY RUT-BARD, and JAMAICA GINGER.

No Pill is so efficacious in promoting digestion, strengthening the stomach, correcting acidity, preventing or removing headache, giddiness, &c., arising from a costive habit, debilitated stomach, or torpid liver.

They require no change of diet, and those of the most debile constitution may take them with safety.

Taken as an adjunct with WILKINSON'S SARSAPA-
RILLA with the greatest success.

In bottles, small, medium, and large.

Prepared by THOMAS WILKINSON (late Bridge and Co.), 270, Regent-street, London, W.

and 10, Hare-street, Calcutta.

N.B.—Special orders forwarded for Indian Condiments.

AN ENTIRELY NEW METHOD OF FIXING ARTIFICIAL TEETH, without springs or wires, or any painful operation, more rational and durable than any introduced, giving a facility in mastication and speech hitherto unattained. To be had only
of Mr. ALFRED JONES, Surgeon-Dentist to their late
R.H. the Princess Augusta, the Duchess of Gloucester,
&c., 64, Grosvenor-street, Grosvenor-square. At home

RUPTURES.—BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER

TRUSS, Perfected and Exhibited in the Great
Exhibition of 1851, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London.

Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d., postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 8d. Umbilical, 42s. and 52s. 6d., postage, 1s. 10d.

Post-office Orders payable to JOHN WHITE, Postoffice, Piccadilly.

NEW PATENT.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS,

&c.—The material of which these are made is recommended by the Faculty as being peculiarly elastic and compressible, and the best invention for giving efficient and permanent support in all cases of weakness and swelling of the Legs, Varicose Veins, Sprains, &c.
It is porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and is drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price 4s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s., to 16s. each; postage, 6d.

JOHN WHITE, MANUFACTURER, 228, PICCADILLY,

RECENT TESTIMONIAL.

August 23, 1868.
Dear Sir,—Having tried your Cough Lozenges in India,
I have much pleasure in testifying to their beneficial effects in cases of incipient consumption, asthma, and bronchial affections; so good a medicine ought to be known to be appreciated. I have prescribed it largely

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

Are decidedly the best remedy for all disorders of the stomach and bowels, the liver and kidneys. They act with so decided an effect, and yet so gently, that people of the most delicate constitutions can take them with the most perfect confidence. They do not contain a single grain of mercury or other noxious substance, being composed exclusively of rare balsams. They are, therefore, equally safe and efficacious, and, as a family medicine, nothing yet invented or discovered can be compared with them for a moment. With these inestimable Pills at hand, together with the privileged directions affixed to each box, no other medicine, advice, or assistance can be needed in any ordinary case of sickness.

THE PEOPLE OF INDIA:

A SERIES OF
PHOTOGRAPHIC ILLUSTRATIONS OF
THE RACES AND TRIBES OF HINDUSTAN,
ORIGINALLY PREPARED UNDER THE AUTHORITY OF
THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA,
AND REPRODUCED AT THE INDIA MUSEUM
BY ORDER OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL.
EDITED BY
J. FORBES WATSON AND JOHN WILLIAM KAYE.

MEMORANDUM.

In addition to the copies of this work prepared for the use of the Government, the Secretary of State for India in Council has authorised the publication of an edition for sale.

The work will contain about 450 Photographs on mounts, in eight volumes, super-royal 4to., and it will be issued at £2. 5s. per volume. The First and Second Volumes are now ready for delivery.

PREFACE.

During the administration of Lord Canning, from 1856 to 1863, the interest which had been created in Europe by the remarkable development of the Photographic Art communicated itself to India, and originated the desire to turn it to account in the illustration of the topography, architecture, and ethnology of that country.

There were none, perhaps, in whom this interest was awakened more strongly than in Lord and Lady Canning. It was their wish to carry home with them, at the end of their sojourn in India, a collection, obtained by private means, of photographic illustrations, which might recall to their memory the peculiarities of Indian life.

The great convulsion of 1857-58, while it necessarily retarded for a time all scientific and artistic operations, imparted a new interest to the country which had been the scene of, and to the people who had been the actors in these remarkable events. When, therefore, the pacification of India had been accomplished, the officers of the Indian Services, who had made themselves acquainted with the principles and practice of photography, encouraged and patronised by the Governor-General, went forth, and traversed the land in search of interesting subjects.

In this way the design soon exceeded the dimensions of a mere private collection; but Lord Canning felt that its importance was sufficient to warrant official sanction and development, and, therefore, placed the matter in the hands of Mr. Clive Bayley, his Home Secretary. Some of the more important results appear in the present work.

The photographs were produced without any definite plan, according to local and personal circumstances, by different officers; and copies of each plate were sent home to the Secretary of State for India in Council.

After a time, it appeared that a sufficient number of illustrations had been received from various parts of India, fairly to represent the different varieties of the Indian races. The negatives remained in India; but from the plates sent home it was easy to produce fresh negatives, the prints of which might be multiplied to any extent. The Secretary of State in Council sanctioned this operation, and the work was executed by Mr. W. Griggs, at the India Museum, under the superintendence of Dr. Forbes Watson.

In many cases some descriptive account of the tribes represented accompanied the photographs sent from India. These varied greatly in amplitude and value. But, on the whole, it may be said that they were sufficient to constitute the basis of the sketches contributed by Mr. John R. Melville, Colonel Meadows Taylor, Mr. Kaye, Dr. Forbes Watson, and others. These sketches do not profess to be more than mere rough notes, suggestive rather than exhaustive, and they make no claim to scientific research or philosophic investigation. But although the work does not aspire to scientific eminence, it is hoped that, in an ethnological point of view, it will not be without interest and value.

ENGLISH HOMES IN INDIA.

PART I.—THE THREE LOVES. | PART II.—THE WRONG TURNING.

PUBLISHERS' NOTICE.

The writer of these volumes—an accomplished member of a family whose name is conspicuous in Indian story—being now resident in India, they have not had the benefit of her final corrections. It is hoped, however, that this inevitable drawback will detract but little from the pleasure to be afforded by the perusal of the tales, which are, indeed, what they profess to be, stories of English Homes in India, represented as such homes are in different parts of the country and under various social and professional aspects. They endeavour fairly and without exaggeration to illustrate Anglo-Indian life as it is, in its many varying phases, and to bring upon the scene, in their everyday costume, many kinds of Anglo-Indian workmen, from the Resident at a Native Court, to the subaltern officer and the railway employé; and it is believed that all who have visited the countries described will recognise the truth of the portraiture.

Summary and Rebieto.

OUR latest advices by the Overland Mail are—from Bombay, August 31; Agra, August 28; Calcutta, August 27; Madras, August 25.

The farewell dinner to Lord Napier came off at Poonah on the 28th August; Sir S. Fitzgerald and Lord Napier's successor, Sir A. Spencer, both "assisting" on the occasion. Lord Napier's health was duly toasted, and his deeds of arms and engineering appropriately sung by the chairman, Mr. Justice Tucker. Lord Napier's reply was chiefly devoted to the merits of the army he was about to leave for ever. But in the latter part his thoughts took wider range, carrying him back even beyond the forty years of his Indian service, to those great predecessors who had been to India what Columbus was to America, the pioneers who, doing in their day the "work of giants," had led the way in "making for us that India which we now possess." From the India of the past, with its six months' journey from Europe, he turned with a natural pang or two to exult in the India of to-day with its telegraph that brings news from home in a few hours, its weekly mail to Europe, its railways that carry you in a few days to the furthest ends of the country. Life, he added, "is for the present and the future, not for the past." Recurring to the native army, his Lordship entreated his hearers to believe in the ultimate advantages of the new organisation, and to do their best to carry out the new system in the direction prescribed for it. Quoting General Stock in evidence of the efficiency of the Bombay Army, he paid a parting tribute to the Presidency at large, whose "cheerful and contented population" could be matched only in one other part of India.

IN his speech at the Poonah banquet, Sir S. Fitzgerald paid hearty tribute to the help he had always received in Council from Lord Napier, and to his lordship's unwearied efforts for the good of his army; efforts which, he hinted, had been hindered only by the financial restraints imposed on the Bombay Government. Sir Seymour went on to hope that Lord Napier would impress on his fellow Peers the need of "some changes, some relaxations perhaps, which would enable the subordinate Governments" in India to carry out the great work of progress and improvement more extensively than they do now.

FEW men probably have left behind them so unchequered a popularity as that which Napier won for himself among all classes in Bombay. "Civilian and soldier," says the Bombay Gazette, "alike regret the departure of one who is as courteous as he is able, and as able as he is highminded and chivalric." The English soldiers in India have special reason to revere him if it be true that to his influence the splendid barracks now in course of building all over the country are mainly due, as well as the late development of new stations in the hills. The improved sepoy lines in Bombay attest his efforts on behalf of the native soldier. His military services from Mooltan to Magdala are embalmed in the history of the last twenty years. During that period very few English officers have seen harder fighting or acquitted themselves with equal honour in many different trials. The cool daring with which he charged an army at Jowra Alipore, and the swiftness of his movements in chase of Tantia Topie gave a completeness to the character of the skilful engineer who paved the way for British triumphs at Lucknow and in China, and of the prudent far-seeing strategist who planned and carried out the Abyssinian campaign. Nor must we forget what Napier achieved in his engineering campaigns against natural obstacles in the Punjab and among the Indian hills; the canals he cut and the roads he laid out. His public career, we trust, is not yet over.

LORD NAPIER left Bombay on the 31st August, and was reported at Paris some days ago. Sir A. Spencer reached Bombay on the 27th, and took command of the Bombay Army the same day. The 31st also saw the departure of Major-general Adams, on sick leave. The temporary command of the Mhow Division will fall, it is supposed, to Brigadier-general Domville, who commands the Belgaum district.

It has at length been officially announced that no durbar will be held at Agra unless the ensuing harvest prove very abundant. In other words, the durbar is adjourned sine die. We may look upon it in fact as altogether shelved, unless something like a miracle should take place. The distress in Rajpootana increases instead of diminishing. What hopes had sprung up of a change for the better have been quenched by a vast invasion of locusts, which fill the country from Bhurtpore to Deesa, and from Mairwarra westward to Bikaner. They were lying so thick on the ground that dozens might be crushed at each footstep. Grain had already begun to rise again, as little as three seers being in some places procurable for a rupee. The want of roads intensifies the evil. Cattle are hardly to be had anywhere. Several of the Rajahs are quite disabled by their own losses from succouring their starved and beggared subjects. Subscriptions in aid of the sufferers have been got up by the chiefs of Kattiar and the dwellers in Bombay. In the North-West Provinces rain seems to have fallen in fair quantity, but the Punjab is said to be in a very critical condition. Prices have risen owing to the scanty rains, and applications for relief are pouring in from all directions. From the Central Provinces also come no very cheering accounts. In some places abundant crops are accompanied by rising prices; in others the rainfall has been too scanty to keep prices down. In Balaghat the number of admissions to the poorhouse had multiplied fivefold in a few weeks. Cholera was still raging both in the Central Provinces and the Punjab, where Umritsar still maintained its bad eminence in the matter of deaths; eight hundred and thirty-three having died there from cholera in eight days. Gwalior has suffered greatly from the same scourge. In many parts of India fever and small-pox are unusually rife.

THE most conspicuous of recent victims to cholera is the Maharajah of Kerowlie, Muddun Pal, a ruler eminent among the princes of Rajpootana for loyalty and enlightened views. His little State was one of the best governed native States in India. It will now have to be administered in the name of an infant son of about two years. In 1866 the late Rajah was made a Grand Commander of the Star of India.

ECONOMY is the order of the day in India as in England. Lord Mayo has followed up his first circular by a General Order, in which he expresses a doubt as to the amount of energy shown by the local governments in assessing and collecting the Income-tax. He is dissatisfied with the mode of administering the Licence and Certificate taxes, and counsels greater efforts to realise the Income-tax, and so secure to the State its just dues.

WE are glad to see the beginning of better arrangements for the passage of army invalids to England. Medical boards are henceforth to decide whether such invalids are fit to go home overland or by the Cape, and the more delicate are to be despatched from India at such a time that they may reach England in the milder seasons of the year.

THE failure of the Albert Assurance Company naturally forms a leading topic of discussion in all the presidencies. But without further news from home the discussions out there must be more or less blind and barren. Committees of share and policy-holders have however been formed in Bombay and Calcutta for the protection of the several interests concerned. In both places the policy-holders have appointed London agents to act in concert with their fellow-sufferers in this country. In a letter to the Albert directors the Calcutta committee declare that "the Indian branch has been deeply wronged, that the funds of the branch have been illegally and immorally used to bolster up a failing concern, and they are determined that the matter shall be sifted to the uttermost." We trust however that the wrath they naturally feel will not drive them to imprudent lengths against the shareholders. To a certain extent their interests run together. If, as some say, the policy-holders are sure by acting prudently to recover fifteen or seventeen shillings in the pound, war to the knife might not end so profitably for them.

THE fate of another great assurance company still hangs in suspense. One or two shareholders in the European—a company which has absorbed thirty-three others—have prayed for the winding up of their company on the plea of insolvency. The hearing has been adjourned to next Saturday. One of the petitioners is said to be a large debtor himself to the concern, whose directors positively deny the truth of his statements. As the European lately absorbed the Naval, Military, and East India Company, the question of its soundness must be painfully interesting to many Anglo-Indians. We can only hope that the results of the coming inquiry will dissipate their fears. Our countrymen in India have of late been curiously unlucky in their business relations with the fatherland. One of the best-managed Indian banks came to grief through its home extensions. One great insurance company with a large and flourishing Indian business has collapsed, and now another of the same pretensions is thought to hang between life and death.

ALREADY the lately revised furlough rules for the Civil Service have begun to undergo a fresh revision. Under instructions from this country, the Indian Government has cut down the highest absentee allowance from £1,200 to £1,000 a-year. This includes all branches of the Civil Service, so that no member of one branch will be able to complain of undue favour being shown to those of another. It is a pity that the reasons for this change did not occur betimes to the framers of the new rules. As stated in the Secretary of State's despatch, they seem at first sight strong enough to justify an after-thought otherwise much to be deplored. The larger allowance exceeded by £200 the pension obtainable after twenty-five years' service. Hence it became almost a certainty that any member of the service who intended to resign would first come home for two years on his furlough allowance, and then send in his papers, thereby gaining £400 and two years' interest on his subscriptions to the Civil Fund. On the other hand it may be alleged that the gain to the absentee involved no actual loss to the State, for his substitute in India would be drawing only the acting pay of his post. His Grace however naturally objects to increase the number of acting appointments, already too numerous under the revised rules. On the whole therefore we are inclined to think that no great hardship will be inflicted on anybody by a change which after all leaves the civil servant on furlough an allowance twice as large as he used to enjoy.

THE possibility of making gas from sewage, as shown by late experiments in Calcutta, seems to have attracted some little notice in this country also. One day last week Sir John Thwaites, chairman of the Board of Works, had to disclaim the intention ascribed to him by popular rumour, of introducing the manufacture into London. There are difficulties, he declares, in the way of such an innovation; among others, the liquid character of London sewage as compared with that of Indian towns. The Board of Works however would be "only too delighted" to turn London sewage to any sort of account, and are willing not only to hear what anyone has to say on this particular subject, but to offer all facilities for the making of experiments. We may fairly take to ourselves some credit for having brought this matter to the notice of English journalists. If experiments made here should help to solve the standing problem of utilising sewage, it will be amusing to think of India as teaching her English masters one useful lesson in practical science. We say nothing however as to the authorship of the invention, which in its present shape is no doubt traceable to English brains, although dried dung has been used as fuel in India from time immemorial.

WE have to direct attention to a letter in our correspondence columns, the writer of which appears to represent the selected candidates of this year for the Indian Civil Service. As we have no reason to question the accuracy of his statements, and know them to be made by a gentleman who has already earned no small distinction in the field of his choosing, we commend them to the special notice of the Civil Service Commissioners. When the "Singhasan Battisi" recently became the text-book for the examination of candidates in this country, no good edition of the work had as yet appeared; those lately produced in India being badly printed, and full of typographical errors and omissions. In view of such grave defects—whole lines were sometimes omitted—and of the difficulties thence imposed on all students, Messrs. Allen and Co. resolved to add this work also to their list of text-books in the Eastern languages. Besides securing the services of a thoroughly competent editor, they submitted the proof-sheets to some of our best Oriental scholars, whose careful supervision helped to ensure the production of an edition far superior in every way to its Indian predecessors. Why then, we may fairly ask, was the attention of the students not at once directed to the work thus offered for their benefit? The text-books hitherto issued by Messrs. Allen and Co. are to be found in nearly all the Indian schools and colleges where the languages they illustrate are taught. They are acknowledged to have been ably edited and printed in good clear type. We are curious therefore to know how it happens that their merits are continually ignored at home, and that students are still obliged to pay for a dearer and absolutely inferior article supplied from India. It may be very good practice for a clever student to puzzle out the true meanings of passages barely legible, and overlaid with misprints. But think of the precious time wasted in what must too often prove a vain endeavour!

AWARDS OF THE INDIAN BONUS COMMITTEES.

THE list of claims to Bonus Compensation sent in and overlooked by the Indian Committees appeared in these columns some weeks ago. A cursory glance at it is enough to warrant very grave doubts as to the general justice of the awards. With every possible allowance for the opposition between private and public estimates of a given claim, and for the tendency of some claimants to ask too much at the outset, one cannot help feeling that in this case even the moderate concession made by Lord Cranborne to a just demand has ended on the whole in a transparent mockery. Applicants for redress will sometimes be unreasonable, and we will suppose that here and there an officer has asked for much in hopes of securing a little. An impartial committee of inquiry will naturally look sharp after any symptom of a design upon the public purse. But few, we think, were prepared for the ruthless docking of reasonable claims which in this instance has taken place. Reasonable, we say, knowing what sums were once expended as a thing of course in the buying out of regimental seniors by joint subscription of all their juniors. Major Le Gallais, for instance, sent in the modest claim of Rs. 2,524, or about £250. And what does he get back? Nothing; because he is said to have gained nearly twice that sum by quickened promotion. Capt. F. J. S. Venner claimed about £500 and got nothing, his gain by quickened promotion—though he took some fourteen or fifteen years to gain his company—being set down at more than £1,000. Lieut.-col. R. M. Annesley—a subaltern of eighteen years—asked for only £215, and got nothing, because the value of the steps thus gained by him amounted to £462. Lieut.-col. Thurburn, a subaltern of fifteen years, claimed £400 and got nothing; he too having gained £523 by quickened promotion. Capt. Pearson of course got nothing; his small claim of £152 being utterly swamped by the £471 he had gained in consequent pay and allowances.

Let us take another set of cases. Captain Christian claimed £220. Besides £100 “not satisfactorily proved,” he was disallowed £70 as payment made to an invalid officer; so all he got was £50. Lieut.-colonel Bouverie's claim to £425 was cut down to £10, partly on account of accelerated promotion, partly because nearly £200 had been paid to an officer on the invalid list. In the same way Lieut.-colonel M. Nightingale's claim for £388 gets docked to Rs. 171. Whatever sums an officer may have paid away to a senior retiring into the Invalids, have in all such cases been ruthlessly turned out of court.

But the rope with which so many seekers for redress have been garrotted, is woven of yet other strands than these two of quickened promotion and transfer to the invalids. Captain Hilton for instance, one of the unluckiest officers in the service, receives back not a penny of the £150 he paid in buying out seniors, because his retirement dates back earlier than 1861, the year of the formation of the Staff Corps. For the same reason Captains Trotter, Mackenzie, and other officers who retired really or nominally between 1858 and 1861, are awarded nothing. In this respect invaliding counts as much as retiring, for Captain Coombes, who invalided in 1858, finds his claim for £200 utterly rejected on that score alone. Be it remembered that some of these claimants were officers who really retired after February, 1861, although the retirement bears retrospective date from the day when they ceased to draw their furlough pay. But the very limit of 1861 is a clever mode of shirking just claims, for the stoppage of bonus payments practically dates from the Mutiny; and it is rather too good a joke that officers who retired between those dates should be punished for the delay that ensued in reorganising the Indian services.

With regard to the deductions made on account of steps given by invalid officers, their actual unfairness can hardly be excused by the possible legality of the plea for making them. Reference to the dead letter of old bye-laws ought to go for nothing against later usage. It may be that an officer who retired on the invalid list was once expected to retire unbought by his juniors. But the fact remains that such officers during some twenty years almost invariably received money for their steps, with the manifest connivance of their superiors. The payments made to them were made as openly as the extra-legal payments which are continually made to Queen's officers selling their commissions; and yet no one doubts that, when the purchase system in the Queen's army comes to be abolished, the scale of compensation will be adjusted, not by the official, but by the customary standard of the day. To strike these cases out of the compensation promised for actual outlay on the part of Indian officers, seems to us a clear departure from the spirit of Lord Cranborne's Parliamentary assurances.

But the widest loophole for unfair evasion may be found in the deductions made for accelerated promotion. We are aware that Lord Salisbury declined from the first to compensate officers for any steps of rank and any increase of pay resulting from their previous payments. But the principle on which he did so, however specious, was in itself inapplicable to the claims in question, and was moreover utterly incapable of being fairly worked. The whole question really turns, not on any balance of past loss and gain, but on the saleable value of an officer's step at a particular conjuncture. Lord Cranborne himself allowed that “if your servants have been largely damaged by any sudden or unexpected act of yours, the principle that ought to be observed in every branch of the public service is, that we ought to do something to compensate them.” To pare down that something to a mere nothing was hardly contemplated by those who heard his speech. No one not in the secret could have foreseen the amount of injustice that might be made to issue from the application of a specious but narrow and evasive rule. In practice it became almost impossible for the most painstaking committee to strike a true balance between an officer's bonus payments and the consequent gain to him in quickened promotion. To many an officer the gain in promotion proved a real loss in respect of present staff pay. In many cases the retiring senior died very soon after being bought out, and yet this was one of the considerations which the Indian committees were strictly forbidden to take into account. But the absurd unfairness of the promotion test comes out self-evident in the case of those officers who, like Lieutenant-colonel Annesley and Captain Venner, gained absolutely nothing for all their outlay; having been subalterns the one of eighteen, the other of fifteen years' service, so that they could not have been worse off had they never paid a penny for a single step. And yet both of them are found by the Bengal Committee to have enjoyed through increase of rank at least double the money's worth of their actual outlay! It is the same with Captains Gibney, Evans, and a great many more unfortunates. Poor Lieutenant-colonel Wallace, Cadet of 1837, Brevet-major of 1862, is declared to have gained thrice as much as he laid out. So is Major Macdougall, who took sixteen years to gain his company. Awards like these speak for themselves, and they are only a few out of many instances quotable to the same effect.

Of the remaining pleas on which claims for compensation have been rejected, that of value received in the shape of special annuities figures the most prominently. To no officer who caught at one of these special inducements to retire has a single penny been refunded, however heavy his payments, or however small his extra pension. Here again a specious rule has been applied to unfair issues. The granting of these annuities had nothing in the world to do with claims whose partial justice had not yet been recognised. They were neither offered nor accepted in payment of any existing obligation; but were so many baits to secure the retirement of officers for whom proper employment was hard to find. It is absurd to suppose that such pensions would have been taken as equivalent to the sums that would probably have been laid out for the benefit of their families rather than that of the officers themselves.

In several instances a claim made in good faith has been rejected for want of sufficient proof. This is perhaps the unfairness plea of all. It is an unworthy stooping to the tricks of a pettifogging attorney. It is like telling the Egyptians to make bricks without straw. We are curious to know what constitutes sufficient proof of facts which no one at the time could foresee as likely to be called in question. What proofs might have existed were for the most part swept away by the events of the Mutiny. Private papers and public records alike disappeared in that great wave, and ordinary disasters by fire and flood account for the disappearance of many more. In nine cases out of ten anything like valid proof must have been wholly wanting. But the Committees would not or could not be equally lenient in all cases. We know of one officer who sent in all the proofs he had—letters or fragments of letters saved by mere chance; and the only notice they evoked was a sneer at their worthlessness. Another, whose papers had all been lost through fire and shipwreck, met with the same kind of rebuff. But for the aids to rejection supplied by the other modes of testing an officer's claim, it is probable that this last weapon would have been much more largely used.

From all this the inference to be drawn is plain enough. Some other way of adjusting the amount and scale of compensation ought at any rate to be tried. Instead of a number of intricate rules and vexatious limitations, which only aggravate the injustice they were meant to cure, one or two broad simple rules should be applied throughout. Let all who retired since 1858, the true year of the reconstruction of the services, send in their claims for compensation. Let the latter be adjusted, not by the amount of previous payments, but by the rank of the claimant when he retired. It would be quite easy to strike an average value for each rank and step of rank, from the scales most generally adopted in the Old Company's service. Say, for instance, that the retiring bonus of a senior lieutenant was usually £1,000, and that of a senior captain £3,000, it would be a short, safe, and fair process to give each applicant a certain equal share of the sum nominally due to him, whether it were fixed at a half or even a third. Indian officers are not unreasonable, but they do object to being put off with mocking promises. They are quite aware of the many demands that press on the Indian Treasury. All they ask for is common courtesy and some appearance of fairplay. Let that be shown them, and we doubt not that a senior captain would thankfully receive his one or two thousand pounds, and the senior lieutenant his four or five hundred.

HORSES.—VETERINARY DEPARTMENT.—With the view of establishing a uniform system of shoeing, the Commander-in-Chief lays down general directions on the subject with a view to the more humane treatment of horses. His Excellency desires that officers commanding regiments of British cavalry and brigades of royal artillery will give their support and assistance to veterinary surgeons, who will be held personally responsible that the new instructions promulgated are carried out.

ANOTHER GRIEVANCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—I earnestly request you to bring the following grievance of the Selected Candidates under the notice of the Civil Service Commissioners:—

In the "Special Instructions to the Candidates Selected in 1869," a work called "Singhasan Battisi" has been prescribed, and a note at the bottom states that it "may be purchased at Trübner's;" accordingly, many of us obtained the book from that publisher. We found that it was a wretched copy, and full of errors—in fact, an Indian Bazaar edition. Now a fresh beginner has always to encounter all sorts of difficulties, and with an edition like that prescribed, his progress is rendered extremely and unnecessarily slow. By chance we afterwards heard of another revised copy, printed by the publishers of your paper; this we found to be a great help, and to encourage us in studying the language. The copy we had purchased we had of course used, and if we had not, the publisher declined to have it returned; thus we had to suffer loss of time, expense, and annoyance. Surely the authorities, by the direction of the examiner, should have directed us where to obtain the best edition.

I request you in the name of all the Selected Candidates of this year to insert this, and oblige your most obedient servant,
A SELECTED CANDIDATE OF 1869.

London, Sept. 22, 1869.

UNCOVENANTED FURLOUGH RULES.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—Can you tell me the result of the petition of the "Uncovenanted Service" as to furlough rules? They petitioned for increased pension and more liberal furlough rules. The Secretary of State for India has refused to sanction any better pension, but I cannot ascertain that any reply has been given about the furlough. I have been asked to find out what is going to be done, and when they are going to do it. Can you, or any of your readers, help me?—I enclose my card, and remain, yours faithfully, Preston, Sept. 23, 1869.

UNREASONABLE DEMANDS UPON INDIA.

The Bombay Gazette holds that the demands of the British manufacturers upon India are not always consistent. Here is Mr. Edward Baines, who represents the manufacturing town of Leeds, requiring the Government to push a railway from Burmah into Western China, and at the very same time the Manchester and Liverpool folk were scolding the same Government for the meagreness of its railway extension policy in India itself. Western China! Why the Secretary of State passes over without remark the project of the Supreme Government to begin at once a railway from Rangoon to Prome. Verily, Mr. Baines is an exacting old gentleman. When India is supplied fairly, we may think of Burmah and Western China. But the gentlemen who want more railways in India and adjacent countries have the remedy in their own hands—they can subscribe the capital and make them. British capital will not come to India for public works. Lord Halifax lamented that his attempt to divert capital from foreign lands to Indian fields had failed. One reason of this failure is that those who are most clamorous for British capital do all they can to render the proposed investment insecure by undermining British rule. It is want of confidence in the stability of our position that blocks out capital without a guarantee; and the want of confidence is created by the persistent efforts of those who work steadily towards one end—the supersession of British by native rule. Let the manufacturers who want to spend ten millions a-year on railway extension subscribe it without a guarantee. No doubt the mills of Lancashire and Cheshire are partially starving for want of cotton, but that is no reason why the internal policy of India should be one-sided, nor why the bulk of the railway loans should go to make cotton lines, nor why India should risk famine in order that the spindles of Manchester should be kept ceaselessly going. Manchester has secured two more cotton railways—those to Vcerumgaum and Hooblec; besides, there is the much trumpeted miniature line to Khangaon, which somehow they have not yet celebrated by a dinner at the London Tavern; and really we must continue to believe that India exists for something more than cotton. Lancashire, like Mr. Baines, is too exacting.

THE ALBERT ASSURANCE COMPANY.

The Englishman thinks that whether the company be resuscitated or amalgamated with another some special terms must be made for securing for the Indian Branch a larger share of independence than it has hitherto enjoyed. These can only be secured by keeping the business together, and making it worth the while of the old company, or of some new company, to rescue such a business. If this course does not recommend itself to the policy-holders they must be prepared to find amalgamation scouted by such societies as the "Universal" and the "Royal." It is not to the interests of such societies to amalgamate, since, ordinarily speaking, their business must receive a large accession, and "Albert" policy-holders in such a case will have to pay the enhanced premium for increased age. This in itself is not the least of the many hardships inflicted on the clientelle of the "Albert" by its collapse. But, whilst emphatically stating that as far as we can judge from the published statements the "Universal" and the "Royal" offices are in a sound and healthy condition, we do not see that the assurers in the "Albert," who might in their extremity go to these companies, would necessarily be in a better position than they were in the "Albert," for it does not anywhere appear that the Indian branches of these offices are one whit more independent of the Home Boards than was the Indian branch of the "Albert;" and we certainly think that this ought in future to be a point for consideration with all intending assurers. The prospect of resuscitation, and in a larger degree that of amalgamation, will depend very greatly on the extent and character of the business which will be affected by either of these measures. The policy-holders must decide for themselves what that business shall be. There may be, however, and we speak with all diffidence on the point, a third way out of the difficulty. The committee might consider whether it might not be feasible to establish the Indian branch as a distinct Indian office. Such an office would start with an income of about £10,000 per month and a constituency numbering about 4000. It possesses assets aggregating rather more, than less, than £100,000, and it might enter on a great and prosperous career unclouded by the fear of the misdeeds of a body of irresponsible men six thousand miles away. To bring such about a result the committee, or those who represent the policy-holders, must be in a position at the outset to contest the right of the liquidator to remove the Indian funds, taking as their stand the terms come to with Mr. Neale by the Calcutta directors. Such a result would, in our opinion, be by far the best thing that could come out of the collapse of the Albert Company. It would, perhaps, have to be purchased by a sacrifice of another portion of the assets of the Indian branch. This sacrifice might, however, be more than made up for by the formation of an Indian society with a capital of ten lakhs to take over the branch. But to bring about such a result as this, the local board, the committee, and the policy-holders would all have to work together in unison.

The Times of India does not think that the policy-holders have any cause to be anxious beyond measure as to their prospects. After the affairs of the Albert Company have been thoroughly investigated, we doubt not substantial assurance offices will be found perfectly willing to take over its business. And, as we have indicated, the shareholders are in a position to be called upon for a bonus to induce a good company to take over their liabilities, should any inducement to this end be necessary. The worst that can befall policy-holders will be to have their money returned with interest; but we have every hope that some arrangement very much more satisfactory than that will be effected. If Indian policy-holders were a body by themselves, apart from policy-holders in England, there are funds enough in Bombay and Calcutta to settle their every claim. Of this, also, we are assured, that the directors and secretary in Bombay will do their utmost, at any rate, to protect the interests of those whose premia have passed through their hands. At the same time Indian policy-holders will no doubt avail themselves of the invitation to nominate their own representatives in London. As regards the premia that fall due before the 1st of January next, we may mention that these must be paid; but they will be in no way mixed up with funds already in hand. They will be paid into the Bank of Bombay, accounts being opened between the parties and the provisional liquidator appointed by the Court of Chancery; and the premia so paid will be refunded in full, should satisfactory arrangements not be completed for continuing the business of the Albert. We have stated what we believe to be the worst that can befall policy-holders, as well as what we consider most likely to come about; and we trust that if we have not succeeded in inspiring good hope for the future, we shall at least have dispelled needlessly gloomy fears till further information comes to hand.

LEGISLATIVE.—Mr. Maine will, before his departure from India, introduce the new Judicial Stamps Bill into Council. The New Commercial Stamps Bill, as our readers know, has just become law. The High Courts of Bengal and Bombay are said to oppose the reduction of the cost of stamps, while those of Madras and the North-Western Provinces are said to be in favour of a change in that direction.

Bengal.

ODDH.—Ouddh still continues to supply the famine-stricken districts of the North-West with grain. During the month of July the province exported no less than 163,680 maunds of grain.—Pioneer.

COLONEL DALTON.—The Government of India has sanctioned the expenditure of Rs. 10,000 for the publication of Colonel Dalton's Descriptive Ethnology of Bengal as proposed by the Bengal Asiatic Society.

THE PUNJAB FRONTIER.—The Punjab Government has been authorised from head-quarters at Simla to institute a blockade against the territory of the tribe that lately attempted to invade and burn a village near Agror, in the Hazara district.—Delhi Gazette.

FINED FOR CONTEMPT.—The editor of the Indian Daily News, at Calcutta, has been fined by Mr. Justice Phear in the sum of Rs. 50 (intended to be merely a nominal fine) for publishing a letter having reference to a case pending in the Criminal Sessions, and of a nature likely to prejudice the case.

COMMERCE OF BENGAL.—Mr. Bonnaud's statistics of the commerce of Bengal during 1867-68 and 1868-69 shows a net increase on the exports during the past year of Rs. 16,249,120; in merchandise imported there has been a decrease of Rs. 22,832,080; there is an increase in treasure, however, of Rs. 269,452.

ECCLESIASTICAL.—We (Delhi Gazette) regret to hear of the death, by cholera, at Lahore, on the 16th August, of the Rev. Alexander Henry, a member of that band of devoted American missionaries who have laboured with such earnestness and zeal for nearly forty years in the Cis and Trans-Sutlej territories. Mr. Henry leaves a widow and six young children.

STUD COMMISSION.—The report of the Stud Commission, which was laid before Lord Mayo about ten days ago, is spoken of as ably exhaustive of the important subject with which it deals. The President and Members of the Commission remain at Simla, to furnish to Government any further information in connection with the subject of their inquiry that may be demanded of them.—Mofussilite.

AN OLD FOLLOWER OF MOOLRAJ.—Narain Sing, who has been a State prisoner in Rangoon for the last twenty-three years, has petitioned the Government of India, through the local administration, for permission to return to his home in the Punjab. Narain Sing, it may be remembered, was formerly in the service of Moolraj, but surrendered to our Government on the capture of Mooltan. He has since been in receipt of a stipend from Government of Rs. 30 per mensem.—Pioneer.

BOKHARA.—There has been another battle or skirmish between the King of Bokhara and his turbulent son, Ameer Toorajan, in which the King had the advantage. The engagement took place at Charjoe. Sirdar Mahomed Ishak Khan was serving with the King's forces. All the fanatical and restless classes of Bokhara favour Toorajan, and desire the proclamation of a religious war against the Russians. On the other hand, the agricultural population look on Toorajan and his supporters alike with disgust, and desire only the establishment of such a Government, whether of the Russians or of the King under Russian influence, as may give them comparative peace and only moderate oppression.

THE KUMAON IRON WORKS.—The shares of the Kumaon Iron Works Company, should any happen to be in the market, are likely to soon be at a premium. The company's field of operation, a little below Nynee Tal, is known to abound in ore; but the company had, some years ago, expended the whole of their very limited capital—two lakhs of rupees—and have never been in a pecuniary position to turn their undoubted mineral wealth to advantage, or even to raise it. The Government of India has resolved to advance to the company a considerable sum of money, by way of a loan, and the Secretary of State has just sanctioned the construction of the Kumaon Iron Works Railway, as a branch of the Oude and Rohilcund Railway. The enterprise may, therefore, almost be regarded as one of the successes of which no doubt can be entertained.—Mofussilite.

THE SUEZ CANAL.—M. de Lesseps has addressed the Indian Chamber of Commerce, calling attention to the date fixed for the opening of the Suez Canal for through navigation, and pointing out the "extreme importance which attaches to a prompt and facile development of trade between Europe and the Far East. Merchandise transmitted from the West to the East, or vice versa, being at present subject either to the delays of a voyage round the Cape or to the disadvantage of transshipment in Egypt, trade is comparatively restricted; but as soon as the barrier is removed, and the distance between the East Indies and Europe reduced by one-half, the new route will open the market in Asia to all European goods, and in Europe to all the produce of Asia. This great commercial change must be prepared for from the present time, and means of transport provided sufficient to meet the demand." M. de Lesseps therefore asks the Chamber to impress upon shipowners and merchants "the necessity of creating sufficient means of transport to respond to the commercial changes which the opening of the Suez Canal will produce."

DACOITY.—The case of Sheppard, the Eurasian dacoit, "Pootee Ghazee," has been quashed in the High Court, Justices Phear and Macpherson being of opinion that there is no reasonable proof that the prisoner is a British born subject. The prisoner was rearrested on a Mofussil warrant, and will be tried by the Sessions Judge of the 24-Pergunnahs.

MAJOR SLADEN'S RECENT EXPEDITION.—A demand has gone the round of the press for the publication of the report of Major Sladen of the expedition to Momein, mainly because, it is alleged, there is great public anxiety to learn the Major's version of the plot of the Burmese Court to ensure the destruction of every member of the British mission, and so prevent the return of any of them to British Burmah. We have made inquiries (says the Mofussilite), and find that up to date Major Sladen has been prevented by excessive ill-health from sending in any formal report whatever. Major-General Fytche, the Chief Commissioner, has however had very extensive correspondence with the Government of India touching the management, incidents, termination, and probable results of the Sladen expedition, and from beginning to end of that correspondence there does not appear mention of, or allusion to, any Burmese plot whatever. If the Rangoon editor had an opportunity of putting the question to Major Sladen himself, we believe that officer's reply would amount to an expression of his belief that the story of the Court conspiracy to procure the murder of the expeditionary party has never had any better origin than the heated apprehension of one member of the expeditionary party.

DEATH OF THE MAHARAJAH OF KEROWLEE.—Intimation has reached Simla of the death of the Maharajah of Kerowlee, in Rajpootana, of cholera. The late chief, Maharajah Muddun Pal, was head of the Jadoons, the bravest of the Rajpoot clans. He was a kind, good ruler, and exercised personal supervision of the affairs of State, thus ensuring creditable security to life and property, and rendering himself popular with, and esteemed by, his subjects. For the maintenance of order, his Highness found it necessary to have a jail, and that jail is a feature in his capital, being one of the best managed and best cared for in Rajpootana. He also established a dispensary at his capital, in the usefulness and popularity of which he took a just pride. In 1866 her Majesty appointed his Highness a Grand Commander of the Star of India. He has left a son about two years of age, and a daughter about ten. Kerowlee is a comparatively small State, of about 1,870 square miles, yielding a revenue of between thirty and forty thousand pounds per annum. It was regarding Kerowlee that Sir Frederick Currie's famous "adoption minute" was written, when, in 1852, Lord Dalhousie desired to secure the annexation of the State by refusing to recognise an adoption. Mr. Kaye, in his Sepoy War, remarks that "Sir Frederick Currie's minute on the Kerowlee question is an admirable State paper—accurate in its facts, clear in its logic, and unexceptionable in its political morality."

MILITARY.—We observe an announcement of the death at Landour of Captain W. J. Rind, of the Invalid Establishment.—We also hear of the death at Morar of Lieutenant G. F. D. Sutton, 25th Brigade Royal Artillery.—The 58th Regiment has been entirely exempt from cholera since it left Allahabad. The Regiment is at present encamped at Oonchadeek, about fifty miles from Allahabad, on the Jubbulpore line.—No more cases of cholera have appeared in the 41st Regiment. Mr. Mitchell, the adjutant, the notice of whose death appeared in our last issue, was carried off by intermittent fever. Mr. Mitchell was to have left Subathoo for England on leave the very day he died.—Pioneer.—David Gibson, a private of the 26th Regiment, who some time ago killed a native at Calcutta by shooting him, while under the influence of liquor, has been sentenced to penal servitude for life.—It is reported in military circles, with what authority we know not, that the Home authorities are, in addition to the changes already announced, about to restore the old form of forage cap, and assimilate it to that worn at present by the Guards. It is also said that the office of Musketry Instructor will be abolished, and that an extra Adjutant to supervise this and other out-door exercises will be appointed, while his colleagues will attend to the office work and interior economy. 'This, we believe, is the system followed in the Austrian and some other continental armies.—Delhi Gazette.

THE CIS-SUTLEJ STATES.—What we have wished for has come to pass. The Viceroy has ordered the appointment of a committee to inquire into Major-General Taylor's conduct as Agent to Government in the Cis-Sutlej States. For the last two years we have been informed of dissatisfaction caused by the improper treatment which the Rajahs of Puttecalah and Nabha have received at the Agent's hands. More than once was Sir John Lawrence told that Major-General Taylor's treatment of the rajahs abovenamed was harsh in the extreme. During the last four years Sir Donald McLeod could at any time, had he been so disposed, have acquainted himself with the feelings towards us of the people within the Umballa division, in consequence of Major-General Taylor's oppressions. Repeated complaints have been made to Sir Donald of injustice and positive disregard of petitions presented to him. At this moment hundreds of petitions are lying at the Agent's office to which no answer has been given, some of which were presented three years ago. In defiance of Lord Canning's promises, contained in his sunnuds and autograph letters, he has interfered with the protected States within his jurisdiction in a way which nothing can justify. He has humbled their chiefs in the opinions of their subjects and feudatories, and crowned the whole by sending a party of sowars in British employ to arrest some of the highest officers of the Puttecalah State. This last act has led to the Viceroy's order for inquiry into his conduct.—Indian Daily News, Aug. 26.

CHOLERA AND ITS CAUSES AT UMIRTSUR.—We have heard from Umritsur to the 16th August. Our letters confirm the telegram published on Tuesday. The returns for Sunday, the 15th, exhibited a diminution of twelve on the Saturday cholera report, but nothing is said as to the number of deaths from miscellaneous causes. The inhabitants were leaving the town by hundreds, some say thousands; and as an aggravation of the evils of the district, cholera was beginning to show itself in the neighbouring kusbas and villages. Many deaths had occurred at Turun Tarun and Jundeala, and it is feared the plague will extend. The Government of the Punjab had been roused to action by the impending famine crisis, and had issued instructions for the reopening of famine works connected with the exterior town drainage, authorising a preliminary grant of Rs. 10,000 for the purpose. So far well, but those who know something of the place tell us that until all the frightful sources of disease within the town are filled up, all other works connected with the drainage of the place are next to thrown away. There are said to be two enormous reservoirs of the filth of the neighbourhood, one the Bungeean ka Dhab, and the other the Aloowaleca Dhab, and we fully agree with those who maintain that until the fontes et origines mali are removed, filled in, or disposed of, there is no hope of a healthy condition for Umritsur. The Bungeean ka Dhab is a tortuous hollow, divided into two pieces by a road of between three and four hundred yards in length, with an average breadth of twenty to twenty-five yards, and a reputed depth of over twenty feet, and the fluid so thick that strong doubts are entertained whether a stone could find its way to the bottom. Till this and all other hollows, all of them receptacles for the filth of their respective neighbourhoods, are filled up, no reasonable expectations of amendment and ultimate cure may be entertained. Unfortunately this Dhab is not in the fashionable portion of the town!—Delhi Gazette.

ISMAIL KHAN'S PLOT.—From Cabul come at length full and completely accurate accounts of Ismail Khan's attempt to capture or murder Shere Ali. On the 15th ult. the latter, having consented to pay a friendly visit to the fort of Sirdar Wullee Mahomed, had determined to proceed and stay the night there. The Ameer's road would take him close to Char Dehee, where Ismail Khan was then staying; and the latter, resolved he should not pass unmolested, mustered his followers, and laid measures for Shere Ali's capture, or, if necessary, his assassination as he passed. But of this plot against him Shere Ali was timely informed, and he defeated it—by staying at home on the 15th. The Ameer, however, does not appear to have had at once communicated to him the full measure of Ismail Khan's treachery. He, therefore, on the 16th or following day made overtures of reconciliation to that chief, declaring that if dissatisfied he might retire into Persia, where an annual allowance of between one and two lakhs of rupees would be regularly transmitted to him. The Shahgassie and Atta Mahomed Khan, both of whom figured at the Umballah durbars—the latter being the British Agent at the Court of the Ameer—were the negotiators employed by Shere Ali on this occasion, and there is no question that they acted in a spirit of perfect good faith. They induced Ismail Khan to accompany them for the purpose of settling matters in a personal interview with the Ameer. But on the arrival of the party at a place called (Mohulla) Chundawul, Ismail Khan seems to have bethought himself that it would be safer not to proceed any further. He halted, and he and his party, "preparing for action," declared themselves the inveterate enemies of the Ameer! "Kill the Shahgassie and the British Envoy," roared his followers to Ismail; "Kill them, and then declare a jehad against Ameer Shere Ali as the friend and ally of the infidel English, and all will be on your side!" But Ismail Khan, though ready enough for a so-called jehad, to raise himself to the Ameerate, would not consent to the double murder of the Shahgassie and British Envoy, and both those personages were not a little overjoyed when they received permission to make the best of their way to Cabul, which they did at a gallop. Next day however, Shere Ali having pledged himself for the safety of Ismail, the latter came in and presented himself before the Ameer. It was then arranged that he should expatriate himself to Persia, and he was allowed to leave Cabul to make the necessary preparations. It was during this absence of Ismail that the Ameer professes to have been made acquainted with the full enormity of that Sirdar's intended treason. The result of this enlightenment was, that on his return to Cabul to start for Persia, Ismail Khan and his two brothers were sent under a guard of five hundred horse and foot to the British authorities at Kohat. On the road Ismail contrived to loiter behind with some ten or twelve of the Afghan warders, and these he must have bribed to permit him to escape to and decamp with him towards the Momund country, en route for Swat, where he has probably ere this arrived.—Mofussilite.

Madras.

THE ALBERT ASSURANCE COMPANY.—The suspension of the Albert Life Assurance Company has created a very painful impression here, where its policies are largely held, and there is some probability of a local committee being formed. — Madras Times.

PRICE OF TELEGRAMS.—It is very probable, says the Madras Athenæum, that in the course of next year the price of telegraphic messages to England will be further reduced to £2. Our contemporary gives no authority for the statement.

CIVIL.—We (Madras Times) learn from Coorg that Lieutenant E. Ludlow, of the Mysore Commission, who is acting for Captain Cole, will, on that officer's return from leave, probably become the assistant superintendent. Lieutenant W. Freeth, Madras Staff Corps, assistant superintendent revenue survey in Coorg, has been posted to Coimbatore, and will leave Coorg shortly. There is a rumour at Madras that Mr. G. S. Forbes, member of the Board of Revenue, is to be the next provisional member of Council there. It had been thought the appointment lay between Mr. J. D. Sim and the present Chief Secretary.

POSTAL SMUGGLING.—Of all the tricks for "dodging" the Post-office, the best we know of came to our notice lately. It consists in taking advantage of cheap literature, for which it must soon or late create a largely increased demand. A Brighton paper can be purchased for a halfpenny. The postage of it to India costs a penny. Put a circular inside it and for three-halfpence you inform your constituents of all you want and make them a present of "fashionable intelligence" into the bargain. Who would give ninepence for the postage of a circular, when he can post both that and a newspaper, including payment for the latter, for one-sixth of the sum? It has been found cheaper to lower duties than to shoot or sink smugglers. It took a long time to find this out. Hence there is a moral for advertisers as well as Government. — Madras Athenæum.

THE GODAVERY NAVIGATION.—We do not wonder that many people have come to regard the Godavery navigation as a project fast receding into the region of myths. There is, however, more in it than is implied in this view of Sir R. Temple's favourite scheme. We learned some weeks ago that the navigable facilities of the river called by General Balfour "the noble Godavery," are to be put to the test as soon as the heavier monsoon floods have run down. The experiment is to be from the "second barrier," which is near Siruncha, a place at the junction of the Godavery with the Pranteeta or Wurda. We understand that a large quantity of cotton collected in the Nizam's dominions from the west and south-west of that point, is to be floated down the river, and shipped at Coconada. The shipment is the venture of a French firm who, we believe, have also made all the arrangements for the purchase and cleaning of the cotton in those hitherto inaccessible central districts of the Deccan.

A MAN-EATING TIGRESS KILLED.—We (Madras Times) are happy to be able to announce the destruction of the man-eating tigress which for some years has haunted part of the Sattiamangalam Taluq in the Coimbatore district. She is reported to have killed seven men and 39 women since 1867 (five in July last and one only a few days ago)—and about 140 altogether. She was killed by Major Davies, Superintendent of Police in Coimbatore, a well known shikaree. He thus modestly describes the event:—"We came on the tigress, tracked her up on foot, and I was fortunate enough to shoot her through the heart, so she gave us no trouble." We congratulate Major Davies on his success and the people of Coimbatore on being rid of such a pest as the tigress proved herself to be. We cannot help thinking that if Major Davies' tactics were followed in Cuddapah we should hear less of the loss of life occasioned by the tigers which haunt the Nundicunnama Pass and Mutialpad.

AUSTRALIAN HORSES.—Lord Mayo appears to have resolved to give Australian horses a trial, for, according to the Sydney Morning Herald, his Lordship has paid the stud-owners of New South Wales the honour of selecting that market for a supply of carriage horses for his establishment. "The order was entrusted to Mr. Buchan Thompson, who has now at the stables, preparatory for shipment to Calcutta, per Forfarshire, six splendid bays, which cannot fail to enhance the character of Australian horses in the Indian market. The stock selected are in splendid condition, very evenly matched in colour and size, with plenty of bone and breeding, being the produce of Potentate and Bottler, from mares equally thoroughbred, the progeny of old Hector, Steeltrap, Waverley, and Gratis. It is to be hoped that the shipment will reach their destination in something like the present form; if so, they will do credit to all concerned." We notice from an advertisement of Messrs. Goodchilds that this same ship is to bring some race-horses to Madras. — Madras Mail.

EDUCATION IN MADRAS.—The educational policy of the Madras Government will successfully bear a comparison with that of any other administration in the country. In one respect Madras may claim to be in advance of the other provinces—private schools are extending while Government institutions remain almost stationary. The gulf between school and college education has been bridged in Madras with comparatively little trouble. There is not the same conflict as to vernaculars as in the greater part of Northern India. In Madras the vernaculars are the study of the child in the elementary schools, and he takes up English with a fair knowledge of his own language. But we cannot find that the Madrassee graduate employs these advantages for the benefit of his country, any more than the Bengalee who scouts the notion of writing or speaking in the vulgar tongue. So far as the mass of native society is concerned, however, Madras has as yet received little real benefit from the educational efforts of Government. A periodical literature in the vernacular cannot yet be said to exist, while Bombay is flooded with daily newspapers in the languages of the natives, and Bengalee is beginning to amass a respectable literature of its own. The Dravidian races are not so wholly Bæotian as might be supposed, and there is no obstructive class who, as in Bengal, have reason to dread the education of the masses. It seems to be with schools as with railways, trade, and manufactures in Southern India. The mass of the people are tied to the soil; there is no large class which is given to the accumulation of wealth, and the State exacts so much from the land that all the peasant's time and care are given to it. — Friend of India.

MILITARY.—We learn from the Madras press of the death at Vizianagram, on the 9th inst., of Major Edward Herbert Harrington, wing officer, of the 23rd Regiment Native Infantry, and formerly of the 2nd European Light Infantry. He entered the army in February, 1844, was transferred to the Staff Corps in 1858, and was appointed wing officer of the 23rd in November, 1865.—Two divisional commands will be vacated at the beginning of next year—that of Mysore and the Centre Division. Major-General Haines's time, we believe, will be up in March, and Sir Rowland Smyth's in May. Sir Alfred Wilde, K.C.B., C.S.I., Military Secretary to the Madras Government, is entitled to a divisional command, but will probably not get one till some time next year. Mysore and the Centre Division are held by Queen's officers.—Bangalore Herald.—The Secretary of State (says the Madras Times) does not consider it desirable to authorise the introduction of any uniform head-dress generally for regiments of Madras Native Infantry.

FAREWELL BANQUET TO LORD NAPIER OF MAGDALA.

On the night of August 28 the farewell entertainment given by the residents of Poona to H.E. Lord Napier of Magdala, on his resignation of the command of the Bombay Army, came off in the Poona Engineering College, when a most distinguished and numerous company assembled to do honour to the departing Chief.

The arrangements for the entertainment were entrusted to a committee composed of the leading gentlemen, and it is sufficient to say that their efforts were attended with complete success. The interior of the hall was beautifully illuminated for the occasion—a work undertaken by Major Mellis—and presented a very pleasing appearance, more especially as the galleries were graced, after dinner, by the presence of a large number of ladies. The excellent band of the 2nd (Queen's) Regiment performed a selection of music during the evening, and the choir of the 8th (King's) Regiment added to the general effect by the creditable way in which they performed the task allotted to them.

The chair was taken soon after eight o'clock by the Hon. H. St. George Tucker, Third Member of Council, and he was supported, on the right by Lord Napier of Magdala, and on the left by H.E. Sir Seymour Fitzgerald, G.C.S.I., Governor of Bombay.

After the dinner and the preliminary toasts the chairman proposed the health of Lord Napier, tracing his long, brilliant, and useful career from Mooltan to Abyssinia, and winding up with a graceful compliment to his private virtues as "a stanch friend, a generous foe, and a chivalrous soldier."

Lord Napier, in reply, enlarged on the services and excellent discipline of the Bombay army. He concluded thus—When I approach the word "farewell," many thoughts, the thoughts of a long career of forty years in India, crowd upon me. I will revert to the hopeful feelings which crowded upon me when I first set foot upon the soil of India, anxious to begin the battle of life, and careless of the dim future. And how different from that India is the India of to-day! And yet our predecessors of that day made that India for us. They did the work of giants in their conquests, in their diving into the sacred history of the people; and their readings of antiquity were not shackled, for the trammels of centralisation had not culminated in a single point. They stood forth in grand individuality; they traced the great outlines which have since been filled up; and it is no disparagement to those who have filled in those lines to place the pioneers before them. Those who have mapped out America, and who have built cities and created governments there, have been very great men, but they have not taken from the glory of Columbus. How many have toiled since that day I have referred to, to make the

India which we now possess: how many have retired from their labours, and laid them down to rest in India! I have loved the India of the past, and the memory of it carries many endearing recollections of friends with it. But can we regret the India of the past—the six months' journey from Europe, and the days of weary journeying to the scenes of our labour, in which those who were stricken down with sickness might not often hope to retrace their journey by sea,—the six months' communication with Europe, which often left us to receive the intelligence of the civilised world as past history? We have now our telegraph, which brings us the news of a few days before; we have our railways, which carry us to the remotest parts of India; and we have our weekly communication with England, which enables us to take part in all that passes in Europe. We must take these benefits, and we must take crosses with the benefits. I, like others, have often felt a pang at each rent of the old fabric as we built up the new one, but I am satisfied that all is well, that all that has happened is for the best, and that we are tracing out the path which is allotted to us. (Applause.) Life is for the present and the future, not for the past; and I would address a word in this direction to such of my friends of the Native Army as linger with tender regrets upon the past of that army. The new organisation of the Native Army was ordered when I was otherwise occupied. I had nothing to do with the original adoption of that organisation; but such part as I had to do with it I did with the endeavour to raise the position of the officers of the Native Army to as high a status as possible. (Applause.) I would beg those of my friends who linger over the past not to look for a reversion to the old system, but to do their very utmost to make the best of the new one. I would remind them that, although they have not as many officers as they used to have, the regiments are not so large, and that there are seven officers to 700 men, where formerly there were from 1,000 to 1,200 men with sixteen or eighteen officers. Therefore the difference is not so great, and in his present position every officer has a post of responsibility. I have not seen (and my friend General Stock, who was with me on my tour, told me he had not,) that the Native Army has deteriorated in discipline and efficiency. I do not say that there are not gaps to fill up, but these will be filled up in time. I would, therefore, earnestly entreat my friends of the Native Army—and I am sure they know that I am a sincere friend to them—(applause)—I say I would entreat them to do their best to carry out the new system in the direction which it is intended to take, to educate our officers and soldiers, and to place upon them the responsibility which was intended. I have trespassed too long upon your attention—"no, no!"—and I can only say that I shall ever bear with me the kindest and most grateful recollections of Bombay and Poona and the society here, and especially of my fair friends who have graced this assembly with their presence this evening. (Applause.) I shall remember with pleasure my tours in a country where I have seen such a cheerful and contented population as I have never but once seen in any other part of India, where I have seen a progress in moral education, which has astonished me. I shall think often of your glorious harbour of Bombay, and of its future greatness, and I shall ever think of you all with kindness and gratitude. I bid you a sincere farewell. (Applause.) In conclusion, I beg to return my thanks to his Excellency the Governor for the hospitality, courtesy, and personal kindness which he has exercised towards me, and also to the members of Government for the personal courtesy which I have always experienced from them. (Continued applause.)

COTTON PROSPECTS IN THE CENTRAL PROVINCES AND THE BERARS.

From H. Rivett-Carnac, Esq., Cotton Commissioner for the Central Provinces and the Berars, to the Secretary to the Chamber of Commerce, Bombay. Dated Nagpore, Aug. 14, 1869.

SIR,—In continuation of former correspondence, I have now the honour to forward, for the information of your Chamber, a brief report on the state of the weather, and the prospects of the cotton crop in the Central Provinces and the Berars, during the past month.

2. In my last letter, dated the 12th ult., you were informed that, although in the Wurdah valley (the Hingunghat country) the rain had been abundant, the season in the Berars had shown itself to be extremely capricious, and that the cotton crop had been threatened with serious damage by the hot dry days which followed the first downpour of the monsoon. Fortunately, as was duly reported to you, seasonable rain fell on the 9th of July, and the crop was, for the time, saved.

3. This favourable weather lasted but a very short time. The rainfall at Shegaum and in the neighbourhood during that week was about 3½ inches, quite enough to revive the drooping plants, and permit the cultivators to resow the cotton which, in some few places, where the soil was light and did not retain the moisture, was necessary. From the 21st of last month, until Sunday last, the 8th instant, when the weather suddenly changed, the days were hot and bright and dry, and for nearly three weeks some anxiety was felt for the cotton crop, the prospects of which were doubtful.

4. I purposely deferred forwarding my report to your Chamber in the hope that, as has invariably been the case, the rain would again return just in time to save the crop, and I am glad now to be able to report that during the present week heavy rain has fallen, and that the cotton crop is again safe, and that the prospects are favourable.

5. The rain which commenced on Sunday last, the 8th instant, was general throughout the valley of the Poornah. I happened to be in Berar at the time, and on my ride to and from Khangaon could see that the rain had soaked well into the ground, and was just what the crop required. Heavy rain continued more or less during Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, and I have just learned by telegram that during the week, up to date, rain has fallen as follows at the places mentioned below :—

	Week ending		Previously.		Total.
	In.	Cts.	In.	Cts.	In.	Cts.
Hingunghat ...	1	80	15	40	17	20
Oomrawuttee ...	3	90	10	56	14	46
Shegaon ...	5	0	7	26	12	26

Average annual rain fall in the Hingunghat country, 39 inches 75 cents. Poornah valley, about 32 cents.

6. Although, considering the time of year, the fall of rain has been small, still the crop has, as yet, received no material injury, and, for the present at least, is safe. It is, however, not at all in a forward state, and the difference between the size of the Berar plants and those which I saw near Challisgaon during a recent visit to Mr. Ashburner in Khandeish, is very marked. The Berar plants are still very small, whilst in some places in Khandeish they are from one to two feet high. There, however, the cotton had the start of the Berar crop, having been sown earlier, and it may reasonably be hoped that, with the aid of this favourable weather, the Berar plant will pick up and develop rapidly; and, indeed, on my passing along in the train, on my return to Nagpore, I could distinctly see the improvement in the crops caused by the much wanted rain.

7. On the whole the prospects of the crop are at present favourable. The season has been a trying one, but the rain has always fallen when it was most wanted. The cultivators and others who were anxious and gloomy until Sunday's downpour are now in good spirits, and predict a good season, which, considering the manner in which the Berar cotton weathered last season's drought, does not appear to be unreasonable. In the country above the hills, to the south of Khangaon and Oomrawuttee, the rainfall has been abundant, and the cotton is reported to be forward.

8. It is not possible to furnish you at present with any correct estimate of the area sown this year with cotton, but it may be interesting to your Chamber to learn that the general opinion throughout the Berars is, that the cultivation has been extended. The high prices which have ruled throughout the season would, in a great measure, account for this; and, again, it is stated that, as the rains held off, and a dry season was apprehended, much ground, which would otherwise have been given to jowree, was sown with cotton; for, as experience shows, the cotton plant of this part of India is wonderfully hardy, whilst jowaree and other crops cannot be so well depended on during a bad year. I have consulted and questioned many well-informed persons on the subject, and I am inclined to believe that a full crop may be expected if the weather continues favourable.

9. Further inquiries, recently made, have confirmed the view expressed by me when in Bombay, that the impression that had got about that considerable quantities of cotton had been "held back" by dealers in these provinces was not correct. Nearly the whole of the cotton available for export has been drained off, and the number of bales which will go forward as old cotton next season does not exceed a few hundred.

10. As your Chamber is anxious to receive information regarding the prospects of the crop before the next mail leaves, I have this evening telegraphed to you to the following effect, so that you may not fail to receive the information in good time :—

"Bountiful rain during the week in Berars, and Hingunghat cotton prospects favourable."

I hope, however, that this letter may reach you by Monday morning next.—I have, &c.,

(Signed) H. RIVETT-CARNAC,

Cotton Commissioner for the C. P. and the Berars.

STATION TALK.

BOMBAY, Aug. 19.—Great was the terror with which the announcement of the suspension of the Albert Life Assurance Company was read in the newspapers this morning. Hundreds of the middle class are insured in that office, trusting to the respectability of the firm which has lent its name as agents of the company, and as most of the insured are men of small means, who consoled themselves with the idea of having pinched themselves to secure a provision for those whom they may leave behind in case of accident, the prospect of losing all their paid-up premia, the advantages they expected to derive from the flaming promises of profits, and the prospective loss of the competence they thought they would leave in case of death to their friends, has to-day been the cause of much disappointment in Bombay. The Envoy from Zanzibar, who came over to incite Syed Toorkey to bestir himself, left last evening, under a salute of thirteen guns, a disappointed man. The Syed is ready to present himself before the people of Muscat, but he has not a pice to call his own in case of resistance. He has asked the Bombay Government to lend him a mite, but Sir Seymour Fitzgerald does not seem to see the force of his argument.—Delhi Gazette Correspondent.

KURRACHEE, Aug. 21.—Those who carefully watch the working of the Sind Railway cannot have failed to notice that native merchants have, for some time past, been gradually withdrawing their support from it. There are several causes to which we may attribute this circumstance; but the cause potential is, unquestionably, the influence of the low rates at which the boats plying between Kotree and Khetty are always prepared to carry goods. The people of this province are great economists; they are, moreover, pre-eminently Conservative in their principles, and detest anything like innovation; and unless they can be made to see clearly that they will be gainers, both in time and money, by availing themselves of the railway for the transit of their articles, nothing in the world will induce them to abandon the river route, despite its manifold drawbacks and disadvantages. More than nine months ago the local press drew attention to the fact that the maintenance of high rates by the railway officials for the conveyance of traffic was suicidal to the interests of the company they represented, and that sooner or later the native craft would monopolise the trade. But wise in their own conceit, these gentlemen would not take the hint, and the result has taken no one by surprise. During the six months ending 31st December last, the boats actually conveyed, of grain and oilseeds alone, 827 tons more than the railway did during the succeeding six months—hence the rapid decadence in the receipts of the latter, which cannot but provoke dissatisfaction among the shareholders. It is now said that the present agent has been authorised to reduce the carriage rates of the staples alluded to, from four annas eight pies, to three annas six pies; but I fear some difficulty will be experienced in inducing native traders to appreciate this concession unless it is extended to other articles of commerce as well.—Bombay Gazette Correspondent.

Miscellaneous.

POLICE.—Mr. W. G. Dunlop, Deputy Commissioner of the Water Police, has been drowned in Bombay harbour.

FAIR AT KURRACHEE.—There is to be a fair and exhibition at Kurrachee on a grand scale on the 18th October.

RESCUE OF SLAVES.—Three hundred and fifty liberated slaves, an instalment of a total number of a thousand, have been brought from Aden to Bombay by steamer.

A NEW TURKISH RAILWAY.—A railway is about to be constructed between Bagdad and Kerbela; to the latter place immense numbers of Mussulman pilgrims, of the Sheea sect, flock every year.

DISTRESS IN MARWAR.—A subscription has been opened in Bombay, consequent on the publication of official reports of serious famine in Marwar, to relieve the distress there.

ADEN.—Under the authority of the Government of India conveyed to the Bombay Government, the Political Resident at Aden has purchased a house for Rs. 20,000 for the accommodation of the Arab Chiefs who may wish to visit the town.

A SHIP BURNED.—On the night of August 28 the ship Commodore Parry, Black, master, from Newcastle with coals, came into Bombay harbour with her cargo on fire, and was burnt to the water's edge. No lives were lost, except that of the steward, who died from suffocation.

THE PREMCHUND ROYCHUND LOAN.—The plaintiff's case in the suit of the liquidator of the old Bank of Bombay against the Oriental Bank with reference to Premchund Roychund's loan of £250,000 has been concluded; that of the defendants will be opened on Thursday.

MILITARY.—It is most probable that the successor of Brigadier-General Pratt in the command of the Poona Brigade will be Colonel Addison.—Brigadier-General Donville, now commanding the Belgaum District, will probably have the Mhow Division during the absence of Major-General Adams, who leaves for England by to-day's steamer.—Times of India, August 31.

ABOO RELIEF FUND.—The liberal sum of Rs. 2,600 has been subscribed by certain chiefs of Kattywar to the Aboo Relief Fund. This is a most acceptable addition to the fund, as the Rajpootana chiefs, being hard-pressed by famine themselves, could not be asked for any further assistance. The acknowledgments of the Government of India have been conveyed to the subscribers through the Bombay Government.

ARRIVAL OF SIR AUGUSTUS SPENCER, K.C.B.—Lieutenant-General Sir Augustus Spencer, K.C.B., arrived in Bombay on the morning of the 27th August, at nine o'clock, in the P. and O. steamer Golconda. Immediately on the mail steamer coming to anchor, a steam tug, with barge in tow, put off to bring General Spencer ashore. Brigadier-General Stock, Commanding Bombay District; Colonel Schneider, Judge Advocate General; Colonel Gell, Quarter-Master General; Colonel Kirby, Adjutant General; Major Warden, Brigade Major, Bombay; Major Hicks, A.D.C. to Lord Napier of Magdala; Captain Filgate, Military Secretary to his Excellency the Governor; Captain Robinson, Superintendent of Marine; Captain Price, Master Attendant, &c., proceeded on board to receive the new Chief, and conduct him ashore. With General Spencer were Captain Stephenson, his Military Secretary, and Captain Liddell, A.D.C. A guard of honour, of 100 rank and file, with band and colour, was supplied by that fine regiment the 2nd Grenadiers, N.I., under command of Major Sussex Milford. The Grenadiers were drawn up at the head of Apollo Bunda stairs, and, of course, received the General with the customary salute, while another salute was fired from the saluting battery. Carriages were in attendance to convey the party to Government-house, Malabar Point, where they remained for the day; they proceeded to Poona at nine o'clock on the 31st.

GOVERNMENT GENERAL ORDERS.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE TO JUDGES.

Aug. 7.—No. 2,526.—The following rules for regulating leave of absence to Judges of H.M.'s High Courts of Judicature in India having been sanctioned by his Grace the Secy. of State in Council under the provisions of the Statute 24 and 25 Vic., cap. 104, section 6, are promulgated for general information:—

Rules for the regulation of Leave of Absence to the Judges of H.M.'s High Court of Judicature in India, sanctioned by his Grace the Secy. of State for India in Council, under the provisions of the Statute 24 and 25 Vic., cap. 104, section 6, in his despatch No. 19, dated June 24, 1869.

Definitions.

1. In the following Rules, "actual service" includes the period during which a Judge is carrying on his duties in a High Court, also periods spent on privilege and subsidiary leave, and periods of vacation during which the Judge is not on furlough or "extraordinary leave." "Extraordinary leave" means any leave granted otherwise than under these rules.

Chapter I.—Furlough.

II. One year's furlough shall be placed to the credit of each Judge after the completion of every four years of actual service.

III. Except under Rules VI. and VII., no furlough shall be granted until at credit under Rule II. Provided that any Judge who may have been already in the service of the Government at the time of taking office in the High Court, and who was at that time entitled under the rules applicable to the branch of the service to which he belonged to furlough without medical certificate, may be granted furlough for a term not exceeding that to which he was so entitled upon the condition that such furlough shall not be taken until the completion of two years' actual service in the High Court, and shall not exceed one year.

IV. Except under Rule VII., furlough shall not be repeated until after the completion of three years' actual service from the date of the last return from furlough or extraordinary leave.

V. The maximum term of furlough to be taken at any one time shall be fifteen months.

VI. Under medical certificate, furlough may be granted before it is at credit, under Rule II.

VII. On urgent private affairs, furlough may be granted before it is at credit, under Rule II., and although three years of actual service have not been completed since the last return from furlough or extraordinary leave. Provided that furlough under this section shall not exceed six months, and shall be granted only once during the whole period of a Judge's service in the High Court.

VIII. The aggregate amount of all furlough which can be granted to a judge during the whole period of his service in the High Court shall not exceed two years and a-half.

IX. Furlough taken in India shall be reckoned from the date of the judge quitting his office to the date of his return thereto. Furlough taken out of India shall be reckoned from the date of embarkation to the date of return. In the event of the furlough being taken partly in India and partly out of India, the commencement and termination of the furlough shall be respectively determined by the above rules, according as the furlough begins or ends in or out of India.

X. For the interval elapsing between the date of quitting his office and the commencement of furlough out of India, and between the termination of furlough out of India and resuming his office, a judge may be allowed subsidiary leave not ordinarily exceeding thirty days, which in special cases may be extended.

XI. A judge, when on furlough or subsidiary leave, shall receive allowances at the rate of 833.5-4 rupees per mensem, or £1,000 per annum.

XII. Except under medical certificate, the number of furloughs to be granted at any one time, and the grant of furloughs to individual judges shall be subject to, and limited by, the exigencies of the service, which exigencies shall be determined exclusively by the authority granting the furlough.

XIII. If, owing to the exigencies of the service, it may be necessary to place any limit on the number of judges who may be absent on furlough at the same time, applications not supported by medical certificate will be granted in the following order:—The Judge to whose credit the greatest amount of furlough remains under Rule II. shall have the preference. If two or more applicants are on an equality in this respect, the preference shall be given to the applicant whose actual service in a High Court is longest, reckoning in the case of a Judge who has not taken furlough or extraordinary leave from the date of his commencement of service in the High Court, and in the case of a Judge who has taken furlough or extraordinary leave from the date of his last return from such furlough or leave. If two or more applicants are equal in both respects, the preference shall be given to the senior in the Court.

Chapter II.—Privilege Leave.

XIV. Subject to the exigencies of the service, a Judge who has completed eleven months' continuous duty, inclusive of vacations, may, if the Government be satisfied that there is an urgent necessity, but not otherwise, be granted privilege leave for one month without deduction from his salary or acting allowances.

XV. In the same manner and under the same conditions, an additional month of privilege leave shall be held to accrue to a Judge after each further period of eleven months' continuous duty.

XVI. Privilege leave shall not be taken in instalments, but any balance of privilege leave that may not have been taken shall be added to the next privilege leave which may accrue. Provided that the whole privilege leave taken at any one time shall not exceed three months, and that any accumulation of privilege leave beyond that period shall be forfeited.

Chapter III.—General.

XVII. Furlough and privilege leave shall not be taken as such in continuation of each other, but if a Judge absent on one of these classes of leave be allowed to change it for another, the whole period of his absence shall be held to be under the class of leave for which it was changed.

XVIII. Applications for leave shall in all cases be submitted in such manner as the Government may from time to time prescribe.

XIX. Leave allowances shall be payable monthly if payment is taken in India, and quarterly if payment is taken in England.

XX. No substantive appointment shall be vacated merely by reason of leave being granted under these rules.

XXI. If a Judge shall overstay any leave, he shall forfeit all salary during the time of his remaining so absent, and if he shall so continue absent for more than one week his office shall be liable to become vacant.

XXII. No leave except privilege leave and leave subsidiary to furlough shall count as service for pension. The period of service at present qualifying for pension as a High Court Judge shall be diminished by six months for full pension, and by three months for half pension.

XXIII. Each Judge at present standing appointed to a High Court shall, on the first occasion of his taking leave, be given the option of accepting these rules, or abiding by those at present in force for Judges of the High Courts of Judicature.

XXIV. If a Judge, who is a Covenanted Civil Servant, shall be permitted to resign his office and remain in the service, all leave which he may have taken as a Judge of the High Court shall be reckoned as if it had been taken under the rules for the leave of absence of Covenanted Civil Servants.

The above rules are, with the sanction of his Grace the Secretary of State for India in Council, hereby declared applicable, with the modifications below stated, to the following officers:—Barrister Judges of the Chief Court of the Punjab; Recorders in Burmah; First Judges of Small Cause Courts at the Presidency towns; Secretary to the Council of the Governor-general for making laws and regulations.

Modifications above indicated.

I. The allowances of these officers, while on furlough or subsidiary leave, shall not exceed half their salaries, and shall be limited also to the rate prescribed in Rule XI.

II. With reference to Rule XXII., the pensions to which these officers are entitled under medical certificate after nine years' service, shall be due after eight years and eight months' actual service; and the pensions to which they are in like manner entitled after seven years' service shall be due after six years and nine months' actual service.

POSITION OF ROYAL ENGINEER OFFICERS.

No. 868.—The following military letter from the Rt. Hon. the Secretary of State for India, No. 179, dated India-office, London, July 15, is published:—

To H.E. the Right Hon. the Governor general of India in Council.

My Lord,—Having forwarded, for the opinion of H.R.H. the Field Marshal C. in C., your letter No. 474 of Dec. 14 last, relative to the position of officers of the old royal engineers on the conclusion of seven years' service in India, I have been informed by his Royal Highness, in reply, that an officer, after completing seven years' service in India, is entitled, under clause 10 of the royal engineer corps order No. 462 of July 1, 1862, to a tour of home duty; and, should the exigencies of the service permit, the C. in C. in India, on the application of the officer, may allow him to return to England with a view of reverting to imperial duties.

2. That an officer so returning to this country is not bound to return to India, but he may do so as a volunteer; and that after a tour of home duty he is liable, like any other officer of the corps, to be ordered to India for a further period of seven years.

3. Further, that the fact of an officer who has volunteered for service in India not applying to be relieved from duty after a service of seven years or more in that country does not bind him to permanent service there, but that he may, at any time after seven years' service, make an application to be allowed to revert to imperial duties.—I have, &c.,

(Signed) ARGYLL.

DRESS.

August 19.—No. 233.—In continuation of G.O.C.C. Sept. 12, 1864, Adjt. gen.'s circular No. 148E of Oct. 28, 1864, G.O. No. 160 of 1861, and with the sanction of Government, the C. in C. is pleased to lay down the following dress to be worn by British officers serving with native infantry regiments, at mess and on other authorised occasions:—

I. For regiments dressed in red—

Shell Jacket.—Scarlet cloth edged with white, with rounded collar and pointed cuffs, five inches in height, of regimental facing, and ten small regimental buttons down the front at equal distances, and two on each sleeve. Field officers distinguished by crown and star, crown or star, in gold on collar.

Waistcoat.—Cloth of the same colour as the regimental facings, with roll collar, with four small regimental buttons. To be worn with the shell jacket.

Note.—A white linen waistcoat of the same pattern may be worn in the summer months at the discretion of commanding officers.

II. For regiments dressed in green and drab—

Shell Jacket.—Rifle green (or drab) cloth, with black (or drab) studs to hook and eye up the front, edged all round with black (or drab) square-cord, collar and cuffs to be of the regimental facings, sleeve ornament, knot of square cord seven inches deep.

Field officers distinguished by a crown and star, crown or star, in black (or drab) silk embroidery on collar.

Waistcoat.—Cloth of the same colour as the regimental facings, with roll collar, with four small regimental buttons. To be worn with the shell jacket.

Note.—A white linen waistcoat of the same pattern may be worn in the summer months, at the discretion of commanding officers.

By order of his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief,

FRED. THESIGER, Colonel, Adjutant-general.

CERTIFICATES—STAFF CORPS.

August 17.—No. 871.—In continuation of G.G.O. No. 193 of Feb. 16 last, the following notification from the Home Department is published in general orders:—

Home Department, Simla, July 29, 1869.

No. 238.—Revenue (Geographical).—Notification.

The following corrections should be made in the form of commanding officer's certificate, prescribed for candidates for the staff corps entering the survey department as probationers, in the Home Department notification No. 49, Revenue (Geographical), dated Feb. 9, 1869:—

For "Completed three years' duty with a regiment on the —, two years of which," &c., read "Completed two years' duty with a regiment on the —, one year of which," &c.; and for "Passed the examination in the native languages which qualifies for staff employ," read "Has passed the examination in the native languages by the higher (or lower, as the case may be) standard."

GOVERNMENT GENERAL ORDERS.

LORD NAPIER'S FAREWELL ORDER.

The following General Order was issued by Lord Napier of Magdala previous to his resignation of the command of the Bombay Army:—

In relinquishing the command of the Bombay Army, the duties of which have been to me a source of pride and gratification, unalloyed by a moment's anxiety, I desire heartily to acknowledge the good conduct of all ranks, and to express my thanks to the generals of divisions, of brigade, and officers commanding regiments and batteries for the judgment and ability with which they have exercised their commands.

My early acquaintance with the troops of the Bombay Presidency led me to form a high estimate of them. The expectations then formed have been fully realised. I need but point to the events of the past year as an example of the excellent discipline, loyalty, and endurance of every branch of the army.

Colonels Kirby, Gell, Schneider, Fuller, and Dunsterville, and Inspectors-general Gordon and Wright, have conducted the duties of their high offices zealously and ably, and I am greatly indebted to them and the other officers of their departments, and to their subordinates.

The excellent services of their predecessors, Brigadier-general Stock, Colonel Phayre, Major-general Skinner, Colonel Forster, Inspector-general Arnott, and Deputy Inspector-general Currie deserve my warm acknowledgments.

I am deeply indebted to Colonel Dillon, military secretary, for his devotion to his duties.

It is with feelings of sincere regret that I find the time arrived for the close of my relations with the Bombay Army. I shall never fail in my earnest wishes for its welfare.

Poona, August 28.

NAPIER OF MAGDALA, Lieut. gen., C. in C.

RESIGNATION OF LORD NAPIER OF MAGDALA.

The following Government Gazette Extraordinary was issued immediately on the arrival of General Spencer:—

"His Excellency Lieutenant-general the Lord Napier of Magdala, G.C.B. and G.C.S.I., resigns this day the command of the Bombay army."

"His Excellency in Council feels assured that it is not necessary to rehearse Lord Napier's services. The capture of Magdala drew the attention of all to his distinguished career."

"His command of the army, both before and after the brilliant interval of the Abyssinian campaign, has been marked by thoughtful and active furtherance of every means to better the state of the soldier in health, enjoyment, and usefulness; and his Excellency the Governor in Council has no doubt that this has made itself felt throughout the army, and that it leaves a sense of Lord Napier's care and sympathy, which will be abidingly associated with the memory of his tenure of this command."

"Lieutenant-general the Honourable Sir Augustus Almeric Spencer, K.C.B., assumes command of the army."

"The troops in garrison at Bombay will appear under arms at the time of Lord Napier's embarkation, till when the customary honours due to the Commander-in-Chief will be paid to his lordship."

"W. F. MARRETT, Colonel, Secretary to Government."

"Bombay Castle, August 27."

THE ALBERT ASSURANCE COMPANY.

The following has appeared in all the papers:—"Lord William Hay presents his compliments to the editor, and begs to inform him that the London committee of policy-holders of the Albert Assurance Company is engaged in the consideration of proposals both for reconstruction and for transfer of the business of the company, the result of which will be submitted as early as possible to the policy-holders by public meeting. In the meantime policy-holders are recommended to continue payment of their premiums to the provisional official liquidator.—Sept. 22."

The directors of the Albert Life Assurance Company were brought on Saturday before Mr. Knox, at Marlborough-street, on a charge of defrauding the shareholders by issuing false reports that represented the condition of the company as other than it was. Mr. Straight, who appeared for the prosecutor, applied for an adjournment of the case till he should examine the books of the company, but this the magistrate refused. The case, therefore, went on, and two witnesses were called—one Mr. Lee, the leading prosecutor, who deposed that he had bought 240 shares, expecting from the reports that they would yield him a large profit, and Mr. Price, the provisional liquidator, who explained the affairs of the company, and stated that he had found in the books no trace of fraud on the part of the directors. The case was then adjourned for three weeks—the directors being admitted to bail, and leave was given to the prosecution to examine the books.

Mr. H. B. Sheridan, M.P. for Dudley, whose country seat is situated in St. Peter's, Thanet, writes to a local journal denying the report that his constituents are about to call upon him for an explanation regarding his connection with the Albert Assurance Company. He says:—"I have received no letter or communication, directly or indirectly, from my constituents, large as that constituency is, or from any person in Dudley, on the subject of the Albert Company. Neither have there been any meetings of my constituents on the subject." In addition he adds that there will be no ruin to any policy-holder in connection with the company, as they are safe to get 15s. in the pound, and possibly the remaining 6s.

On Sept. 21 an extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders was held at the offices, 7, Waterloo-place, Pall-mall, for the purpose (as stated in the notice) of proposing, and, if considered desirable, of passing, an extraordinary resolution to the following effect:—"That it has been proved to the satisfaction of the company that the company cannot, by reason of its liabilities, continue its business, and that it is desirable to wind up the same, and that the same be wound up voluntarily under the Companies Acts, 1862 and 1867;" to appoint a liquidator or liquidators to wind up the affairs of the company; to take into consideration the proposal of the "provisional official liquidators" of this company for the arrangement of the liabilities of the company (dated the 25th of August, 1869), and to pass such resolution or resolutions with reference thereto as may be thought advisable. It will be remembered that a special general meeting of shareholders was held on the 28th of August, Mr. Vansittart Neale, being in the chair, when a resolution was agreed to, after a very stormy discussion, bringing the company under the Joint-Stock Companies' Act of 1862. Mr. Price, one of the official liquidators, then read an elaborate report on the state of the company, which was discussed with much warmth, the result being an adjournment, so that meanwhile the matter might be brought under the consideration of the Vice-Chancellor. Mr. Neale again took the chair, and said that in consequence of the proceedings which had been taken in the Court of Chancery the object of the present meeting had been over-ruled, but still the directors thought it wise to allow the meeting to be held in order that the shareholders might express their opinions. After a long and desultory conversation, Mr. Tarring proposed a committee of five to confer with the policy-holders' committee, and to examine the affairs of the company. The resolution, after discussion, was agreed to. The express business for which the meeting was called was not proceeded with. Mr. Price, in answer to a question, said he believed there had been no improper abstraction from the funds of the company, and that every penny had been honourably if not fairly expended. He thought the accounts would reveal the expenditure of every penny that had come into the hands of the directors.

We learn that the joint committees of the policy-holders of the Albert Assurance Company, appointed by the various London and provincial meetings, have agreed to recommend to Vice-Chancellor James the appointment of Mr. W. J. White, of King-street, and Mr. A. Young (Turquand, Young, and Co.) as the liquidators of the company.

ANOTHER ASSURANCE COLLAPSE.—An assurance collapse, which has been apprehended for some weeks, and which it is feared may prove more disastrous than that of the Albert, has been announced. Two petitions were heard on Wednesday before Vice-Chancellor James for the winding-up of the European Assurance Society, and it was ordered that the case should stand over until Saturday in next week, all receipts on account of premiums being meanwhile kept separate. The outstanding policies of the society are stated to be for an amount of between nine and ten millions sterling, in addition to which they are under contract for the payment of annuities amounting, according to a recent statement, to £16,000 per annum, but which are believed now to be considerably beyond that sum. The society also had a very large guarantee business under a special Act, and of an annual premium income of £338,298, about £40,000 is understood to have been from that source. The subscribed capital is £780,000, in shares of £2. 10s. each, on which 16s. 6d. per share is paid up, this 16s. 6d. having been composed of 10s. originally paid, 1s. 6d. credited to the shareholders some time ago as a profit bonus, and 5s. from a call made about two months back. The assets applicable to the Life Assurance were stated on the 31st of December last at only £490,729, and those included an item, described as "mortgages, life interests, reversions, and balance of purchases of business, &c.," for £348,880, without any specification as to how much of that total is represented by the worthless goodwill of the business acquired. The remaining liability of the shareholders is £520,000, but probably the solvent proportion will be found very small. The prospects of liquidation must, therefore, be regarded as most discouraging. The office was established in 1854, under the title of the "People's Assurance Society." In 1859 it changed its name to the "European Assurance Society," and since that time it has absorbed 33 other companies, the great majority of which were doubtless got up by the usual adepts for the purposes of sale. The office obtained a special Act of Parliament, about nine or ten years ago, enabling them to undertake to guarantee the fidelity of Government employés and others, and this Act, it is understood, provided for the creation of a reserve fund in Government securities specially applicable to such guarantees, and also that the Government should have power to appoint inspectors to examine the affairs of the society. One of the offices last absorbed was the Naval, Military, and East India Assurance Company, founded in 1837, among whose directors were several Anglo-Indians of mark. A meeting of shareholders of the European Society was held on Monday; General Frederick Smith, the chairman of the society, presiding. After hearing the chairman's explanations, resolutions were passed declaring that winding up was unnecessary, and urging the directors to resist it to the utmost of their power. A meeting of policy-holders in the Royal Naval, Military, and East India Life Assurance Society (which was amalgamated with the European a few years ago) was held on Monday. After some conversation, a committee of three was appointed to obtain the requisite facts, and an adjournment until Monday next was then agreed to. Captain Jones, a director of the European, and Mr. Walker, the actuary, were present at the meeting and expressed a confident opinion that the society was able to meet all claims upon it.

Miscellaneous.

THE ABYSSINIAN COMMITTEE.—Mr. Candlish, M.P. for Sunderland, and chairman of the Abyssinian Committee, is, it is stated, about to visit India, with Captain Beaumont, M.P. for South Durham, for the purpose of making further inquiry into the cost of the late expedition.

THE MARQUIS OF TWEEDDALE.—The Army and Navy Gazette regrets to learn that the venerable and gallant officer the Marquis of Tweeddale is very ill. A man who was brigade-major in Stuart's army in 1806 cannot be expected to live very much after 1869, but the veteran general has generally been in such robust health that the sudden attack is unexpected. The marquis was once commander-in-chief of Bengal.

TROOPS FOR INDIA.—Her Majesty's Indian troopship Serapis, after a complete refit of machinery, with the introduction of a patent lift on the luggage deck, sailed from Portsmouth on Saturday, Sept. 25. The troops conveyed from Portsmouth embrace the A battery, 9th brigade Royal Artillery, consisting of seven officers and 146 men, from Woolwich; draft of the 6th brigade Royal Artillery (1 officer and 34 men); C battery, 9th brigade Royal Artillery (5 officers and 146 men); H ditto (2 officers); 11th Hussars (1 officer and Bandmaster Pashley); 2nd battalion 21st Foot (1 officer and Bandmaster Daniels); 1st battalion 7th Foot (2 officers, Bandmaster Moran, and Hospital Sergeant Lloyd); 3rd battalion 60th Foot (1 officer and a sergeant instructor of musketry); from various corps there will be 8 officers, 3 wives, 1 child, and 3 servants; from the Marine Department of the India-office, one officer will embark in addition to one second class passenger. The Serapis will sail from Queenstown on Wednesday, Sept. 29. She will there embark detachments from the Royal Artillery, including 3 officers and 146 men of the D battery, 5 officers and 146 men of the E battery, 5 officers and 146 men of the F battery, and 4 officers and 146 men of the G battery. One officer and one man belonging to the C battery of the 9th brigade Royal Artillery will embark at Malta, from which place the Serapis will sail on the 11th of October, arriving at Alexandria on the 15th of the same month. The whole of the troops will be transferred to the Euphrates, which will leave Suez on the 17th of October, Aden on the 25th, and arrive at Bombay on the 2nd of November.

THE NEW RIFLE.—The North German Correspondent says that the Prussian military authorities are said to have expressed their approval of the Martini-Henri rifle, and it is not improbable that experiments will soon be made with it on a large scale. The new English knap-sacks, with which a part of the 2nd Regiment of Guards had been supplied some months ago, are favourably mentioned, and likely to be subjected to a more complete trial.

SUITS AGAINST THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA.—On September 21 an application was made to the Chief Clerk of Vice-Chancellor James, in several suits brought by persons in the Civil Service of India, against the Secretary of State, for time to put in answers. The ground was that the papers were very voluminous and 1,500 volumes had to be searched for despatches which contained materials for the answers; and, besides, the usual plea of the absence of counsel during the vacation was urged. The application was opposed; but the Chief Clerk gave six weeks' time, and ordered the Secretary of State to pay the costs of the summons—£1. 1s. 4d. in one case, and 13s. 4d. in another.

THIRTY-SEVEN TIMES CONVICTED.—Shah Mahommed, an aged man, a half-caste, and a native of Bombay, was charged at the Middlesex Sessions, on September 21, with being an incorrigible rogue and vagabond. He was very emaciated, and supported himself in the dock with a stick. It appeared that Police-constable James Cox, 23 E. on the afternoon of September 14, saw the prisoner begging in Gower-street, and then followed him along the north end of Bedford-square to Tottenham-court-road, where he crossed the road, placed himself against a shop, and begged of the persons passing by; he was then taken into custody. Joseph Worsaker, mendicity officer, said there were thirty-seven previous convictions against the prisoner, and he had several times had long terms of imprisonment from this Court. The prisoner said he was a native of Bombay, and should be very glad if he were sent there again. Mr. Serjeant Cox said he seemed to like being in prison. Why did he not apply to the work-house? The prisoner said they would not take him in. As soon as he got out of prison and attempted to sell a few articles of scent and matches the policemen took him into custody, and he wanted to know what he was to do. Mr. Serjeant Cox said all he could do with him was to send him again to prison, which would be for nine months.

THE ORIENTAL COAL COMPANY (LIMITED), into whose hands the extensive coal mines in the island of Labuan have passed, are now working them successfully. In anticipation of a great increase in the demand for coal in the China seas on the opening of the Suez Canal, it has been decided to supply coal at the fine harbour of Victoria, which admits and shelters vessels of the largest size at all times of the tides and at all seasons, instead of at Coal Point, as at present, where steamers can take in coal only in comparatively fine weather. The distance from the mines to Victoria harbour, where the Governor's residence and all the public buildings are situate, is about nine miles, and the coal is to be transported by means of the patent road steamers, with india-rubber tires, of Mr. R. W. Thomson, C.E., Edinburgh. Two of these powerful engines and sixteen wagons, to carry six tons each, are already completed, and will be shipped direct to Labuan in the company's new screw collier the William Miller. These road steamers appear to be exciting great interest all over the world. The Government of India have just ordered to be despatched overland the first engine for a regular service which they intend establishing on the Grand Trunk Road, for the transport of troops, Government stores, and general merchandise, in lieu of the miserably slow and costly bullock-trains which now creep along that fine road. The road steamers will, it is said, run five or six miles per hour at far less cost than the bullock hackeries, which cannot keep up a third of that speed.—Times, September 27.

SUPPLEMENTARY MAILS FOR INDIA, CHINA, AUSTRALIA, &c., VIA BRINDISI.—The Italian Post-office having established direct and accelerated trains between the French frontier and Brindisi, and having offered, as an experiment, to convey by those trains British Supplementary Mails for the East Indies, China, Australia, &c., commencing with the morning of Saturday, the 2nd of October next, mails supplementary to those despatched on the previous evening, via Marseilles, will henceforth be made up at this office on the morning of every Saturday and forwarded through France and Italy to Brindisi, and thence by Italian packet to Alexandria. It is expected that these supplementary mails will reach Alexandria in time to go on to Suez with the mails forwarded weekly from Southampton and from Marseilles, but, in the event of the packets from Brindisi not arriving in due course, the mail packets leaving Suez will not delay their departure. All letters, &c., intended to be forwarded in these supplementary mails must be specially directed "via Brindisi," and they will be liable to the following rates of postage:—For a letter addressed to the East Indies, not exceeding half-an-ounce in weight, 1s. 4d.; for every additional half-ounce, 1s. 4d. Ditto to Straits Settlements, China, and Japan, 1s. 7d.; for every additional half-ounce, 1s. 7d. Ditto to Australia, 1s. 1d.; for every additional half-ounce, 1s. 1d. For every newspaper not exceeding four ounces in weight, 4d.; for every additional four ounces, 4d. The postage must be fully pre-paid. Unpaid or insufficiently paid letters, &c., will not be sent via Brindisi. Book packets and patterns will not be forwarded in the supplementary mails. In London, letters may be posted under the same regulations as letters intended to be despatched by the day mail to France, except that none can be posted at the Cannon-street Railway Station. Newspapers must be posted before seven A.M., and only at the chief office.

LOSS OF THE "CARNATIC."—The directors of the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company have ordered the officers who had command of the Carnatic steamer when wrecked off the island of Shadwan, in the Gulf of Suez, home to England, the Board of Trade having intimated their intention of holding an inquiry into the circumstances of her loss. Telegrams from Suez give more encouraging information as to the probability of saving the £40,000 specie from the wreck, as also a portion of her valuable cargo. The company's steamer Ausari, which was despatched to the scene of the wreck from Suez as soon as the news of the loss was known, returned to Suez on Sept. 22, and it appears that the wreck lies in twelve fathoms water, consequently did not go down in such deep water as previously represented. Divers can work with ease in that depth of water, but in forty fathoms it is impossible. Already there are several experienced divers from Whitstable on their route to Suez for that purpose. The directors of the Peninsular and Oriental Company have issued an official account of the wreck in the Red Sea of their steamer the Carnatic, written by the captain of the vessel. The Carnatic left Suez at ten o'clock in the morning on the 12th inst. and struck on the reef at a little after one o'clock the same day. During the rest of that day and the whole of the next every effort was made to get her off, but in vain. In the evening the captain called a meeting of the passengers, explained the situation of the ship to them, and asked them to appoint a committee to examine into and judge of it for themselves. The committee was formed, and it was decided that the best plan to adopt was to remain on board. During the night, however, the water gained upon the vessel, and put the engine fires out. At ten o'clock next morning the passengers were leaving the vessel in the boats, when the ship suddenly slipped down, stern foremost, leaving only the fore part out of the water. Those who were saved made for the reef, whence they were all rescued the same night and the next morning by the Sumatra, which had come in sight bound for Suez.

Mails to India, &c.

The Mails to all parts of India, via SOUTHAMPTON, are now made up at the General Post Office, London, every Saturday at 8 A.M., and those via MARSEILLES every Friday, at 6 P.M.

For Ceylon, China, Straits Settlements, &c., the dates of despatch up to the end of December will be as follows, viz.:

VIA SOUTHAMPTON, at 8 A.M., on the Saturdays, October 2, 16, and 30, November 6 and 20, and December 4 and 18.

VIA MARSEILLES, at 6 P.M., on the Fridays, October 8 and 22, November 5 and 19, and December 3, 17, and 31.

RATES OF POSTAGE TO INDIA & CEYLON.

LETTERS.

Via Marseilles, under ½ oz., 1s. 1d. | 1 oz., 2s. 2d. | each additional ½ oz. 1s. 1d.
Via Southampton, under ½ oz., 8d. | 1 oz., 1s. 6d. | each additional ½ oz. 0s. 9d.

NEWSPAPERS.

Via Marseilles, under 4 oz., 3d. | 8 oz., 6d. | 12 oz., 9d. | each additional 4 oz., 3d.
Via Southampton, under 4 oz., 2d. | 8 oz., 3d. | 12 oz., 4d. | each additional 4 oz., 1d.

BOOKS AND PATTERNS.

Via Marseilles, under 1 oz., 2d. | 2 oz., 4d. | 4 oz., 6d. | 8 oz., 1s. | 12 oz., 1s. 6d. | each additional 4 oz., 6d.

Via Southampton, under 1 oz., 1d. | 2 oz., 2d. | 4 oz., 4d. | 8 oz., 8d. | 12 oz., 1s. | each additional 4 oz., 4d.

The postage on letters may either be paid in advance or left to be paid on delivery, at the option of the sender; but in all cases where the postage is not fully pre-paid, the Letters will be charged, on delivery, with one additional rate of Ninepence, besides the usual postage.

This increase of postage will not affect the Letters of Officers of the Army and Navy serving in India and Ceylon; such Letters will continue to enjoy the privilege of transmission at the reduced postage of Sixpence the half-ounce, via Southampton, and Tenpence the half-ounce via Marseilles.

In the case of Newspapers, Books, &c., the prepayment of the postage is compulsory. Parcels must not in any case exceed 5 lbs. in weight, or be of greater dimensions than twenty-four inches in length, and twelve inches in width or depth.

A French line of Mail Packets leaves Marseilles every fourth Saturday. Postage for Letters and Papers to India and China the same as is charged by the English Mail, via Marseilles. Letters intended to be forwarded by these Packets must be specially addressed—"By French Mail Packet from Marseilles."

Up to the end of December the dates of despatch from London will be the Thursday evenings, September 30th, October 28th, November 26th, and December 23rd, and by Supplementary Mails on the morning following.

Supplementary Mails will also be made up at the General Post Office, London, every Saturday morning, via France and Italy to Brindisi, and thence by Italian packet to Alexandria, but should they not reach the latter place in time, the departure of the regular Mails for Suez will not be delayed. The postage of letters will be at the rate of 1s. 4d. for each half-ounce, and of newspapers 4d. for each four ounces.

METFORD'S EXPLOSIVE BULLETS.—Metford's explosive bullets having been condemned as obsolete, controllers and officers in charge of military stores will take the following measures for their disposal:—About one-tenth inch of the apex of the bullet will be cut off with a small knife, thus removing that part of the bullet which is partially spun over the composition, and preventing explosion in the after operation. The bullets, a few at a time, will be thrown into a fire (portable or otherwise), the melted lead being allowed to run into ingot moulds, as it falls through the bars of the furnace. The quantity of lead so produced will be brought on charge by vouchers of conversion and included in the next report of the half-yearly board of survey, with a recommendation as to the advisability of transferring it to the Royal Arsenal, or of selling it at the station. The price which can be realised at the station will be stated on the report.

ENGLISH HOMES IN INDIA.

PART I.—THE THREE LOVES. | PART II.—THE WRONG TURNING.

PUBLISHERS' NOTICE.

The writer of these volumes—an accomplished member of a family whose name is conspicuous in Indian story—being now resident in India, they have not had the benefit of her final corrections. It is hoped, however, that this inevitable drawback will detract but little from the pleasure to be afforded by the perusal of the tales, which are, indeed, what they profess to be, stories of English Homes in India, represented as such homes are in different parts of the country and under various social and professional aspects. They endeavour fairly and without exaggeration to illustrate Anglo-Indian life as it is, in its many varying phases, and to bring upon the scene, in their everyday costume, many kinds of Anglo-Indian workmen, from the Resident at a Native Court, to the subaltern officer and the railway employé; and it is believed that all who have visited the countries described will recognise the truth of the portraiture.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.

The constant change of temperature, with rapid alternations of drought and rain, are causing daily derangements in chest, stomach, and liver. For rectifying the slightest or most severe disorders of these organs nothing has been found so constantly successful as Holloway's Pills, which may be taken by any one without fear of injury. These Pills exercise so salutary an influence over the organs of digestion that almost any ordinary food may be eaten with impunity, and they strengthen the weakest stomach against acidity, flatulency, and heartburn. Their aperient qualities speedily relieve both nausea and biliousness. They remove all obstructions in the system, and healthfully restore its proper function to every organ.

THE PEOPLE OF INDIA:

A SERIES OF
PHOTOGRAPHIC ILLUSTRATIONS OF
THE RACES AND TRIBES OF HINDUSTAN,
ORIGINALLY PREPARED UNDER THE AUTHORITY OF
THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA,
AND REPRODUCED AT THE INDIA MUSEUM
BY ORDER OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA IN COUNCIL.

EDITED BY

J. FORBES WATSON AND JOHN WILLIAM KAYE.

MEMORANDUM.

In addition to the copies of this work prepared for the use of the Government, the Secretary of State for India in Council has authorised the publication of an edition for sale.

The work will contain about 450 Photographs on mounts, in eight volumes, super-royal 4to., and it will be issued at £2. 5s. per volume.

The First and Second Volumes are still on hand.

PREFACE.

During the administration of Lord Canning, from 1856 to 1863, the interest which had been created in Europe by the remarkable development of the Photographic Art communicated itself to India, and originated the desire to turn it to account in the illustration of the topography, architecture, and ethnology of that country.

There were none, perhaps, in whom this interest was awakened more strongly than in Lord and Lady Canning. It was their wish to carry home with them, at the end of their sojourn in India, a collection, obtained by private means, of photographic illustrations, which might recall to their memory the peculiarities of Indian life.

The great convulsion of 1857-58, while it necessarily retarded for a time all scientific and artistic operations, imparted a new interest to the country which had been the scene of, and to the people who had been the actors in these remarkable events. When, therefore, the pacification of India had been accomplished, the officers of the Indian Services, who had made themselves acquainted with the principles and practice of photography, encouraged and patronised by the Governor-General, went forth, and traversed the land in search of interesting subjects.

In this way the design soon exceeded the dimensions of a mere private collection; but Lord Canning felt that its importance was sufficient to warrant official sanction and development, and, therefore, placed the matter in the hands of Mr. Clive Bayley, his Home Secretary. Some of the more important results appear in the present work.

The photographs were produced without any definite plan, according to local and personal circumstances, by different officers; and copies of each plate were sent home to the Secretary of State for India in Council.

After a time, it appeared that a sufficient number of illustrations had been received from various parts of India, fairly to represent the different varieties of the Indian races. The negatives remained in India; but from the plates sent home it was easy to produce fresh negatives, the prints of which might be multiplied to any extent. The Secretary of State in Council sanctioned this operation, and the work was executed by Mr. W. Griggs, at the India Museum, under the superintendence of Dr. Forbes Watson.

In many cases some descriptive account of the tribes represented accompanied the photographs sent from India. These varied greatly in amplitude and value. But, on the whole, it may be said that they were sufficient to constitute the basis of the sketches contributed by Mr. John R. Melville, Colonel Meadows Taylor, Mr. Kaye, Dr. Forbes Watson, and others. These sketches do not profess to be more than mere rough notes, suggestive rather than exhaustive, and they make no claim to scientific research or philosophic investigation. But although the work does not aspire to scientific eminence, it is hoped that, in an ethnological point of view, it will not be without interest and value.

Summary and Review.

OUR latest advices by the Overland Mail are—from Bombay, September 7; Agra, September 4; Calcutta, September 3; Madras, September 1.

The appointment of Colonel Strachey to a seat in the Viceroy's Legislative Council has called forth a good deal of discussion in the Indian press. The Friend of India objects to the conversion of an able Secretary of Public Works into a Councillor beset with many uncongenial duties. It also dreads the notion of two such ultra-Radicals and almost socialists as Mr. John Strachey and his engineer brother being seated at the same council-board, and using all their great talents in furtherance of a creed which would crush out all private rights and class distinctions under the tread of one all-devouring tyrant—the State. It protests against the rumoured project of enlarging the Executive Council for the special benefit of Colonel Strachey, who would do his best to carry forward the pernicious principles of the Punjab Tenancy Act and the Land Improvement Bill. On the other hand, the Englishman, smiling at the fears of its contemporary, hails the appointment with entire satisfaction, and praises Lord Mayo for this new evidence of his quickness in finding special men to do special work. It believes that part of the additional work thus thrown on Colonel Strachey's shoulders can be taken off them by the appointment of Colonel Rundall as his coadjutor. We are strongly inclined to agree with the latter. The colonel's varied abilities will have full scope in his new position, and if a seat is to be made for him in the Executive Council also, his special experiences will enable him to probe and rectify the many abuses which mar the efficiency of the Public Works Department. In the work of economy begun by Lord Mayo, no abler or more zealous help-mate could be found, especially as he is a good deal more than a mere economist.

COLONEL KEATINGE's latest report on the distress in Marwar presents a picture of unchequered gloom. All his intelligence from the suffering districts tends to upset his previous expectations. Prices had not fallen. In many places the growing distress had already touched the point of actual starvation. So great has been the loss of cattle throughout Marwar that less than half the usual area will in all likelihood have been sown this year. Colonel Keatinge fears that, under the most favourable circumstances, "high prices and some distress must continue for eighteen months more." Of the multitudes that wandered across the border in quest of food, many thousands found support in the poor-houses of Mhairwarra, Ajmere, Neemuch, and the district under Mount Abo. Some thousands who returned to Marwar in time for the rains which usually begin in June, have since been reduced to the direst extremities by the continuance of drought down to the latter part of July. Altogether it is a woful prospect, in spite of the efforts making to relieve distress by means of public works and private charities. The Marwar Durbar has done something in the former direction by allotting a lakh of rupees a-year, to be laid out on the main lines of communication. Subscriptions from the Mahajans and Bunniahs of Jodhpore, Pali, and several other large cities in Marwar have been largely distributed through the local punches, or committees, and the natives of Bombay have also come forward to the relief of their starving countrymen. By this time large subscriptions from the European community of Bombay are likewise pouring into the suffering districts. When all is reckoned up however, a wide margin of utter misery must still remain to tax the resources of the native government, and to call for charitable aid from other parts of India.

THESE sad accounts are confirmed, if they need confirming, by the letters published in the Bombay papers. One correspondent, writing from Tantoola, shrinks from describing minutely "the sickening scenes of famishing groups and dying people" with whom he is daily brought into contact. Thousands of famishing families, he affirms, "are travelling about the country in a state of distraction, unable to obtain work," while multitudes who could once have worked are now "hardly able to bear their own weight." Diarrhoea, guinea-worm, and famine-fever are rampant in every village. There is very little grain left in the district, and what might be obtained from the neighbouring markets already commands a price beyond the reach of those who most need it. Without Government aid for the importation of cheap food and the prompt extension of public works, this second year of famine, he declares in effect, will send "thousands of people into an early grave." Without a large supply of engineers, the Public Works Department can never meet half the demands now hanging over it, and even if it gets them, no good will ensue should precious time be wasted in preparing plans and estimates.

IN Gwalior, Harrowtie, the North-West Provinces, and the Punjab, the signs of distress are only less noticeable than in Marwar and Ajmere. Hissar seems specially threatened with dire suffering; but throughout the Punjab a second year of scarcity, if not a season of sharp famine, appears inevitable. What steps are the Government taking to meet the danger? Would it not be as well to store up grain in all the chief centres of actual or expected suffering, which might in time of great pressure be sold to the poorer classes at something less than famine prices? It would interfere with the markets? Very likely, but the State in India has the right, as virtual landlord, to look after the ordinary well-being of its weaker children, so far as may consort with the just claims of all classes. Relief-works also must be kept going in all directions, but the feeding of the people is the one great question of the hour.

FROM Central India the accounts seem more favourable. There is every prospect now of a good harvest in those provinces. Disease however is still rampant through Upper India, especially in the districts visited by famine. The deaths in Gwalior from fever and cholera have been nearly 2,000 in three weeks. The Punjab has been suffering greatly from the same scourges. In Umritsur 150 died from cholera in one day, and more than 3,000 have perished from various diseases in a few weeks. That picturesque and sacred, but overcrowded city, is paying heavily for its obstinate neglect of sanitary appliances. Thousands of the living have fled the place, and the number of closed shops is steadily increasing.

A STRONG deputation of gentlemen interested in the tea-culture of North-Eastern India have laid before the Lieutenant-governor of Bengal their reasons for objecting to those clauses of the Coolie Labour Bill which extend its provisions to time-expired labourers. Their arguments tend to show the broad difference between newly-arrived coolies, ignorant of the work before them and needing protection against their new masters and themselves, and those coolies who, having passed their three years' apprenticeship, might be trusted to make their own bargains in the future. It was argued with apparent justice that this part of the Bill would hurt the employers without really helping the employed. Mr. Bullen Smith, referring to the 15,000 re-engaged coolies in Cachar alone, declared his willingness to accept the new clauses if on due inquiry it were found that the re-engagements involved any unfair dealing with the coolies. Dr. Ferris, as a friend of the coolies, enlarged on the objections they naturally felt to being hampered in their re-engagements. Mr. Grey however was inexorable. He could see no distinction "between a labourer under the three years' contract and a labourer who, after that term, entered into a fresh contract." If any protection was needed, it was just as necessary after the three years as it had been before. There may be some force in this reasoning, but all we can say is that the Lieutenant-governor fails to make us see it. Is there no distinction between a raw recruit and a soldier re-enlisting?

THE Government of India are considering a scheme for rectifying the boundaries of the different great provinces. It is proposed to relieve Bengal not of Assam only and Orissa, but of all Bahar north of the Ganges. This last section with Kemaon and Rohilkund, taken from the North-West, would be made over to Oudh, while Orissa would fall to the Central Provinces, together with some of the hill States now ruled from Madras. A Chief Commissioner would then govern Assam and Cachar. Oudh and the Central Provinces would be raised into semi-independent States like the North-West, each ruled by a Lieutenant-governor. Bombay will have to give up Sindh to the Punjab. There are some good features in this scheme, but will it not tend to cut up some parts of India too small? Oudh and the North-West for instance seem made to be one, and if Bombay loses Sindh, might she not receive some part of Central India in exchange?

AMONG several projected reforms in the Public Works Department, not the least welcome is the appointment of an assistant engineer to each of the head offices of the department. This arrangement will at once lighten the labours of an over-worked body, and tend to keep the outlay on public works in something like due dependence on the estimates. At present, for various reasons, the one has no very clear relation to the other. The new official will pass most of his time in overlooking and revising the calculations of the executive officers, and in keeping the outlay within reasonable bounds. We may hope, in fact, to see this reform so far developed, that the framing of the estimates and the keeping of accounts will really come to rest with the new controlling body; the time of the executive engineer being mainly reserved for the details of work already ordered.

To Anglo-Indians the mention of Indian missionaries suggests in these days a picture the reverse of heroic. The bulk of these missionaries lead quiet, comfortable lives, so far as comfort is predicable of Englishmen in the East. They have pretty good pay, and do not work too hard for it. Wives and children are with most of them an ordinary and appreciable adjunct. They live in bungalows as good as those occupied by their neighbours, and have various ways of eking out their regular incomes. Beyond teaching a few children, which they do well enough, and holding forth now and then in doubtful Hindustani to curious listeners in the bazaars, their time is largely at their disposal, whether for private study, gardening, or writing for the papers. As a body, they are estimable, well-meaning men, useful sometimes as interpreters of native feeling and champions of native interests against the encroachments of other non-official Europeans. An idea however has sprung up at home that they are hardly apostolic enough for present needs. Instead of making converts, they prefer minding their own families. There is a new demand, it seems, for enthusiasts of the type that Sidney Smith ridiculed, men without wives or secular learning, but with intense faith in their mission to convert the Gentiles. It seems that one of the London Missionary Societies has already decreed war against married missionaries, by making it a condition of future selection for the good work, that the men so selected shall not think of marrying for a certain number of years. From India a voice of protest has already come against so cruel an innovation on long established usage. It is bad enough, we are told, to live the life of an exile in such a country; but what will life be there without the "placens uxor?" As regards the men themselves, we do not see the force of this argument. Does every subaltern or young civilian take out a wife with him? Does not celibacy favour many forms of corporate action? In this case it is only enjoined, we believe, for the first two years. Whether a sterner and more fanatical set of men will be fostered by the new rules, is quite another question. From the statesman's point of view we must always deprecate any change that might tend to stir up anew the flames of religious bigotry and popular mistrust in India. Mischief enough has already from time to time been done there by well-meaning enthusiasts, who can see no way to Heaven except their own. India needs no more missionaries of the Ward and Carey stamp. But we do not see that the new rules in question necessarily point to so unwelcome an issue. There can be no great hardship involved in postponing marriage for a couple of years, in order that the missionary may have time to prove his general fitness alike for the work required of him and the climate where it is carried on.

THE new arrangements for a weekly mail from London to Alexandria by way of Brindisi bring us a step nearer to the day when the Italian will supersede the French port, as a stage on the overland journey to India and Australia. To many people who write letters, the difference in the hour of despatch between Friday night and Saturday morning would be a boon worth purchasing, even at the cost of threepence more a letter. But so long as there is no certainty that the Suez steamer will wait for the mails from Brindisi, the boon will be almost neutralised. Italian officials are proverbially slow, and to depend on them and their underlings for the punctual delivery of mails at Alexandria or Suez will be trusting to a very fragile reed. It will be yet more annoying for passengers by the Italian route to find themselves at Suez a day after the mail has left for India. We must look to our Post-office authorities to devise some practicable safeguard against Italian unpunctuality. It would be a great pity if the experiment were to fall through for want of a right understanding between the English and Italian Governments. There should of course be no unnecessary delay at Suez merely on account of a supplementary mail from Brindisi. But we hope that something like certainty in the arrival of the latter at the point of junction with the Marseilles mails will soon be established, and that in due time the rates of postage will be equalised. If the experiment answers as it should, no time should be lost in establishing a direct mail from Bombay home through Brindisi.

WE are sorry to see that Mr. J. C. Gilliland, whose name appeared among the surviving passengers of the Carnatic, was after all among the lost.

THERE is no doubt, we believe, that Lord Napier of Magdala will succeed Sir W. Mansfield as Commander-in-Chief in India.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

WEDNESDAY, October 6, 1869.

A QUESTION FOR THE INDIA-OFFICE.

WE trust that the Secretary of State for India will not arrive at too hasty a decision on one of the points lately referred home by the Indian Government. The case at issue stands thus. Towards the end of last year the Madras Collector of Customs learned that a quantity of gold thread had been sent from the free port of Pondicherry by parcel post. Without more ado he confiscated the gold thread. Some months later a like discovery led to the seizure by the Madras Post-office of divers watches, chains, and precious stones, despatched by letter post to a firm of English jewellers in Madras. These proceedings won the approval of the Madras Government. In other quarters however they were viewed in a different light. The Bombay Postmaster appealed to a previous intimation from the Supreme Government, that a frequent examination of parcels sent by post would inconvenience the public far more than it could benefit the exchequer. From the Director-general of Post-offices came a telegram declaring that the Supreme Government disapproves of "any systematic interference with the contents of mails, and prefers to submit to loss of duty." Apparently however the Indian Government has doubts as to the propriety of allowing the Post-office to cheat the Customs Department; for it has referred the whole question to the Secretary for India, with an assurance of its own inability to discover any good grounds of public policy for the fiscal sacrifice caused by this free importation of dutiable goods. The loss thus occasioned, especially on all kinds of millinery and haberdashery, is declared to be far greater than the counterbalancing profit to the Post-office from the carriage of the things in question. At the same time the Government sees no reason why, if regard for the public convenience should justify its own acquiescence in such a loss, the trading community need make any fuss about the matter. They can use the Post-office for their own advantage just as freely as other classes do, and good use indeed they seem to have made of it, to judge by the quantity of goods that fell into the hands of the Madras Collector. It was hardly fair however of that official to seize on jewellery addressed to Messrs. Orr, and let off uncommercial sinners with a small fine in the shape of duty on their goods. The Director-general, at any rate, denounced the harshness of the Madras official, and by his advice the confiscated articles were afterwards restored.

Which view will the Home Government take of the matter; that which the Madras collector enforced so hastily, or the view so ably vindicated by the Director-general himself in the minute forwarded by the Indian Government? It is a nice question which has thus been raised, and the points to consider are several. It is admitted on all hands that frequent examination of letters and parcels sent by post is not a thing to desire. Banghy parcels, thinks the Director-general, should be inspected now and then; but tampering with letters ought as far as possible to be avoided. Many things now sent out to India by letter-post would in all likelihood not be despatched at all if that door were closed against them. In most civilised countries anything within a specified weight may be forwarded by letter. The Director-general especially quotes Prussia as an instance of liberal dealing in this respect, and sneers at the attempt to bring British India down to the same low level with Spain and Turkey. Is it true however that the Prussian Post-office refrains from examining letters of suspicious bulk or appearance? The Director-general again differs from the Indian Government in his estimate of the gain and loss account between the Customs and Postal Departments, for the one, he believes, would virtually balance the other. Moreover any change in the direction glanced at by the Indian Government would lead to endless danger of foul play among the servants of the Indian Post-office—a consideration of serious weight.

On the whole, we are inclined to deprecate any interference with the present system, so far at least as letters are concerned. Even with regard to the pattern post, it is probable that any revival or increase of old restrictions would ultimately redound to the public loss, and to the general inconvenience of numbers who, if debarred from using the Post-office, would simply refrain from procuring the forbidden goods.

THE LOSS OF THE "CARNATIC."

PENDING the results of an official inquiry into the circumstances connected with the loss of the Carnatic, we have no wish to pass a premature judgment on any of the parties concerned in a catastrophe of which the full particulars have yet to be made known. But there are certain points brought out in the accounts hitherto published, on which our curiosity is not a little exercised. We do not care to assume with the Times that the captain of the Carnatic neglected his duty to his passengers in the strenuousness of his efforts to save the ship. It may have been merely an error of judgment which led him to keep the passengers on board the waterlogged vessel until the hour of deliverance came for some of them too late. Still it is curious that he should have been the last to realise the danger, to which all on board were exposed by his obstinate belief in the steamer's power to resist the tremendous strain that ultimately broke her in two. By his own account we know that nearly half the vessel hung beyond the edge of the reef in a depth of water varying from nine to fourteen fathoms, and that the water began to gain upon her as early as nine A.M. of the 13th September, but a few hours after her stem got jammed upon the reef. He seems to have done his best to keep the steamer from slipping back into the depths behind her to certain destruction; but the steady rising of the water within her hull apparently caused him none of that disquietude which those around him were not slow in expressing. He advised the passengers to stay on board that night, and guided by his assurances a committee of three decided by two votes to one that his advice should be followed. It was then getting dark, and so the passengers, who were only about thirty in number, and had for hours been looking in vain upon the Island of Shadwan as it lay invitingly some four miles off, made up their minds for a night of watching on the crowded fore-castle. About midnight the fore-compartments were full of water, which was also making its way into the after cabin. Soon after two A.M. of the 14th the water had put out the engine fires. At seven A.M. the main saloon began to fill, and the breeze, hitherto light, was fast freshening. By this time the ship was quite waterlogged, and, says one of the passengers, had slipped a few feet down the reef, while the sea kept thundering down the broken skylights into the saloon.

Still no word was given for the removal of the passengers in the boats that had lain ready stocked for nearly twenty-four hours, to the land that lay so near and could be reached so easily. When the order did come, at ten A.M. says the captain, at eleven according to one of the passengers, the fate of some among them and of many of the crew was already impending. In another moment the vessel had parted in two amidships, and the forepart followed the stern into the deep water. A struggling mass of human beings mixed up with sheep, fowls, boxes, bales, and other lumber, floated helpless on the returning wave. Amidst the bewildered scramble that ensued, it is only wonderful that no more than twenty-six souls disappeared for ever. But among these were several passengers, and ten or twelve of the European crew. The survivors may be thankful that so many escaped, but would any of those twenty-six lives have been lost if better use had been made of the hours of daylight that slipped by before the catastrophe? How was it that so much time was wasted on that eventful morning? Why was no order given to man the boats until the destruction of the steamer had become a question of moments? The final catastrophe was a thing to count upon from the moment when the water put out the fires. It grew more and more imminent as the waves, rising with the rising breeze, swept more and more fiercely over the doomed vessel. The passengers waited and wondered at the unreasonable delay in removing them from a wreck which was sinking bodily before their eyes. If their patience had been sorely tried the whole day before, what must they have felt under the growing conviction that their lives were being wantonly imperilled by the ill-timed obstinacy of one man? If those precious hours of daylight had not been so strangely wasted, it is more than probable that not life only but the mails and the baggage of all on board would have been saved.

And how came the Carnatic to run upon the fatal reef? The Red Sea, as we know, is fringed with coral rocks, past which careful steering may sometimes be needed. But this particular reef at the mouth of the Gulf of Suez was well known, the sea was calm, the night clear and starlight, the Ashrafi Light still plainly visible astern. Captain Jones accounts for the misadventure by an unusually strong current that must have carried the ship too far westward as she passed Jubal Island. But eighteen minutes before the ship grounded he had turned her head off towards the south-east, and was steaming on, we are told, at the rate of  $11\frac{1}{2}$  knots an hour. It is anyhow clear that the vessel must have been going at a high speed to jam herself so fast as she did upon the reef. Under the circumstances prudence would surely have counselled a slower rate of steaming, or a wider berth to the danger on the starboard bow. A little more easting would have brought her clear of the breakers. When the captain saw the breakers right ahead, he at once had the helm put hard a-starboard. But the speed she was going at made the steamer slow to answer her helm, and the order to reverse her engines came too late to avert the dreaded shock. Had that order been given first, in all likelihood the Carnatic would have been saved.

From all this it is easy to see that matter for consideration at the coming inquiry exists in plenty. Evidently it was not the current alone that drove the steamer upon the reef. When the captain found himself out of his right course, at night-time, in a doubtful neighbourhood, ought he not to have slackened his pace, or at least to have kept away a point or two more eastward? Had he any particular reason for going full speed? Are there any grounds for the statement made by one of the passengers that he had been "challenged by a French vessel, which had six miles start, to race to Aden?" If the challenge was given and accepted, we can understand the rest. The Carnatic would not be the first steamer that had come to grief from so mischievous a practice. Under the excitement of such a race her captain would be tempted to push on all the faster in order to recover his lost ground. But when he saw the breakers so near ahead, ought not the order for reversing the engines to have preceded the order for starboarding the helm? We should also like to hear the captain's reasons for delaying the transfer of his passengers from the steamer to the island, up to the moment when their lives had come to hang, as it were, upon a thread. He may after all prove to have been wholly blameless; but appearances are hardly in his favour, and the indignation of his passengers is very great.

It seems strange, by the way, that for many years past every accident that has happened to a Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamer has happened on the Suez side of the Isthmus, although the ordinary dangers on that side are probably fewer than on this. How are we to account for such a difference? Is it because the officers on the Indian side are apt, as a rule, to set social accomplishments above professional skill, to graduate in the school of good manners rather than in that of sound seamanship? Or is it true here, as in many other cases, that comparative freedom from danger begets carelessness, while the sense of a danger always near at hand tends to encourage a habit of ordinary caution?

THE SUEZ CANAL.

The Delhi Gazette has seen a great many diverse opinions expressed regarding the Suez Canal, and there seems to be a prevalent idea that this grand work will not be so successful as had been anticipated. It may be satisfactory to our readers to hear the opinion of a gentleman well qualified to form a correct estimate of the design, and who has spent several days recently in examining the whole Canal thoroughly. He states that there cannot be a doubt of its success. The theory of the bed of the Canal silting up is, he considers, a wild chimera. There is only one portion where there is any danger at all of sand accumulating, and that is a small section of the Canal in the centre; but the section is so small as to be quite manageable, and there are really no difficulties which may not be got over by the exercise of ordinary engineering skill and appliances. We learn that it is in contemplation to send the Southampton passengers and mail through the Canal, the Marseilles mail going overland as before. It is also stated that the P. and O. Southampton steamers will go through the Canal and continue the voyage without entailing the necessity of disembarkation upon the passengers. The great difficulty to be overcome in this arrangement is that the Mediterranean boats are not supposed to be fitted for the Suez side, and if the same boat goes the through journey it will be necessary to change all the officers, crew and servants on board at Alexandria.

ROYAL AND INDIAN COLONELS.

The Friend of India remarks that the difficulty as to the supersession of Royal by Indian colonels on promotion to Major-Generals has been temporarily met by the stoppage of promotion in the case of the latter. In this matter the Royal Colonels have had it all their own way. Even if the evil were such as it is represented to be in England it would cease after thirty more promotions. But a glance at the long roll of Home colonels shows how many are on half-pay. Men who have paid heavily for promotion, as they see the Major-General's rank approaching, either seek or take the half-pay difference. By taking half-pay they get back most of their money, and are able to wait for what the future has in store. This is an outlet permitted by the Horse Guards, and paid for by the country. The Home colonels complain not, for this luxury of doing nothing on half-pay and a return of capital is a boon to the service. But the Indian colonel, should he indulge in Home delights, would cease to be acquainted with a pay abstract after two years, and would be cut off altogether should he remain five years out of India, during three of which he would be without pay. It is hardly fair for the English colonels to complain of their Indian brethren, who are a working body, passing up their service list more quickly than the others handicapped with Home and "Dowb."

THE FOREST DEPARTMENT.

The Madras Athenæum criticises the Secretary of State's scheme for having a number of educated men trained to forestry in the schools of France and Germany. Their training there extends over a period of two and a-half years, and they are to be sent out here. They will be the first of the lot, and will think that they are going to teach everyone something new. It will probably take them as long to unlearn as to learn. The climate will be against them, the yield per acre of forest land exceedingly small compared with what they have been accustomed to, the method of extending forests by means of planting entirely new. Natives might be taken in at an early age and become natural woodsmen, learning a profession which could be remuneratively pursued out of the Government service. To employ them in the Forest Department would be to teach them how to reclaim waste lands, to imbue them with a taste, in which they are sadly deficient, for ornamental arboriculture, to teach them that land apparently as barren as a rock might support trees, which would afford a grateful shade to themselves and their cattle. The native conservators after they left the Government service would be public instructors in the art of rearing plantations. They would know and diffuse among contemporaries and transmit to posterity the knowledge of what trees would suit the particular soils. The diffusion of knowledge among the people of the country, of the way in which to make every inch of soil bring forth its fruit in due system, is one of our primary duties, and two of the schools at our disposal now are the Public Works and the Forest Department. And a knowledge of the cultivation best for a country is to be got in that country itself. The cultivator can get hints doubtless from the style of cultivation in vogue in other countries, and the more valuable will those hints be the more he knows of the capacities, from the mode of treatment hitherto adopted of the soil on which to practise; knowledge, until the application of it is seen, is difficult to acquire. A young man fresh from books is not likely to acquire much knowledge of arboriculture in France of any value so far as its practical application to Indian wants is concerned. The man capable of learning the most is he who has a knowledge of Indian wants, and who could see what appliances and systems in vogue elsewhere could be turned to practical advantage here. Such a man would learn more in three months than one of Sir Stafford Northcote's apprentices in three years. Then, again, if a love for trees, or flowers, or gardening once fixes on a man, it never leaves him. It causes him to learn and to teach others as long as he lives. It gives him recreation when other sources fail, and—for there is something sentimental left in us yet—when he is no more his last amusements are respected and his maxims treasured.

THE SUPERSESSION OF COLONELS IN THE ROYAL ARMY.

The Bombay Gazette observes that there is one point in the supersession controversy which does not appear to have been sufficiently dwelt on. The method of promotion, up to the rank of colonel, prevailing in the Royal Army is one of perpetual supersession. An ensign, too poor to purchase, is superseded by a more fortunate comrade; and the process is repeated all up the list, by a series of leaps from rank to rank over the heads of the poor. The facility which money affords, the golden ladder which the State has set up, naturally brings many officers very rapidly into the command of regiments when a few years of authority lands them on the list of colonels. Nor is this all. Every young gentleman who obtains a commission in the Guards supersedes all the ensigns in the Line regiments, for he reaches at a jump the army rank of lieutenant; and every time a step in promotion goes in a Guards regiment, all the men of the same regimental rank in the Line are superseded. Thus, promotion to regimental and army rank, in the purchase corps, depends very much on the officer himself; if he has money he goes upward, if he has none he remains behind. Of course there are the accidents of promotion like brevets and successions to death vacancies, but the rule is that the promotion of an officer depends upon his command of capital. In the Indian army, and now in the Staff Corps, promotion did not, except so far as brevets lifted a man, depend on the man himself. Nothing but death or retirement made way for him, and he never went over the head of anybody. The promotion of the old Indian officer was very slow, but certain if he lived and kept his health; and the rules of the Staff Corps have reduced promotion to a fixed certainty dependent, not on death or retirement, but simple power to live. Now, the promotion of the old Indian officer, save in exceptional times, was necessarily much slower than that of the Royal officer—we use the term, though inaccurate, solely for the sake of having a distinctive name. All the pet examples that may be culled from army lists cannot alter the law that promotion by seniority is slower than promotion by purchase. Here is one of the anomalies by which the Royal officers seek benefit, including the Guards men, who rise by supersession. We are quite aware that other causes have contributed to cause supersession in practice—the chief being the formation of separate lists. The evil lies in the fact that the two armies were governed by radically different systems of promotion, that one naturally seeks to preserve all the advantages accruing from its own system, and desires to prevent the other from profiting by that curious result of amalgamation which has sent so many Indian colonels over the heads of the enraged Royals. We do not blame the latter. They believe in their system; they paid their money on the faith that it would be carried out, and they have a right to feel aggrieved when, by a contract with others, the State leaves them in the lurch. But we do blame the State for the needless overthrow of the old Indian army, and for the chance-medley of institutions by which, at odd times and by fits and starts, knocking down here and patching there, the State set up its substitute for the well-organised and effective force that might have succeeded the wreck of 1857. Prince Albert may have done a great deal of good, but we question whether his rash and imperious interference with the Indian army did not more than compensate for all the benefit he conferred on art and science. On his great monument should be inscribed—"He destroyed the old military institutions of India, and built up no new institutions that can be durable."

LORD MAYO.—The statement that Lord Mayo will leave Simla on a tour through Kuanoon in October is confirmed.

STATION TALK.

LAHORE, Aug. 25.—Since the 18th we have been in quarantine, a cordon of inspection having been drawn round the cantonment by the military authorities. These blockades create inconvenience and do no good. Any one with a motive for evading them can do so. Mr. Lindsay, the new judge of the High Court, has arrived this morning from Nynsee Tal. A very sad case of suicide occurred here yesterday afternoon. A railway foreman named Webber, who was just recovering from a severe illness, shot himself in the head with a gun in a fit of temporary insanity, applying the muzzle to his mouth. He is said to have calmly sat down on a bed, and to have pulled the trigger with his bare foot. We are to have another political prisoner here in a few days; Atta Mahomed Khan, the Chief of Agror, who gave us so much trouble on the frontier some time ago, is to be permitted to live here with his family, under surveillance. The little Afghan Sirdars, Zulficar Khan and Salah Khan, may be seen of an evening driving about with the Deputy Commissioner, attended by one or more Sowars. They are fine-looking boys, intelligent withal, we hear.

Aug. 26.—Some alterations and additions are being made on the south-west side of Government House. The long-talked-of new wing is really to be added to the Chief Court house at last, it is said. The accounts we have from Umritsur are slightly improving. Considerably over 2,000 persons have died of cholera in that unfortunate city within the last few months. On the 15th of this month 138 deaths were registered, being the highest daily rate of mortality which has occurred during this awful visitation. Since that date the disease seems to have slowly but certainly abated its ravages. Great distress prevails in Loodiana and the districts immediately around. Prices are frightfully high, and hundreds of natives are on the brink of starvation if no rain falls (and there is no appearance of it). This coming cold season will be sadly memorable in the annals of the Punjab. A famine is inevitable, and I fear we are ill-prepared to meet it. There will be relief works and eventually Relief Funds; but they will come as such charities generally do—just a little too late.—Correspondent of Pioneer.

DELHI, Aug. 30.—Distress is said to prevail to a great extent all over the country, but I cannot understand people being in distress who can and will not work; punkah coolies give just as much trouble and are as hard to get upon Rs. 5 per mensem as they were in former seasons upon Rs. 3-8, yet we hear of "distress" from all quarters. I believe the question about the Agra durbar is settled, and that Colonel Macpherson, of the Commissariat, has received orders to prepare for it, for which purpose he is coming down from the hills at once. But I do not think the affair will be on quite such a grand scale as was originally intended. I am glad to be able to add that we continue very healthy in Delhi, though we hear of the dreaded visitor stalking around us.

UMRITSUR, Aug. 31.—I am sure all those who have been watching the progress of the sickness that has caused such ravages in our town will be delighted to hear that the downward tendency of the death reports seems steady, and that in some ten, fifteen or twenty days there will be such a decided decrease as to be able to report a thoroughly clean bill of health. The new and decidedly active measures adopted for securing improved conservancy are working well, and if carried out to their desired end will do much to prevent a return of the disease in future years. Some eleven hundred men, women and children, are working at filling up the Aloowaleea Dhab, and already making an impression on it, and if the number should increase there is reason to believe that in a couple of months this dreadful source of malaria will be a thing of the past. Some of the principal gardens in the town, and there are not a few, are being thoroughly freed of all undergrowth, the trees being trimmed and hollows filled in, while one large space, one of those spots that show how very low was the site of Umritsur, and into which one of the predecessors of the present Executive Engineer actually diverted drains he knew not how else to dispose of, is being thoroughly taken in hand and dealt with according to the exigencies of the case. The outside town ditch has also received attention, and by degrees the whole town will come under such conservancy control as will bear the most beneficial and satisfactory results. The only fact of an unpleasant character is that the Ramghurreea Kutra, formerly the chief seat of the disease, then almost free, has latterly been again exposed to renewed attacks. The temporary hospitals established by Dr. Fergusson, though not generally availed of, have been more used than I expected would be the case, and the cures effected there in proportion to deaths should convince the people that the advantages of the institution are great and should be more largely taken advantage of.

GHAZEEPORE, Sept. 1.—Rain has again set in, and the crops that had been stunted and withered away by the continued drought, for more than a fortnight, have revived and raised themselves with the heavy showers of the 29th ultimo. Fields now look green and pleasant, and the plants thereon grow luxuriantly. This year seems to promise a good harvest. The temperature has been cooled, and there is no other sickness than fever and cold. There has been no fresh case of cholera since last week. Mr. Oldham is now on leave to the hills, and will be back in November next, when Mr. Pasley, the Collector, will avail himself of a furlough for two years. Our new Collector will, I believe, be Mr. Oldham, as he possesses a good deal of knowledge of this district.

ALLAHABAD, Sept. 1.—Cholera, although not quite gone yet, is fast disappearing. Cases amongst natives continue to occur. The troops I am glad to say are free from it, but they will not return to the station for some time yet. I noticed this morning however that the old barracks are being repaired and whitewashed. Dr. Cunningham has been inspecting the city and other places, but the result of his enquiries is not known yet. A committee, of which the following officers are members, is to assemble shortly to report on the sanitary condition of Allahabad, Dr. Cunningham, Dr. Planck, Mr. Plowden, Mr. Robertson the Magistrate, Mr. Court the Commissioner, and Dr. Lewis, who has been sent out from England for the purpose of investigating into the causes of the disease. Not being a medical man it would be going beyond my province if I were to express an opinion on the subject, but I cannot help remarking that a corrupt atmosphere having once been admitted as one of the main causes of cholera, it does not require a committee to see that filth is at the bottom of the epidemic at Allahabad.—Delhi Gazette Correspondent.

Miscellaneous.

LORD ELGIN'S GRAVE.—We observe it is stated that Captain the Honorable H. Wood, aide-de-camp to the Viceroy, was to start at once across the Hills from Simla to Dhurmsala, to look after the late Lord Elgin's grave.

THE PERSIAN ENVOY AT CABUL.—The Shah of Persia's Envoy to Cabul, Abdool Hassan Shah, comes not empty-handed. He brings a jewelled snuff box for the Ameer, and a jewelled sword belt for his son, Yacoub Khan.

MR. MORRIS.—The object Mr. Morris, Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, has in view in visiting Seonee, and perhaps Jubbulpore, is to satisfy himself regarding the prospects of the coming harvest.

A RUMOUR.—It is rumoured (upon what grounds is uncertain) that Colonel Barrow, at present on leave from Oudh, is to officiate as Resident at Hyderabad, upon Mr. Saunders taking leave of absence.

CIVIL.—It is again stated that Sir Barnes Peacock, Chief Justice of Bengal, will retire from the bench in January or February next. Sir Richard Couch, Chief Justice of Bombay, is expected to succeed him.—Mr. C. R. Lindsay, Bengal Civil Service, has been appointed a judge of the Supreme Court of the Punjab.

THE EX-AMEER OF KABUL.—We observe it stated that Azim Khan and Abdool Rahman reached Meshed on the 15th of July. In the absence of the Prince Governor, they were courteously and hospitably received by local officials. Azim Khan had, it is said been ill, hence his late arrival at Meshed.

MONUMENT TO LORD ELGIN.—The monument about to be erected to Lord Elgin in the Cathedral of Calcutta is described as "consisting of an enamelled cross, in colour, upon a slab of serpentine marble, above which is placed a slab of polished granite containing four groups of figures cast in bronze, representing scenes from the four countries of Canada, China, Jamaica, and India. At the upper portion of the slab, in the centre, is a bust of Lord Elgin in white marble."

RAJPOOTANA.—Colonel Keatinge, the Agent to the Governor-General for the States of Rajpootana, has, we are told, brought about an amicable adjustment of differences between the ancient Principality of Neemrana and the modern Chief of Ulwar. During the negotiations the grave has closed over Rajah Isree Sing Bahadur, the last lineal representative of Rajah Prithi Sing of Delhi, who preferred to turn his Rajpoot sword into a plough within British territory, to affluent dependence on a new-born Indian Chief, as appears from his spirited but loyal memorial to the Earl of Elgin. The demands of Ulwar have, it is stated, been commuted to an annual pecuniary payment, consequent on the grant of the sunnud by Lord Lake, on behalf of Ulwar, under misapprehension. His brother succeeds.

CHOLERA IN UMRITSUR.—It appears from the tables placed at our disposal that cholera carried off in Umritsur no fewer than four hundred and ninety-three persons between the 15th and 31st July, both dates included, or at the rate of twenty nine per day, and that between the 1st and 29th of August there have died the enormous number of two thousand two hundred and forty-four persons, being at the rate of a fraction over eighty per day. During these same forty-five days there have died 566 persons from fever and 165 from other causes, showing a total of three thousand four hundred and sixty-eight, or eighty-one and a fraction per day for these forty-five days, the ordinary death rate of the town of Umritsur being under eleven per day, showing that during the period under review there have occurred seventy deaths per day over the ordinary rate, or 3,150 in all.—Delhi Gazette.

THE AGRA DURBAR.—Though the Agra durbar may perhaps not come off in January, there is nevertheless some prospect of its taking place. An order issued at Agra on the 27th of August, states that under instructions from Army Head quarters, the general parade-ground is to be kept free from all use, whether as a parade-ground, or for other purposes, as it will be required for an encamping ground for the Viceroy during the approaching durbar; and the Cantonment Magistrate is directed at once to take measures to have the ground kept in good order, to level all irregularities, and to prevent any traffic taking place over the ground.

MARWAR AND AJMERE.—The complication of calamities under which the unfortunate district of Ajmere is labouring is almost agonising to read. Five seers of wheat can no longer be obtained for the rupee. In one of the districts, Todgurh, the price is 4½ seers, at Ajmere itself 4½. The adjoining foreign States have at last forbidden export from their territories. On the other hand, they by no means forbid their subjects to migrate in swarms to British territory—not that grain is cheaper there, but that the Government is British, and does not like to let even an intruder starve. The emigrants from Marwar refuse to labour at the Government relief works. They say they have come to be fed, not to work. This native insolence might be exasperating were there anything of craft or imposition in it; but these Marwarries, if the British officers object to support them in idleness, are quite ready to die. The labour and responsibility which this state of things imposes on officials may, or rather cannot, be conceived. The food for these starving multitudes has to be brought from so far as Agra, and the carriage to transport the food has to be despatched from Ajmere, since it seems Agra cannot supply it. But terrible as this food difficulty is, it is not the worst misfortune under which the Ajmere district is suffering. Strange as it may appear, the want of water is more painful still. We do not allude to water for the crops, to the deficient rainfall for agricultural purposes, but water to drink. And in this respect it must be confessed that the neighbouring State of Marwar is worse off still; it is gravely anticipated that its capital, Jodhpore, may have to be abandoned from the want of drinking water for its inhabitants.—Pioneer, Sept. 1.

MILITARY.—A letter from Morar, dated the 23rd of August, states that the 103rd Regiment had lost between forty and fifty men during the month.—Our Umballah correspondent assures those who took part in the Bhootan and Hazara campaigns that they may expect to receive, some time this year, the India medal, with appropriate clasp or clasps. The necessary application to the Secretary of State either has been despatched by the Government of India in the Military Department, or is to be despatched.—We regret to learn that cholera has again broken out, and with fresh virulence, in H.M.'s 41st Regiment at Subathoo. On the 27th ultimo four cases occurred amongst the men, all ending fatally. There were also, on the same day, five fatal cases among the children of the regiment; and, moreover, the youngest daughter of Captain Simpson, the Paymaster, had also succumbed to the disease. The regiment has moved out into camp.—At Lucknow cholera appeared on the 25th of August among the 5th Lancers, who were at once moved into camp. Ophthalmia had also attacked great numbers of the 102nd. The 62nd had returned to barracks. During the time this last regiment has been at Lucknow it is said to have lost seventy-five men, sixty-eight women, and a hundred children.—According to later accounts cholera has almost entirely disappeared from Lucknow. The 102nd Regiment were entirely free from it on the 28th August, and so were the 62nd foot. There had been a few cases among the 5th Lancers, but others were not anticipated.—It is said that Lieutenant Downes, of the Royal Artillery, and attached to the Punjab Canal Department, has resigned his commission, with the view of joining the Chumba Mission.

ANOTHER FRONTIER RAID.—As has all along been predicted by nearly every military officer who took part in the Hazara expedition of last year and by us, the Black Mountain people have again made a raid into British territory, the second, and the most successful they have yet accomplished, this year, having this time utterly destroyed one village in the Agror valley, killing many of the inhabitants, themselves losing but one man. Which tribe committed this aggression is differently stated, some say the Hussunzaies are the culprits, some the Abbhazaies, and others the Puriarce Syuds. Whoever the invaders were, it is certain they must have had the moral if not the material support of the whole of the Black Mountain tribes. Anything more detrimental to our supposed prestige, or that could show more clearly the shortsightedness, or, rather, total blindness of our frontier authorities, could not have happened, for has it not been publicly proclaimed that the H.F.F. of 1868 had settled that frontier for ever, that, in frontier parlance, the "purdah" of the Black Mountain had been raised, and that a lesson had been taught the tribes which would prevent them ever again invading British territory? Yet, behold the result; ten months after that extraordinary proclamation of peace, made at eight o'clock at night with firing of rockets and a salute of forty-two guns from the top of Muchaie, the highest peak of the Black Mountain, these same wretched tribes invade and carry fire and sword into the villages of the peaceable inhabitants of the great British Empire! Another letter from the Frontier, dated the 24th ult., informs us that "another raid has been made upon one of our villages on the Agro Frontier. A policeman was killed in the affray." This makes the third or fourth disturbance of the kind which has occurred within the last two months. Some people call these little affairs "pocket pickings," but the public cannot help looking upon them in a more serious light.—Delhi Gazette.

Madras.

THE RAJAH OF COCHIN.—The health of the Rajah of Cochin remains in statu quo, and his Highness in his bed. There is, it is said, no sign of improvement and none of deterioration, but we understand that the Rajah is unable to move a limb without assistance.

MILITARY.—We hear that the Commander-in-Chief, Gen. McCleverty, is seriously indisposed, and that it is likely that he will be obliged to remain on the Hills for some time longer.

BANK OF MADRAS.—At a meeting of the directors on Aug. 27 the bank's rates of interest and discount were lowered 1 per cent. all round.

"WALERS" IN MADRAS.—Horses look as if they ought to be a paying article of commerce, for during the last ten days four ship loads have arrived from Australia, and another ship is expected shortly. People who do not care about the payingness of the speculation to importers are looking forward to horses being cheap this year.

THE LINE FROM MADRAS TO BOMBAY.—We are informed that, whereas the Madras portion of the railway which is to connect our presidency with Bombay is likely to be completed to its terminus at Raichpore before the close of the next year, the Bombay portion cannot be expected to be ready for traffic in anything like that time. It is only opened to thirty-five miles south of Sholapore, as we have before stated, the girders for the bridge over the Bangnee have not arrived, and the iron work for the still more important bridge over the Kistna has not even been ordered! and yet the Bombayites talk of opening in the beginning of 1871, with a temporary viaduct over the Kistna! Surely if the rest of the work is so far advanced as to enable them to promise this, the parties who failed to order the iron work in time have reason to be ashamed of themselves! We suggest to Bombay to exert itself and not to be outdone by the benighted, that is to say if the "advanced" presidency feels equal to the competition.—Madras Athenæum.

A PASTORAL TOUR.—The Malwa Mail supplies us with the following programme of Bishop Gell's next pastoral tour, and the preface thereto:—"There is no man in India who does his duty more thoroughly, more conscientiously, than Bishop Gell. We would ask our readers to compare the following proposed trip with those tours of inspection undertaken by the Chief, or those spasmodic rushes into the interior and back again indulged in by his Excellency the Governor. A copy of the document might also be forwarded to Sir Gaspard Le Marchant by way of reminder that he 'left undone those things which he ought to have done.' The following is our Bishop's modest programme:—October 29, 1869, leave Madras; do. 31, Sunday, Yercaud and Salem; November 5, embark at Bepore; do. 7, S., at sea; do. 14, S., Bombay; do. THE ALBERT LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY.—A meeting of policy-holders took place on the evening of Saturday last at the Athenæum and Daily News office, when a large number of holders were present. Mr. Short proposed and Mr. Gantz seconded the motion that Mr. James Bradshaw take the chair. The chairman, after a few introductory remarks with regard to the company, urged on the meeting that it behoved the policy-holders as a private as well as a public duty to take some action with reference to the notice of suspension of payment of the company. Mr. Bradshaw then read the following resolution which he had drawn up:—"That in the opinion of the meeting the policy-holders should continue to pay the premia as they fall due until further notice is received." There was some discussion as to who was to give the notice. Mr. C. L. O'Brien, the secretary of the company, attended the meeting, and intimated to the chairman that though the directors had ceased to be the directors of the company, they were willing to continue in their office as directors on behalf of the policy-holders. It was then proposed by Mr. J. Short, and seconded by Mr. J. C. Winscom, and carried unanimously, "That in the opinion of the meeting the policy-holders should continue to pay their premia as they fall due until the 1st of January next." Mr. Williams here wished to know by whom receipts would be granted, and whether they could have any hold on the company by paying money to persons who had ceased to bear office under the company, under the terms of the telegram received by them. Several of the policy-holders thought they were not risking anything by paying the premia until the 1st of January, as they had the assurance of the secretary and other gentlemen, the directors, that in case no reconstruction or arrangement with another company is effected, the premia now paid will be returned in full. Mr. Williams wished to know whether in case he did not pay the premium he would forfeit his policy. There was a difference of opinion on this point amongst the policy-holders, but as most of them thought that the question was one of law, the meeting was not competent to decide it, and they considered that the safest thing the policy-holders could do was to pay the premia as they fell due until the 1st of January next. Mr. Fitzpatrick then proposed "That the present directors be asked to continue in office as trustees on behalf of the interest of the policy-holders until relieved by some person or persons properly authorised by the Court of Chancery." There was some discussion as to what authority the policy-holders had to appoint directors, and as to how the company could be held responsible for any payments received by them. Mr. B. Lacey then moved the following amendment—"That as the directors have, through Mr. O'Brien, the Secretary to the Albert Assurance Company, kindly offered to continue in office and to act on behalf of policy-holders, their offer be accepted with thanks by the meeting until relieved by some person or persons properly authorised by the Court of Chancery." On one of the policy-holders asking Mr. O'Brien what his opinion was regarding the prospects of the company, he said he was almost certain an arrangement with some other company would easily be effected. The chairman also thought that matters would be satisfactorily arranged. A policy-holder wishing to be informed on the point, it was stated that if the company were taken up by another company it would be taken up with all its risks. The amendment, being seconded by Mr. Jordan, was put to the vote and carried.—Madras Times, Sept. 1.

DEPARTURE OF LORD NAPIER OF MAGDALA FROM POONA.

At Poona, on the morning of August 31, there was a warm leaving of the departing Chief. Thanks to the public spirit of Mr. W. H. Middleton, the district traffic manager of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway, the station was tastefully decorated with flags, flowers, and evergreens, whilst carpets were laid down from the entrance door on to the platform. For the accommodation of his Lordship a state saloon carriage was attached to the train. Some time before the hour for the departure of the train—nine o'clock A.M.—ladies and gentlemen, European and native, began to assemble, and when his Lordship came on the platform the station was thronged. Having taken a cordial farewell of the large assembly, he entered the carriage, when a pleasing little incident occurred. A smart veteran, a non-commissioned officer of the Bombay Light Cavalry, anxious to say his farewell to his old Chief, advanced through the crowd to the window, saluted and expressed his regret at his Lordship's departure, and his good wishes for him in the future. His Lordship entered into conversation for several minutes with the old soldier, and then the train moved off under the usual salute, in addition to which there was a discharge of fog-signals as the engine started.

On arrival at Bombay his Lordship, instead of proceeding direct to the Apollo Bunder, as it was expected he would do, drove to Colaba, once more to see Morley Hall, his old residence, which is now being fitted up as a theatre for the European troops in the garrison. Nor did he only desire to see Morley Hall; he was anxious also to know from personal observation what progress had been made with the cantonment buildings now in course of erection there. As his Lordship passed the cantonment, the 23rd R. W. Fusiliers turned out and cheered him loudly.

On his Lordship's arrival at Boree Bunder station a salute was fired from the saluting battery, and the crowd who had assembled on Apollo Bunder to bid him farewell every moment expected his approach. At length it became known that his Lordship had gone on to Colaba, and that some time must elapse before he returned; but no one thought of leaving before having an opportunity of bidding him good bye. It was raining very heavily all the while, but civilians and soldiers had turned out with one accord to bid farewell to one they esteemed and loved, and in the attainment of that object they were not to be frustrated by any weather. When his Lordship's carriage at length drove up, and when there was no longer any doubt as to the Chief having arrived (for there had been several false alarms), hearty cheers were given. The cheering was renewed when his Lordship alighted at the top of the stairs, and was kept up amid the pelting rain till the barge in which he embarked was a long way off the Bunder.

In consequence of the heavy rain, the troops in garrison were not ordered out, as was intended had it been fair. The ships in harbour—at any rate those within view of the Bunder—were decked out with flags, and their ensigns were dipped as his Lordship passed. Among those at the Bunder were several ladies, who had come to bid Lord Napier a tacit good bye, for they must have known beforehand that they could not possibly leave their carriages to greet him on such a day. His Lordship shook hands with such of the officers as were near him after he entered the barge, and several accompanied him on board the Sumatra.

STATION TALK.

DECKSAL, Sept. 2.—The residents of this pretty and quiet station were agreeably surprised on the morning of the 31st August by a visit from the Bishop of Bombay, who intimated his intention of remaining some twenty-four hours, and holding divine service in the evening in the station waiting-room. Accordingly at half-past six P.M. we were, to the number of twenty-two, assembled. It does not often fall to our lot to hear such a discourse as his Lordship gave us that evening, and we returned to our homes happier, if not better Christians. The following morning his Lordship left Decksal in the up mail, a family carriage being attached to the train for his special use, and his Lordship alighted at Dhond, intending to visit the station of Ahmednugger. Our indefatigable district traffic manager, Mr. W. Middleton, was present, and all that could be done to render his Lordship's visit a pleasant one was done by that gentleman.

KURRACHEE, Aug. 28.—The preliminary investigation into the case of John Barron, late chief clerk in the office of the Political Superintendent of Upper Sind, has been concluded, and Colonel Phayre, C.B., accompanied by Major G. W. Macauley, commandant 1st Sind Horse, will leave Jacobabad for Kurrachee about the early part of next month, for the purpose of proceeding to Bombay to prosecute the prisoner before the High Court. The charges against Barron, I am told, involve forgeries and other dishonesties, which nobody who knew him a few years ago ever deemed him capable of. Col. Phayre's predecessors held him in the highest estimation, and allowed him many privileges not usually accorded to one in his position in life. The case excites a good deal of attention here, inasmuch as its surroundings are not only very mysterious but romantic; but of course it would be premature to afford your readers any details at present; the services of Dr. Barton, of your city, have, it is believed, been secured by the accused for his defence. The climate of Upper Sind has so seriously affected the health of Major W. Dickinson, C.S.I., Officiating Commandant 3rd Sind Horse, that he has been advised by his medical attendant to leave for Kurrachee at once. Brigadier General Forbes has accordingly granted him thirty days' leave to proceed to this station for the purpose of appearing before the local medical board, and obtaining a certificate to enable him to apply for leave to go to England. A month's leave has also been granted to Lieutenant W. Loch, Second Squadron Subaltern of the same corps, in anticipation of his being ordered to proceed to Poona to be attached to the Native Cavalry Corps there, with the object of learning his duties and studying the Hindoostanee language. On the departure of these two officers, there will be left for duty with the 3rd Sind Horse, Lieutenants Peat and Coulson, and Cornet H. F. Lucas, of the 2nd Dragoons. Colonel W. L. Briggs, C.B., who went home on furlough on the 7th July 1868, is expected to rejoin the corps shortly, having left England for Kurrachee. The undermentioned officers proceed to Bombay by to-day's mail:—Capt. C. Basevi, Commandant Mountain Train, Sind Frontier Field Force, who has obtained the permission of Lord Napier to go to Poona to re-test the projectile invented by him last year; Assistant Surgeon J. R. C. Lowry, M.B., of the Bombay Medical Establishment, to join his appointment as Surgeon to his Excellency Sir

Seymour Fitzgerald; and B. H. Forbes, Esq. (who was appointed on the 18th June last to act as Assistant to the Deputy Commissioner Paper Currency) to proceed to England for the benefit of his health. Mr. A. Ingle will conduct the duties of the Currency Department until another gentleman is appointed in Mr. Forbes' place. Colonel Lionel Dunsterville, Collector of Shikarpoor, is expected at Kurrachee about the 20th of next month, to assume the office of collector and magistrate of this district, in succession to Colonel Lambert, who, you are aware, has obtained two years' furlough to visit England. Colonel Dunsterville, it will be remembered, only lately returned from home, and rejoined his appointment at Shikarpoor; but during this brief period he succeeded in detecting several gross irregularities which crept into the Treasury Department after his departure to England, and dismissed both the head clerk, one Mr. Kinnear, and the head accountant, Mr. Hormusjee Manockjee (a man who is in very bad odour among his own countrymen) for conniving at some of the frauds perpetrated by Barron at Jacobabad. He has introduced several reformatory measures in respect to the working of the office, which there is no doubt will be attended with salutary results. Notwithstanding the very active steps taken for establishing a quarantine between some of the districts of Thurr and Parkur to arrest the progress of cholera which was introduced there in June last by the fugitives from Marwar, the disease has made its appearance among the native residents of the city of Hyderabad. Up to date four men and one woman are reported to have fallen victims to it. The European troops, I am glad to say, have been as yet free from the scourge, and their health is said to be excellent, though one man of the 1st Belooch Regiment was admitted into hospital the day before yesterday, suffering from choleraic diarrhoea. It is impossible to over-rate the energy of zeal evinced by the Collector of Hyderabad and his assistants in carrying out measures of sanitation in the city, and cheering up the spirits of the people. News of a very melancholy nature was received last evening from Guader, one of the Indo-European telegraph stations. The wife of Mr. W. J. Towell was attacked with cholera and succumbed to it in less than four hours; Mrs. Towell had but lately arrived from home. Mr. Bond Howell, well known to many in the Deccan, has also fallen a victim to the epidemic. If the rumour current can be credited, torture appears still to be resorted to in this province; the details that are related are, however, too incredible to be published.—Times of India Correspondent.

Miscellaneous.

DEESA.—We are rejoiced to hear, by a letter received from Deesa dated the 2nd inst., that abundant rain has fallen at that station and over the districts around; also that the crops are in a very promising condition.—Times of India.

BOMBAY UNIVERSITY.—The Hon. B. H. Ellis has established a prize, value £5, to be given annually to the student who, on matriculation at the University of Bombay, shall pass the best examination in any Oriental language. Also a prize of books yearly to the best scholar in the Rutnagherry High School.

BANK OF BOMBAY.—The adjourned second ordinary meeting of the proprietors of the New Bank of Bombay was held on the 1st Sept., to consider how shares of the reserved issue not yet allotted should be disposed of. The matter has been left entirely in the hands of the directors.

DEATH AT MUNMAR.—We regret to announce the death, on September 1st, of P. Sturrock, Esq., Resident Engineer, at Munmar, after an illness of a few weeks. His remains were interred in St. Matthias's churchyard at Egiptpoora, being followed to the grave by the principal residents of the district. The funeral service was read by the Rev. Charles Gilder.

GREAT INDIAN PENINSULAR RAILWAY.—We learn that Mr. W. H. Middleton, district traffic manager of Poona or north eastern section of the G.I.P. Railway, shortly proceeds to England on leave for six months. We much regret Mr. Middleton's departure, even though it be but for six months. A more efficient, zealous and hard working officer is not in the service of the G.I.P.R. Company, and his loss even for so short a time will be much felt in Poona.—Times of India.

MILITARY.—His Excellency Sir Augustus Spencer held his first levee at Poona on Saturday. The Council House on the Bund-road was granted for the occasion.—We regret to have to record the death of Captain Newton, Bombay Staff Corps, attached to H.M.'s 11th N. L., at Nusseerabad. The melancholy event, the result of cholera, occurred on the 23rd of August; Captain Newton was 35 years of age, and is very deeply regretted by his brother officers.—We hear that Captain W. A. Gillespie, Deputy Collector, Kotree, is under arrest on a grave and painful charge.—The Western India Club ball, which took place on Thursday night last, is said to have been a most brilliant affair.—Major W. Dickinson, C.S.I., 3rd regiment Sind horse, has obtained 30 days' leave of absence from date of departure to proceed to Kurrachee, preparatory to obtaining a final certificate to Europe.—Sind News, August 30.

THE BOMBAY OMNIBUS COMPANY.—At an extraordinary general meeting of shareholders of this company, held on the 2nd September, it was resolved that the company be wound up voluntarily. Mr. George Manson was appointed liquidator. The sale of the property was completed on the 6th September by the payment of the last instalment of Rs. 32,500 by Mr. Narayen Crustna Laud, the purchaser.

Lieuts. E. R. Conolly, asst. comr.; the Hon. G. C. Napier, asst. comr.; H. Lawrence, asst. comr.; Mr. T. O. Wilkinson, asst. comr.; Lieuts. C. E. Macaulay, asst. comr.; R. S. Armstrong, asst. comr.; G. E. Macpherson, asst. comr.; Mr. A. H. Benton, asst. comr.; Lieuts. T. J. C. Plowden, asst. comr.; R. Bartholomew, asst. comr.; Mr. H. Priestley, asst. comr.

EXAMINATION COMMITTEES—PUNJAB.

Police Dept., Aug. 11.—No. 2193.—In continuation of Punjab order No. 1,416, of May 27, intimating that examination committees will be assembled only at Lahore and Amballa on Oct. 25 and 26 next.

2. Assistants from the Rawul Pindoe and Mooltan Circles will appear before the Lahore committee.

EXEMPTION FROM MESS PAYMENTS.

Adj. Gen.'s Office, Head Qrs., Simla, Aug. 9.—No. 222.—Adverting to G.O. No. 10, of Jan. 25, 1866, it is hereby notified that H.R.H. the Field Marshal C. in C. has decided that British officers probationers for the staff corps, who are permitted to withdraw therefrom and to rejoin their regiments, shall be exempt from payment of regimental mess and band subscriptions while on probation; or in other words, shall not be subject to the rule which renders officers who fail to pass for the staff corps liable to the subscriptions in question.

MEDICAL FEES.

Simla, June 23.—Read—An endorsement of the home department, No. 1,943, dated April 28, 1869, on a letter from the Government of the Punjab, recommending that when a medical officer, other than a civil surgeon or officer in medical charge of the civil station, is summoned to give evidence in a criminal court touching the result of a post mortem or other examination conducted by him in cases not falling within the ordinary discharge of his duties, he should receive a fee of Rs. 16 in addition to the usual expenses payable to witnesses.

Resolution.—Sanctioned.

Ordered, that a copy of this resolution be sent to the home department and the accountant general, Punjab.

R. B. CHAPMAN, Offic. Secy. to the Govt. of India.

July 26.—Read again—Financial resolution No. 1,370, dated June 23, 1869, ruling that when a medical officer in the Punjab, other than a civil surgeon or officer in medical charge of the civil station, is summoned to give evidence in a criminal court touching the result of a post mortem or other examination conducted by him in cases not falling within the ordinary discharge of his duties, he should receive a fee of Rs. 16 in addition to the usual expenses payable to witnesses.

Read—Office memorandum from the home department No. 3,179, dated July 9, 1869, recommending that the above ruling should be made generally applicable to the three Presidencies.

Resolution.—Sanctioned.

DEPUTATION ALLOWANCE.

August 27.—No. 2,905.—Read the undermentioned papers:—

Resolution No. 57, passed in this department on Jan. 2, 1868, deciding, "That when an officer is placed in charge of the current duties of a judicial office, and the charge, in the opinion of the local Government, entails a substantial increase of responsibility, besides some additional work, he shall be permitted to draw one-half of the deputation allowance which he would have received had he been appointed to officiate in the office concerned."

Endorsement from the Accountant-general, Bengal, No. 1,206, dated the 3rd inst., submitting a copy of an order of the local Government, to the effect that, in case of a subordinate judge in charge of the office of civil and sessions judge, the proviso in the notification of this department, No. 534, dated June 16, 1868, that the minimum of acting allowance must be two-thirds of the difference between the salaries of the substantive and acting appointments of the officer concerned, cannot apply, because a subordinate judge cannot officiate as a civil and sessions judge, and no comparison can therefore be established between the salaries of the appointments.

Resolution.—The Governor-general in Council is pleased to confirm the order of the Government of Bengal, and to prescribe generally that, when an officer placed in charge of the current duties of a judicial office is granted half acting allowances, under the resolution No. 57, dated Jan. 2, 1868, the proviso above quoted shall be disregarded in calculating the amount of such allowances.

PRIZES FOR GOOD SHOOTING.

Simla, Aug. 16.—Under the authority of the Rt. Hon. the Secretary of State for India, the Rt. Hon. the Governor general of India in Council is pleased to declare the provisions of the Royal Warrant dated April 30 last, and regulations attached, applicable to British regiments serving in India.

[The Royal Warrant referred to was issued as a "special army circular," dated May 7 last, offering prizes to soldiers for good shooting. The prizes are of the value of £20, with a bronze medal: £5, and a badge of cross muskets and crown, worked in gold, to be worn on the left arm; and a smaller prize of £3 in money, together with badge. The prizes are offered as an encouragement to musketry practice.]

INVALIDING BOARDS.

Head Quarters, Simla, Aug. 14.—Officers commanding divisions and districts will be pleased to assemble invaliding boards at stations within their respective commands occupied by European troops, to examine all men whom it is proposed to invalid; but medical boards when invaliding men who have been enlisted in India, and are not desirous of leaving the country, will refrain from recommending them to be sent to England or the colonies (see G.O. No. 183 of 1869). The deputy inspector general of hospitals, British forces, or superintending staff surgeon major of the Circle, will invariably sit as president.

2. The dates for assembling the several boards will be fixed by officers commanding divisions and districts in communication with the administrative medical officer, British forces, of the Circle, and so as to correspond with the instructions for movement and embarkation received from the quartermaster-general.

[The remaining clauses of the G.O., being matter of detail, are omitted.]

OFFICERS RETURNING FROM STAFF EMPLOY.

Head Qrs., Simla, Sept. 8, 1868.—In calling attention to the G.O.G.G., republished below, the C. in C. is pleased to notify that the Govt. have ruled that the spirit of that order is equally applicable to officers of the Indian army not belonging to the staff corps.

No. 29A, dated July 2, 1863.—"To obviate misapprehension the Right Hon. the Gov. gen. is pleased to notify that all officers of the staff corps who may be at any time without staff, civil or miscellaneous appointments, are at the disposal of H.E. the C. in C. for temporary employment in garrison or with corps as H.E. may consider desirable.

"2. Whenever an officer of the staff corps, therefore, relinquishes or is removed from staff employ, he will report himself by letter to the adjutant general, from whom he will receive the orders of the C. in C. as to the regiment or garrison to which he is to be temporarily attached.

"3. Should the officer be at the time residing at or near a military station he will, pending the orders of the C. in C., report himself for duty to the officer commanding that station.

"4. The principle of this order is applicable to the three Presidencies."

EDUCATION.—Under section 12 of Act II. of 1857, the Governor general in Council is pleased to authorise the affiliation in Arts of the Allahabad High School to the Calcutta University, with effect from Jan. 1 last.

GOVERNMENT GENERAL ORDERS.

DISCONTINUANCE OF DEPUTATION ALLOWANCE TO SUBSTITUTES AND UNCOVENANTED SERVANTS.

Financial Department, Fort St. George, Aug. 24.—Adverting to the notification published in the Fort St. George Gazette, dated April 20 last, page 562, H.E. the Governor in Council resolves to intimate to all heads of departments that deputation allowance will not, in future, be granted to the substitute of an uncovenanted officer absent on "privilege leave," unless it is satisfactorily shown that the work performed by the absentee cannot be conducted, during his absence, without the appointment of a substitute. H.E. in Council believes that in every office in which there are two or more clerks or assistants, or deputies performing similar duties, arrangements can, and may easily be made, to have the work of an absentee on "privilege leave" conducted without any addition to the office establishment.

2. H.E. the Governor in Council further resolves to intimate that, when an uncovenanted officer proceeds on sick, private, or furlough leave, heads of departments will take care that any arrangements which they may consider it expedient to make for the performance of the absentee's duties shall not, in any case, be attended with greater expense than the amount forfeited by the absentee under the Uncovenanted Civil Service Rules. By order of H.E. the Governor in Council.

R. S. ELLIS, Chief Secretary.

THE ALBERT ASSURANCE COMPANY.

Several points connected with the winding up of this company came before Mr. Bloxam, the Chief Clerk, at the Chambers of Vice-Chancellor James, on September 28. An application was made on behalf of Mr. Price, the official liquidator, to have certain cheques due signed, and a certified copy of the order of the Court sent to the banks in Bengal at the same time, in order that the cheques might be met. The Chief Clerk said that it was not desirable that he should be asked to sign cheques, when there was no account at the bank in his name. He would sign an order for leave to sue, and that would no doubt have the same result as an order of the Court to sign cheques. The Chief Clerk was also asked to state whether the liquidators should have permission to carry out the standing rule of the society, that policies which have lapsed may be renewed within a certain time, on the production of a certificate from the medical officer, and the payment of a fine; and whether, in cases where policy-holders have, in consequence of the winding-up, considered it unnecessary to pay their premiums, their policies are to be considered as lapsed. Mr. Bloxam said these were very large questions, and ought to be brought up on a summons before the judge. A summons respecting a scheme for reconstruction, at the request of the applicant, was ordered to stand over.

On behalf of the prosecutor of the Albert Assurance Company directors, an application was made on Friday in Chancery Chambers for leave to inspect certain documents, as being necessary to complete the case against the defendants. The Chief Clerk declined to grant the request, as the inspection of the documents might impede the winding up of the concern. The application was renewed before the judge on Saturday, when the Court gave permission to the liquidator to allow those prosecuting the directors to see the books of the company.

EUROPEAN ASSURANCE SOCIETY.

The policy-holders in Manchester held a meeting on September 27, to hear a statement of the condition of the company from Dr. Watts, the agent in that city. Dr. Watts said he lost confidence in the office so far back as 1866, but from the directors promising to pay bonus shortly afterwards, he was led to believe that he had been mistaken in his gloomy surmises. At the present time he thought the affairs of the company were not in so serious a state as some persons imagined, and he advised the policy-holders to pay their premiums. As for his own connection with the office, he would be only too anxious to publish the documents relating to his entire transactions with it, if the Manchester people wished him.

On Sept. 28 a meeting of shareholders was held at Sheffield. Mr. Councillor Allot occupied the chair. Mr. G. T. Earle, one of the policy-holders, who had convened the meeting, proposed a resolution to the effect that in view of the present crisis, as disclosed before the Vice-Chancellor on the 23rd September, and also in the public press, and the counter-statements made by Mr. Lake, the general manager, the meeting was of opinion that the only way of allaying the excitement naturally created in the minds of the policy-holders was the publication without delay, by the directors, of the assets and liabilities of the company; and that the meeting should be adjourned pending the result of the Chancery proceedings. This resolution was seconded by Mr. Pearce. Alderman Saunders, the district manager of the company, in supporting the resolution, expressed the opinion that the company would yet be able to meet all demands which would be made upon it, notwithstanding what had been said to the contrary. He advised the shareholders to keep up the payment of their premiums, as they would be sure to get their money returned if the company wound up. The meeting was eventually adjourned, the resolution proposed by Mr. Earle falling to the ground.

The affairs of the European Assurance Company came before Vice-Chancellor James on Saturday, the motion being on the part of Mr. Crawford—a director, shareholder, and policy-holder, and the petitioner for winding up the company—for a preliminary inspection of the books and papers. The Vice-Chancellor, after hearing the arguments on both sides, considered there was no precedent for granting such a request, and it would be hard upon companies if a shareholder was of right entitled to the production of books and papers. He therefore refused the order. It was arranged, after some discussion, that the petition for winding up should be heard on Wednesday week.

THE LOSS OF THE "CARNATIC."

One of the passengers has supplied the Times with the following narrative of the disaster:—

The Carnatic left Suez for Bombay on Sunday, September 12, commanded by Captain Jones. By Sunday night, at half-past 11, she had reached the island of Shadwan, the last of the group of islands at the bottom of the Gulf of Suez, where the broad part of the Red Sea commences. The sea was calm, and the night very starlight and clear, and the ship steaming at 11½ knots an hour, when she ran dead on to a well-known coral reef which fringes the island of Shadwan. The shock was not very violent, for she ran on to a slanting portion of the reef, her bows lifting right out of water, and sliding so far up on to the bank that she remained about evenly balanced on the edge of the reef, her forepart as far as the funnel resting on the coral, and her afterpart projecting unsupported over the deep water adjoining the bank; her bows were thrown up at an angle of about 12 or 15 degrees, and she was also leaning over to the starboard so much as to make it uncomfortable to walk upon her decks. The passengers, on rushing on deck, at once saw the long line of breakers stretching away on the right hand for half a mile towards the island of Shadwan, and on the left hand for about 150 yards towards the Asiatic coast and the open channel, so that had she been 200 yards more to the eastward she would have passed in perfect safety. This reef is well known, and is passed at a safe distance by every steamer which travels up or down the Red Sea. The island of Shadwan was visible, apparently not a mile off, but in reality about four and a-half miles, while behind was visible the Island of Jubal, and the Ushruffi Lighthouse giving its cheerful rays. As the ship was making no water, and evidently in no immediate danger, the passengers dressed themselves, and, collecting together their valuables and a little hand baggage, waited impatiently for the daylight. As soon as this appeared the situation was clearly apparent, and it was found that the reef was dry at low water, and had only three feet of water at high tide. At the same time the wind had freshened considerably, and the ship, balanced on an uneven bed, bumped in a most uncomfortable manner from side to side. The disappointment of the passengers was very great when they were told they would not be put on shore, as they had all anticipated. They were, fortunately, only about thirty in number, of whom three were ladies and one was a little child, so that one boat would easily hold all. The crew commenced lightening the forepart of the ship by throwing over cargo, and endeavoured, fruitlessly, to pull her off the reef by putting out an anchor aft, which, however, would not hold in such deep water. It was obvious, in fact, that, having glided smoothly up the coral at full speed, the larger portion of her weight rested on the ground, and that no available force could ever move her off again. As the murmurs against being kept on the wreck grew louder, the captain after dinner called the passengers into the after cabin and explained that his motive for not having sooner addressed himself to any of them was his desire to take every measure for the salvation of the ship, which he still trusted would be got off the rocks, and he recommended the passengers to choose a committee to confer with him as to the measures he had taken, adding his recommendation that he thought it much better to remain on the wreck. A committee of three was chosen, to whom he explained that he had put two anchors forward on to the reef to prevent her sliding into deep water, and was employing the pumps in keeping the after compartment dry. By this time she had bumped a hole in her side, and the fore compartments were full of water; the engine compartments were dry, but there was a constant leakage into the after cabin, some of the berths being awash. These explanations reassured the passengers, who, seeing that it was too late to effect a landing by daylight, resigned themselves to passing another night on the wreck.

During the night a great change for the worse took place—the leak in the after saloon increased seriously, and the chairs and seats were awash at the further end. The water slowly gained upon the pumps, and got into the stoke-holes and put out the fires, stopping the engines. The waves began also to break over the after taffrail. As daylight broke it was evident the ship would in a few hours be full of water from stem to stern, and might any moment slip down off the reef. The passengers were all ordered on to the fore-castle, as there were signs of straining below deck near the engines. The crew continued to throw over cargo, and hoisted sails on the foremast to keep her from sliding back; they also lowered the yards from the mainmast. Boats had previously been got alongside, with a little water and provisions, in case of emergency. During all these long hours of gradually increasing danger the island lay refreshingly in sight, close at hand, the water between being in a state of dead calm from the protection of the reefs; but, to the astonishment of everybody, no attempts were made to man the boats or put the passengers on shore. The committee had been badly selected, for it comprised among its three members the only two persons on board who were in favour of remaining on the wreck, and its action was therefore paralysed. The passengers, behaving with wonderful presence of mind, could do nothing but exchange murmurings against the captain, and calmly await the result. At seven o'clock a fresh leak sprung in the main saloon, which began to fill rapidly with water, and by nine o'clock the water inside and outside the ship was pretty nearly on a level. The stern had sunk considerably, and it was reported that while bumping from side to side she had worked herself six feet down the slope. Although she was now virtually a waterlogged wreck, no attempt was even now made to put the mails and passengers on shore. By eleven o'clock the wind had freshened considerably, and the waves becoming rougher strained her so that she began to get hogged, and her stern sank under the water, so that her quarter-deck was all awash with deck-chairs, seats, hatches, &c. The order was now given to take to the boats, and the passengers, who had waited nearly two days and nights with their little bundles of valuables by their sides, began instantly to crowd down off the fore-castle and to enter the boats. But the order had been given too late, for the gallant vessel had only five minutes to live. The boats had kept alongside with a man or two in them, and the three ladies and a child entered them together with four or five other passengers. The vessel was now settling down fast, each wave reaching further and further up the decks, and before the last of the ladies had fairly been got into a boat, the vessel parted clean in two amidships, with a noise like thunder, and the after part glided down into deep water, leaving an immense gulph in the waves as it disappeared. The fore part of the steamer rolled over first to starboard and then to port, finally settling down into deep water, but with her foremast and part of her bulwarks still above water. The crash was instantaneous, and as the crowd of passengers was descending in close file to the boats just as she separated beneath their feet, the majority fell, together with an immense mass of cargo and luggage, into the water just as the returning wave from the sinking vessel came back on the top of them, and for a few moments formed one struggling mass of human beings, mixed up with sheep, fowls, boxes, barrels, cargo, and deck lumber of every description, whirling about in inextricable confusion. By degrees the agitation of the water subsided, and those who were fortunate enough to escape were seen struggling up the rigging or swimming ashore among the wreckage. Numberless deeds of gallant daring were now done, the survivors rendering assistance to those who were still in the water, and in many cases when they were too exhausted to help themselves.

The boats were at once taken possession of by the Lascar crew, who, though they had hitherto worked very gallantly, now lost discipline and consulted their own safety; but they were soon brought back, and picked up those who were still floating or clinging to the rigging, and it being now high water the boats were floated over the reef and made their way to the island of Shadwan, where darkness came on before all were disembarked.

On mustering together it was found that 26 souls were lost, of whom about 15 or 16 were Europeans; and there was enough water and food on shore to last about two days on short allowance, the total number being about 200 souls. There was one signal rocket, but no means of producing a light. The Sumatra was known to be due, and great anxiety was felt lest she should pass us in the night without our having the means of gaining her attention; fortunately one of the passengers discovered a few dry matches, and at this moment the Sumatra was seen passing. A boat had just started with the one rocket to intercept any passing vessel. Some bales of cotton cloth which had washed on shore were opened and fires kindled along the beach. At the same time the rocket was thrown up from the boat, and happily answered from the Sumatra. The commander, Captain White, knowing that on such a dry and barren rock no one would make fires except as a signal of distress, at once steamed in to the rescue, and took on board all the passengers at once, and the next morning rescued the remainder of the crew and took them to Sucoz.

The behaviour of the passengers and officers was admirable throughout, and the passengers worked as hard as the sailors, both at the capstans and deck work and in the boats; but the central figure in the scene was Mr. Wyatt, the first officer, whose untiring energy and activity throughout the whole disaster was the theme of constant admiration and remark, and when the final catastrophe came he crowned the whole by refusing to go ashore in the boats, and leaping out to the rescue of those who still remained near the wreck. Others of the officers and crew also performed similar acts of daring—one man in particular, while the vessel was crushing under his feet, cutting off the rope by which the boats were fastened to the ladder to prevent their being drawn under with the wreck.

Mr. Joseph Preston writes thus to the Daily News :—

The captain of the steamer attributes her loss to a strong current which carried her out of her course. This may be so, but a letter I have received from a son who was a passenger on board the ill-fated vessel suggests to my mind a very different cause. He says, "She (the Carnatic) left at nine o'clock and proceeded all night, going very fast, having been challenged by a French vessel, which had six miles start, to race to Aden." Now, if this be correct, I cannot but think the loss of the ship may be attributed, in all probability, to the captain's eagerness to win the race, thus adding another to the melancholy list of steamers sacrificed through similar imprudence. On one other point the captain's statement differs from my son's letter. Nothing is said in it about the committee of passengers being appointed, and their deciding to remain on board; on the contrary, he writes:—"The passengers wanted the captain to put them ashore; he, however, said there was no danger, as he expected two steamers to pass very shortly, would not let us go, but said any who were frightened might go into the boats which were alongside." This might only have been an error of judgment on the part of the captain; but my son's opinion is, that had he acted as they requested, the result would have been very different, as he concludes his letter by saying, "The passengers are very indignant with the captain, as, but for him, all the lives would have been saved, and the baggage and mails as well."

Miscellaneous.

THE MAHARAJAH DHULEEP SINGH.—His Highness the Maharajah Dhuleep Singh, and the Maharene, have left Eiveden Hall, Thetford, Norfolk, for the metropolis. Their Highnesses are expected to remain in town for about a month.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.—By direction of the Duke of Cambridge volunteering for the companies of Royal Engineers employed in connection with the Public Works Department in India is still open at the School of Military Engineering, Brompton Barracks, but up to the present time the number of volunteers who have offered themselves has been very small.

NATIONAL BANK OF INDIA.—The fifth ordinary meeting of the National Bank of India was held on Sept. 25; Mr. W. S. Fitzwilliam in the chair. The chairman, in moving the adoption of the report, stated that the present being merely an ad interim meeting, he had, beyond the information contained in the report, simply to say that the bank still maintained its good position in India, and that he had every reason to believe it would continue to do so. Dr. Paon seconded the motion. In reply to a shareholder, the chairman said that the bank continued to pay interest on current accounts in India. The resolution, which included the declaration of the dividend at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, was unanimously adopted.

ORIENTAL BANK CORPORATION.—A general meeting of the Oriental Bank Corporation is called for the 28th of October, to declare an interim dividend for the half-year ended the 30th of June.

THE LOSS OF THE "CARNATIC."—We understand that the Commander of the Carnatic has returned to Bombay, while the crew and passengers have come to England. There is, therefore, some legal difficulty in holding an inquiry into the cause of the loss of this ship, as the commander will be in one place and the witnesses in another. We believe that the Board of Trade and the company are equally anxious that an inquiry should be held, and it will be a matter for regret if any legal difficulty should stand in the way.—Shipping Gazette.

MILITARY.—The 90th Light Infantry, on arrival home from Madras in H.M.'s Serapis, about the 4th of November, will be quartered in Edinburgh, whither the depot companies will proceed from Winchester, towards the end of the present month, the 42nd Highlanders moving to Aldershot. The 1st battalion 23rd Royal Welsh Fusiliers, on arrival from India in H.M.'s Crocodile, on or about the 14th of November, will be stationed at Devonport, taking over the quarters now in the occupation of the 57th regiment, who will be moved into Fort Tregantle. The depot companies of the Royal Welsh Fusiliers will be moved from Shorncliffe to Devonport about the first week in November.

STEAM VERSUS WIND.—The demands of the Australian and Indian trades have become so extensive, and the forthcoming opening of the Suez Canal being likely to do away with the use of sailing vessels to a very considerable extent, some of the enterprising shipowners of Liverpool are combining together to substitute steam for sailing vessels. Already we hear of the formation of a large company, which has given an order for a steamer of 440 feet in length, and of light draft; and one of our oldest and most respectable firms is, it is said, about to follow suit. Our shipowners are quite alive to the changes which the successful navigation of the Suez Canal will bring about, and are building steamers suitable for the traffic by that route.

MIR AULAD ALI.—From the list of passengers in the Pacific and Oriental Company's mail packet Massilia we learn that Professor Mir Aulad Ali, of Trinity College, Dublin, is at present on his way to his native country. His departure will be felt as a great loss to the students of Oriental languages. The Professor is a thorough master of the Arabic and Persian literature, and is himself a native of Lucknow, where the purest Hindustani is spoken. He is also an excellent English scholar. Since he has held the Professorship of Oriental languages great progress has been made by the students of Trinity College, and the advantage of his instruction is fully appreciated in India. The Hindustani Examiner, who would seem to cherish a strange antipathy to other Oriental scholars, has, however, lost no opportunity of dissuading those whom he has to examine from reading with Mir Aulad Ali, and constantly recommends as a tutor a Khidmatgar who, some time ago, came over with a distinguished native of Bengal. Professor Mir Aulad Ali came to England in 1857 as Persian Secretary to the late Queen of Oudh, and during her lifetime gave unqualified satisfaction. Afterwards, when queer things took place in the Oudh Embassy, Mir Aulad Ali withdrew himself from a service in which he could no longer remain with the approbation of his own conscience. The University of Dublin had heard of his talents and ability, and without any solicitation on his part, offered him the professorship, which he has hitherto filled with the entire satisfaction of everybody concerned. His father's death and the entreaties of his mother have at last compelled him to return to India on a year's leave of absence. We lose him with great regret, and hope he may safely and prosperously reach his destination, and that Trinity College, Dublin, may again have the benefit of his invaluable services. The Secretary of State for India, appreciating his merit, granted him a first-class passage, as well as pecuniary aid, and it is hoped that the local Government of India will do the same when the term of his leave of absence expires. It is very satisfactory to observe that the Home Government is thus offering some encouragement at least for Oriental scholars. Until the return of Professor Mir Aulad Ali, Trinity College, Dublin, lies under great disadvantages, for it cannot well supply the learned Professor's place.

Spirit of the Home Journals.

THE LOSS OF THE "CARNATIC."

The Times observes that perhaps Captain Jones may be able to give a more plausible explanation to the public than he has thought it necessary to give to his owners of his delay in taking to the boats. From the accounts we have it does not appear that there would have been any real danger in reaching the shore for some time after the Carnatic struck. The enterprise was accomplished later without loss of life under far more difficult conditions. As yet the reasons he has suggested imply a care only for the ship's safety. He appears to have deliberately staked the lives of his passengers and crew on the hazard of the Sumatra's arrival before the wind rose. The loss of life which eventually occurred occupies but a casual place in his narrative. But for a single line in the opening sentence a reader might have supposed that all had been saved. Even however had no lives been lost, we should still have required special justification for a resolution which forced a mass of helpless passengers to endure the horror of watching, during two nights and a day, the waters creeping up higher and higher, while they were tantalised with the spectacle close at hand of a certain and obvious means of escape of which they were barred from availing themselves. On a route like that to India Great Britain cannot afford to pardon an economy which would try to preserve a ship at the chance of losing lives. Every Peninsular and Oriental Company's servant must be taught that his first duty is to his passengers, and that nothing is precious enough to be suffered to challenge a comparison with their safety.

THE SULTAN AND THE KHEDIVE.

The Army and Navy Gazette observes that the question which has arisen between the Sultan and the Khedive, ostensibly based on certain infractions by the latter of his Suzerain's right, has a curious secret history. By the firman which constitutes the hereditary right to the Viceroyalty in the line of Ismail Pasha the old law of succession was changed, and his two brothers, who had a reversion according to Mahometan law, were cut off from all chance of succession as long as Ismail Pasha's male children lived. These Pashas, Mustapha Fazil and Halil, reside in Constantinople, having been banished for alleged complots against the Khedive, for, as his sons are young, it was hoped that the brothers might produce a new firman to restore the old law of succession. One is very rich—that is, he has secured large sums for his estates in Egypt from the Viceroy. The other was wealthy, but has lost an immense fortune, and both are said to be in a position which would render a hundred thousand purses or so very welcome. They are in favour at Constantinople, and one is a member of the Council of Ministers of the Empire. Their intrigues against their brother are active and incessant, and the Sultan's jealousy is aroused and kept alive by artful representations, of which the Khedive knows the authors perfectly. A good largesse, squeezed out of the Cairo Treasury, would only lead to a temporary cessation of the attacks, and Ismail Pasha, who has paid largely already, has probably made up his mind not to throw good money after bad. If Ali Pasha were to resign, the Eastern question might come upon us in a most disagreeable form.

Mails to India, &c.

The Mails to all parts of India, via SOUTHAMPTON, are now made up at the General Post Office, London, every Saturday at 8 A.M., and those via MARSEILLES every Friday, at 6 P.M.

For Ceylon, China, Straits Settlements, &c., the dates of despatch up to the end of December will be as follows, viz.:

Via SOUTHAMPTON, at 8 A.M., on the Saturdays, October 2, 16, and 30, November 6 and 20, and December 4 and 18.

Via MARSEILLES, at 6 P.M., on the Fridays, October 8 and 22, November 5 and 19, and December 3, 17, and 31.

RATES OF POSTAGE TO INDIA & CEYLON.

LETTERS.

Via Marseilles, under ½ oz., 1s. 1d. | 1 oz., 2s. 2d. | each additional ½ oz. 1s. 1d.

NEWSPAPERS.

each additional 4 oz., 6d.

Via Southampton, under 1 oz., 1d. | 2 oz., 2d. | 4 oz., 4d. | 8 oz., 8d. | 12 oz., 1s.
each additional 4 oz., 4d.

The postage on letters may either be paid in advance or left to be paid on delivery, at the option of the sender; but in all cases where the postage is not fully pre-paid, the Letters will be charged, on delivery, with one additional rate of Ninepence, besides the usual postage.

This increase of postage will not affect the Letters of Officers of the Army and Navy serving in India and Ceylon; such Letters will continue to enjoy the privilege of transmission at the reduced postage of Sixpence the half-ounce, via Southampton, and Tenpence the half-ounce via Marseilles.

In the case of Newspapers, Books, &c., the prepayment of the postage is compulsory. Parcels must not in any case exceed 5 lbs. in weight, or be of greater dimensions than twenty-four inches in length, and twelve inches in width or depth.

A French line of Mail Packets leaves Marseilles every fourth Saturday. Postage for Letters and Papers to India and China the same as is charged by the English Mail, via Marseilles. Letters intended to be forwarded by these Packets must be specially addressed—"By French Mail Packet from Marseilles."

Up to the end of December the dates of despatch from London will be the Thursday evenings, September 30th, October 29th, November 25th, and December 23rd, and by Supplementary Mails on the morning following.

Supplementary Mails will also be made up at the General Post Office, London, every Saturday morning, via France and Italy to Brindisi, and thence by Italian packet to Alexandria, but should they not reach the latter place in time, the departure of the regular Mails for Suez will not be delayed. The postage of letters will be at the rate of 1s. 4d. for each half-ounce, and of newspapers 4d. for each four ounces.

CHLORODYNE

Remedial Uses and Action.

THIS INVALUABLE REMEDY produces quiet, refreshing sleep, relieves pain, calms the system, restores the deranged functions, and stimulates healthy action of the secretions of the body, without creating any of those unpleasant results attending the use of Opium. Old and young may take it at all hours and times when requisite. Thousands of persons testify to its marvellous good effects and wonderful cures, while medical men extol its virtues most extensively, using it in great quantities in the following diseases:—

Diseases in which eminently useful—Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Colics, Coughs, Asthma, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Whooping Cough, Cramp, Hysteria, &c.

Those exhausting diseases—Fever, Ague—so common in tropical climates, are rapidly arrested, and the cold stage in a few moments checked by a timely dose, when warmth and a general glow of the system is established, and comfort secured.

As a Sedative, Neurotic, and Antispasmodic, it is unequalled by any other known Medicine, and not to be surpassed in its specific effects.

Extracts from Medical Opinions.

The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Cholera was Chlorodyne.—See Lancet, Dec. 31, 1861.

From A. Montgomery, Esq., late Inspector of Hospitals, Bombay.—"Chlorodyne is a most valuable remedy in Neuralgia, Asthma, and Dysentery. To it I fairly owe my restoration to health after eighteen months' severe suffering, and when other remedies had failed."

Dr. Lowe, Medical Missionary in India, reports (Dec., 1863) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne was administered, the patient recovered.

Mrs. Forbes, wife of the Chaplain at Paris.—"I cannot speak too highly of Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne; I have not in any single instance been disappointed with the result, even in aggravated cases of Indian Cholera."

Extract from Medical Times, Jan. 12, 1866.—"Chlorodyne is prescribed by scores of orthodox medical practitioners. Of course it would not thus be singularly popular did it not 'supply a want and fill a place.'"

Extract from the General Board of Health, London, as to its efficacy in Cholera.—"So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too forcibly urge the necessity of adopting it in all cases."

CHLORODYNE, the Great Remedy for CHOLERA.—See Report in the Times, Sept. 6, from the Malta Correspondent, who states, August 24th, that "108 cases and eighty-one deaths occurred at Messina; 50,000 people fled from the town, which is in a most deplorable condition; that Chlorodyne has been found most efficacious as a remedy, and a number of persons are reported to have been saved by its use."

Now as there are various imitations sold under the name of Chlorodyne, containing Indian Hemp, Morphia, &c., ingredients highly adverse to the cure of Cholera, the public are cautioned against the use of any compound under the name of Chlorodyne, unless it bears the name of Dr. J. Collis Browne, who coined the word Chlorodyne to designate his wonderful discovery, which he fully tested for many years in her Majesty's Service before introducing it to the public, the wonderful success of which has given rise to various imitations totally different to genuine Chlorodyne. See the decision of Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood, reported in the Times, July 13th, 1864.

The extraordinary medical reports on the efficacy of Chlorodyne renders it a subject of most vital importance that the public should obtain the genuine, which is now sold under the protection of the Government of Great Britain, authorising a stamp, bearing the words "Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne," without which none is genuine. Sold in bottles, 1s. 1d., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d., by all Chemists. Sole Manufacturer, J. T. DAVENPORT, 33, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London.

MENT OF ARNICA.

A SPECIFIC FOR THE CURE OF RHEUMATISM, LUMBAGO, SCIATICA, SPRAINS, CONTUSIONS, WEAKNESS OF THE JOINTS, CHILBLAINS, &c. It is also an excellent remedy as a stimulating application to the surface of the chest and back in bronchitis, inflammation of the lungs, pulmonary consumption, and whooping cough. When the liver is inactive, rubbed over it, its stimulating properties have a beneficial effect, and in all cases where counter irritation is desirable, it will be found invaluable.

In bottles, small, medium, and large.

THORACIC LOZENGES.

Prepared from the receipt of an eminent Physician, and experience has fully justified their recommendation as the most speedy remedy in irritation of the throat, catarrhal cough, bronchitis, incipient consumption, spitting of blood, &c., &c. To public speakers and vocalists they will be found invaluable, as they impart a clear and beautiful tone to the voice. Free from any preparation of opium, and of an agreeable taste, they are applicable to all.

In bottles of one uniform size.

LIVER PILLS.

Composed of the Extracts of DANDELION, TURKEY RHUBARB, and JAMAICA GINGER.

No Pill is so efficacious in promoting digestion, strengthening the stomach, correcting acidity, preventing or removing headache, giddiness, &c., arising from a costive habit, debilitated stomach, or torpid liver.

They require no change of diet, and those of the most delicate constitution may take them with safety.

Taken as an adjunct with WILKINSON'S SARSAPARILLA with the greatest success.

In bottles, small, medium, and large.

Prepared by THOMAS WILKINSON (late Bridge and Co.), 270, Regent-street, London, W.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER
TRUSS, Perfected and Exhibited in the Great Exhibition of 1851, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 223, Piccadilly, London.

Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d., postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 8d. Umbilical, 42s. and 52s. 6d., postage, 1s. 10d.

Post-office Orders payable to JOHN WHITE, Post-office, Piccadilly.

NEW PATENT.

ELASTIC STOCKINGS, KNEE CAPS,

&c.—The material of which these are made is recommended by the Faculty as being peculiarly elastic and compressible, and the best invention for giving efficient and permanent support in all cases of weakness and swelling of the Legs, Varicose Veins, Sprains, &c. It is porous, light in texture, and inexpensive, and is drawn on like an ordinary stocking. Price 4s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s. to 16s. each; postage, 6d.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.

RHEUMATIC PAINS.—Many thousands of martyrs from rheumatism have found human life but one long disease, and, after consulting all the most eminent medical men in vain, and trying all sorts of supposed remedies without relief, have grown weary of existence, and have ceased to hope for comfort on this side of the grave, until some lucky accident has called their attention to Holloway's Ointment and Pills. These are genuine remedies indeed. Persons bedridden for months with rheumatic pains and swellings, after the Ointment has been well rubbed into the parts affected, and the blood purified by a course of these Pills, have found themselves restored in an incredibly short time to perfect health and ease.

Summary and Review.

OUR latest advices by the Overland Mail are—from Bombay, September 14; Agra, September 11; Calcutta, September 10; Madras, September 9.

The weather reports from Upper India show what difference a day or two's rain may make in the food prospects of a country like India. During the first half of September rain fell at last throughout the Punjab and the North-West Provinces, so freely that a plentiful Khareef harvest is already prophesied for most parts of that region. The station of Meerut was positively flooded on the 11th of the month. Even Rajpootana has had enough moisture to save the remnant of her cattle, if it has come, alas! too late to ensure an autumn crop of grain. The distress there, says Colonel Keatinge, is simply "terrible," whatever the rain may do to alleviate it. Little better is the condition of our own districts on the Rajpootana Frontier, worsened as it is by the steady flow of hunger-maddened emigrants from the Native States. It is of the highest importance that measures on a large scale should at once be taken to store up food and find work for the millions of sufferers who must otherwise starve or rot between the Indus and the Jumna. Even in the North-West and Punjab the distress will probably continue to be very great for some weeks to come.

THE cholera seems at length to be working itself out in Umritsur. The daily deaths since the beginning of September had fallen to about six or seven; but fever was still carrying off some ten or eleven a day. In Meerut, Subathoo, Mhow, and one or two other places cholera still lingered. At Mhow however, according to official returns, the mortality among all classes from January 1 to September 6 has been but small. Of the European troops, including women and children, sixteen only have died; of the native soldiers two; and of other natives thirty-six. Cholera has quite disappeared from Shiraz and Ispahan since the middle of August; but was still raging in Teheran, with a tendency to visit Meshed.

FROM Hazara we learn that two raids have been made within a few days into Agror by those Hassanzaics who were supposed to have learnt another lesson last year. The first was a mere plundering attack on the village of Burchum in July. The second, on the 21st August, when a body of raiders surprised the village of Juskote, killing five and wounding sixteen, seems to have been inspired by revenge for the death of one of their number in the former attack. Robbery and the vendetta being still an institution among these wild mountaineers, we should be surprised to hear of any long interval of rest from these raids. The question, what to do in this particular case, has been referred to Simlah.

THE Delhi Gazette once more declares that there will be no durbar at Agra. We should have thought that question had been finally settled some weeks before; but apparently the popular mind was hard to convince, for a telegram of September 28 from Bombay speaks only of the "general belief" that no durbar will be held, nor any public pomp take place out of Calcutta.

THE Indian Government has very properly set its face against any attempt to naturalise in India the practice, so common in England, of giving an engineer commissions on contracts in addition to his regular pay. As the number of civil engineers employed in India is "likely to increase," the Government in set terms forbids any engineer in its employ from receiving any commission or any other consideration whatever, directly or indirectly, on account of any business or transaction in which he shall be concerned on behalf of the Government. Such an order could not have been issued without sufficient cause, for otherwise it would look very like a needless insult to an honourable body.

FROM a telegram just received in London we learn that the Loodianah section of the Delhi Railway, connecting Umballa with Loodianah, was opened without ceremony on the 1st of this month. The opening is said to have been a "perfect success," whatever that may mean.

THE Friend of India understands that Colonel Broome has prepared a reply to General Hannington's estimate of the cost of carrying out the Government scheme for buying out the surplus field officers in the Indian Army. We have little doubt that the Colonel will easily demolish his ostensible opponent; but how will his arguments affect the authorities who inspired the General? To us it seems a self-evident certainty that India would gain by the buying out of these unemployed officers; but the India Office will not have it so, and who shall strive against Fate?

DR. CAYLEY has been led by Mr. Shaw's report of his journey to Yarkand to form a very high opinion of Yakoob Kooshbeghi's character and capacity. This "highly intelligent and enlightened ruler" has "ideas almost European in liberality." Strict in enforcing the tenets of Islam among his own subjects, "towards foreigners and men of other creeds he is most tolerant;" even Hindoos being only forbidden to wear turbans and ride horses in the towns. A friend to merchants of every creed, he is a "just and vigorous but severe" ruler, a pitiless foe, a daring soldier, a strict military disciplinarian, and a resolute upholder of his own kingdom against Russian arts or arms. His new title, Atalik Ghazi, indicates the strength of his religious zeal.

ALI RAJPORE, a small State in Central India, has just shared the fate of Tonk. Its incompetent Rajah, Gungadeo, has been dethroned, and his brother, aided by a native Minister, will act as regent during the minority of his heir, Rooddeo.

INSTITUTIONS like the Lawrence Asylum for soldiers' children have worked so well in India, that similar results may fairly be expected from an asylum lately opened at Simla for the benefit of needy European and Eurasian children of both sexes, and of native orphans under seven years of age. It will be managed by several ladies of Indian repute under the special patronage of Lady Mayo. Those who enter it will receive a good working education sufficient to start them fair in the race of life. Six rupees a month for every European, and three for every native child, are the very moderate terms of admission to the asylum. In the course of time it will pay its own expenses through the sale of articles made by the children themselves. For the present, however, it must continue to depend on public charity for the means of fulfilling its avowed aim—the deliverance of destitute or orphaned children from the worst possibilities of their hard lot. Of such charity there has never been any lack among Anglo-Indians.

MR. W. McLEAVY, of Meerut, proposes, through the Delhi Gazette, to get up for India a special assurance system under the title of "The Bengal and Upper India Life Assurance Society," with a capital of Rs. 500,000, in ten thousand shares of Rs. 50 each. It will be a purely Indian undertaking, with its head-office in India; not, according to present usage, in England. The prevailing practice has been very hurtful to the Indian branches, which usually "make safe and rapid progress," but being "entirely subordinate," and having "no voice in the general management," are always apt to suffer from mismanagement at home. The head-office of the new society is to be at Meerut. Its funds will always be invested in Government securities, and among its directors will be enrolled the managers and secretaries of the chief banks in Bengal and the North-West Provinces.

A FEW weeks ago we commented on the curious arrangement by which native priests, female dancers and singers in India were exempted from the licence-tax. Apparently the Indian Government has also wondered at an immunity so strangely distributed. At any rate it has empowered the Government of Bombay to levy the licence-tax on dancers and singers as well as on other people. One would think that such a measure would pass without objection on that side of the world, except from the parties hitherto exempted. Dancing and singing in India form none the less a regular and lucrative calling because they are practised by ladies of doubtful virtue. The immorality of these has nothing to do with their relations to the State under whose protection they live and make money. If society disowns them, the law cannot, so long as they keep within the law. The Delhi Gazette, however, seems to regret their admission into the tax-paying circle, as implying the formal recognition of their right to dance and sing for immoral purposes. The same sort of objection is still loudly urged in England against all legislation that seems to recognise the existence of a courtesan class. Our soldiers may reap the benefit of a Contagious Diseases Act, but vice is legalised, they say, by any extension of that Act to the civil community. This sort of argument, cruelly absurd at all times, becomes wholly irrelevant to the case before us. With the private morals of these singers and dancers the State, as such, has nothing more to do than with the private morals of any other class. But on the profits derivable from their overt calling it has just the same right to levy a public toll as it has on the profits of any other trade or profession not directly forbidden by law. When will people remember that vice and crime are practically quite different things?

THE Madras papers, announcing the intended resignation next year by Sir Adam Bittlestone of his puisne-judgeship, mention the likelihood of his being succeeded by Mr. Standish Grady, the reader on Hindu, Mohammedan, and Indian Law to the Inns of Court. Whether the learned author of some well-known works on the Hindu and Mohammedan Laws of Inheritance would think it worth his while to accept Sir Adam's vacant post we are not prepared to say; but we have reason to believe that his appointment would be very welcome to the Madras community. The Bangalore Spectator of the 15th July describes him as "well known to almost every junior member of the Madras Bar who placed themselves under his guidance and teaching preparatory to being called to the Bar." All these gentlemen, we are told, concur in praising his high abilities, kindly nature, and many estimable qualities.

COTTON is a prime necessity for Lancashire, and a good investment for India. But it will never do to foster the excessive growth of that staple in a country so largely dependent as India on regular supplies of home-grown corn. England, with her varied resources, vast wealth, and world-wide communications, may afford to depend more and more on foreign countries for a large proportion of her grain supplies; but in this respect India must still, if not always, look to herself alone for the harvests which her soil is naturally best fitted to bear. India is eminently a grain-growing country, and the gain she could derive from cotton would be seriously counterpoised by any large reduction in the area of her corn and rice fields. There are plenty of broad tracts in the Peninsula, where any amount of cotton might safely be grown; but care should be taken not to overdo a good thing. It is probable therefore that Sir Salar Jung is acting wisely in the measures he has just taken to check the tendency of the Hyderabad farmers to sow cotton everywhere instead of grain. It seems that three-fourths of the village lands have already been planted with cotton, under the lures held out to the ryots by the Marwarrie grain-dealers, who thus gain a footing in the cotton market. In his fear for the consequences, the Nizam's Minister has ordered that each cotton-field shall for the future be taxed by the beegah instead of the lump. He proposes, we hear, to fix the rate at Rs. 5 a beegah. This tax, added to the present export duty of Rs. 2.8 a bale, levied on the frontier, would doubtless in time bring down the price of grain in Hyderabad, which for the last two years has ruled at something like famine pitch. We must hope however that the new precautions will not break the back of the rival industry, else the remedy might turn out worse than the disease.

A GOOD time is surely coming for the natives of India. They are making their way with our help into one sphere of the public service after another. In the uncovenanted ranks they are fast crowding out the Europeans, and many of the old covenanted loaves and fishes have already fallen into their hands. A native judge sits in the High Court of Calcutta. The Forest Department is to be reserved for natives only. A native whose legs are cased in "European" leather may now keep both head and feet covered in the presence of an English magnate. Native labour fills our markets with tea, and cotton, and indigo. Indian manufactures depend largely on the skill of native artisans. But the Indian Government wants to go yet further in this new direction. English artisans are still largely employed, it seems, in handicrafts demanding highly-skilled labour. This, which some people might deem a good opening for our own countrymen, is bewailed by the Indian Government as a necessity which cannot for the present be avoided. "The only remedy"—it declares in a recent despatch to the India-office—"is the substitution of skilled native labour to the uttermost;" for it feels sure that "there is no handicraft, however intricate and difficult, which the natives of India are not capable of learning." In furtherance of its earnest desire to dispense as far as possible with skilled European labour, it "respectfully suggests" to the Duke of Argyll that, as a rule, "no man with a large family shall be engaged in England to proceed to India for minor civil employment under the Government there. This excessive zeal for the welfare of the native bears an odd resemblance to the old jealousy of 'interlopers,' which marked the reign of the East India Company. Has it anything to do with the newborn crusade against white loafers in India? It may be true that native artisans, under right training, would prove equal to any demands on their workmanlike abilities; and certainly in many kinds of handicraft their excellence is beyond dispute. But the Englishman, for one, declares it to be "a well-known fact to all persons employing mechanical labourers, that there are numerous branches of work in every trade which natives, though they may learn, can never execute properly." Whether this be true or not, we fail to see the wisdom or the justice of deliberately closing the door of employment against our own countrymen, in a land where every Englishman the more counts for something in the event of another rebellion.

It fairly falls within our province to notice the death of the Earl of Derby, which took place yesterday (Tuesday) at half-past one A.M. As Premier in 1858, it was Lord Derby who introduced into the Upper House the Bill which transferred India from the Company to the Crown, and virtually abolished the old Company's Army.

A NEW PRESERVATIVE AGAINST CHOLERA.

THE prevalence of cholera in India has led the Indian Government to order a full inquiry into all points therewith connected. In accordance with its instructions, Dr. Cunningham, the Sanitary Commissioner, has sent round to all regimental surgeons a list of a hundred and fifty questions, from the answers to which he may shape out his intended report. We should be glad to think that any new light could thus be thrown on the causes or the treatment of so dreadful a scourge. But seeing how utterly medical science has hitherto failed in counter-acting or abating the evil, we dare not hope for much. From calomel to ice-bags, almost every remedy under the sun has been tried to small purpose. We may note however among the latest discoveries on this subject the conclusions stated by a well-known French chemist, M. Dumas, in favour of copper as an antidote to cholera. The discovery, if such it be, belongs indeed less to M. Dumas than to the Dr. Burg whose report he summarised before the French Academy of Sciences. From careful inquiries pursued for some years past with the help of the police, it is inferred that Frenchmen engaged in any kind of copper-work have been remarkably free from attacks of cholera. Out of 26,000 adult workers in copper the number of deaths from cholera in 1865 and 1866 were only three in every 10,000. The more copper handled in any trade, the greater seemed to be the immunity from disease. Among 11,500 gold and silversmiths and watchmakers sixteen were attacked, and one in every 719 died. Out of 6,000 engravers on copper, makers of spectacle frames, copper-platers, polishers, rollers, and coiners, the mortality was reduced to one in a thousand. In the case of founders, tap-makers, lamp-makers, workers in bronze, sham-jewellery, and copper vessels, seven only died out of 14,000, or one in every 2,000 employed. Not one death occurred among 5,650 dry polishers, turners, stampers, makers of musical and mathematical instruments. There is something wrong in the totals, which seem to amount to thirty-six, not twenty-six thousand, unless the difference be set down to the boys, or to the employment of many workmen in more than one branch of the trade. But the percentages of mortality, if correctly given, do certainly contrast for the better with the death-rates from cholera in other manufactures; the latter losing from ten to forty times as many as the copper trade. These facts, if they be facts, are certainly suggestive, as tending at any rate to shake our long accepted belief in the great unhealthiness of copper-work. Further evidence in support of the new theory is adduced from the registers of a society of bronze-workers, called the Bon Accord. During five great epidemics of cholera in the last half century, the members of this union, scattered as they were in some of the most afflicted quarters of Paris, not only lost not a single man, but had paid for only a hundred and six days of sickness, distributed among no more than ten members. Other facts pointing in the same direction were brought forward by M. Dumas. How far the inferences suggested may fairly be drawn from such premises we need not here speculate. But the question raised by these coincidences deserves fair consideration at the hands of medical inquirers seeking to snatch a victory from one of the worst foes to human life.

STATISTICAL MAPS OF INDIA.

ONE of the most useful "Returns" hitherto obtained from the India-office, and afterwards published by order of the House of Commons, is the collection of Maps and Statistical Information with regard to India that has been lying before us for some weeks past. As a means of conveying much varied knowledge in one view, there is nothing like a well-compiled map; and here we have a set of eight, which enable one to realise in a few minutes more of the main facts bearing on India as it is than one could readily put together after many hours of careful reading. Here are so many pictures appealing to the mental through the actual eye, things oculis subjecta fidelibus with an effect so much more intense and even lasting than many words, whether written or spoken. One map shows you at a glance all the administrative divisions and districts of British India. Another helps you to realise the large space which the dominions of native feudatories still occupy within our own borders. A third tells you how the thirty-four languages and dialects of India are distributed throughout the Peninsula. From a fourth we learn in a moment what parts of India are noted for the production of what sort of commercial staple. Two others set before us a pictorial summary of the progress hitherto made in works of irrigation, in lines of telegraph, in railways, and in lighthouses. From some of the maps also much information may incidentally be gleaned on matters not directly illustrated. The accompanying letter-press supplies the concise and pertinent commentary on the results depicted in the maps.

The first two maps supplement each other. In the one large gaps are left for the native States, while these alone are filled up in the other. In the one, Rajpootana for instance appears a broad blank with one little red island in the middle to denote the British portion of Marwar and Ajmere. A thin neck of British ground divides Indore on the south of Rajpootana from the independent State of Hyderabad, which, with the adjacent State of Mysore hanging on to its southernmost skirt, fills a goodly space, and covers the richest ground in Southern India. Eastward of Hyderabad and the Central Provinces another good-sized tract of country, running up north-eastwards from the Godavery to Chota Nagpore and Midnapore, belongs almost wholly to native rulers. Gujerat and Cutch form the western, just as Bundelkund and Rewah form the eastern pendant to Rajpootana; while Cashmere, Bisahir, Gurhwal, Bhawalpoor, and a few small fiefs, such as Jheend and Pattialah, cut a considerable slice out of the Punjab.

The broad blank left in the first map for Rajpootana is cut up in the second into eighteen States, with populations ranging from 55,000 for Serohi to 1,900,000 for Jaipore. The smallest of these States in actual area however is Kishengurh, with its 720 square miles. Jodhpore, or independent Marwar, covers an area of 35,000 square miles, more than double that of Jaipore, whose population is absolutely larger by more than 100,000, while its revenue is more than twice as large. Jodhpore however is the poorer country, and appears to be the worst governed of the Rajpoot States. Oodipore yields absolutely the largest revenue, 40 lakhs of rupees; but that of Bhurtpore, 21 lakhs, is yielded by a country less than a sixth of the other's area, and containing about half as many inhabitants. One would like to know however the relative conditions of each and the exact pressure of taxation per head. The revenue of Cashmere and Hydrabad are not given. Sindia gets more than 93 lakhs a-year; Holkar, from a population four times less, receives 30 lakhs; the Gaikwar of Baroda 60. Travancore yields a revenue of nearly 43 lakhs, Kattywar 86½, and Mysore 100. Altogether these native States make up an area but one-fourth less than that of British India, with a population however less by two-thirds.

The languages of India may all be reduced to two or three broad types. Of these the Aryan or Indo-European fills much the largest space in the third map. In one form or another it is spoken from Cashmere southwards to Belgaum, from Sindh in the Far West to Assam in the East. Even in Nepal the Parbutia dialect of Hindi is the dominant tongue. The greater part of Southern India, from Cape Comorin northwards to Sonthalistan, and from Canara across to Madras, is peopled by races speaking Tamil, Telugu, Malayalam, and other varieties of the Dravidian type of languages. A third type, the Thibetan or Indo-Chinese, is represented by Burmah, Arracan, Chittagong, Cachar, Tipperah, Bhotan, and so forth. It has been reckoned that 129 millions of people in India speak some one of the thirteen Aryan dialects, while only thirty-two millions belong in language to the Dravidian or the Turanian type. The Dravidian races are supposed to have peopled India before the Aryan invasion drove them southwards, or left them scattered in the wilder parts of the country, to become in due time the puzzle of modern philologists, and the protégés of philanthropic officials. Our knowledge of them and their race-affinities is still in its infancy, and no classification we have yet seen is quite satisfactory. What relation, for instance, does Tamil or Telugu bear to the language of the Sonthals, or to that of the Burmese and the Mugs of Arrakan? Of the twenty-five million Mohammedans in India how many are of Mongolie, how many of Semitic or even Aryan blood? There are 900,000 Pathans or speakers of Pushtu, who certainly claim descent from some Semitic stock. But the Mohammedan countrymen of Taimur and Baber who now speak some form of Hindustani must be twenty times as numerous as their fellow-worshippers of the Afghan type.

The two maps which follow illustrate India's development as a producing Power. In the first we see how wide an expanse of country has been laid down for cotton. Apparently there are few parts of the Peninsula where cotton could not be grown, for the tell-tale colour spreads nearly all over the map. According as the shading is dark or light, we may know that much or little cotton is grown. The darker shades predominate in the Gangetic Doab, the Central Provinces, Berar, and about Dharwar; but evidently a good deal of the staple is turned out in Guzerat, the south-west frontier of Bengal, in several districts of Madras, in Bundelkund, Indore, Assam, and British Burmah. The shades grow lightest in Rajpootana, Sindh, and the Punjab. From the other map we learn that Oudh, Upper Bengal, Bhotan, and British Burmah are rich in forests; that opium abounds in Malwa, Behar, Benares, and the Indus Valley; that indigo flourishes about Patna, Rajshahye, Dacca, and Chota Nagpore; that coal is chiefly found in Burdwan, Beerbhoom, Rewah, and Central India; and that hemp, jute, and other fibres are largely produced along the western coast of India from Bombay to Calicut. The spots indicating iron are few and far between; coffee is almost confined to Mysore; while tea ranges from Chittagong to Luckimpore in the north-east, and from Kemaon to Kangra along the northern frontier. A coloured diagram of India's foreign trade from 1834 to 1867 shows steadily it has risen in value from about fourteen millions to 123 millions in 1865. Specially remarkable was its rise from 35 millions in 1854 to the total just given for 1865, the highest point it has yet reached. The very next year it dropped down to 96 millions, but it is already recovering from the effects of that temporary reaction, impeded as the recovery has been by the commercial crisis of 1867 in our own country. Another table helps us to realise the advance made in the several articles of export. Tea, for instance, rose from £33,979 in 1851 to £301,022 in 1865. In the same interval the coffee exports multiplied eightfold, cotton ten, jute six, wool eight, and hides twofold. Indigo is stationary, silk has nearly doubled itself, seeds have multiplied fivefold, rice fourfold; only in sugar has there been a marked decrease.

The irrigation works already executed or in progress look small on the map in comparison with their actual cost, and the much that has still to be undertaken. It is something to remember however that the Ganges Canal has largely mitigated the effects of the recent drought in the North-West, and that Madras is gradually extending her system of canals and anicuts. The railway and telegraph map is much pleasanter to look at; but we hope that the next ten years will go far to fill in some formidable gaps about Rajpootana, Hydrabad, and the country between Nagpore and Calcutta. With regard to harbours also a great deal remains to do before India's capabilities in that respect shall have been fairly tested.

THE NATIVE ARMY.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—Lord Napier of Magdala, in his parting address at Poona, said that he had nothing to do with the present organisation of the native army, and had done all in his power to raise the status of the officers, &c. In what way his efforts to accomplish such were directed we are not told. Surely not in making their pay equal to the other staff appointments in the army. The commandant of a native corps, with a staff salary of £60 per mensem, is admitted to be well paid; but take all the other officers. The second in command and wing officer get £27 and £24 respectively. Now, why should the second officer in a regiment, generally a field officer, get less staff pay than a sub assistant commissary general, frequently a subaltern? If the staff allowance of a second in command was raised to £40, and that of a wing officer to £30, it would not be out of proportion to the other appointments of the army, considering their usual rank. To expect the native army to be popular with the officers when it is notoriously the worst paid branch of the service, and to get young officers to remain with it, under a prospect of getting a staff salary of £27 per month after twenty years' service, when in any other department they would probably get double that amount, is quite hopeless. Let us, however, put the question of pay aside altogether. Can Lord Napier, or anybody else, say that the present native army is either efficient or popular with the officers? Is it not notorious that all the young officers try to get out of it in every possible way, if they can, by any means, scrape up interest enough to obtain any other appointment, and only those remain with it who cannot get anything else? Such being the case, in what way is the new organisation better than the old, or rather, is it not in many respects infinitely worse?—Yours truly,

MILES.

EDUCATION FOR THE MILLION.—I.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—As the state of my health does not admit of my attending the meeting of the National Education League about to assemble at Birmingham, and as an advocate of the principles on which education for the million in this country should be conducted, I take advantage of your kindness in receiving from me occasionally my observations on similar topics, more especially when connected with India, which will form the subject of another letter, showing how extensively education has for ages been familiar to the natives of that country. I venture to ask you for a place in your widely diffused paper for the following, on the education of the million. In 1838 I visited Ireland for the express purpose of studying the system adopted under Archbishop Whately, supported by the Government, founded on grounds which freely admitted the children of parents of all religious denominations. The most useful of these schools were the Infant Preparatory Schools, originating with Robert Owen, and extensively carried out through the influence and practical organisation of Mr. Wilderspin, who may be considered the founder of that system in England on a more extensive and perfect plan than that which Robert Owen had previously introduced into his factory at Lanark in Scotland.

Infant education commences, in fact, at the mother's breast. There it is taught patience and obedience without severity. It learns to express its little wants of every description, to render itself cleanly, and before it can walk alone it understands what is said to it, and shortly after it begins to think and to reason. The transition from home to an infant school with other companions gradually teaches it to form friendships, and there it soon becomes a rational being.

Mr. Wilderspin's schools were mainly supported by voluntary subscription, the infants of both sexes between three and ten years of age paying one penny a week. Much of the tuition consisted in chanting the arithmetical tables and moral lessons, besides reading and writing. Children who attended the schools regularly up to nine or ten years of age read easy books correctly, wrote a good hand, and were accustomed to write well from dictation on ordinary subjects. They could perform sums in arithmetic, embracing the four first rules, which had been acquired by chanting, and which in after life is never forgotten. The conditions on which children were received involved the necessity of coming with clean hands and face, and their hair neatly combed. They were required also on Monday mornings to bring their penny for the ensuing week's tuition. These conditions involved cleanliness, and regularity, and honesty on the part of both parent and child.

I witnessed this effect everywhere, but more especially at the establishment in Phoenix-park for the compilation of the map of the great trigonometrical survey of Ireland, under the immediate superintendence of Captain (now Sir Thomas) Larcom, R.E., K.C.B., where, through the means of an infant school, he brought about a perfect reform in his large establishment of clerks by providing for the reception of the children of the wives of the men employed by him. Till then they found a return to their homes rendered so uncomfortable by the neglect of their homes by their wives, and the incessant quarrels between their neighbours on account of those of their children, that the men spent their earnings in the public-houses, and were frequently unable to attend to their duties on the following day. This was all changed by the infant-school, and I must say a more happy set of children or a more healthy and cleanly set of women I have never seen.

Leaving the Infant Schools I visited the Normal School in Dublin, established by Archbishop Whately. Grammar schools for the million were established throughout Ireland, free for all denominations of sectarians. Saturday was set apart for religious tuition, and the parents were left to bring up their children in their own belief, whatever it might be.

The masters were appointed from the Normal School at Dublin, and none received permission to conduct the National Schools without undergoing an examination, and bringing with them certificates of character, either from the clergyman of the parish or a magistrate.

Having undergone his examination, if a candidate was found partially deficient in erudition, he was allowed to attend the classes of the Normal School for six months to qualify, when, if approved of, he received a certificate, and returned to the place where he desired to be employed.

During my travels through the greater part of Ireland I found these National Schools widely established and well regulated. There were few, if any, Roman Catholics in almost all, and I learnt that the priests then, as now, were violently opposed to anything like unsectarian education.

If it is desired to establish National Schools, to be supported by Government, Normal Schools in every county should be established under a Board of Education, for although schools, such as many now are, where children of both sexes, from five to fourteen, are educated in the same room and classed indifferently, according to their age, I am led to believe there exists a great want of propriety and morality.

Children of nine or ten years of age may acquire the rudiments of an education which, if they can afford the means and the time, may educate themselves and become fit for entering any situation in public life.

In a future letter I propose to review the universal system of education which has prevailed in India for ages, and to show how much has been done by the British Government for improving the minds of our native subjects by a system of education superior to that of village schools.

THE CRISIS IN RAJPOOTANA.

The Times of India has seen as yet no authoritative recognition, demi-official or otherwise, of the fact there is not in Marwar or Meywar sufficient grain to feed the people until Christmas. Nor have we seen any official acknowledgment of the pressing and immediate necessity of measures being taken to secure or induce the transmission of grain or flour into these land-locked and destitute provinces. If by Christmas the people there should be perishing by thousands, as now they are dying by scores, those who might now save them will not have the damning excuse which in June, 1866, was all that was left to the Bengal authorities—that it was then physically impossible to convey food into doomed Orissa. Their cattle having perished, the people of Rajpootana cannot—even if they or their chiefs possess the pecuniary means—import grain for themselves; but the country is accessible. If we were compelled from any military necessity to march a column to Jodhpoor, to Oodeypoor, and Nusseerabad, our Commissariat would in a week arrange for the feeding of the troops. By camels, mules, brinjaries' bullocks, wholesome grain would speedily be conveyed through the length and breadth of Rajpootana. Therefore there is no doubt the people can be kept alive. We do not now enter into financial or economical considerations, for which there will be time enough. Another point on which it is desirable that attention should at once be fastened is, that on all sides but the west and north-west borders of Rajasthan the khurreef (autumn) crops have been good, and there is grain to spare. The first step, therefore, is to encourage and promote such self-acting trading movements as will enable the plentiful provinces to yield of their abundance for the impoverished districts. The Pioneer, the other day, in trying to make out a case for still holding the Agra durbar, said:—"It is nearly certain that the harvest in Oudh, the lower Doab, the whole of the Benares division, and Behar will be magnificent." So much for the north and north-east borders of the stricken territory. As for the southern borders of it, that is, throughout northern Guzerat, and in several of the native States on our eastern frontier, in fact, on the very routes both to Marwar and Meywar, the yield of grain has been good, and a considerable exportation might take place, much to the benefit of the cultivators, without unduly lessening the food supply in Guzerat. These remarks apply, we believe, with special force to the Baroda territory. If there were a more effective and influential British Resident at that Court a steady exportation northward might already be going on from the Guicowar's borders to the profit of his own people, and the salvation of the destitute regions beyond. But we fear that, in despite of formal "free trade" notifications by the Baroda durbar, there is an effectual embargo laid on the exportation of grain from the fruitful fields of the Guicowar's ryots. It is customary with us in India, and it is in accordance with the methods and genius of our administration, to insist on direct personal responsibility in our rulers. In the present instance four men are distinctly on their trial—on the north of the famine tract, the Viceroy and Sir William Muir; on the south, Sir Seymour Fitzgerald and Colonel Keatinge. These stand out prominently, though they have others to share the strain with them, including many able and experienced political officers, who, like Colonel Daly, now acting at Indore, have great personal influence with the princes whose territories lie around the desolated and grain-destitute region. But on the four prominent men we have named rests the foremost and the final responsibility.

THE RULER OF YARKAND.

The Englishman observes that Mohammed Yakob Khan, Khooshbegi, is evidently one of those men who, in the rude states of Central Asia, force themselves into positions of great influence, and not unfrequently create kingdoms and found dynasties. He was a man who rose to high office under the Khan of Khokand, and he has the credit of being the man who sold to the Russians the site on which they afterwards built Fort Ak Musjid. He seems to have foreseen the fate which has overtaken the Khanates, and to have resolved to turn the general confusion to his own advantage. Sent with an army, over which he speedily gained a singular ascendancy, to enforce the real or pretended claims of the Khokand Amir to the lordship of Kashgar, Yakob Khoosh Begi conquered the refractory city, and at once proclaimed himself independent. He subsequently seized Khoten by an act of more than Oriental treachery, and thus confirmed his authority over the Southern half of the Altay Shehr, or girdle of six cities, bordering the western flank of the great desert of Gobi. Supreme power seems to have developed in the Khoosh Begi some of the highest qualities of an Oriental administrator. He is at once the bravest, most energetic, and wisest man in his dominions. The picture given of him in Dr. Cayley's report shows how busily he was engaged in preparing for that attack from the north which he seems to regard as inevitable. He has taken, too, a title which more than anything else will perhaps show his determination to resist to the death if attacked. Atalik Ghazee, not Ataligh Ghazee, means the tutor, guide, or guardian, of cres-centaders—that is, of those who devote their lives for the faith, or who have sworn to fight to the death against the infidel in the cause of Islam. It is clearly to our interest, both politically and commercially, that free and unrestricted intercourse should obtain between India and the dominions of the Atalik Gazee, and hence we welcome anything which, like Mr. Shaw's journey, tends to bring such a result about.

INDIAN COAL.—The Superintendent of the Geological Survey enables us to estimate the supply and the consumption of coal in India during 1868 and the ten previous years. The figures are these, in maunds of 80 lbs. :—

	Coal raised in all India.	Coal raised in Bengal.	Coal imported into Calcutta.	Total con- sumption in Bengal.
1858 ...	61,62,319 ...	61,62,928 ...	— ...	—
1859 ...	99,61,928 ...	99,61,928 ...	12,29,160 ...	1,11,91,088
1860 ...	1,00,88,113 ...	1,00,88,113 ...	4,96,585 ...	1,05,84,698
1861 ...	78,06,252 ...	77,85,085 ...	12,85,203 ...	90,70,288
1862 ...	86,43,843 ...	86,30,813 ...	6,76,687 ...	93,07,530
1863 ...	95,12,174 ...	95,04,975 ...	10,36,107 ...	1,05,41,382
1864 ...	90,46,147 ...	90,32,405 ...	18,18,132 ...	1,08,50,537
1865 ...	88,37,953 ...	88,10,425 ...	16,16,113 ...	1,04,26,568
1866 ...	1,08,34,551 ...	1,07,90,035 ...	9,14,127 ...	1,17,04,462
1867 ...	1,18,61,031 ...	1,18,47,178 ...	11,46,734 ...	1,29,93,972
1868 ...	1,35,62,274 ...	1,34,65,829 ...	19,28,591 ...	1,53,91,420

This information is very complete. Looking at it in tons the 479,233 tons raised in 1867 rose to 547,971 in 1868, and almost the whole was from the Ranceungee field. One-half of the supply was consumed by the East Indian Railway. For several years there was a decrease in the demand for coal for other than railway purposes, but in 1867 and 1868 the tide turned. Still the consumption of coal by other than railways in 1868 was not so great as in 1863; it was 7,610,070 maunds, against 7,667,258. The Ranceungee coal was used for locomotives as far as Umballa, and on the completion of the Delhi Railway it will doubtless compete with English coal even at such a distance as Lahore and Mooltan. On the opening of the Chord Line the East Indian Railway will obtain a supply for its upper sections from Kurhurbalee at a much cheaper rate than at present. Meanwhile the development of the Ranceungee field goes on briskly. There were last year 61 engines of 867-horse power in all, against 28 engines of 490-horse power in 1860. The Bengal Coal Company turns out half the whole demand, or more than six millions of maunds, Gobind Pandit about 2½, the Beerbhoom Company 1½, the Equitable Company rather more than 1, and the East Indian Coal Company 830,605 maunds. We regret to see that the bituminous coal of Assam, the finest in India, has been little used, owing to the difficulties of communication with the Brahmapootra. —Friend of India.

THE THEISTIC CHURCH OF INDIA.—The members of the Brahmo Somaj, or, as they are beginning to delight to call themselves, the Theistic Church of India, have, after an existence of nearly forty years, come to the conclusion that it is necessary, for the well-being of the sect, that each Somaj should partake, as largely as possible, of the nature of "a congregation in the strict sense of the term." The need is thus expressed in the organ of the sect:—There is nothing like a congregation in any of the numerous Brahmo Somajes of India. The worshippers may be numerous and perhaps regular in their attendance, but there is wanting among them organised union—that spiritual fellowship which constitutes a congregation in the strict sense of the term. The want here expressed has been generally felt. In Calcutta the leader of the Brahmos, Baboo Keshub Chender Sen, has determined to remedy what he feels to be a source of weakness and, perhaps, division to his followers. For this purpose he has built in Muchoon Bazaar-road a temple for the Somaj, where for the future services will be held regularly. The building fund already exceeds Rs. 9,000. The temple will be opened tomorrow, when the following programme will be carried out :—

Hymns ...	...	From 6½ A.M. to 7 A.M.
Morning prayer ...	...	" 7 " " 10 "
Prayer and meditation ...	...	" 12 P.M. " 1 P.M.
Readings ...	...	" 1 " " 2 "
Conversation ...	...	" 2 " " 4 "
Hymns ...	...	" 5 " " 7 "
Evening prayer ...	...	" 7 " " 10 "

"Ladies anxious to attend service regularly will," we are told, "on application to the minister be furnished with cards of admission to be shown by their attendants at the foot of the staircase, and will be provided with seats in the ladies' gallery." It is strange that the new sect should have adopted the custom of the segregation of the sexes just at the time when the Armenians are beginning to relax their rules in this respect. The northern gallery will be set apart for the choir. The temple boasts a splendid harmonium. We may expect to see the example set by Calcutta followed by the many groups of Brahmos scattered throughout Lower Bengal. The opening of the new temple is noteworthy as an attempt to give the sect the status and dignity of a native church. It will form a turning point in the history of the Brahmos, a point from which their divergence from Hindooism must become more and more marked. —Englishman.

THE FAMINE.

Rain has at last fallen throughout the whole of the North-Western Provinces, Meerut and Rohilkund included. A fortnight ago the Government of the North-West was able to announce that a fine khurreef (autumn) harvest might now be regarded as secure throughout the Benares and Allahabad divisions, and that elsewhere the crops would be secured by a fortnight's showery weather—which they have happily got. But in Rohilkund the rice crop must be much smaller and poorer than usual, owing to the lateness of the monsoon. At the beginning of the present month the earlier kinds of rice were affording some relief to the agricultural population; but the market had not been perceptibly relieved. On the contrary, the average of prices in the North-Western Provinces has advanced. The strain in the worst districts on the relief works and poor-houses continues very severe. The agricultural classes have resumed their labours, yet there is no diminution in the number of applicants for relief. On the Rohilkund Ganges Canal works, 10,000 were employed; in Bijnour, 11,950; in Lullutpore, 6,890; and in Jhansie, 7,000. The state of Ajmere was represented on August 31 as deplorable, in consequence of the excessive dearth, wheat selling at about 4½ seers for the rupee. Cholera continues epidemic in some of the eastern districts; but it has quite disappeared from Allahabad, and the Western Provinces still enjoy immunity from it in an epidemic form.

With regard to Lower Bengal the crops are pronounced above the average in all except a few districts; the early rice crop, upon which many districts mainly depend, was considered secure, and the latter crop would also be safe after a few more showers. In some cases the crops had suffered from exceptional causes—the "Shunka-pooka beetle," for instance, had done a good deal of injury to the rice in Baraset. The indigo out-turn is still said to be indifferent.

Accounts from the Punjab are for the most part similarly favourable. We hear from the Derajat district that owing to the late abundant rains the harvest is expected to be more plentiful than it has been for years. Moreover, the rain has been very general, and has saved the country. From Shikarpore in Scinde to Jhelum, and as far east as Jeypore, heavy rain is reported, amply sufficient for the present harvest. Although prices may not fall at once, yet there is no longer reason to fear famine.

From Rajpootana, on the other hand, Colonel Keatinge telegraphs "present distress terrible." The black cloud of despair still hangs over that 100,000 square miles of territory, and is rapidly thickening. The mainstay of the people on both sides of the Aravulli Hills has been their cattle. Their vast herds of two years ago are now represented by a miserable remnant far from sufficient to plough the small breadth sown with grain during the present monsoon. The rest have perished, or been sold during the migrations of the people during the last twelve months, out of and back again to Marwar and Meywar. The late and partial rain of the last fortnight will keep that remnant of cattle alive. It will also produce herbs and vegetables meet for the food of man, as well as many succulent plants very ill-suited to the present condition of the half-famished and disease-stricken people. But the rain cannot now enable the cultivators to raise more than a few patches of cereals. There will be no khurreef (autumn) crop of grain. Grain must be imported, and that promptly and extensively, if even a remnant of the people is to be saved. It is no time to count the cost, when human beings are dying by hundreds; and four men are distinctly on their trial—on the north of the famine tract, the Viceroy and Sir William Muir, on the south, Sir Seymour Fitzgerald and Colonel Keatinge. These stand out, though they have others to share the strain with them, including many able and experienced political officers, who, like Colonel Daly, now acting at Indore, have great personal influence with the princes whose territories lie around the desolated and grain-destitute region. But on the four prominent men we have named rests the foremost and the final responsibility.

STATION TALK.

HYDERABAD, Sept. 1.—It is with infinite regret that I write to say that for nearly three weeks the Berars have been without rain. In June and July the rain gauge was fully thirteen inches, but August has been a most unusually dry month. Dr. Ball, of the Madras Army, has written an admirable report on the climate of the Nizam's country. His statistics have been collected from official records and registers. His theory is that for the last thirteen years the rainfall in the Deccan has been diminishing, and he is corroborated by the complaints which year by year the natives make of the scantiness of the monsoons. The Contingent has had several officers lately appointed from the Queen's regiments as probationers for the Staff Corps. All had better be up in their drill, for the Brigade-General is a smart disciplinarian, and has lately suspended from the command of his corps a gallant officer who has seen service, and who is decidedly popular both with Europeans and natives.—Englishman Correspondent.

SIMLA, Aug. 31.—The event of the week has been the ball given by the army at Simla to Lady Mayo—I say advisedly the event, because it has doubtless excited most interest in hundreds of breasts, fair or otherwise. There were no external illuminations as at the Rajah of Jeypore's ball. A detachment of Goorkhas, with the band of H.M.'s 41st Regiment, formed the guard of honour. His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief was received at a quarter to ten o'clock with military honours, and at ten precisely Lord and Lady Mayo were received and conducted to their seats on the raised dais at the stage end of the room. The second room was not much altered since the Jeypore ball; it was entirely, walls and ceiling, laid with white and blue, corniced, or, rather, held down, by white cloudy muslin, looped up with blue and silver ropes; while, at the end of the room, one looked out on a veritable snow scene—of young deodars, their feathery branches weighed down by masses of half-melted snow, which glittered as if studded with a thousand gems; but—oh, charming incongruity!—we saw a canary hatching her eggs in a tiny nest, placed in the midst of a moss-blue diaphanous ice!—Mofussilite, Sept. 4.

LUCKNOW, Sept. 7.—The Chief Commissioner, it is rumoured, purposes residing a couple of months at this station, but why or wherefore no one yet knows. The weather is not adapted to shooting or hunting, nor is it the usual inspecting season. Perhaps he desires a change of air for the benefit of the health of himself and family. The station continues remarkably healthy this year. Major Boulclerson, our settlement officer, intends going home on furlough for two years. He has applied for it, but it has not yet been sanctioned. The Deputy Commissioner, Mr. Wood, will go to the hills, I believe, as soon as he is relieved by Mr. Gibson. Mr. Scott, Executive Engineer of the Seetapore Division, came in on Friday last, the 3rd inst., and inspected all the public buildings the same day. Since my last we have had two showers, one fell on the night of Friday, the 3rd current, and the other last night. Our prospects are now brightening up. The price of cereals has fallen a little.

ALLAHABAD, Sept. 8.—The weather report I send you to-day quite justifies my saying that we may set our minds at rest as regards the crops. Famine or even scarcity need no longer be apprehended, and fears of the approach of grim starvation may be banished at least for a year. A plentiful harvest with a bracing cold weather may be looked for with confidence, and prophets had better begin to calculate again and pitch upon another year than the present or the next for the year of famine and pestilence and of the beginning of the end. From the fact that I have not heard of any cases of cholera having occurred during the last week, I may safely infer that the station and the city are free from it. The troops are also healthy now, but are not likely to return to the station soon. Above all, those pests of mankind as also of beasts—the flies—have nearly vanished. The Cholera Committee (as I will call it for brevity sake) has held three or four meetings, in which I am told some military men, one or two Civil servants and the doctors of the station, were examined. Native doctors and such Government officials as are supposed to be in a position to give the information the Committee seeks have been summoned. On the whole, the inquiry promises to be as searching as an official committee, formed of Government officials with Government officials to examine, can be expected to turn out. It appears at present that only those in authority here, and consequently those whose past action is under inquiry, will be examined, besides medical men. Need I point out that the Committee will never be able to arrive at the truth of the affair if they continue their inquiries to officers of Government? Dr. Cunningham left this for Cawnpore on Monday, not before firing off another eighty odd questions, this time addressed to Civil surgeons. What he did whilst here I have not been able to find out. I know however that he was not idle; he inspected all that needed inspection. He stays a week at Cawnpore, and then goes on to Lucknow. Mr. Wagentrieber, the translator of vernacular newspapers, now at Delhi, has been ordered to reside at Allahabad. The Prince of Nepal, who has been allowed a respite of fifteen days, left this, with his pleader, Mr. Dillon, last night for Nynce Tal, with the object of pleading his cause in person before the Lieutenant Governor, and of inducing his Honour to exercise his prerogative and remit the sentence passed upon him by the Judge of Benares, and confirmed the other day by the High Court. The "elder" and the "younger" Rance (the latter is the victim in the case, and is, nevertheless, more anxious than anybody else to see the Prince safe out of the scrape) have gone with him. Mr. Eede, the Deputy Accountant-General of these provinces, has been obliged, on account of ill-health, to leave this for Simla. Mr. Cowie, Assistant Accountant-General, will perform Mr. Eede's duties during his absence, or till another man is sent up from Calcutta.—Delhi Gazette Correspondent.

Miscellaneous.

CANNIBALISM.—We are told that a famine-stricken Chumar was caught in the suburbs of the city in his attempt to devour an infant. It has not been ascertained whether the cravings of hunger or his alleged insanity led him to attempt this act of cannibalism.—Lucknow Times.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.—Major C. Pollard, chief engineer Central Provinces, has been transferred to the Punjab. It is very probable that Colonel Haig, chief engineer Godavery Navigation Works, will succeed Major Pollard.—Central India Times.

THE SUTLEJ BATTLE-FIELDS.—Sanction has been given to the erection of a monument on each of the Sutlej battle-fields. We owe thus much to the memory of our brave countrymen not less than to the historical fame of the Punjab. It is to be hoped that these monuments will be at least tasteful in design and permanent in structure.—Indian Public Opinion.

CENTRAL INDIA.—A letter from Morar, dated the 10th September, says:—"Certain changes are rumoured amongst the officials in Central India. It is said that we are to lose General Chamberlain almost immediately, as Colonel Hutchinson is to resume his appointment as Political Agent at Gwalior. Most of the troops are still out in camp, and are in improved health and spirits."

SUIT FOR LIBEL.—We are given to understand that the Sanitary Commissioner of the Punjab, Dr. De Renzy, has instituted, or is about to institute, a suit against Indian Public Opinion for libel, said to be contained in an article on the sanitation of Umritsur in the issue of the 17th of August. Damages are to be laid at 10,000 rupees; Mr. Plowden and Mr. Reynolds, of Lahore, are retained.

FLOW OF BULLION INTO INDIA.—Some of our native contemporaries seem still under the impression that England is constantly draining India of its precious metals. We commend to their notice the facts and figures of the case as stated authoritatively in the House of Commons in the late debate on Indian finances. It appears that since the year 1800 the excess of bullion imported into India over that exported from it amounts to no less than £311,131,300, of which no less than £262,567,643 has been coined into rupees in the Mints of Calcutta, Madras, and Bombay.—Pioneer.

RAILWAYS.—A Lucknow correspondent states that Government has taken over the construction of the unfinished works of the Oude and Rohilkund Railway, with a view to expediting their completion. The weather at Lucknow was oppressively hot, but the cultivators of that district considered there had been rain enough for the crops.—Mofussilite.—There is every reason to believe that the railway from Chanda to the nearest point on the G.I.P. line will very soon be set on foot, as we understand that arrangements for the organisation of a powerful staff of experienced engineers are now on the tapis.—Central India Times.

PORT CANNING COMPANY.—We observe that notice has been given that the farming leases granted to the Port Canning Company (Limited), on the 31st of December, 1867, authorising them to cut timber and to collect honey, gum, or other forest produce in the ungranted portion of the Soonderbunds, have been cancelled from the 8th of September, 1869, and that the right of the company to realise forest dues of any description whatever, or to grant "licences" to collect timber, charcoal, shells, rattan, null, thatching leaves, gab, wax, honey, or any other description of forest produce, has ceased from that day.—Indian Daily News.

THE "THUNDER."—The interest occasioned by the reported existence of the Thunder seems not to have abated. The official statements made by the marine authorities are regarded as belonging to the order of stories that should be told "to the marines." Bankshall however is evidently trying to win a reputation, as one expedition has been sent down this week, and another has either gone or is about to proceed in the search. But whether it is really going in search of the Thunder or to look after the other expedition we are unable to say. We believe some straw, or something of the kind, has been washed on one of the islands near Channel Creek, and the authorities are after it to show their vigilance.—Indian Daily News.

UNEMPLOYED FIELD OFFICERS.—The Friend "understands that Colonel Broome has prepared a reply to General Hannington's estimate of the very serious cost of giving a retiring bonus to field officers. The truth, we believe, to be that each officer able, able and conscientious, was, like most philosophers, right in what he affirmed and wrong in what he denied. Each looked at his one side of the shield with this result, that Colonel Broome made the case worse for Government, and General Hannington made it better than it really was; but nothing will be done. Every day the mud he grows worse, and our military expenditure greater. For the future would it not be well at once to put all officers entering the Indian service in a general list and to give promotion only by seniority as before?"

ALI RAIPORE.—Lord Mayo has been reading backward chiefs a lesson. The Chief of Ali Raipore, a small State in Central India, being an incorrigible tyrant, and having neglected warning and advice, has been deposed and pensioned out of his own revenues; the Minister who has led him on in his course of anarchy and oppression has also been banished the State; and an energetic deputy-magistrate, a Mussulman, has been appointed to conduct affairs. Great rejoicing has followed this humane act of the Viceroy's; even the members of the Chief's own household express gratification thereat. The deposed Maharajah's younger brother will be associated with the Agent in managing the State, with a view to making him the ruler when mis-rule shall have been uprooted, law established, and prosperity wooed back.

THE EXPLOSION ON BOARD THE "INDIA."—The gunpowder explosion on board the India, reported in our issue of the 1st instant, has, as was feared, resulted in the death of Marmaduke Chapman, the third mate of the ship, who was so fearfully wounded by the explosion. It appears that his sufferings, which are reported to have been very great, came to an end on Tuesday evening. He was much respected on board, and is said to have been a very promising young officer. He was about to return home by way of Jamaica. The other sufferers are understood to be recovering. Some investigation should certainly be made into the circumstance that caused gunpowder to be mistaken for charcoal—surely the store room for the one would hardly be left open to form a depot for such a commodity as the other.—Englishman, Sept. 9.

NATIVE CHRISTIAN LITERATURE.—Sir William Muir, being "very desirous of encouraging the growth of a standard Christian literature in Urdu and Hindi," has offered in his private capacity two prizes, of 1,000 rupees and 500 rupees, for the best Christian treatises which come up to the standard of the former notification in respect of literary merit. The works are to be Catholic in their contents. Such periods in the history of Christianity as the Reformation in the sixteenth century, or its extension among heathen nations, are suggested. The history of the Church in Madagascar and the biography of leading men are also mentioned as fitting subjects. The books are to be given in before the end of 1871. Sir W. Muir is careful to repeat that he makes this offer in his private capacity. The memorandum is signed by Mr. Kempson and addressed to the heads of missionary institutions in the N.W.P.—Friend of India.

UMRITSUR.—It would appear that the energetic measures recently adopted to cleanse the town of Umrtsur are likely to be successful in banishing cholera altogether. It is true there was an increase on the 30th of August, when the report exhibited forty-two cholera deaths, with eight from other causes, but on the 31st the return showed only ten, with eleven deaths from fever and three from other causes. Should this continue for a few days we may soon hope to hear of the town being altogether free from the scourge that has been afflicting it for more than two months. The diminution in the cholera deaths at Umrtsur continues steady. Notwithstanding the great heat on the 1st September it was again only ten, on the 2nd six, and on the 3rd seven, with an average of about eighteen casualties from other causes, the greatest number being twenty-one on the 3rd September.—There was a slight increase in the cholera deaths at Umrtsur on the 4th September, being eight, with twenty-four casualties from other causes. On Sunday, the 5th, cholera carried off seven victims, fever eleven, and other causes nine, so that we may really look on the scourge as dying out.—Delhi Gazette.

THE TRADE OF THE PUNJAB.—The value of the trade of the Punjab, both external and internal, during the months of October, November, and December, 1868, as registered, was 429 lakhs. In the same period of 1867 it amounted to 645 lakhs. Strange to say, the value of the trade which crossed over the bridges in 1868 was considerably larger than that of 1867, being put down at 289 lakhs against 179½ lakhs, under the same instructions and under the same system of registration. The Secretary to the Financial Commissioner thinks the explanation of the diminished trade of 1868 is due partly to famine and to the great loss of cattle which would otherwise have been used for the transport of goods. But this explanation militates against the fact that the trade over the bridges was a third more in 1868 than in 1867. The other explanation suggested is, we think, much more probable, viz., that the difference is owing to a faulty system of calculating the value of the goods. For instance, the decrease in value of the external trade is given as a little over one-fourth, the decrease in quantity being nine-tenths! In the internal trade returns the value has fallen from 428 to 278 lakhs, while the quantity has fallen from 30 lakhs of maunds to 25 lakhs only.—Pioneer.

MILITARY.—The 58th Regiment is reported to have lost upwards of one hundred lives by the epidemic of cholera with which it has been so long afflicted. Captain Baird, of the 88th Regiment, is about to retire from the service by the sale of his commission, and Lieutenant Bowen, of the same corps, obtains the step.—Delhi Gazette.—Colonel Calthorpe, 5th Dragoon Guards, the author of "Letters from Headquarters" during the Crimean war, is said to be about to sell out, and to be succeeded by Major Swinfern.—We regret to learn that Captain Plowden has been forced to come into Jubbulpore from Dumoh, on account of serious illness in his family.—Jubbulpore Chronicle.—Captain H. Stewart, 37th Foot, has been appointed aide-de-camp to Major-General Beatson, commanding the Sirhind Division.—A list of the prizes to be awarded at the Soldiers' Industrial Exhibition at Agra in December next has been published. The prizes are on a most liberal scale, their aggregate value being upwards of Rs. 10,000. There is scarcely a branch of industry for excellence in which rewards are not offered, and we are glad to see that the handiwork of soldiers' wives and children has not been forgotten.—There is a rumour at Simla, which the Pioneer considers not in itself improbable, that Lord Mayo has written to her Majesty's Government to request that Sir William Mansfield may be continued in the Command-in-Chief for another year, to assist the Governor-General in carrying out the reductions in military expenditure so vehemently insisted upon by the Home India-office.

THE AMEER'S VICTORY IN TURKISTAN.—The defeat of Sirdar Ishak Khan by General Daood Shah, which we announced in our issue of last Wednesday, took place on the 1st of August, not on the 31st of July, as we then stated. It appears to have been at once more decisive and more urgently needed than we formerly believed. Sirdar Ishak Khan's successes had been by no means "small." He had taken Akcheh with its civil and military governors, and the whole garrison had gone over to him. Indeed, wherever he appeared the Turkistan troops at once deserted to him. His march to Balkh was a triumphant progress, and if Daood Shah's arrival had been one day later perhaps the whole of Turkistan would have had to be reconquered by the Ameer. As it was, however, Ishak Khan's success, which sprang like a mushroom, was cut down as easily. On the 30th Daood Shah reached Tuktapool with four regiments, numbering perhaps 2,400 men, and encamped at Cheyl Guzzie, where he was joined by the Governor of Turkistan, Naib Mahomed Alum Khan, with eight guns and ammunition. The Sirdar Ishak Khan was at Balkh with only two guns, but with thirty companies of infantry (Jezaichees) and at least 8,000 cavalry of sorts. The 31st was employed on both sides in preparing for the engagement. On the 1st the Sirdar moved out from Balkh and began the attack. For two hours the battle was rather obstinately disputed, but at that time Ishak Khan's cavalry wavered, turned, and finally not only fled but dispersed, although their loss had not been severe. Of Ishak Khan's infantry, on the other hand, nearly all who were not killed were taken prisoners. The Sirdar, however, himself managed to escape; and though parties were out in all directions, and a great reward was offered for his capture, no reliable intelligence as to the direction of his flight had been received.—Pioneer, Sept. 6.

FISHERIES OF INDIA.

The Government of India recently commissioned Dr. Francis Day, of the Madras medical service, who has for many years given his attention to the special study of Indian fish, to inquire and report on the supply of fish in the waters of India. The first reports which he has presented relate to the Cauvery and Coleroon rivers to the south of Madras, and the Kistna and Godavery to the north. It appears that the rivers of the Madras presidency can boast of many species of fish. The non-migratory class are chiefly small in size. The habits of some may seem strange to us. There are fish which, as the tanks dry up, dive down into the mud, and there remain until the return of the rains. The cowu are celebrated for climbing trees; they are esteemed for eating, and from their great vitality out of water are carried alive to distant markets and killed as required. The walking fish grows to three or even four feet in length. Fish able to live a long time out of water, and travel some distance over moist pieces of land, abound in India. In China the fishermen are said to take them alive to market, and cut off slices as required for sale, the value being greatest so long as the fish retains life. Among the migratory fish which ascend rivers to deposit their ova the mullets are excellent as food; but the most valuable is the sable fish, which indeed is greatly esteemed. Its numerous sharp V-shaped bones make it somewhat dangerous to eat, but by proper carving this may be corrected; it is said to have been an indispensable requisite that the aide-de-camp to the general commanding the southern division should be able to carve a sable fish, but now there is no necessity for this accomplishment, as the anicuts have entirely prevented their ascending the Coleroon as far Trichinopoly. Dr. Day observes that the cultivation of fresh-water fish is especially important in India, where many of the natives, rejecting the flesh of domestic animals, will still consume fish. In fact, fish forms a considerable portion of the staple food of some classes of the population, and in years of scarcity may play an important part. Fish are adorned by pious Hindus in some parts of Hindustan, as they are held typical of Vishnu, who in that form is considered to have rescued the Vedas from the waters of a flood which covered the earth. On the death of one of the Hindu Rajahs of Cochin or Travancore catechising fish is prohibited for three days, for fear his highness's spirit may have gone into one of their bodies. To this day the Rajpoots are said to have a fish carried before their most illustrious chieftain when setting out on an important expedition. Certain Hindu ceremonies appear to be occasionally gone through with reference to the fisheries. All wholesome fish meet with a ready sale. The fish of India, however, have many enemies. Not to speak of crocodiles and vermin of various kinds, it appears that where fisheries are not let to a contractor an indiscriminate destruction of young fish goes on. Millions of fry perish. Dr. Day found it useless to point out to the natives that if the fry were destroyed they could not subsequently obtain large fish; the only answer was that if they did not kill them some one else would, and they liked little fish. The fishing, is conducted in all conceivable ways; besides weirs, traps, baskets, nets, there is hand fishing in the thick black mud, and in some places spearing fish is not an uncommon method. Torch or night lights are used as a mode of decoy in various ways in different places; in the Travancore hills hundreds on hundreds of large carp are killed by striking them at night with knives as they rise to a torch held close to the surface of the water. Shooting with bows and arrows is practised in Malabar, and many fine fish are so obtained. Poisoning streams is also resorted to, drying the fish thus secured and sending them to distant markets. In a resolution adopted in Council in March last the Government of India, having considered Dr. Day's first reports, sums up the opinions at which they have arrived by saying:—"The utilisation to the utmost of the fisheries of the rivers and the coasts as sources of food to the population; the adoption of rules to prevent injurious over-fishing; the removal of obstacles to the free reproduction of fish in the rivers; the regulation of the fishing in Government canals and other waters;

the facilitating of the salting and curing of the fish, and of the extraction of fish oil and isinglass, are, with other matters, of great public importance, and demand the attention of the Government as being likely, under suitable arrangements, to add largely to the resources both of the people and the State."

STATION TALK.

SECUNDERABAD, August 28.—You will be sorry to learn that although we have had a little abatement since I last wrote, there is still a large per-centage of deaths amongst the inhabitants of the surrounding districts, more particularly amongst the lower ill-fed order of natives. The Hindoos held a grand festival, at which a thousand sheep and a quantity of buffaloes were sacrificed to propitiate the gods who have so ruthlessly torn from their midst their nearest and dearest relatives, whole families being swept away in the few short hours of a night. We have had a copious down-pour of rain during the past week, and it is expected that it will have the effect of clearing an atmosphere which is said to be surcharged with the malarious fluid. Apothecary Pearl, an old and respected Government servant, was attacked with cholera on the evening of the 13th, and succumbed after a few hours' illness; he was buried with military honours on the following day. A young teacher in one of the Chudderghaut schools shot himself accidentally whilst looking after flying foxes; death was almost instantaneous. Mr. Laver, the Government reviewer of small arms, left this place some two months ago for Kamptee. It appears that he was experimentalising with his revolver at the bungalow where he was stopping, when it went off, accidentally injuring two of his fingers, and, as ultimately turned out, wounding a native.—Bangalore Spectator Correspondent.

Miscellaneous.

A TRANSFORMATION.—A Madras contemporary states that Mr. William Hobart Kerr, late of the Madras Civil Service, who retired on an invalid pension in 1867, while commissioner of Coorg, is about to return to that presidency in the capacity of a Jesuit missionary. Mr. Kerr is the eldest son of Lord Henry Kerr, by the daughter of the Hon. General Sir Alexander Hope, G.C.B., and is a cousin of the present Marquis of Lothian. Lord Henry Kerr, while rector of Dettingham, Devon, went over to the Church of Rome.

MILITARY.—The Commander-in-Chief of the Madras Army was expected to return to the Presidency from Coonoor on the 8th September.—We regret to learn that Lieutenant S. M. Spry, of H.M.'s Cossack, died at Madras on the 2nd September, of acute dysentery. The deceased officer was only twenty-eight years of age. He was buried on the 3rd, with military honours.—The order has now been issued for the 16th Lancers at Bangalore to relieve the 18th Hussars at Secunderabad, the Hussars taking the place of the Lancers at Bangalore.

THE SOCIETY FOR THE PROPAGATION OF THE GOSPEL IN SOUTHERN INDIA.—The Rev. Mr. Symonds, the able local Secretary of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, is now engaged on a lengthy tour through the Society's field of operations in Southern India. Mr. Symonds is a practical, clear-headed and shrewd man, and his tour should result in the society that he represents being placed in possession of information, that it evidently does not now possess, of the chief causes that render proselytising success almost impossible in certain localities. The stony nature of the soil has been freely abused hitherto, and insufficient allowance has been made for the mental and physical feebleness of some of the husbandmen.—Madras Mail.

CURIOUS CEREMONIES.—In Dr. Day's report to the Madras Government on the Indian river fisheries, he states that certain Hindu ceremonies appear to be yearly, or oftener, gone through with respect to the fisheries. Not far from the bungalow near the Lower Coleroon Anicut stands a colossal elephant, about thirty-six feet high, fully caparisoned, and with several large figures around it. Beyond this again, and covered by the sacred peepul tree, are two small temples at right angles to one another, in one of which a sacrificial light is constantly, if not invariably, burning before the figure of an idol. Inside this little temple Surgeon Day saw three sacrificial knives, and the snout of saw-fish, on which the god is said to ride. Passing near this place, late one evening, he heard a tinkling of bells, and going quietly up perceived that they were about to sacrifice a black goat. A native was vainly trying to induce it to proceed towards a large solid block of stone; force was then resorted to, and the victim's head placed over the block, when down fell the executioner's sickle-shaped sword. The blood of the sacrifice was offered to the idol, the executioner received the head, the priest four annas, and the worshippers, who were fishermen, bore away the body. On questioning them they informed Surgeon Day that every fortnight the contractor who farms the fishery sacrificed a black goat for the purpose of propitiating the idol, and getting him to let the freshes come down to increase his captures of fish. The devotees ate the body of the victim. In the Godavery, at Cocanada, there is a yearly ceremony, when the fishermen go in a body to the river's banks, and there boil milk and rice together; they then worship, and end by a feast off some goats killed for the occasion.

CIVIL.—It is stated on excellent authority that the Hon. Mr. Justice Holloway, who is now at home on furlough, is running the Hon. R. S. Ellis, C.B., and Mr. J. D. Sim, C.S.I., very close for the seat in Council that will become vacant on the retirement in December next of the Hon. "I Concur" Philips, the senior member. Mr. Holloway is more at home on the bench than he would be in the calm atmosphere of the Council Chamber, and it is quite probable that his eminent fitness for the Chief Justiceship will be suitably recognised when Sir Colley Scotland resigns. Sir Adam Bittlestone resigns the Puisne Judgeship next year, and, it is possible, will be succeeded by Mr. Standish O'Grady, the well-known commentator on Hindoo Law. It is understood that the Hon. J. B. Norton, the Advocate General, will also bid farewell to India next year. As a matter of course he will be succeeded by Mr. J. D. Mayne.—Mr. Reade has prevailed upon his old schoolfellow, Lord Napier, to allow him to remain in South Arcot until his retirement on an annuity, which will be unavoidable in about two years. As a collector Mr. Reade is unique, and we congratulate the Trichinopoly district on its escape. Mr. Banbury will remain in the latter district until early in the year, when it is understood he will be appointed to act as Director of Revenue Settlement for Mr. Robert Master, who will go home on furlough.—Madras Mail.—The Bangalore Herald says it is rumoured, with what degree of truth it cannot say, that Captain Tredway Clarke, at present Secretary to the Commissioner, will succeed Colonel Clarke as Inam Commissioner of Mysore. Mr. Ricketts, it is also said, will take Colonel Puckle's place as acting Deputy Superintendent of Bangalore, the latter gentleman going on one furlough.

THE HON. T. CLARKE.—The steamer which leaves Madras this day for Suez will bear away from these shores one of the most able, experienced, and upright members of the Civil Service. The Hon. T. Clarke has just closed a long and honourable career in this country, extending over a period of thirty-five years, during which he has only once visited his native country. There are few parts of this presidency with which he is not personally familiar. He was at different times stationed at Trichinopoly, Madura, Tinnevely, and Tanjore. He was appointed collector of Malabar immediately after the murder of Mr. Conolly, and it is doubtless to his wisdom and firmness that we are indebted for the pacification of the turbulent Moplahs of that province. He was employed in various important duties in Madras for nine of the earlier years of his service, and he returned to this metropolis on being appointed member of the Board of Revenue, on the 28th February, 1860. Since then special investigations regarding the salt duties have led to his visiting several parts of the Northern Circars, as well as the neighbourhood of Cuddalore. At the time of the expected famine in the Cuddapah District in 1868 he was requested to report the result of his personal inquiries and observations in those unhealthy regions, in unison with the civil officers of the district. But exposure in the months of May and June to a climate famed even in Southern India for its fiery destructiveness is too severe a test for the European constitution. The pressure of those terrible weeks which proved fatal to another hard-working and popular member of the Civil Service, Mr. F. B. Molony, then collector of Cuddapah, has, we regret to say, severely shaken Mr. Clarke's health. We trust that the complete change afforded by English air will thoroughly reinvigorate him.—Madras Times, Sept. 3.

STATION TALK.

MALWA, Sept. 2.—About ten days back cholera broke out amongst the families of the European troops at Neemuch, which rendered it necessary to remove them some distance from camp, and place them under canvas. Camping out at this season is neither safe nor pleasant; but when the alternative is a question of cholera or jungle fever, no doubt the medicos consider it best to risk the lesser evil of the two; under any circumstances, it is to be hoped the change will prove beneficial. At Sindiah's request an opium scale has lately been established at Oojein, in the hope that it will attract the opium sowcars to settle there, and thus tend to revive the trade of that once famous city, now reduced to a mere shadow of its former splendour and importance. At present its numerous palaces and temples are in ruins, the habitation of bats and various noxious reptiles. Its streets, once busy with the hum of human beings, can only be traced by long lines of dilapidated mud or brick walls, where the pariah dog and jackal make night hideous with their unearthly yells. As Oojein, however, has a reputation for sanctity in the eyes of all orthodox Hindoos, it may yet attain some portion of its former prosperity; but as it lies somewhat off the direct route to Bombay, the merchants are put to some inconvenience in taking their chests to be weighed there. Now that the Baroda-Neemuch line of Railway and Colonel Keatinge's pet scheme have been shelved for the present, Government could not do better than commence operations on the proposed line from "Khundwah via Ludore," as it would be the means of giving employment to hundreds of destitute people. In a case like the present it will not do to sit down complacently and study political economy, or how to make Budget Estimates balance with current expenditure at the close of the financial year, while the people are perishing for want of food. The line under notice will pass through a richly cultivated and populous province, where, in addition to most of the opium, cotton will be largely exported. At present, owing to the expense of carriage, very little reaches Bombay via Kundwah. The Sowcars prefer forwarding it to Broach on camels, where it is mixed with Goozerat cotton and sold as such. The monsoon crops in Malwa, I am happy to say, may now be considered safe, as the rain has been general throughout the province.

KURRACHEE, Sept. 2.—The event of the week is a case which has excited no little indignation and loathing throughout the length and breadth of Sind. The particulars are briefly these. On Friday night, the 29th ultimo, a native girl, about eleven years old, was taken to the bungalow of Captain W. A. Gillespie, first-class deputy collector and magistrate—for what purpose it is scarcely necessary to say. The child was soon after taken to her home in a most pitiable state. The following day she grew worse, and on Sunday morning at about three o'clock she was a corpse. When the fact came to the knowledge of her violator he sent the relatives of the girl fourteen rupees to hold their tongues! The police, however, got scent of the matter, and enquired into the cause of the girl's death, when they were told by her adopted mother that it was fever. The Assistant District Superintendent (Mr. Charles McIver) suspecting this to be a misrepresentation, held an inquest over the girl's body, and then sent it to Dr. Hopkins, the civil surgeon, who, assisted by Dr. Martin (at present on general duty in Kurrachee), carefully examined the remains, and gave it as his decided opinion that death was caused through rupture arising out of the violation. On the circumstances being communicated to Colonel Lambert, the magistrate of the district, that officer telegraphed to Captain Gillespie, who had gone to Hyderabad, to return to Kurrachee forthwith. On his arrival Colonel Lambert furnished him with copies of Mr. McIver's report and of the proceedings of the Court of Inquest, and called upon him for an explanation within twenty-four hours, warning him at the same time to be careful in what he said, unless he was prepared to clear himself completely of the offence imputed to him, as his conduct in the case was likely to become the subject of investigation by court martial. Captain Gillespie, after some consideration, deemed it prudent to withhold his explanation, and solicited a Court of Inquiry. Upon this, Sir W. Merewether, the Commissioner, handed Captain Gillespie over to the officer commanding the Sind Division of the Army—Brigadier General Forbes. Considering the gravity of the charge against him, the General immediately ordered his arrest, and placed him under the surveillance of a guard of the 21st Fusiliers, consisting of one corporal and six privates. Yesterday a Court of Inquiry was assembled, composed of Colonel Woolcombe, C.B., commanding Royal Artillery in Sind; Major Fairbrother, commandant 2nd Belooch Regiment; and Captain Cook, of 21st Fusiliers; but its decision has not yet transpired.

Miscellaneous.

COURT-MARTIAL.—Lieutenant R. R. W. Greenlaw, of the 18th Regiment N.I., is to be tried by Court-martial at Ahmedabad, on a charge of having appropriated public money to his own use.

LADY SPENCER.—Lady Spencer and family, says the Pioneer, will leave England in December to join Sir Augustus in India.

TROOPSHIPS.—H.M.'s Indian troopship Euphrates, the last before the trooping season, was hauled out of dock on Saturday, Oct. 11, and the Earl Canning was hauled in to have her bottom cleaned and painted.

ECCLESIASTICAL.—The Rev. R. G. Wilder, of the Kolapore Mission, has left for America with his family, in the hope of returning within six months. It is eight years since he came out last. He came out first in 1846.—Bombay Guardian.

THE PREMCHUND ROYCHUND LOAN.—The case of the Old Bank of Bombay against the Oriental Bank, in connection with the loan of £250,000 to Premchund Roychund, stands adjourned till after the Criminal Sessions, which are at present going on.

POLICE.—Captain Portman, Assistant Superintendent of Police, has arrived in Poona, and has taken over charge of the City and Cantonment Police, and will, we understand, always remain in the station to attend to any cases requiring police interference.—Poona Observer, Sept. 9.

TRADE OF BOMBAY.—The grand total of articles (excluding treasure) imported into India during the month of April last amounted in value to £2,054,428, being a falling off from the same month last year of £891,735. The grand total of exports for the same period amounted in value to £6,518,108, being an increase over the same period last year of £1,679,077. This increase in exports was chiefly from Bombay.

ELPHINSTONE LAND COMPANY.—We learn from a reliable source that the arrangements for the sale to Government of the Elphinstone Land and Press Company's valuable property have been completed. The sale will result in considerable benefit to the public of Bombay, as the large sum of money that was absorbed in the company's shares will now become available for useful and industrial purposes in the presidency.—Jam-i-Jamsheed.

MR. BARRON'S CASE.—The Sind News stated on the 30th ult. that the preliminary inquiry into the case of Mr. Barron, late head clerk of the Political Superintendent's Office, Jacobabad, had terminated, and that he would be sent down this month to stand his trial at Bombay. The Sindian, however, says it has the best authority for contradicting this statement, for up to the 2nd instant no such inquiry had commenced. "The reason for this delay is not very apparent (adds the Sindian), but it would certainly be better for all parties, but particularly for the accused, that immediate measures be adopted to bring the matter to a clear issue."

FORESTS.—Mr. Brandis, Inspector-General of Forests, is, during the approaching dry season, to visit the forests in the Bombay Presidency, with a view to submitting proposals for their better administration. This tour has been ordered by the Government of India at the request of the Government of Bombay. It has also been arranged that, during the month of October next, Mr. Brandis shall visit the Kunawur forests on the Upper Sutlej, to assist the Conservator of Forests in framing a regular plan of operations, and in drawing up rules for the guidance of officers who superintend felling operations in the Deodar forests of the hills. On his way to Bombay Mr. Brandis will visit some parts of Rajpootana, with a view to making preliminary inquiries regarding the possible sources of fuel-supply for railway purposes, as well as to confer with the Agent to the Governor-General, and the Political officer under him, with regard to the formation of forest reserves.—Mofussilite.

THE LATE MR. W. H. DUNLOP.—The following letter was addressed on the 27th August by the Commissioner of Police, Bombay, to the Secretary to Government:—"Sir,—It is with deep regret I have to report, for the information of his Excellency the Right Honourable the Governor in Council, the death yesterday of Mr. W. H. G. Dunlop, Deputy Commissioner of Water Police. It would appear that he accidentally fell into the sea out of one of the stern windows of the police hulk, and was drowned before assistance could reach him. An inquest was held on view of the body, and the following verdict returned:—'The deceased met his death by drowning. There is no evidence to show how he fell into the water, but from the evidence heard there is reason to believe the deceased must have had a sudden fit, and in this state fell through the window.' At this sudden and unfortunate close of a long and honourable career I deem it my duty to remind Government of this officer's past services. Mr. Dunlop joined the late Indian navy in 1839, I believe, and held the rank of master therein at the time he was transferred to the Bombay Water Police in 1844. In the latter year, in consequence of the astounding discoveries which had been then recently made as to the organised systems of plunder, almost amounting to piracy, by the notorious bunder gang, Government determined on establishing a body of water police, and selected Mr. Dunlop to organise and command it. How well he performed the task entrusted to him the criminal returns of this great port have ever since most satisfactorily shown. The harbour, instead of being, as it previously was, a hotbed of ever-fructifying vice and crime, has become the quietest division of my charge, and crime of any moment therein is now rare. Unceasing in his anxious care for the perfect discharge of his important duties, courteous and obliging to all with whom he came in contact, the deceased officer has left behind him an official void which it will be difficult so efficiently to fill. —I have, &c., F. H. SOUTER, Commissioner of Police." Resolution of Government:—"The Right Hon. the Governor in Council has received with much regret the report of the death of this meritorious public servant."—Mr. W. H. Dunlop belonged to a family well known in the Bombay Civil Service for the last seventy years, one of them, Mr. John Dunlop, having died a member of Council after forty years' service.

LEAVE AND ALLOWANCES.

Sept. 2.—No. 3,070.—A question having been raised as to whether the resolution of the financial department No. 101, dated April 24 last, and published in the Gazette of India of May 1, on the subject of privilege leave, is applicable to judges of her Majesty's High Courts of Judicature, the Governor general in Council observes that privilege leave to these and certain other officers under the rules recently prescribed differs from ordinary privilege leave, in that no judge of a High Court is held entitled to such leave unless Government be satisfied that there is an urgent necessity for it. Leave under chapter 2 of the rules in question is, therefore, rather in the nature of short leave on urgent private affairs, while vacation takes the place of privilege leave.

On these considerations, his Excellency in Council is pleased to declare that the resolution above quoted shall not be held to apply to judges of her Majesty's High Courts of Judicature, or to the other officers to whom the rules governing the leave of these judges have been declared applicable.

Sept. 3.—No. 3,084.—It has come to the notice of H.E. the Governor general in Council that officers applying for leave of absence do so without specifying the section of the leave rules under which such application is submitted. It is impossible for the Government, when dealing with such applications, to know precisely to what leave an officer is entitled, and it is inconvenient to have to point out all the possible descriptions of leave to which, under certain conditions, he might be entitled.

H.E. in Council is, accordingly, pleased to rule that, when any officer of Government applies for leave, he should distinctly state under what section of the leave rules he wants it, and he should show that he is entitled to it under that section.

PAY OF INSTRUCTORS OF GUNNERY.

Simla, August 31.—No. 928.—The following War-office circular, clause 83, dated July, 1869, is declared applicable to the brigades of royal artillery serving in India:—

"In all future appointments, the second sergeant instructor of gunnery in each brigade of the royal artillery will be considered as holding an appointment, and will receive extra duty pay at the rate of one shilling a day for six days in the week while actually employed, in addition to his regimental pay. He will, however, take no higher rank in the brigade than that of his regimental grade."

Under the provisions of the foregoing circular, the second assistant instructor of gunnery in each brigade of royal artillery in India hereafter appointed will, while so employed, receive a staff allowance of Rs. 12-12-5 per mensem, being the equivalent of one shilling a day for six days in the week, in addition to the pay of his regimental rank. He will take no higher rank than that, and will only receive the clothing of his regimental grade.

H. W. NORMAN, Major-general, Secretary to the Government of India.

COMMISSION TAKEN BY CIVIL ENGINEERS.

Simla, Aug. 31.—No. 212.—Whereas the G.G. in Council is given to understand that in the civil engineering profession in England it is a recognised practice for civil engineers employed by public companies and otherwise, to receive, in addition to the salaries paid them by their employers, commission on contracts given out, or stores and materials ordered or inspected by them, and other like pecuniary considerations for services done or intended to be done, which are considered legitimate sources of emolument; and whereas a considerable number of civil engineers, who have practised in England, have lately been employed by the Government of India, and the number of such engineers is likely to increase:—

1. It is hereby notified for general information that every person in the service of the Government in the public works dept. in any part of British India, whether civil or military, must consider his salary or pay, as regulated by the rules of the department for the time being, or defined in any agreement with the Secretary of State for India in Council, and whether it is drawn wholly or in part in the public works department, or the military department, to be his sole legal remuneration; and that the receipt of commission, or any other consideration whatever, directly or indirectly, on account of any business or transaction in which he shall be concerned in behalf of the Government, whether in India or elsewhere, is prohibited.

2. Every officer of the Government is bound to report to his departmental superior every infringement of the above rule which may come to his knowledge.

THE ALBERT ASSURANCE COMPANY.

The following resolution was unanimously passed at a meeting of the Liverpool policy-holders in the Albert Assurance Company, on October 6; Mr. William Walker, of Birkenhead, in the chair:—

This committee is of opinion that no scheme can be devised which will be binding on any non-consenting policy-holder, and that no policy-holder in any of the original companies can accept any compromise without the consent of the company whose policy he holds; and that therefore the whole of the companies should be at once wound-up in one court and under one liquidation. That Mr. Harding be appointed liquidator (in conjunction with Mr. Price), to protect the interests of the policy-holders, who should also be represented by a committee of policy-holders.

Lord William Hay presents his compliments to the Editor of the Indian Mail, and begs he will do him the favour to give a place to the following resolutions passed at a joint meeting of the London and Provincial Committees, held at the Cannon-street Hotel to-day:—
2, Cleveland-row, October 7, 1869.

Resolved—That with reference to the minute of the Alliance Assurance (now laid before this committee), a sub-committee be appointed to conduct negotiations with the Alliance Company for the working of the Albert Assurance business, and report at as early a date as possible to this committee. The committee cordially invite the co-operation of the provisional official liquidator in such negotiations.

Resolved—That Lord William Hay (the chairman), Mr. Webster, and Mr. Bird be appointed to act as the sub-committee for the purpose mentioned in the foregoing resolution.

EUROPEAN ASSURANCE SOCIETY.

A very largely attended adjourned meeting of the policyholders of the European Assurance Society residing in Sheffield and the district was held in the Assembly-rooms in that town on October 5. Mr. Allott presided, and he stated that since the meeting held a week ago he had communicated with Mr. Lake, the general manager of the company, asking him if he desired to make any statement to the policyholders at the present meeting. In reply he had received the following letter:—

I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of Sept. 29, and beg to say that the directors are confident of being able successfully to resist the petition for winding up. The special Act of Parliament to which you refer first of all authorised the change of the society's name from the "People's Provident" to the "European," and then the issue of policies and bonds of guarantee for the faithful discharge of duties by Government and public employees. The Act also authorised the Lords of the Treasury, whenever they might think fit, to appoint an inspector, who should have access to the accounts, officers, and servants of the society; and this refers to the society's affairs generally, and not merely to the guarantee branch. The Lords of the Treasury did exercise the right of examination some five years ago, and we have every reason to believe to the entire satisfaction of the Government.

The Chairman proceeded to say that he had analysed the last two balance-sheets of the company, from which he showed that the assets last year were £62,000 less than they were in the preceding year. He contended that for an assurance society to be safe and healthy it ought to have an accumulated fund equal to eight times the amount of its annual income. The European instead of having such a reserve had only an accumulated fund equal to one and a-half year's income. He showed that in 1862-3 the amount of expense incurred in the management of the society was only £10,000, and that that had so much increased that both Alderman Saunders and Dr. Watts had stated that £30,000 or £35,000 might be saved every year. In conclusion, he recommended that a committee should be appointed to look after the interests of the policy-holders. Alderman Saunders, local agent of the company, opposed the appointment of a committee until the result of the proceedings in the Vice-Chancellor's Court was known. He expressed a confident opinion that the society would not be wound up, and that it would yet keep on its legs. Several gentlemen addressed the meeting in favour of the chairman's suggestion, and ultimately a resolution was passed, with only one dissentient, appointing a committee of five gentlemen to watch over the interests of the policy-holders, and to take such steps as they might deem necessary.

A meeting of policy-holders was held on Friday, October 8, at the London Tavern, and was a rather excited one. Dr. Whitmore was voted to the chair. Sir F. Smith, the chairman of the board of directors, attended, and urged that the company was quite able to meet all its liabilities. He added that after the petitions for winding-up had been dismissed, as he felt sure they would be on Wednesday, the directors intended at once to call meetings of the share and policy-holders, and lay a full statement of the position of the company before them. Two of that body would also be admitted to seats at the board. The meeting adopted by a large majority a resolution requesting the directors to lay a full statement of the accounts before a general meeting of the policy-holders, expressive of an opinion that it was not desirable the company should be wound-up in Equity, and that steps should be taken to have the petition dismissed.

THE SOCIAL SCIENCE CONGRESS.

On October 4 a numerous attended soirée was held at the Victoria-rooms, and in one of these Miss Mary Carpenter delivered an address upon female education in India, with reference mainly to the higher class of native women. She commenced by some reference to the various obstacles that come between English thought and the condition of India and the Indian people. Other colonies are only outlying portions of the British Empire. India is the home of races alien to us in language, in religion, and in thought. She is none the less bound to us by the ties of a great responsibility which it would be vain to endeavour to shake off. Rammohun Roy, who died in 1833, said that he would sacrifice property and life to obtain the independence of India if she were fit for it, but that she would not be fit for it for at least a hundred years. The feeling that existed between the British Government and the native inhabitants was not a pleasant one. The Government strove in every way duly to fulfil its trust, and to do all that was possible for India; but this was not fully understood by the natives. Differences of manners and customs stood in the way of sympathy. Wherever such sympathy is felt and shown by individual ladies and gentlemen in India it is always gratefully appreciated, a fact to which Miss Carpenter bore testimony from her own experience. She had gone out to endeavour to promote higher female education in India by the supervision of training colleges, in which native women might become qualified to be teachers. The great difficulty in the way was the custom of early marriage, or, as we should call it, betrothal—often nine or ten years of age—after which a girl was secluded from the society or presence of men, and condemned to ignorance and inactivity. The only prospect at present was with widows; and many of these had been eager to avail themselves of the advantages held out to them. Miss Carpenter gave some details of her work in some Parsee female schools, and an account of the success of the normal school at Ahmedabad. She purposes to return next year to India, and to make Bombay her principal field of exertion, and expressed a hope that the sympathy hitherto given to her might be continued. Experience has shown that there can be no great progress in the schools until there are female teachers in them, and it is only by the elevation of the women that real and permanent progress can be made in India. This is now understood by a sufficient number of educated native gentlemen to give ample encouragement to the work. By such the assistance of English ladies is highly valued, if a confidence exists that there will be no interference with religious or social customs. They are pleased to see such ladies live a Christian life among them, although they do not wish them to teach Christianity.

After some observations from the Rev. Canon Kingsley, Surendra Nath Bandyee, a gentleman from Calcutta, said that the subject was of the deepest importance to every Hindoo. He paid a high tribute to the kindness and the ability of Miss Carpenter, and said that the Zenana system was entirely of recent origin, and was derived from the Mahomedans. So lately as the fourteenth century of the Christian era, Lelabutti, the daughter of Bhaskara Charga, solved quadratic equations of great difficulty, and even discovered a new method of solution, which is still employed where large quantities are involved. He then gave a condensed account of the life of the Rajah Rammohun Roy, to whom native improvement is vastly indebted. Born about 1774, he founded the Hindoo College about 1816, formed a theistic body of worshippers, which afterwards underwent further development, abolished the Suttee rite about 1830, in conjunction with Lord Bentinck, and died in Bristol in 1833. The speaker then proceeded to remark on the condition of native women. They were, he said, pent up within the walls of Zenanas, and excluded from society and from the privilege of cultivating their minds. He spoke in strong terms of their miserable and degraded condition, and expressed great hope that it would shortly be improved.

GREAT SOUTHERN OF INDIA RAILWAY.

An extraordinary general meeting of this company was held on October 5, at the London Tavern, to consider a communication from the Secretary of State for India in reference to the extension of the line to Tuticorin; Mr. J. Chapman in the chair.

Mr. H. Notman, the secretary, read the notice convening the meeting, and also the letter to the company from the Secretary of State for India in Council, dated July 29, 1869. It offered the construction of the extension line to the Great Southern of India Railway Company, under a guarantee of 5 per cent. per annum, the stock to be issued at a premium, provided the company would agree to certain modifications in the existing contract with the Government of India. One was to the effect that the surplus profits over 5 per cent. earned on the railway were to be divided equally between the Government and the company during the whole period of the contract, in consideration of which the Government would cancel the debt due by the company on account of interest under the guarantee. The extension railway was to form part and parcel of the existing railway, and the Government reserved power to take the railway into their own hands in case of the line not being completed by the company, and of their not working it in a proper manner.

The Chairman said the directors had considered the proposal, and they recommended the shareholders to accept it and comply with the conditions, as they were of opinion that the undertaking must be for the advantage of the company. The new line would pass through a valuable district; the estimate of goods traffic alone would yield 5 per cent. on the cost of the railway. The estimate was made by a gentleman well acquainted with India, on whom they could rely. The extension line could be constructed for about the same cost per mile as the existing line of the company, which was one of the cheapest lines in India, and the construction of the extension would be of material advantage to the company. The debt now due to the Government on account of interest was £220,000, which the Government purposed to cancel under the new agreement, dividing the surplus, if any, over 5 per cent. between the Government and the company. He thought it would be a great advantage to get rid of that debt and of any accumulation of it in future.

Mr. Townsend, the solicitor, then read the resolutions, which had been drawn up carefully, with a view to carry out fully the proposal of the Secretary of State for India.

The Chairman then moved the first resolution for carrying into effect the Government proposal for constructing the extension line to Tuticorin under a guarantee of 5 per cent. The shares were to be issued at a premium; the company agreed to undertake the extension line as part and parcel of the present railway, and to divide the profits between the Government and the company for the remaining period of the contract, reserving to the Government certain powers in case the line should not be completed or worked satisfactorily.

Mr. Norton, a director, seconded the motion. He thought the proposed arrangement would be advantageous to the company, and place them in the rank of one of the great trunk lines of India. The Government intended to construct the other railways required for India at their own expense; in doing so they would become railway shareholders like themselves, and he trusted the resolution would be adopted.

The motion was carried unanimously.

The Chairman then moved the second resolution, to the effect that the extension to Tuticorin be undertaken as part and parcel of the existing railway, and that the shares be issued at such premium as might be deemed fair and equitable.

Captain Mangles seconded the motion, and it was carried.

In reply to questions, it was stated that the term of the contract was for 99 years, and that the premiums received for the new stock would be added to the capital, but would not bear interest.

The third and fourth resolutions were also carried unanimously, authorising the directors to carry out the proposed modifications in the contract, and to affix the seal of the company to any deed for that purpose, and for securing possession of the line as a remedy in case the provisions for the completion and working of the line should not be carried out; empowering the directors to provide and execute all such acts and deeds as might be necessary at the cost of the company.

Miscellaneous.

BILLS ON INDIA.—Tenders for £200,000 in bills on India were received at the Bank of England on Wednesday, the 6th instant. The amounts allotted were—to Calcutta £132,000, and to Madras £68,000. The minimum price was fixed as before, at 1s. 11d. Tenders on both presidencies at 1s. 11½d. will receive about 10 per cent.; those above that price in full.

THE LATE LORD ST. MAUR.—Earl St. Maur, who died the other day at the early age of thirty-four, was for some time in a heavy cavalry regiment, but his knowledge of campaigning as an amateur was considerable. He was with Outram's force in Persia, and, at the close of the war, came to India, where he served on Lord Clyde's staff as a volunteer aide-de-camp, and distinguished himself by his courage, and coolness and activity. He was also with Garibaldi before Gaeta, and was remarked for his zeal and intrepidity. In a war in the olden time Lord St. Maur would have made a name where laurels were to be won by love of fighting.

MR. SUMNER ON THE INDIAN MUTINY.—No one expects candour from such a furious hater as Mr. Sumner; but as he is a clever and intensely vain man, it might be expected that he would avoid making himself ridiculous. He trusted, however, to the ignorance and passion of his audience, and he absolutely asserted coram populo that the rajahs and sepoys of India withstood the whole power of England in the Mutiny! Why "the whole power of England" was nearly represented by those very sepoys. We had but a handful of British troops in the country at first, and when Outram's force and the troops from China arrived, the rebellion was squelched very readily. As for the rajahs, there were more of them for than against us. Mr. Sumner kindly intimates he would not have granted them belligerent rights.—Army and Navy Gazette.

EXPORT OF BULLION.—The exports by the P. and O. steamers have been as follows during September:—To Bombay, per Ceylon, from Southampton, September 18:—gold, £27,600; silver, £19,300. Per Massilia, September 25, gold, £8,350. Per Nyanza, from Marseilles, September 19, silver, £15,700. To Madras, per Ceylon, from Southampton, September 18, gold, £1,271. To Calcutta, per Ceylon, from Southampton, September 18, silver, £30,000. Per Syria, September 26, from Marseilles, silver, £29,000. The exports of bullion from Southampton to Bombay, per Bangalore, October 2, were, gold £800, silver £10,000; to Galle, £1,948; to Madras, silver £200. The export of bullion by the steamers of the Messageries Imperiales Company have been as subjoined:—to Pondicherry, Oct. 2, gold £400; to Madras, gold £60, silver £2,228; to Calcutta, silver, £56,520.

THE LOSS OF THE "MARY E. CAMPBELL."—The Board of Trade inquiry into the abandonment of the ship Mary E. Campbell has terminated at Liverpool. This vessel left the Mersey in the early part of September, with a cargo of 2,225 tons of coal for Aden, and encountered very severe weather up to the 13th of September, when, in consequence of the mainmast having been carried away, and the ship making a good deal of water, it was determined to abandon her. The captain and crew, with the exception of seven, who refused to leave the vessel, were saved by the Jessie Forrest, and landed at Holyhead, whilst those who remained by the ship are supposed to have perished. The Court, in delivering judgment, whilst regretting the loss of life which had taken place, complimented Captain Pursell for the gallant and seaman-like manner in which he had behaved, and returned his certificate. The Court, however, felt bound at the same time to express their opinion that, though the ship was well equipped and found in every respect, she was sent to sea weakly manned, so far as the number of the crew on board were concerned.

THE LATE MAJOR-GENERAL ADAMS.—Major-General Frank Adams, C.B., commanding the Mhow Division of the Bombay Army, died at sea, on his homeward passage, on board the mail-steamer Tanjore, on the 19th ultimo. The deceased officer entered the service on the 30th of December, 1826; became lieutenant on the 23rd of March, 1832; captain on the 31st of December, 1833; major on the 29th of October, 1843. He served formerly in the 28th Regiment, and was gazetted from a majority to the command, vice Lieutenant-Colonel John Messiter, on the 16th of July, 1852, and commanded the regiment throughout the Eastern campaign of 1854-55, including the battles of Alma and Inkerman, siege and fall of Sebastopol, and affair on the 18th of June in the cemetery. On Sir William Eyre's being wounded he succeeded to the command of a brigade, and brought it out of action. For his services during the Crimean campaign he received the war medal with three clasps, was appointed a Companion of the Bath, was made a Knight of the Legion of Honour by the Emperor of the French, received the Sardinian medal from the King of Sardinia, and the Turkish medal and third class of the Medjidie from the Sultan of Turkey. He afterwards proceeded with the 28th Regiment to India, and brought it home in 1865; shortly after which, whilst the regiment was quartered at Devonport, he accepted the command of a brigade at Aldershot, vice Major-General B. Taylor, being succeeded in the command by Lieutenant-Colonel W. Roberts (now commanding the 1st Battalion 5th Fusiliers). He remained at Aldershot until January, 1866, when he was appointed to the command of the Mhow Division.

TRIAL TRIP OF THE "HINDOSTAN."—The new screw steamship Hindostan, built and engined by Messrs. C. A. Day and Co., of the Northam Ironworks, at Southampton, for the Peninsular and Oriental Company, was on Oct. 6 taken to Stokes Bay for a trial of her speed on the measured mile. There was a moderate easterly breeze blowing, with a smooth sea, the barometer standing at 30.55. The true mean speed attained was 14.392 knots per hour, with a 30lb. pressure of steam, vacuum 21, and the engines making 55 revolutions per minute. The engines, which are of 600-horse power nominal, indicated 3194 during the trial. She had on board a total weight of coals, water, and stores, of 734 tons, and her draught of water was 16ft. 2in. forward, and 17ft. 8in. aft, the mean draught being 16ft. 11in. The machinery worked with the greatest ease throughout the day, and all on board expressed the most perfect satisfaction with the successful result of the trial. The following are the leading dimensions of the Hindostan:—Length between perpendiculars, 349ft. 10in.; length on loadwater line, 344ft. 4in.; length over all, 382ft. 8in.; breadth moulded, 42ft. 3½in.; depth of hold, 33ft.; tonnage, builders' measurement, 3,086 tons; and engines of 600-horse power. She has accommodation for 176 first and 55 second-class passengers, and will be able to carry 800 tons of coal and 1,400 tons of cargo. The hull of the vessel is built with the best Staffordshire iron below the water-line and steel above, and every part of the ship bears unmistakable evidence of the excellence of the materials and workmanship employed in her construction. Among the gentlemen on board at the trial were Mr. James Allan (chairman), Admiral Sir W. Hall, Mr. G. C. P. Estrange, Mr. E. Thornton, C.B., Captain J. R. Engledue, and the Hon. R. Leslie Melville, directors of the Peninsular and Oriental Company; Captain Bain and Mr. Sutherland, managers; Captain W. Black and Mr. A. Lamb, general and engineering superintendents at Southampton; Captain Henry and Mr. Sydney Smith, superintendent and superintending surgeon at Bombay; Captains Burne, Dunn, and Almond, Mr. Pinsent, Mr. C. A. Day, Mr. T. Sumners, &c. Lady Hall and two or three other ladies were also pre-gent. The Hindostan was in charge of Captain Robert Curling, who is appointed as her commander, and she will shortly be despatched to India, where she is to be employed in the company's mail service.

MILITARY.—The Duke of Cambridge, in a general order, has called the attention of commanding officers to a recent army circular, in which the Secretary of State for War, recognising the advantages to be obtained by the employment of soldiers in trades, has approved of the issue of tools to regiments in the first instance, at the public expense. His Royal Highness says that the object he has in view, with the concurrence of the Secretary of State for War, is to render regiments independent of external aid, and to enable them to perform for the Royal Engineer Department such works as are executed by civil contractors. — The Lancet has reason to believe that the rumour of reductions in the army medical department, notwithstanding its definite shape, is without foundation. — Considerable expense and inconvenience having been occasioned by soldiers' wives being confined while on board the vessel in which they are embarked, women near their confinement are not in future to be embarked in mail or contract steamers or other vessels on short voyages, such as to or from the Mediterranean, West Indies, British North America, &c., and the husbands of such women are to be detained with them. This rule will also apply when troops are ordered to or from India and other stations by the overland route, but not when they are proceeding between this country and India via the Cape, or on other long voyages. The medals for the Abyssinian campaign are now being struck at the Mint. The design is of no great beauty, the obverse side being of the usual character, while the reverse is entirely plain in the centre, leaving space for an inscription. The outer portion of the same side is decorated, and the letters of the word Abyssinia placed in a series of vandykes round this outer circle. It is expected that the medals will be ready for issue before the expiration of the year. We believe the authorities in India have not quite settled the station to be occupied by the 15th Hussars on the arrival of that regiment at Bombay about Christmas. The published intentions are that the 15th should relieve the Bays at Mhow. But it would seem that some move is due to the 18th Hussars, who have been four years at Secunderabad. The 16th Lancers have been, for the same period, at Bangalore, and it has been suggested that they should be moved to Secunderabad, the 18th going to the Bombay Presidency vice the Bays, and the 15th Hussars going to Bangalore, the station occupied by them, without intermission, for about sixteen years prior to their last return to England in 1851. The 3rd Hussars will move from Ahmednuggur to the Bengal Presidency next year, taking the place of the 7th Hussars returning home. — Army and Navy Gazette.

ENGLISH HOMES IN INDIA.

PART I.—THE THREE LOVES. | PART II.—THE WRONG TURNING.

PUBLISHERS' NOTICE.

The writer of these volumes—an accomplished member of a family whose name is conspicuous in Indian story—being now resident in India, they have not had the benefit of her final corrections. It is to be feared, however, that this inevitable drawback will detract but little from the pleasure to be afforded by the perusal of the tales, which are, indeed, what they profess to be, stories of English Homes in India, represented as such homes are in different parts of the country and under various social and professional aspects. They endeavour fairly and without exaggeration to illustrate Anglo-Indian life as it is, in its many varying phases, and to bring up on the scene, in their everyday costume, many kinds of Anglo-Indian workmen, from the Resident at a Native Court, to the salubrious officer and the railway employee; and it is believed that all who have visited the countries described will recognise the truth of the portraiture.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.

CONFUSION, GIDDINESS, FLUSHES, PAINS IN THE HEAD, with other indications of cerebral disorder, premonitory signs of coming illness, should have early attention, or palpitations and uneasy feelings about the heart will succeed, and be followed in their turn by more serious symptoms. Holloway's Pills display their most constant and happiest results in dispelling these disagreeable feelings, cleaning the furred tongue, rousing the torpid bowels, and removing the languor and flatulency which are always oppressive after taking food. No medicine is so well calculated to restore the digestive functions, or so potent to soothe the nervous system. The dyspeptic, by taking these purifying Pills, will substitute ease for pain, and once more renew vigour in the wasting body.

RUPTURES.—BY HER MAJESTY'S ROYAL LETTERS PATENT.

WHITE'S MOC-MAIN LEVER

TRUSS, Perfected and Exhibited in the Great Exhibition of 1861, is allowed by upwards of 200 Medical Gentlemen to be the most effective invention in the curative treatment of Hernia. The use of a steel spring, so often hurtful in its effects, is here avoided; a soft bandage being worn round the body, while the requisite resisting power is supplied by the MOC-MAIN PAD and PATENT LEVER, fitting with so much ease and closeness that it cannot be detected, and may be worn during sleep. A descriptive circular may be had, and the Truss (which cannot fail to fit) forwarded by post on the circumference of the body two inches below the hips being sent to the Manufacturer, Mr. WHITE, 228, Piccadilly, London.

Price of a Single Truss, 16s., 21s., 26s. 6d., and 31s. 6d., postage, 1s. Price of Double Truss, 31s. 6d., 42s., and 52s. 6d.; postage, 1s. 8d. Umbilical, 42s. and 52s. 6d., postage, 1s. 10d.

Summary and Review.

Our latest advices by the Overland Mail are—from Bombay, September 25; Agra, September 21; Calcutta, September 21; Madras, September 20. It will be seen from these dates, which are ten and eleven days later than those of the previous mail, that with the close of the monsoon the homeward mails have returned to their ordinary speed of passage between Bombay and Suez.

Retrenchment is the cry throughout India. Between the short returns from opium and the natural effects of widespread drought, Sir R. Temple's modest surplus has already been transformed into a deficit of nearly two millions. The deficit for the previous year has somehow swollen to about 2½ millions. Everybody is frightened. The Indian Government has been using the pen of remonstrance and the knife of small economy in all directions. The Chief Commissioner of Oudh has his stationery cut down by more than one half. The few thousands spent on education in the Central Provinces are to be made fewer by about one-sixth. Docking of allowances and dismissal of very small underlings are to be rigidly enforced all round. There is talk of raising the salt duties in Bombay and Madras, and of adding one per cent. to the income-tax. For this last item we are indebted, by the way, to a recent telegram, which also reports a drain on the cash balances. Part of the deficit for the last and present year is generally ascribed to the unforeseen excess in the home expenditure. From some quarters both here and in India comes a loud demand for reduction of military expenses. Again, there are many murmurs at the extravagance of the Public Works Department, especially in the matter of the new barracks, which are made the more obnoxious by figuring in the estimates as ordinary instead of extraordinary public works. Altogether there is an acknowledged deficit of 4½ millions, which may grow to even five or six during the year; and at once in both countries the blame is laid on Anglo-Indian financiers, as if they could foresee the weather of the coming year, or lay on new taxes with a stroke of the pen. We are glad however to note that the Times takes a fairer and more cheerful view of the position. It may perhaps expect too much from the elasticity of Indian revenues and the increased wealth of the average Indian tax-payer; but it has the good sense to deprecate retrenchment in reproductive public works, and the fairness to avow the difficulties which would beset in India the path of the keenest and most experienced financier. In fact, as it justly observes, "the deficits are neither alarming in themselves nor discreditable in their character." Much more discreditable will it be to raise the salt-tax in one part of India, at the very moment when it is admitted to be suicidally excessive in another. As for the income-tax, nothing but sheer extremity would justify an addition to that burden, whether on behalf of native or Anglo-Indian citizens. The army in due time may bear further reduction, but not too much at once. Outlay on barracks might be partially suspended, or else transferred to the extraordinary list.

ANOTHER prospectus of a mutual assurance company has appeared in the Indian papers. Mr. A. G. Roussac proposes to form such a body with limited liability, for taking over the Indian business of the defunct Albert Company. Its head-office should be in Calcutta, with agencies all over India; the directors, managers, and auditors to be elected by the policy-holders in the three presidency capitals. A good many of the Calcutta policy-holders are doing their best to carry out Mr. Roussac's programme. There is also talk of a State assurance department, but that, we fear, in these days of deficit will hardly get beyond the sphere of talk.

THERE is little new to say concerning the weather and the crops. The rain-fall in Upper India will mitigate, if it cannot remove, the prevalent distress. Its power for injury, on the other hand has been illustrated as usual on some of the railways in Western India, in the carrying away of bridges and the breaching of embankments. Cotton prospects are reported good, those of indigo generally the reverse. Cholera is fast disappearing, even from Umritsur. A private letter mentions Gorukpore as one of the worst, though least noticed sufferers from that scourge. While it raged there, it carried off from ninety to one hundred daily, or about ten per cent. in all out of a population of 50,000.

THE REV. MR. WATERHOUSE must seem to the gay folk of Simlah as unwelcome a reminder of human vanities as John Knox did to Mary of Scotland. He has been dealing out from his pulpit a sharp rebuke of the lavish expenditure on balls, pic-nics, and other frivolities, in which so many of his flock have indulged, to the utter neglect of their duties towards the poor, suffering, and benighted people around them. We fear that the reverend preacher will only have wasted his breath in the discharge of what he deems his duty. His hearers will probably have compounded with their consciences by dozing through his lectures once a week, and taking their fill of pleasure on the other six days. It is his business to scold, and their nature to enjoy themselves while they may.

THE Madras Government is busy about a comprehensive scheme for improving the irrigation works of the Kavery throughout its course. At present the flow of the river is very unequal. In the dry season there is no water to speak of; during the rains there is much more than enough, and much damage is caused by the heavy floods. How to store up these surplus waters for use at other seasons forms the main object of the new scheme. One difficulty in the Government's way is foreseen by the Madras Athenæum, in the cry certain to be raised from Tanjore in the event of any seeming encroachment on its water supply. There are vested interests in that direction which the Government must be careful not to disturb. Probably that danger is over-rated. The officer entrusted with the preparation of plans and the carrying out of surveys is Captain C. J. Smith, of the Engineers. A better choice, we are told, could hardly have been made. Captain Smith is a man of tried ability, of large experience in irrigation works, and is further credited with abundant zeal, honesty, and perseverance.

THE principle of educating India through its women is becoming a recognised necessity among enlightened natives. Miss Carpenter's normal schools have doubtless quickened the movement in that direction. Another step towards the same end has lately been taken in Bareilly, where a Native Medical Female School has at length been started under the auspices of Dr. Corbyn and Baboo Gunga Pershad; the former managing what the latter endowed. It is of course an experiment on a small scale; but so far its progress has been satisfactory. The girls are said to have shown great quickness and aptitude for the study of medicine, and to have already made considerable way in it. How great is the need for such an institution may be gathered from the invincible dislike of most natives to the presence of male doctors about female patients, a dislike by no means rare among ourselves. Like many other movements in India however this one can hardly be developed without Government aid. The Baboo in question, a gentleman of good family and high repute, has applied to his Government for help in carrying out the experiment on a larger scale. It is to be hoped that Sir W. Muir will not turn a deaf ear to so excusable an appeal.

THE prospects of silk in Mysore are just now far from encouraging. First introduced into that province by Tippoo Sultan, the silk trade has since been left on the whole to take care of itself. Once indeed, some twenty years ago, a Government factory was established at Bangalore, but native apathy with regard to new processes seems to have interfered with the expected results. In 1866, again, an Italian gentleman, Signor de Vecchi, made active efforts to improve the breed of silk worms and planted mulberry trees on the land assigned him for that purpose. At first he made some way, but drought and disease among the worms ere long brought his experiment to a bad pass. A fresh importation of worms fared not much better. Last year however Mr. Bowring, the Commissioner, spurred on by the London Silk Supply Association, set himself to see what Government could do for the silk industry of Mysore. A large supply of cartoons was purchased from Japan for free distribution among the silk-producing districts. But the old luck seems to have followed Mr. Bowring also. He reports that a large proportion of the eggs have come to nothing, while the worms keep dying off from the disease which has been wasting them for some years past. In spite of the ruin which recent failures have brought on many Mohammedan families, there is still however reason to hope that the prevalent disease will prove as temporary as that which ravaged the same districts about thirty years ago, and many of the silk-producers are keeping up their mulberry plantations in the hope of an early change for the better.

AMONG the new measures laid before the Viceregal Council at Simlah on the 27th August was Mr. Cockerell's Bill for removing the Garo or Garrow Hills from the jurisdiction of the ordinary Regulation Courts. In the early years of the century, the Garo hill-men caused much annoyance from their habit of making raids on the villages skirting the north-east frontier of Rungpore, in revenge for certain vexatious proceedings of the Zemindars in that neighbourhood. In order to keep the peace and reclaim these rude tribes to a more civilised life, the Government in 1822 passed certain regulations which embraced the appointment of a Special Commissioner for the Garo Hills and the exclusion of the Zemindars from all right of interference with the lands of the hill-men. But somehow the new enactments were limited in practice to only a certain portion of the hill-tract in question. The Special Commissionership became merged in the commissionership of Assam, and the deputy commissioner of Gawalpara had too many other duties devolved on him to take much thought for the special requirements of the Garos. A judgment of the High Court debarred the Government officials from carrying out the policy suggested by the renewal, in 1866, of the old quarrels between zemindars and hill-men. It has therefore been found necessary to strike out a legal remedy for the defects of former legislation. The new Bill proposes to exempt the whole of the country known as the Garo Hills from the working of "regulation" laws, and the jurisdiction of regulation courts and revenue-officers. Henceforth no attempt of the zemindars to interfere with the hill-men will be tolerated, if the Bill becomes law; but for any loss accruing to the former on account of just claims against the latter, due compensation will be granted. Against the apparent object of this Bill we have not a word to say. It is to be hoped however that this new-born tenderness for the wilder races of India will not be overdone, to the extent of debarring them from all intercourse with their more civilised, if less honest neighbours.

THE Indian Government, we hear by telegram, has ordered that the deposition of the Carnatic's passengers now in Bombay should be taken down and transmitted home to the Board of Trade with a view to the coming inquiry. We are glad to hear from Suez that the Egyptian Government are going to build more lighthouses along the Red Sea coast.

ROOPDEO, the destined successor to the deposed chief of Ali Rajpore, is the younger brother, not the son, of Gungadeo. For the present he is associated in the administration with Mahomed Najjif Khan, in order to qualify himself for the post of Maharajah. Najjif Khan is said to combine administrative talents with high energy. The deposition has caused great rejoicing among the people, and evoked a letter of thanksgiving from the Ranie Oomed Koor.

THE Horse Guards are beginning to realise the possibility of turning a soldier into something more than a mere fighting puppet. The Duke of Cambridge has actually requested commanding officers to carry out the directions contained in a late War-office Circular touching the employment of soldiers in trades and engineering works. He even avows his entire approval of that circular, and talks of rendering regiments independent of external aid and equal to any ordinary demands of the Engineer Department. In due time we may expect to see our soldiers saving the State 40 or 50 per cent. of its present outlay on military buildings, roads, clothing, and so forth. Meanwhile his Royal Highness will do well to consider what shall be done to abate the shameful prevalence of heart disease in the ranks. Medical men have for years been crying out in vain at the stupid way in which soldiers are buttoned up tight to the chin, and further oppressed by ill-devised accoutrements. Heart disease is the natural result. Out of more than 22,000 invalids sent to Netley in the last six years, 1,635 were admitted on account of heart disease. Most of them came from India. Out of 151 very serious cases, 82 were men under thirty years of age. After months of careful treatment Professor Maclean found the old distressing palpitations recur almost invariably as soon as his patients resumed their ordinary dress and accoutrements, or walked quietly about the hospital corridors. Rheumatism, a frequent source of heart-complaint in civil life, was found active in only six cases. Most of the cases of aneurism, likewise caused by tight dressing, were those of young men. The Pack Committee, thinks the Professor, have pointed out the true remedy for the existing evil; but "as the new system of accoutring the soldier can only be introduced gradually into the service, it will be some time before we can see any marked diminution in the number of cases of heart disease." Tunics however can surely be altered or left unbuttoned at the throat without any long delay, and as for stocks, a clean sweep might be made of them in a single morning.

DR. FITZEDWARD HALL has resigned his post of Examiner in Hindustani for the Indian Civil Service Commissioners. His successor is Mr. John Platts, now on furlough; a gentleman and a scholar of considerable repute in the Educational Department of the Central Provinces. In this country he is best known as translator of the "Ikwan-u-safa."

LORD DERBY, whom the Liverpool telegram killed last Tuesday with circumstantial precision, was still alive on the following Tuesday, the 19th. He was then however sinking fast.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL,

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS.

MR. LEE-WARNER, who was one of the selected candidates for the Civil Service of India at the open competition of 1867, and passed his final examination in England this summer, has in a letter addressed to the Civil Service Commissioners commented unfavourably on certain points connected with the system of education prescribed and superintended by them. His justification for so doing is the existence "of an almost universal feeling amongst the candidates whom you have examined from 1867-69 that your system of education has not only failed to secure for them the benefits of the best education, but also that it has failed to test fairly the relative merits of those who have been obliged to conform to it," and there can be no question as to his personal disinterestedness in now bringing the matter prominently to the notice of the Civil Service Commissioners; for, as he states, he deferred doing so till by obedience to the existing regulations he had been declared qualified to proceed to India as a member of the Civil Service.

Mr. Lee-Warner's grounds of complaint are classified under two heads. 1. As to the regulations for the periodical examinations, and the standard of marks assigned for the different subjects. 2. As to the objections raised to the continuance at the Universities during their two years of probation of such of the selected candidates as were at the time of their passing the first examination in statu pupillari there; the object being to collect all the selected candidates into London.

The point most strongly urged in the letter is the undue weight given in the examinations to knowledge, or rather (to render Mr. Lee-Warner more correctly) to smattering of languages—and this is brought forward under both heads of complaint, for it is alleged that the system of extra languages is the only impediment to a fairly hardworking man's combining University honours with a good position in the Civil Service Examination Lists.

It appears that while the maximum number of marks for Law is 1,250 (the subject embracing Hindoo and Mahomedan Law and the codes now in force in India, besides an elementary knowledge of English law and procedure), that for Political Economy 350, and that for Indian History and Geography combined the same—extra work in these three subjects not being encouraged by additional marks, 400 marks are to be obtained for each language that is taken up. Two languages, depending in each case on the presidency to which he is to be attached, are compulsory on each candidate; but any number of extra languages may be taken up, marks obtained for them counting and affecting the position in the general list. It is therefore "the interest of each candidate to take up six, seven, or eight languages, and obtain a few marks in each rather than to educate himself thoroughly in the subjects of Law, History, and Political Economy, and in the two languages prescribed." Nor is this all. Even on the supposition that there is nothing erroneous in the principle of allowing the candidates to take up any number of extra languages, its application affects them differently. To some of the prescribed languages many more extra languages are affiliated than to others, and those candidates who are obliged in the first instance to take up, as the vernacular of the Presidency to which they are attached, a language which has many of these agnates, are unfairly handicapped with those whose compulsory languages have fewer or no such agnates. The result is stated to be that "unless a man is fortunate in having to take up in the first instance a language round which a number of extras cluster, or unless he commences his career with a crammer who understands the intricacies of the system, he has no chance of rising;" the hardship being increased by the fact that the best information as to a course of study is obtained at once by those who have come from the London schools of cram, and that subsequently acquired knowledge will not retrieve mistakes committed at the outset, as the marks are carried on from half-year to half-year, the marks of the final half-year's examination (though it embraces the studies of the whole two years) counting no more than those of previous half-years' examinations.

A fair case of grievance appears to be made out, and the remedy is not difficult of application. The study of extra languages or even dialects should be encouraged; but, inasmuch as they are not part of the necessary curriculum, they should not be allowed to affect the candidate's place quoad his competitors in that curriculum. The temptation of obtaining marks for such languages does doubtless lead some candidates who regard a good position in the list more than the thorough acquisition of necessary knowledge to devote much time to endeavouring to gain a mark-paying smattering of extra languages, instead of educating themselves thoroughly in the prescribed two languages, and the important subjects of Law, Political Economy, and Indian History. The plan adopted should be that which was practised at Haileybury. Prizes were there given in extra languages to those students who came up to a certain standard; but the prizes so gained in no way affected the prizeman's position relatively to his fellow students, that being determined by his performance in the regular prescribed course. The adoption of this plan would afford all legitimate encouragement to the study of extra languages, while it would properly tend to keep the general body of candidates to a programme which of itself affords an ample field for two years' study.

Some minor points are touched on in connection with the course of education, such as the undue advantage possessed at first by those of the selected candidates who have passed from the schools of cram, owing to all advice being withheld by the Commissioners, the interpretation of the written instructions in a different sense by the examiners and the examinees, the absence of information as to the manner of marking the papers, and the way in which the prizes are awarded. On this last point Mr. Lee-Warner's objection appears groundless, and his suggestion that prizes should be awarded for extra and not for the regular papers to be therefore unnecessary. The prizes are professedly awarded for proficiency in the prescribed course, and the fact of there being difficulty in awarding them appears to be no reason for increasing the examination work of those who compete for them. If Mr. Lee-Warner's other statements are correct, there must be a want of elasticity about the rules; and we fear there is much truth in what he says as to the advantages possessed by those candidates who come from the schools of cram. The object of the examinations being to exclude cram as far as possible, the Commissioners should endeavour to, at any rate, minimise its advantages by affording all legitimate assistance and advice, and this, we should imagine, was entirely within their province, as entrusted with the control of the selected candidates.

We have left ourselves but little space to consider the protest made by Mr. Lee-Warner against the objections raised by the Civil Service Commissioners to the combination of not only a University career, but even a University residence, with the two years' training for the Civil Service which is passed in England by the selected candidates. The Commissioners have set their face against such a combination, and avowedly do all in their power to encourage a residence in London. We admit (as Mr. Lee-Warner does) the impossibility of the Commissioners' arrangements being liable to alteration at the request of individual candidates, but this is not asked for; all that is contended for is that there should be such a fixity in the times appointed for the periodical examinations that candidates might be able to arrange to try for honours in some one of the Triposes. No consideration is asked for men taking their University degree, but it is alleged that the encouragement of the extra languages is the great deterrent to a concurrent University career, and that if they were displaced from their present footing there would be no impediment in the way of a candidate's combining University honours with a high place in the Civil Service Lists. In the Cambridge Law and History Tripos, moreover, the course of reading includes many of the books prescribed by the Civil Service Commissioners. The bugbear of the Commissioners appears to be the fear that between the two stools of a University and a Civil Service probationary career some of the candidates should come to the ground, and they point the moral of their caution by instances of failure which have occurred. We are not aware of the circumstances of the cases, but are strongly inclined to think that there must have been other causes which led to failure. To the majority of young men between seventeen and twenty-one (the ages of the successful candidates) the quiet and regularity of University life must prove more conducive to hard and steady work than the attractions of London. Then again the temptations of London cannot be ignored, and the single point in its favour appears to be the advantages to be gained from attendance in the Law Courts.

As long as the age for competition remains as at present from seventeen to twenty-one, so long may under-graduates from the Universities be expected to compete, and if they are successful it is but reasonable that they should not only be allowed, but encouraged, to continue their University career on condition of its being subordinated to the Commissioners' rules and regulations. If the Commissioners' opposition has eventually the effect of deterring University men from competing, the Indian Government may find occasion bitterly to repent having entrusted them with the management of the Civil Service examinations; for it is an unquestionable fact that the best men, taking them all round, who have entered the Civil Service by competition are those who were successful in the first year or two; and we believe we are correct in stating that a larger average of Oxford and Cambridge men both competed and were successful in those years than in any subsequent year.

Mr. Lee-Warner has done good suit and service in entering the lists against even such formidable champions as the Civil Service Commissioners.

A NEW PRESERVATIVE AGAINST CHOLERA.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—The use of copper as an antidote to, and a preventive of cholera, has been long familiar to medical men of the Homœopathic school.

Whoever studies a series of well-authenticated cases of copper-poisoning, will note that "vomiting, strong convulsions, and violent cramps," are among the symptoms produced. This fact taken in connection with Dr. Burg's statistics, given in your issue of the 13th inst., shows us that copper, when taken in minute doses through the skin, or in the process of breathing, will counteract the effects of a poison producing symptoms resembling those of copper-poisoning—an illustration of the law similia similibus curantur.

It would be interesting to learn whether, during the prevalence of cholera around them, workers in copper suffer less than usual from the ordinary effects of their trade. I think this would probably be found to be the case, thus furnishing a converse illustration of the law of similars. At other times, and under other circumstances, working in copper would be as unwholesome an occupation as ever.

OLD INDIAN.

Oct. 16, 1869.

I add the following extract from a pamphlet entitled "Plain Directions for the Treatment of Cholera and Epidemic Diarrhoea," by Dr. William Bayes, a homœopathic practitioner, published in 1865 by Turner and Co., 77, Fleet-street, E.C.:—"The best medicine as a preventive is undoubtedly cuprum (copper). Workmen in copper factories are reported to have had an immunity from cholera during previous epidemics."

EDUCATION FOR THE MILLION.—II. INDIA.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—Very little is generally known as to what extent elementary education has prevailed in India from the earliest ages, when the Aryans or Hindus subjugated the aboriginal race some three thousand years ago. On the foundation of each village a municipality was formed for self-government and independence, which has survived the Mahomedan conquest and our own occupation of the country. Every member of this municipality enjoys a certain portion of freehold land exempt from taxation, which descends hereditarily to the head of the family. Among others is the office of schoolmaster, who, in addition to his glebe land, receives one rupee monthly from each of his scholars, besides one day's rations alternately, so that his remuneration is regulated by the number of his pupils.

The education is strictly secular, and is confined generally to a competent knowledge of reading, writing, and arithmetic, which extends to notation of weights and measures. The pupils vary from four to ten years of age, after which they are deemed capable of further instruction in private schools or colleges; but these are all-day schools, as the pupils of different castes cannot take their food in common. The lessons in the village schools are for the most part taught by each class in a body repeating the first lines, such as spelling and arithmetic together, after the teacher—a method of instruction which is seldom forgotten.

In this way a foundation is laid on which education may be carried on hereafter to any extent. The pupils of these schools are for the most Brahmins and tradesfolk, who become priests or fill lay offices, from the village clerk to the highest offices of the State, while, again, no tradesman or merchant in India exists without a perfect knowledge of book-keeping. The agricultural classes do not in general avail themselves of these elementary schools as much as they might.

I need hardly advert to the beauty of the Sanscrit language, which constitutes that of the higher schools, nor to the progress the Hindus had made in the sciences before the greater part of Europe had emerged from barbarism; and it will be my business to advert to those studies as I proceed in exhibiting the more extensive system of secular education which prevailed before the English Government undertook to extend it throughout the extent of its dominion.

While the Government was inert in this direction, the missionaries were not inactive from the period when Vasco de Gama, in the end of the fifteenth century, led the way to India by the Cape of Good Hope, so that we now find the following missionary societies in full activity. The return in 1850 affords all the information on this subject then accessible to the public. The object of the missionaries in the first place is confessedly to train up natives in English to enable them to study polemical works as well as the Bible, so as to become preachers themselves in the vernacular language of the people. The several societies who sent missionaries to India at the above period were:—

1. Church Missionary Society.
2. Church Missionary Association.
3. General Assembly of the Church of England.
4. Bengal Benevolent Missionary Society.
5. Calcutta Baptist Missionary Society.

6. Calcutta School Society.
7. Calcutta High School Society.
8. Parental Academical Institution.
9. Philanthropic Academy.
10. Charitable and Orphan Institution.
11. Benevolent Institution of 1830.
12. Catholic Society of Calcutta.

This is sufficient to show that the missionaries have not been idle, though 91,000 converts out of a population of 195,000,000 is but a drop in the ocean after so much exertion, and extending over so long a period.

Turn we now to what the Company's Government had done to extend secular education among its subjects, amounting, according to the latest returns submitted to Parliament, to 149,835,545 souls. The East India Company in the year 1757 laid the foundation of our Indian Empire, in defence of its commerce in Bengal, after the destruction of its factory, and the murder of the greater portion of its servants, in the Black Hole of Calcutta. This object of retribution was effected by a detachment of troops, native and European, under Colonel Clive. A defensive war had for some years been carried on at Madras, in which the French united with some of the native Powers, between the years 1744 and 1760; between that period and 1769 the administration of the Bengal Presidency was conducted by Colonel, better known as Lord Clive. He was succeeded by Mr. Warren Hastings, who had for some years filled the highest public offices in India; during which he became a respectable Oriental linguist, and, more than his cotemporaries, acquired a thorough knowledge of the natives and of their institutions.

Madras and Bombay meanwhile were engaged in local wars, and had no time or inclination to direct their attention to promote native education.

To Warren Hastings is due the first effort made to keep alive the spirit of education that still existed under his Government. During his administration he established at the Government expense a college in Calcutta for the study of Arabic and Persian literature, to which were afterwards added classes for the study of the vernacular Bengali and of English.

At a subsequent period, in the year 1823, a Sanscrit college was founded in Calcutta, in which were professors of Sanscrit, English, Arabic, Persian, as also Urdu, and Bengali. It was divided into separate classes, and the following number of students, according to official return in 1854, were found to be all Hindus:—

Law ...	12 "
Rhetoric ...	19 "
Literature ...	33 "
Grammar ...	219 "
Juniors under monitors ...	87 "

Total ... 386

Thirty scholarships were attached to this institution, receiving from £12 to £38 per annum. From this period the company, under the auspices of the Crown and the British Parliament, was recognised as a political body, and empowered to carry on war in India, but Mr. Pitt's Bill of 1784 placed that function under the supervision of a Board of Control appointed by the Crown. Warren Hastings returned to England and was succeeded in his government by the Marquis Cornwallis, and subsequently by Lord Mornington, afterwards created Marquis Wellesley. Both these governors were engaged in war during the whole of their administration, and before the retirement of the latter and the short second administration of Marquis Cornwallis, no additional steps were taken towards the promotion of education, though the Marquis Wellesley had deputed the Rev. Dr. Claudius Buchanan to report on the system and condition of education in Mysore and in Burmah. Little appears to have been done for education during the government of the Earl Minto, while his successor, Earl Moira (Marquis of Hastings), was called on to defend the North-West Provinces of Bengal from the assaults of the Nepaulese in 1814, and to conduct the subsequent Mahratta War in 1816-19, in which he had to contend against the great confederacy which called forth the exertions of sixty thousand of his troops to cope with twice that number, over an area of as many square miles. The acquisition of the territory at the end of this war afforded an opportunity of extending education to our native subjects, which must be deferred for another letter.

Notices of Books.

Nirgis: a Tale of the Indian Mutiny; and Bismillah, or Happy Days in Cashmere. By Hafiz Allard. W. H. Allen and Co. 1869.

This volume contains a good deal of interesting matter somewhat crudely put together. It is evidently written by a gentleman thoroughly conversant with Anglo-Indian officialism, and it shows, too, a pretty wide experience of native ideas and manners. The interest of the first story centres in and around Delhi during the memorable year of mutiny. In the second we are carried away from the Delhi of 1860 into the poetic regions of Cashmere. The heroine of the first is a native singer, Nirgis, who leads a pure life amidst the impure surroundings of poor old Mohammed Bahadoor Shah's mock-imperial court in the once queenly city of Shah-Jehan. Her adventures, we believe, are founded on the journal kept by a real slave-girl in Delhi during the siege, one of those spies whose information, under Hodson's skilful management, threw so much light, for our benefit, on the progress of affairs within the doomed city. The love passages, we presume, are purely or mainly imaginary, although it is not hard to conceive their possibility. Nirgis herself makes a presentable heroine, whose devotion to the English may fairly be explained by her gratitude to one of their number, and her ungrudging love for another. The other characters, English and native, represent, so far as a few descriptive touches, aided by some brief dialogue, can do, various types and shades of living humanity in the East. It is strange however to find among the English personages hardly one with a true English name. The chief faults of the story are want of skill in arrangement of materials, and want of space for developing the characters. In fact, the author's conceptions are too big and many for his canvass; the principle of selection, carefully applied, would have enabled him to produce a better story, at the expense of many pages which have really nothing to do with it. It may be said however that the story is meant to be a mere setting for all kinds of descriptive details and passing comments connected either with the history of Delhi and its people or with the course of Anglo-Indian politics. From this point of view both stories may claim a special interest for readers desiring to be instructed while they are amused.

To our minds "Bismillah" shows a great improvement on "Nirgis." It is less scrappy; it carries us over newer ground; it gives freer scope to the author's humorous and satiric bent; and the story, such as it is, seems to blend more easily with the illustrative matter. The writing too has kept pace with the other improvements. The love of Bismillah for her English cousin is portrayed with a graceful and delicate hand, and developed with much fine poetic insight; while the conflict of feelings on both sides, produced by the different circumstances and tendencies of Eastern and Western life, furnishes a sufficient crop of retarding incidents, through which the stream of true love has to make its way. A good deal of amusement may be extracted from the minor characters of the tale, especially the competition Green Poppy, and the couple who rejoice in the name of Popkins. The author is rather too hard perhaps on the class of civilians represented by the former personage; but he has not overdrawn the native's ingrained prejudice in favour of birth and high breeding. The story apart, we may draw the reader's attention to the many excellent descriptions of places and scenery, which might form in themselves a useful guide-book to the land which Moore immortalised in his "Lalla Rookh."

Notes on the North-Western Provinces of India. By a District Officer. W. H. Allen and Co. 1869.

In a modest little volume of a hundred and sixty pages the author has condensed a good deal of special information about one of the most populous and important provinces in British India. Written in the first place as a sort of guide to young civilians, his book deserves leisurely perusal at the hands of all who care for something more than a feeble smattering of information regarding the country at large. A description of the area, population, and official organisation of the North-West Provinces is followed by interesting chapters on the soils and crops of those regions. From these, among other things, the inquiring reader will learn how much of the farm-yard manure is converted into fuel for the million, how very little rice is grown in the North-West, and that waste lands, in the sense of barren tracts without an owner, are hardly to be found there except in the Terai and among the Hills. Even some readers of fair Indian experience will be surprised to hear that in the land of khareef and rubbee harvests little more than five per cent. of the ordinary villary lands are cropped twice a year. The author in passing does full justice to the upright and gentlemanly behaviour of the indigo-planters, as a body, towards the native cultivators, and declares that the district officer has no better counsellors and assistants, than those among them who have leisure to think of other things besides indigo. In spite of the small profits netted by the ryots, they like to plant indigo partly because of the money advanced to them for that purpose at a most seasonable time, partly because an after-crop of wheat can always be raised as soon as the indigo plant has been cut. With regard to cotton it is fairly argued that, unless Manchester follows the example set by Government in the case of opium and by the indigo-planters with respect to indigo, it cannot expect India to keep it duly supplied with cotton. Government does all it safely can to help Manchester, but there are limits to its power of interfering for any good purpose.

A pretty long chapter is devoted to the subject of irrigation, "the soul of agriculture in the North-West Provinces." Irrigation doubles the rent, quadruples the produce, begets the sowing of a better class of crops, in short, means wealth and comfort, instead of poverty and starvation. The advantage of canals in aid, not in supersession of wells, is clearly pointed out. Canals are needed wherever wells are scarce or sunk very deep below the surface. They should be made by Government, never by private companies. The uniform rate of charge for water all over the country, as proposed by Lord Elgin, is declared to be a mistake, but there are great objections to the present system of charging not according to quantity, but according to the character of the crops laid down. An interesting chapter on rent-rates is followed by a well-considered inquiry into land tenures. The author here does his best to make plain to the average Englishman the main features and bearings of the Indian land-laws. He points out the resemblances between the old feudal tenures of Europe and the system established in India by the Mogul Emperors. His exposition of the way in which the proprietary rights of the Government were modified and restricted by actual usage, is well worth considering. The State, he argues, was never regarded as sole landlord. Its rights were co-ordinate, in fact if not in theory, with those of individual or corporate landholders. Both Hindu and Mohammedan law limited the sovereign's right to a certain share of the produce—a sixth in the old days, a half at most under the Moguls. The popular language, feelings, traditions, all tended to uphold this limitation in the interests of the private owner or part-owner of land. At the same time the sovereign's ultimate lordship was enforced under the Moguls, as in feudal England, by the exaction of presents in money from the heir to an estate on its owner's death, as the one condition of his own succession to the estate. The succession duty in modern England is merely another mode of enforcing the old feudal right. Under British rule in India that right of ultimate or joint-ownership, whichever theory we accept, still prevails in form as well as substance almost everywhere outside Bengal Proper. For a time indeed we were guilty of pushing that right too far—to the extent of exacting two-thirds of the yearly rental. Now however, at least in the North-West Provinces, we are content to take one half—an improvement on the practice of the Mogul rulers who assessed the produce, not the rental. Like many other thoughtful men of the day, our author objects to the idea of a permanent settlement. But the reader must turn to his book for further information.

Spirit of the Indian Press.

THE SUPERSESSION SHAM.

The Madras Athenæum points out that the real meaning of supersession is when, within the limits of the same cadre, a quondam junior steps over the head of a senior, supersession to which the officers of purchase regiments are partly accustomed; but varying rates of promotion in different cadres, as for example, more rapid in the Engineers than in the Artillery, or vice versa, does not come technically under the head of supersession, but of luck. So likewise must it be with the distinct and separate gradation lists of general officers of the British and Indian lines respectively. The Indian list has the advantage pro tem, and has a perfect right to its luck. We wonder whether, if the run of luck had chanced to be on the other side, the British authorities would have so promptly agreed to stop promotion, because the Indian colonels were lagging behind? Do we indeed rather fancy we can see them doing it? When arguing a cause on the grounds of pure justice, it seems almost ignoble to condescend to talk about expediency, but as there are here and there a few reasoners, with whom prudential motives have greater weight than pure justice can pretend to, it may be as well just to note briefly a consideration or two of expediency. And first, we would remark that, as far as its Indian service is concerned, the British Line appears to us rather to gain than to lose by the so-called supersession. It can lose nothing, because the allotment of divisionary commands is fixed. The Indian majors-general cannot hold above a certain number, however fast they may get promoted. The British majors-general must hold the number allotted to them, however slowly they may get promoted. It may be said that, though as regards the class the thing is equal, still the luck of an individual may be affected by his getting his promotion slower than another. Now we might say that, if so, it is only his luck that regulations cannot be made for individuals, that it would be a very doubtful boon to a British colonel commanding a regiment in India to lose his command for the chance of getting a division as a junior major-general! But it is sufficient to observe that under the rules of the service, the anterior promotion of an Indian colonel could not cut out the British one, simply because the appointments which the two could hold are absolutely distinct. On the other hand, the promotion of Indian officers to the rank of major-general, in so far as it occurs by casualties in the old Indian gradation list as at present, is a great advantage to the service, and to a certain extent a relief to the finances. The major-general cannot command a regiment, and cannot, or rather ought not to, command a brigade. The chances are a dozen to one against his getting a division, and he usually goes home to England at once, or at any rate after a brief period. When at home he gets £456 per annum in lieu of the colonel's or lieutenant-colonel's pay which he was drawing out here—a very considerable saving. We take no account here of the colonel's allowances which he may or may not get into the bargain, as they in no way depend on his being a major-general. Promotion to major-general does practically in most cases save the State the difference between the English and Indian rates aforesaid, while in the case of a staff corps man it entails no promotion whatever, and in that of a local less promotion than of yore, and which in a few years time will dwindle down to none at all. It also clears a man off the mass of supernumerary field officers, and relieves the stagnation as to appointments now existing among the juniors of field rank. Now we think we have shown that these officers have no real "call" to complain of supersession. But, even supposing for the sake of argument that they had, we fail to perceive the propriety of stopping the Indian promotions. It seems to us not only ungenerous, but highly inexpedient, and, worst of all, positively unjust. It would be a more real breach of the guarantee than anything that has taken place yet.

STATION TALK.

DEOLEE, Sept. 11.—Although Dame Nature has been friendly, the budyas do not seem disposed to imitate her; for instead of giving more they are giving less. A few days ago gram was selling at 5 seers per rupee; it is now 4½ seers; ghee, or more properly speaking filthy grease, was 14 chittacks per rupee; it is now only 13 chittacks. But is this wonderful? If our farmers at home were all of one class, of one creed, of one family as it were, and they had certain laws and regulations among themselves, over which others had no control, and with which Government would not interfere, what would be the price of bread?

SUBATHOO, Sept. 15.—Since I last wrote to you, I am sorry to relate that cholera has again made its appearance among the old 41st Regiment, and on this occasion in a more formidable manner than on the previous one. The number of men who have fallen victims are fourteen, previously seven, total twenty-one. Children died since arrival, thirty females. The number does not include two officers and one young lady, the daughter of Paymaster Simpson. The number of deaths that have occurred since our arrival at this station have during our short stay exceeded the whole number we lost during our three years' residence at Agra, a station according to all accounts that has been from time immemorial the reception ground of many a European soldier and European resident. The regiment is at present divided into three separate detachments. Headquarters and six companies under command of Colonel Rowlands, V.C., at Solon, a place annually frequented for the purpose of undergoing the yearly musketry practice, distant about fifteen miles from Subathoo and twenty from Simla; it is usually occupied by companies of a regiment stationed at Subathoo during the visitation of cholera. Four companies under command of Major Wavell are at a place called Banglajee, distant about eight miles from Subathoo and twenty-three from Solon; it is situated in the territories of the Rajah of Cota, whose residing house is only about three-quarters of a mile from the encamping ground. The road from Subathoo to Banglajee is a very difficult one to traverse, being one continual decline to a river which divides the territories of the Rajah of Puttialla from those of Cota. After crossing the river a most stupendous hill has to be climbed, and in fact after crossing the river you are continually ascending until your arrival at the encampment, which is scattered over the face of a hill appointed for our present place of residence. Banglajee is on the whole a very healthy spot, and since our arrival here no cases of a serious nature have occurred, the prevailing illness being merely slight dysentery, usually occurring after the men's removal from barracks to camp. The married women, with some of their husbands, are at present at Subathoo, awaiting a favourable opportunity for removing to some hill side that may be considered healthier than that place. What most astonishes me and every man of the regiment in general is that several stations adjacently situated to Subathoo have entirely escaped a visitation from cholera. The Buffs stationed at Dugshai, a short distance from Subathoo, have, I have been informed, not had a single case admitted into their hospital. The cause of this I cannot ascertain. It seems to have been a yearly occurrence here, and even so late as when the 90th Light Infantry sojourned here, they had to undergo a similar flight to that of the present regiment.

ALLAHABAD, Sept. 17.—The station apparently has recovered its salubrity; disease and disaster do not now promenade the streets hand-in-hand. The troops in camp have not only shaken off the virulent disease, but also have progressed on the road to health so favourably as may induce the Major General to recall them to cantonment at an early date, perhaps by the 25th instant we may have the pleasure to witness the 56th band announcing this event to us. Once again comfortably located in the new barracks, the men ought to continue to improve and be equal to every emergency that may befall them. The Royal Artillery must remain in status quo for the present in the Wellington barracks; it is very improbable that the new barracks for their reception will be complete before the middle or the end of next year. Many good men from among the "upper ten" have gone up hill for the good purpose of recreation, and for the more excellent design of accompanying their "better halves" home again; these several absences and the absence of the "red coats" necessarily lessen the number of merry faces with whom one is familiar. An additional impost has been saddled on house proprietors—one per cent. on the value of the property. Happily it has given little offence, few minded men are so censorious as to complain at what is indeed a tax, just as any other lucrative speculation. But small as the impost is on individual property, in the aggregate it will amount to a large figure, and tells admirably of the skill of the imperial financier whose intuition led him to introduce a new form of revenue which must annually bring tens of thousands into the Government coffers.

PESHAWUR, Sept. 12.—I am exceedingly sorry to announce that cholera has been raging in the city amongst the natives since the 5th instant; the daily average number of victims supposed to have been carried off is thirty. Several similar cases of the above nature have occurred in the cantonment, where a committee, composed of military authorities of the station, having assembled on the 7th instant a resolution was passed that visits to the city should be avoided as far as practicable during its prevalence. The committee having concurred with the opinion, have established a cordon from the corner of the late Irregular Cavalry Lines to the City Dispensary, through which no natives, except those who are provided with a pass from the Deputy Commissioner, Cantonment Magistrate, or Brigade Major, are allowed to pass. The officiating Brigadier General commanding the Peshawur district has already issued orders for the British troops to be in readiness to move into camp, and the Executive Commissariat Officer has been ordered likewise to keep the movable column in attendance to assist the forces in the conveyance of their luggage, &c., &c. We had a heavy fall of rain from the night of the 9th instant up to 11 A.M. of the 11th; this will very probably reduce the heat and put a stop to the prevailing cholera, which has carried off hundreds since the 5th. The accidental death of a native khalassee of the Commissariat Department took place on the night of the 9th instant; the man is said to have committed suicide by plunging a knife into his breast and drawing it down to his stomach. The case was reported to the authorities, and an examination having been made by the medical officer in charge, the report was found to be true.—Delli Gazette Correspondent.

Miscellaneous.

CENTRAL PROVINCES.—In nearly all the districts of the Central Provinces the crops are reported to be progressing favourably, and there is said to be every prospect of their being above the average.

UMRISUR.—On the 6th Sept. the number of deaths at Umrissur from cholera was four; on the 7th, seven. What a contrast to the recent returns, which exhibited a mortality of 120 and 130 daily!

CURRENCY NOTES.—It appears from statements in the Gazette of India that the net profits on the currency note circulation for the year 1868-69 amounted to Rs. 726,034. Half the expenses of the year consisted in the purchase of premises, &c.

MR. MAINE.—The Hon. Mr. Maine was to leave Simla on the 23rd September, and stay a few days at Allahabad, Jubbulpore and Bombay before sailing for England on 9th October. Mr. Fitzjames Stephen, his successor, will reach India about the end of December.

THE KEROWLEE MUSNUD.—The Maharajah of Kerowlee having died without a son, the Government of India has recognised Luchmun Pal, the son of his younger brother, Bishen Pal, as successor to the Raj of Kerowlee.

SIR N. CHAMBERLAIN.—In a recent despatch the Secretary of State desired the Indian Government to grant a proper personal allowance, and an allowance for a requisite establishment, to Sir N. B. Chamberlain, selected to accompany his Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh during his stay in this country.

CHOLERA IN THE CENTRAL PROVINCES.—Cholera has now disappeared from Nagpore and Kamptee, but not from Jubbulpore. The Central Provinces paper states that two Europeans fell victims to the disease on the 17th instant—Mrs. Prowden and an overseer in the Forest Department.

PESHAWUR.—Though cholera may have been severe in the City of Peshawur, we have as yet learned of only three cases in the cantonment. These three were among the native troops. Brigadier-General Sam Browne and Dr. Summers, the Deputy Inspector-General of Hospitals, left Murree for Peshawur on the 9th inst.

FOUND DEAD.—There is a report from Meerut that the dead body of a Mrs. Purcell, whose husband is employed in the Telegraph department, was found at the bottom of a well on the 10th September. The deceased had been confined some short time previously, and it is supposed she destroyed herself while in an unsound state of mind.

YOUNG SHEPHERD.—the alleged Pootee Glazee of the Soonderbunds—has been tried by the Sudder Court, found guilty of the charge of "dacoity," and sentenced to ten years' imprisonment. The sentence is indeed a severe one. We are sorry for the young man. He appears to have been well liked among his own circle, and a great deal of sympathy has been expressed for him in several quarters.—Englishman's Saturday Evening Journal.

CIVIL SERVICE CANDIDATES.—Two more of our young men are proceeding to England by the next mail steamer. One of them, Baboo Lali Mohun Ghose, is the younger brother of the well-known barrister Mr. M. Ghose; and the other, Baboo Krishna Govind Gupta, is a promising youth of the Dacca College, and an earnest member of the local Brahmo Samaj. They both desire to compete for the Indian Civil Service.—Indian Mirror.

PORT CANNING COMPANY.—Counsel's opinion taken by the Port Canning directors is that in India the capital of a limited company cannot be decreased. The directors have, however, signified their willingness to give an undertaking that no further calls beyond that of Rs. 100 recently made shall be made without the previous consent of the shareholders being obtained by a general meeting. This assurance will not satisfy the Bombay shareholders, who insist on a reconstruction of the present company.

THE LATE RAIDS ON THE N.W. FRONTIER.—"The tribes implicated in the late disturbance in Hazara were," says our Agra contemporary, "the Puraee Syuds, the Akhzaies, and a section of the Hussunzaies. There were five villagers killed and fifteen severely wounded, of whom at least two have since died. Many cattle were also cut up or mutilated. No preparations are yet being made to chastise the tribes."

BUOTAN.—Our Umballa contemporary gives us the following news regarding Bhotan:—"The civil war between Tongso Penlow and the Thingbo and Andiforung Jungpens still goes on. The latter have lately sent envoys to Nepaul, probably to ask for assistance. Colonel Haughton has been frequently asked by the contending parties to interfere, but of course has resolutely declined to entertain such a request for a moment."

DR. MUIR.—The Pioneer assures us there is no truth whatever in the report given in the Home News of August 13th that Dr. Muir, the present Inspector-General of Hospitals, is about to return home, and that Dr. Beatson is again coming out to India in that capacity. Our contemporary is glad to be able to give this contradiction, not from any unwillingness to see Dr. Beatson back in this country, where he has done useful service, but because it is the feeling of the medical profession and of the army that Dr. Muir's important functions could not be in hands more capable.

SIR W. MANSFIELD.—The Mofussile, to whose statements at present we attach considerable credence, repeats the statement that it is rumoured in well-informed circles in Simla that the Government of India has applied to the Home Government to extend the Commander-in-Chief's term of office by one year, in order that his Excellency may continue to give the benefit of his advice and experience in financial matters. Our contemporary also observes that the advent of Sir Augustus Spencer to Bengal, as Sir William Mansfield's successor, is still looked for.

FAMINE RELIEF WORKS IN THE PUNJAB.—The Government of India has sanctioned, from the balance of the fund raised for famine relief in the Punjab in 1861, Rs. 50,000 (in addition to a previous grant of a lakh) for the relief of distress in the Punjab. This money will be devoted exclusively to the relief of such of the poor as are unable to work from infirmity or old age. The Sirhind Canal and the Baree Doab Canal, for which the Public Works Department is ready to advance funds, will afford sufficient employment for the able-bodied poor in the Jullundur district. In Hissar, similarly, those who can work will be provided with employment on the new line of canal, which has been laid out from Indree, above Kurnal, to Suffedhun.

AN ODD SUPERSTITION.—"A long pull, a strong pull, and a pull altogether" is capable of effecting a very great deal, but few would have thought that vigorous tugging at a rope could open the windows of heaven over a thirsty land. Such, however, is the belief in Burmah. That country having suffered long for want of rain the inhabitants of Mandalay resolved to make a pull for it. The idea is that one party represents the guardian spirit of the rain, the other the antagonistic spirit which withholds the rain. The two parties get pulling with ropes to see which is the stronger. The party representing the spirit of the rain is, as per arrangement, allowed to carry the day. This superstitious but harmless ceremony was recently performed with all gravity under the direction of two Ministers of State in Mandalay.

MEDICAL.—We regret to learn from the Lucknow paper that Dr. Dunn, of the 5th Lancers, died of cholera on Sept. 15, the last case in the station. "Dr. Dunn," says our contemporary, "was one of the very ablest medical men we had, either civil or military. He was indefatigable in his exertions to save the lives of the men of his corps attacked during the recent epidemic, and he was eminently and conspicuously successful in more than one case. Our readers will recollect the remarkable cure effected by Assistant Surgeon Dunn some time ago of a private of the Lancers, who was impaled on his own lance. The unfortunate man begged hard that some one would in mercy despatch him, but thanks to the skill of the deceased gentleman he is up and doing well. The announcement of the demise of Dr. Dunn will be received with unfeigned regret by all who knew him."

JODHPORE.—Although we never expect to see the Maharajah of Jodhpore become a model ruler, nor, in fact, anything else than he has always been—a blindly selfish oppressor, it is gratifying to learn that he has requested the Government of India to construct a metalled road through his territory, employing English engineers at his expense. A contemporary recalls to mind the fact that his Highness lately consented to bear the expense of constructing that portion of the proposed railway from Agra to Ahmedpore which passes through his territories, and adds:—"His Highness thinks, and justly, too, that such works of utility will bring civilisation home to the people of his country." It is never too late to mend, but Tukht Sing has yet to show that he can care for the civilisation of his people. His Highness had, no doubt, reason to "think" that his cup of iniquity as a ruler was well nigh filled to the brim, and that a temporary if simulated zeal for "works of public utility," especially in a trying season like the present, would cover a multitude of sins.—Times of India

THE REDISTRIBUTION OF PROVINCES.—The scheme for the redistribution of provinces, now before the Government of India, does not, we believe, propose to create a lieutenant-governorship of the Central Provinces, but rather to break up those provinces, by giving Bombay the Marathi-speaking and Allahabad the Hindi-speaking districts. Bombay will make over Sind to the Panjab, which will have the whole valley of the Indus, and Kurrachee as its port, while Bombay possesses all the cotton country. It is proposed to add Saubulpore to Orissa, and put the whole Mahanuddy Valley and Orya speaking people under a Chief Commissioner. Madras will be left with the Northern Circars, but will be stripped probably of some of the hill states, which it will not be sorry to lose. In prospect of this, it is satisfactory that Colonel Dalton, Commissioner of Nagpore, has applied for two years' extension of service. His experience and influence with the tribes in and near the Mahanuddy Valley are unrivalled.—Friend of India, Sept. 16.

CIVIL.—The Rangoon papers record the death of Mr. Thomas Peachey, Accountant General of British Burmah, at sea, on the 6th of August. Mr. Peachey had obtained three months' leave of absence for the benefit of his health, and had proceeded to sea with Mrs. Peachey in the barque Empress. That vessel, becoming leaky, was obliged to put back to Rangoon, and the news of Mr. Peachey's death was thus received.—We learn from Allahabad that inflammation of the brain was the cause of the death of Mr. Robert Jardine, C.S., the brother of the Government Advocate of the N.W. Provinces. Mr. Jardine had been for some days manifestly out of health, but nothing in the least serious was apprehended until the very morning of the day on which he died; then he suddenly became delirious, and did not recover consciousness before his death on the afternoon of the 9th. His young wife, herself at the time very ill, was in utter ignorance of her husband's danger until a few minutes before his death, when she was carried into his room just in time to see him breathe his last. "Mr. Jardine," remarks our contemporary, "was a man of marked ability, and was considered in his own service an officer of the greatest promise."

AN INDIAN NOVEL.—A novel for native ladies, written in the chastest colloquial style and depicting, with close fidelity and artistic skill, not merely the everyday life of the Indian Mussulman, but that inner domestic life from which he is so unwilling to draw the veil, is a most remarkable incident in the history of Urdu literature. Sir William Muir and Mr. Kempson vouch for the style, and the author, Mahomed Nazir Ahmad, Settlement Officer at Jaloun, has received a reward of Rs. 1,000 from Government, which has also taken 2,000 copies of the work. It is intended to recommend the book to the Board of Examiners. The author has chosen a theme which shows the household life of the Mussulman under two aspects—the misery produced by an ill assorted union, and the happiness resulting from a judicious marriage. All the extravagancies and superstitions of Oriental writers have been put aside. The plot of the "Bride's Mirror" is simple. The hero marries a wife who is ignorant, vulgar, and ill-tempered, who sows strife wherever she goes, and makes her husband's life intolerable. At last, in a fit of anger, she returns to her father's house. The hero then marries her younger sister, Asgari, who is the opposite of her predecessor in every respect. The interest of the book consists in showing the different ways in which they discharged their duties as wives and housekeepers. The second wife saves the house when on the verge of insolvency through previous mismanagement. In the end the elevating effects of domestic bereavement are exhibited with a skill and appreciation that can hardly be of national origin. Asgari's children die in their infancy, and these losses lead to direct efforts for the education of her countrywomen. The book should be translated into English.—Friend of India.

BENGAL MILITARY.—The Pioneer hears that cholera has entirely left H.M.'s 105th Regiment. It is understood that Captain E. F. B. Brooke, A.D.C., personal staff of his Excellency the Viceroy, will take leave to Europe early in spring.—"We hear from Rawul Pindoe," says the Delhi Gazette, "that a rumour prevailed there, which some traced to a high source and which is at least not devoid of probability, to the effect that her Majesty's 106th Regiment would replace the 88th at Nowshera, and that the latter, instead of proceeding towards Bombay, as was at one time intended, would probably relieve the 38th at Sealkote. This arrangement is said to be necessitated by the scarcity of provisions now prevailing in the Punjab, and by the difficulty which the removal of the 5th Fusiliers from Ferozepore would consequently entail. Certain it is that the price of necessaries is everywhere high in that province, and these are not, we opine, the only 'moves' that are likely to be effected thereby during the ensuing cold season."—The Pioneer records the death of Lieutenant A. C. Hennessey, 2nd squadron officer of the 14th Bengal Cavalry, which took place at Mussoorie on the 16th inst. Lieut. Hennessey served as a volunteer in the fort of Agra and neighbourhood during the Mutiny, and for his gallant conduct on several occasions received a commission. When Lieut. Colonel Murray raised the Jat Horse Mr. Hennessey was appointed adjutant, and to his exertions Colonel Murray mainly attributed the efficiency of the regiment which bears his name. It is said that Lieutenant Hennessey contracted the disease of which he has now died during the Bhotan campaign, another victim to that pestilential climate.—

We regret to learn of the death in camp, at Solon, of Captain Peddie, her Majesty's 41st Regiment.—A committee is about to assemble at Deyrah to pronounce on the suitability of that place as the station for a regiment of British cavalry.—Major-General Beatson, commanding the Sirhind division, is again so ill as to have been compelled to take leave to Simla.—We observe that Major R. W. Glasse, 15th Punjab Infantry, has been committed to the Chief Court on a charge of having outraged a native girl under age, and thereby caused her death.—The Pioneer hears from Subathoo, under date the 15th inst., that owing to one or two fresh cases of cholera in the 41st Regiment, one of the camps had been ordered to change its ground.

Madras.

MR. J. H. MASTER.—A large station dinner was given on the 9th instant to Mr. J. H. Master at Waitair, on his being relieved by Mr. E. C. G. Thomas of his duties as Acting Civil and Sessions Judge of Vizagapatam.—Madras Athenæum, Sept. 17.

THE WEATHER.—As a rule September is the most unpleasant period of the year in Madras; the air is usually still, the sky overclouded, and the temperature muggy and enervating. This year however it is proving a very tolerable season; we have sunny sea breezy days, with heavy showers of rain at night. Our esplanades and roadsides are covered with green grass, the wells have received large supplies of water, the drains have been well flushed, and altogether the prospects of next season are most encouraging.—Madras Times.

OFFICIAL MOVEMENTS.—During the past week the Bishop, the Governor, and the Commander-in-Chief, have left the Presidency, and all three have gone on different official errands in different parts of the Presidency, but all three will for a while be together in the pleasant town of Bangalore. Lord Napier will go from Bangalore to Hoonsoor, and thence to Ootacamund, where he will open the Agricultural Exhibition, which is to be held on the 15th proximo. The Garrison Band will be despatched to the Nilgherries on the 3rd October, from which circumstance we infer that some gala days are in store for the happy Ootacamundians, and for all those Madrasces who may be fortunate enough to take a "run up" to the hills during his lordship's stay there. His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief has gone on a tour of inspection to Bangalore and the Western Coast. He will probably return to the Presidency in three weeks. Our good bishop has the hardest work of all before him; his lordship's visitation tour extends over a wide area. After the ordination held yesterday at Bangalore, Dr. Gell proceeds to Mysore, the Western Coast, Hyderabad, and the Northern Circars, whence he will return to the Presidency in February next.—Madras Times, Sept. 20.

MILITARY.—Some further cases of cholera have occurred amongst the men of H.M.'s 45th Regiment. Two men were attacked with the disease on Thursday last at Palaveram, and one of them died. There are now two very serious cases in the Regimental Hospital at Maras. The F and I companies of the regiment are to be marched to Palaveram to-night.—Madras Times, Sept. 11.—The Artillery Barrack in Fort St. George was the scene of a terrible tragedy on Sept. 19. Between eight and nine A.M., when the gunners were breakfasting, a man named Jamieson stabbed his comrade Rogers in the heart with a common breakfast knife, in three places; the knife was bent from the force with which it was used. The medical officers residing in the Fort were called in, but life was extinct several minutes before they viewed the body. The murderer was immediately arrested.—Lieut. Campbell, of the Body Guard, goes home almost immediately. Lieutenant Dalrymple, A.D.C., will, most probably, act for him as Adjutant.—Madras Athenæum, Sept. 17.—It has been definitely settled that the 16th Lancers shall move from Bangalore to Secunderabad, and the 18th Hussars from Secunderabad to Bangalore.

STATION TALK.

KURRACHEE, Sept. 11.—The order issued by Brigadier-General Forbes, C.B., directing the invalids and time-expired men of British troops serving in Sind to proceed to Bombay by to-day's mail steamer, for the purpose of joining the general depot, has been cancelled, owing to instructions having been received by telegram from army headquarters to the effect that they should be sent to Bombay on the 29th inst. On arrival there, they will be transhipped to the transports intended to convey them to England. Lieutenant Gordon, of the 21st Fusiliers, will proceed in command; and Surgeon Chapple, of the 18th Brigade Royal Artillery, in medical charge, in place of Dr. Martin, who was at first detailed for this duty. The ship Morning Glory (Captain Evans), which left London on the 6th May last, arrived in our harbour on the 9th with a general cargo, consisting chiefly of Government stores. She lost her figure-head during the voyage, having experienced rough weather off the Cape. We have now three vessels in harbour—namely, the Sultana, which arrived from London on the 24th ultimo; the Parana, which arrived on the 5th inst. with a cargo of malt liquor; and the Morning Glory.—Times of India Correspondent.

GUJARAT, Sept. 8.—During the last week there has been a plentiful fall of rain throughout Gujarat. In fact the crops are everything that can be desired. Never was monsoon so favourable as it has proved to be this year. At one time it was feared that the rice crop would suffer, but that fear has vanished. Bajree, wheat, pulse, cotton, and tobacco, all promise a favourable out-turn. In the Chhrotur districts there is fully fifty per cent. more land sown with tobacco, and the out-turn expected is proportionately large. In the Ahmedabad district, the extent of land sown with cotton and wheat is equal to that of last year's.—Native Opinion Correspondent.

MHOW, Sept. 13.—The Assistant Adjutant General of the division has just had a very narrow escape. About six miles from this the Public Works Department has built a bridge, which was only opened to the public a few days ago. One of the first to cross it was Colonel Hewett, who, having more confidence, it would appear, in the stability of the Public Works Department's work than most people, but forgetting the old adage that "the higher the rise the greater the fall," actually attempted to cross it while riding on an elephant. Although, it is said, the sagacious animal was as careful as possible in going at a very slow pace, the bridge gave way under his weight, and down went the animal, and was thus nearly buried alive. The gallant colonel, with that presence of mind so characteristic of the British officer, jumped off just in time to save himself from being buried without a coffin! I give you the plain facts, and will leave you to moralise on them, as learnedly as you can, for they are suggestive of many reflections.—Deccan Herald, Sept. 20.

BROACH, Sept. 14.—Heavy showers of rain have visited this district during the last few days. The total rainfall up to date is thirty-three inches, which is about the yearly average for this place. The weather has been very favourable to the crops. The cotton crops are generally in splendid condition, and the plants look strong and healthy. The height of the plants sown in the early part of June is eleven to twelve inches, and that of the more recent sowings average from six to seven inches. The area of land under cotton cultivation in this district is 223,213 beegas this year, as compared to 198,664 beegas cultivated last year, which shows an increase of 24,549 beegas for the present year. From the hitherto favourable weather and the increased area of land under cotton cultivation, the cultivators anticipate the yield to be about twenty per cent. over that of last year. Your readers will remember that this time last year heavy rains and floods washed off the seeds sown in some of the low-lying lands in the district of Jumbooseer, which caused serious damage, and the yield was about thirty per cent. less than the previous year's (1867). But, happily, for the present, the crops in that district are very forward, and promise to fully make up for the deficiency of last year. A pair of Mason's full presses have been started here by the newly-established firm of Messrs. Greaves, in the immediate vicinity of the Victoria Cotton Gin and Press Company. The machinery is already put up, and the iron house, &c., will be completed in the course of about a month. We have now two full presses, and these will in a great measure facilitate the cotton trade here. The water in the Nerbudda is rising rapidly, and a flood is expected.—Sept. 19. During a few days last week heavy rain fell throughout this collectorate, which it was thought might injure the crops. During the last two days, however, the weather has been very favourable, and the anxiety of the ryots is at an end.

Miscellaneous.

THE GOVERNOR'S STAFF.—Captain T. Van Straubenzee, R.A., has been appointed Aide-de-Camp on the personal staff of his Excellency the Right Hon. the Governor, in succession to Captain Wake, appointed Inspector Small Arms Ammunition Factory.

CAPTAIN GILLESPIE.—Captain Gillespie has been released from confinement, the Court of Inquiry considering him guilty of no crime.

SCINDE RAILWAY.—The Times of India learns that the Muller bridge near Kurrachee, on the Scinde Railway line, has been swept away by the Indus, swollen by the rains.

POLICE.—It is said that Captain McNaughten, 3rd Light Cavalry, will be appointed to act for Lieut. Bibington in the Railway Police during the absence on furlough of that officer.

MAJOR GOULDSWORTHY.—A contemporary hears that Major Gouldsworthy, unattached, who served as Brigade Major of Cavalry with the Abyssinian Expedition, has accepted the office of Assistant Military Agent to Turkey, under the Agent, Aflatoon Pasha, in London.

TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT.—Lieut. A. Stiffe, Engineer, Submarine Telegraph, and Commander of the steamer Amberwitch, has been appointed until further orders to perform the duties of Director Mekran Coast and Submarine Telegraph, in addition to his own duties, vice Mr. Walton, proceeded to England on medical certificate.

ADEN.—The Sultan of Lahej, having come to learn that political pensions were granted some time ago to those Arab chiefs from whom Little Aden was purchased, has represented his claim for like liberal treatment. He sets up some sort of proprietary right, but the Government of India refuses to acknowledge his title. At the same time, the Bombay Government has been authorised, should it see fit, to grant the gentleman a small present as a token of good-will.

MILITARY.—The British garrison intended for Scetabuldee is, says a contemporary, to consist of one company of British infantry, one battery of Royal Artillery, and probable one company of native infantry. The armament of the fort will consist of the pieces already in position, magazine room being provided for one hundred rounds per piece.—A letter from Mhow of Sept. 18 states that a private soldier of the 2nd Dragon Guards committed suicide the day previous by blowing his brains out with a carbine in a sergeant's room. It appears that the unfortunate man had just come out of the cells after undergoing forty-two days' imprisonment.

THE LATE MR. H. RYLAND.—The following is an extract from a letter from the Commissioner of Scinde, Colonel Sir W. L. Mervweather, K.C.S.I., C.B., addressed to the Collector of Hyderabad:—"I have to express to you the extreme regret with which I have received the tidings of the death of Mr. H. Ryland. This gentleman's untimely demise must be in a great measure attributed to an unflinching sense of the paramount calls of duty, and his consequent disinclination to leave his post while he considered himself at all capable of carrying on work. While the result is much to be deplored, still such devotion cannot but command the highest admiration, and with his well approved service, of which you so justly write in terms of the highest commendation, only the more strongly mark how great a loss Government, and especially this province, has sustained in the death of this zealous, and highly meritorious officer."

ARRIVAL OF THE PERSIAN GULF CABLE.—The ship Tweed, Captain Stuart, arrived in Bombay harbour on Monday, Sept. 20, with about 1,200 tons of the telegraph cable about to be laid down in the Persian Gulf. She had also on board about 150 tons of the 1863 cable, with all necessary stores, including picking up gear, for the Amberwitch. The reputation of the Tweed for making quick passages is well known, and this passage still maintains that reputation; the ship left London on the 1st July and the Lizard on the 3rd July, so that from the latter place she has made the passage in seventy-nine days. The ship Calcutta, with the remainder of the cable, arrived the day after the Tweed. The Calcutta left seven days before the Tweed, but was passed by Captain Stuart off the Mauritius. The cable on board the Tweed and the Calcutta will be laid from Cape Jask (near the entrance of the Gulf) to Bushire, a distance of about 500 miles, thus connecting the cables at present laid down, and forming a complete line from Kurrachee to the head of the Persian Gulf. The Tweed and Calcutta were to lie in Bombay for some time to allow of the necessary machinery for laying the cable being fitted up and other arrangements made, and will probably proceed to the Gulf about the middle of next month. The steamers Coromandel, Lord Elphinstone, and Earl Canning will, we believe, assist in laying the cable.—Bombay Gazette.

COTTON REPORTS.—Mr. Melville, the general manager of the Mofussil Press and Ginning Company (Limited), has favoured us with the following information under yesterday's date:—"The following reports have just reached me regarding the weather and the crops in the cotton-growing districts:—Hingunghat.—Messrs. Warwick and Co. write on the 20th inst.:—'Since we last reported we have had heavy showers, but not such as to cause any injury to the cotton plants, and though sunshine is now wanted more than rain, the prospects of the crop continue to be excellent.'—Oomrawuttee.—We had heavy rain on the night of the 18th, and since then the weather has been cloudy and showery, and not exactly what was wanted. No more rain is wanted; indeed any more is likely to do harm. As yet however everything is all right and promises well. New cotton is expected in another six weeks.—Kangam, Sept. 18.—No rain has fallen here during the past week, but I learn that there were a few very slight showers in the surrounding districts. Strong sunshine has generally prevailed, and the ripening of the crops has progressed accordingly. There is, however, a considerable disparity in the size of many of the cotton plants, the first sowings presenting the most vigorous appearance. Taking the out-turn all through, however, it will, there is no doubt, exceed that of last year.—Guzerat.—The fall of rain up to date (22nd instant) at the various stations has been nearly as follows:—Surat and Wandere, forty-six inches; Broach, thirty-four inches; and Ahmedabad, twenty-four inches. The crop between the Taptee and the Nerbudda appears to have suffered from the recent excessive rain and is not looking nearly so well as that from Broach to Ahmedabad, which is now in very fair condition and likely, with fine weather, to turn out favourably. A few fields in the neighbourhood of Broach are beginning to flower.—Contracts for future delivery can now be made as follows:—Hingunghat, December delivery, Rs. 330 per candy.—Oomrawutte, January delivery, Rs. 310. These quotations include the usual allowances laid down in Bombay.—Bombay Gazette, Sept. 25.

GOVERNMENT GENERAL ORDERS.

ACTING ALLOWANCES.—FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT, MADRAS.

Simla, Sept. 10.—No. 3,349.—The following letter to the address of the Accountant-general, Madras, No. 3,319, dated September, 1869, is published for general information:—

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, No. 3,040, dated the 9th ultimo, and, in reply, to state that the rule contained in the order of this department, No. 3,129, dated the 8th December, 1868, "that when an officer holding an acting appointment is transferred to another appointment of not inferior emoluments, he shall continue to draw his acting allowances during the time spent in joining the new appointment," is applicable to every case of transfer to another appointment, whether substantive or acting, of not inferior emolument.

2. I am desired, however, to take this opportunity of observing, with reference to the order of December 1858, mentioned above, and to the subsequent order of this department, No. 743, dated May 25, 1869, that no officer should draw acting allowances for any office after the substantive incumbent of that office has resumed charge.

PENSIONS AND GRATUITIES.

Sept. 8.—No. 3,047.—Read again, Financial Resolution, No. 10a, dated Sept. 15, 1862, regarding gratuities of Uncovenanted Servants.

Resolution.—Under the rules of the uncovenanted service, an officer discharged on reduction of establishment with a gratuity, if subsequently re-employed under Government, should refund his gratuity in the event of his being desirous of regaining the service for which the gratuity was allowed; and under the terms of Financial Resolution of Sept. 15, 1862, and of paragraph 15 of the Uncovenanted Service Pension Rules of April 13, 1861, it is imperative that the refund should be made at the time of re-employment. But there are cases of officers who, in consequence of their having been re-employed under Government before the issue of the order of Sept. 15, 1862, had no opportunity of securing the benefits of that order by refunding their gratuity at the time of re-employment; and in regard to these the Governor-general in Council is pleased to rule that if the officers wish to claim pension hereafter in respect of the previous service for which they obtained a gratuity, they must refund the gratuity at once, and not wait till they wish to claim pension.

JUNIOR CIVIL SERVANTS—ALLOWANCES.

No. 3,076.—The following resolution is published for general information:—

Read the undermentioned papers:—

Extract from an order of the Government of India in the home department, No. 4,373, dated Sept. 9, 1867, to the effect that junior civil servants attending examinations for prizes for the study of the Oriental languages are not entitled to travelling allowance for the journeys to and from the places where the examinations are held.

Resolution No. 2,749, passed in this department on Sept. 24, 1867, ruling that the junior civil servants referred to above "may be allowed leave on full pay for one month, and that, on their passing a successful examination, they may be allowed an extension of leave on full pay for another month, and be permitted to count the period of the original leave and of the extension as service and residence, provided that the period of leave on this account, which carries pay, and counts as service and residence, shall in no case exceed two months on one occasion, or twelve months in the aggregate."

Resolution No. 1,480, passed in this department on March 12 last, deciding "that no public officer can be permitted to draw travelling allowance, whether daily or annual, during absence on leave of any description," but that a covenanted civil servant in Bombay may draw house rent or tentage during absence or privilege leave, provided he places his house or tent at the disposal of his locum tenens, and that the locum tenens does not receive house rent or tentage at the same time.

Endorsement from the Chief Secretary to the Government of Bombay, No. 691, dated May 28 last, and enclosures, raising objections to the ruling of March 12 last.

Letter to ditto, No. 2,275, dated Aug. 30 last, in reply to the above.

Endorsement from ditto, No. 3,015, dated Aug. 27 last, submitting, in continuation of the endorsement No. 691, of May 28 last, a claim from Mr. H. J. Stokes, a covenanted civil servant in Bombay, to the fixed travelling allowance and tentage of a 1st assistant collector, during absence on leave to attend an examination for a prize in Canarese.

Resolution.

The Governor general in Council is unable to sanction any modification of the resolution of March 12 last; but observing that, if junior civil servants who obtain prizes for the study of the Oriental languages are obliged to pay their own expenses to and from the places where the examinations are held, the value of their prizes will be considerably diminished, his Excellency in Council is pleased to rule, in supersession of the order No. 4,373, passed in the home department on Sept. 9, 1867, that a junior civilian who obtains a reward for proficiency in an Oriental language shall be permitted, in addition to the reward, to draw travelling allowance at the usual rates for journeys exceeding five miles to and from the place of examination.

LEAVE—FURLOUGH—MILITARY.

Adjt.-gen's. Office, Head-Qrs., Simla, Sept. 7.—G.O. 253.—In publishing for information the annexed extract from military department letter No. 472, dated Aug. 25 last, relative to applications for furlough on private affairs, the C. in C. desires to notify to the officers concerned that they must avail themselves of their furlough within two months from the date of announcement in Govt. G.O.:—"I am to request therefore, that, under H.E.'s orders, no application for furlough be forwarded to the Govt. at a date earlier than two months before that fixed by the officer as the date for the commencement of his leave, accompanied by the requisite pay certificates bearing date not more than a month earlier."

2. In the case of an applicant whose furlough is not notified within three months from the date of his no-demand certificate, it will be necessary to forward to army head-quarters a fresh no demand certificate or a guarantee in lieu.

3. As the grant of furlough on private affairs is contingent on vacancies occurring in the number of furloughs allowed, leaves of this nature cannot be guaranteed from a specific date, and it is therefore essential that the form of application laid down in G.G.O. No. 34 of 1869 should be closely adhered to on all future occasions.

MEDICAL ATTENDANCE.

Sept. 9.—No. 945.—From E. C. Bayley, Esq., secretary to the Government of India, home department, to the secretary to the Government of the Punjab, No. 3,859, dated Simla, Aug. 23, 1869:—

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, No. 1,979, dated Aug. 1, submitting a question regarding the title of military officers and chaplains visiting a hill sanitarium to gratuitous medical attendance, and requesting an authoritative ruling as to the persons entitled, when residing at such station, to the privilege for themselves and their families.

2. In reply, I am to quote the decision of the Government of India on a former occasion on a similar reference [mentioned below], and to state that the ruling therein laid down holds good whatever the circumstances are under which an officer and his family are resident at a hill station, and further that all officers and their families who are entitled to gratuitous attendance in a cantonment or civil station are entitled to it at any other place where there is a medical officer paid by Government staff or for general duties.

"Ecclesiastical Proceedings, June, 1864, No. 16.—From E. C. Bayley, Esq., secretary to the Government of India, home department, to the Venerable J. H. Pratt, Archdeacon of Calcutta, No. 1,070, dated Simla, June 30, 1864:—I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, dated the 10th ult., and in reply to refer you to the order of Jan. 18, 1856, republished in paragraph 8 of resolution dated Sept. 29, 1857, under which the families of chaplains and assistant chaplains, wherever they may be in India, are clearly entitled to be attended gratuitously by the medical officers of Government."

DEPARTURES.—The following police officers reported their departure from India on the dates and on the vessels mentioned:—Mr. B. H. Ellis, Aug. 23, Meinam; Mr. G. J. Cawley, Aug. 30, Mooltan.

MUNICIPAL COMMISSIONERS.—The following gentlemen to be municipal commissioners for the town of Chittagong, viz.:—Mr. C. F. Manson, Mr. C. Marshall. Dr. R. G. Mathew to be a commissioner for the town of Midnapore.

MEDICAL STAFF.—REMOVAL.—In continuation of G.O., No. 139, June 22, 1867, the head quarters of the Dacca circle of medical superintendence is, with the sanction of Government, removed from Dacca to Shilong.

GOVERNMENT PRINTING ESTABLISHMENT.—The Governor general in Council has ruled that the superintendent of Government printing shall not undertake any work other than the current secretariat work of the Supreme Government for any public officer without cash payment.

UNATTACHED LIST.—In compliance with the decision of the Government of India, all men now withdrawn from regiments for employment in departments are to be at once brought on the unattached list, and their places filled up in their corps.

MILITARY ASYLUM.—Under instructions from the Government of India, it is notified that no new subscribers will be admitted to the Military Asylum, and the discretionary admission of children of subscribers who are living and effective, as hitherto permitted under Rule 4 of the Military Asylum Regulations, will be discontinued, and the rule is consequently abrogated.

COMMITTEE OF PAYMASTERSHIP.—2nd Battalion 1st Foot.—The regimental order, dated July 27, appointing the following officers to act as a committee of paymastership, is confirmed:—President: Major G. Rowland. Members: Capt. St. George Gray and Capt. W. G. Brown. Capt. St. George Gray to perform the duties of paymaster on the responsibility of the committee.

EXAMINATIONS IN THE NATIVE LANGUAGES.—The following gentlemen have passed examinations, viz.:—Cornet Dawes, 4th hussars, is reported to have passed the lower standard in Hindustani on Aug. 3. Mr. H. Daniell, assistant engineer, second grade, Lower Sutlej and Chenab Division, Inundation Canals, has passed the higher standard in Hindustani prescribed in G.O.G.G. dated Sept. 9, 1864.

SOLDIERS' INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION.—In continuation of G.O.C.C., dated July 28, the following additions and alterations have been made in the central committee on the Soldiers' Industrial Exhibition, to be held at Agra in January next:—Members: The Executive Engineer of the Agra Division, Public Works Department; Commissary of Ordnance, Agra; the Cantonment Magistrate of Agra; the Executive Commissariat Officer at Agra. Secretary: Capt. J. Duncan, 102nd fusiliers.

STABLE GEAR.—The Commander-in-Chief directs that when a regiment of British cavalry is leaving India, or makes over its horses to another regiment, the line gear which is the property of troop officers shall be taken over by the relieving corps at a fair valuation. When the gear is handed over, a station committee will be appointed to fix its value.

PAYMENT OF THE BOMBAY TROOPS.—In accordance to the system in the Bengal presidency, family payments of troops employed on field or foreign service will, from Oct. 1 next, be made by means of remittance transfer receipts through regimental agency, instead of by nominal rolls through the agency of the superintendent of family payments. The necessary instructions for carrying the change of system into operation will be issued by the Controller of Military Accounts.

MUSKETRY PRACTICE.—It is ordered that in future, at their annual inspections of native cavalry regiments which have musketry ranges told off to them, general officers shall cause 10 mounted files, indiscriminately selected, to fire 5 rounds each man from his own horse, at a third-class target at 50 yards, and 5 rounds, dismounted, at 75 yards. The average obtained and general result as regards the men being expert in the use of their carbines, and their horses trained to stand fire, to be reported in the general observations of confidential reports. In Lancer regiments, pistol practice might be at 25 to 30 yards respectively.

CIVIL ENGINEERING COLLEGE.—The undermentioned passed students of the Thomason Civil Engineering College are appointed to the Public Works Department as engineer apprentices, and posted to the provinces specified opposite their respective names:—Messrs. C. Evans, North-Western Provinces; L. O'Toole, Central Provinces; R. Nelson and H. Beahan, Central India. The undermentioned passed students of the Thomason Civil Engineering College are appointed to the Public Works Department as overseers of the first grade, and posted to the provinces specified opposite their respective names:—Messrs. M. Butler, North-Western Provinces; H. Douglas and H. Marten, Punjab.

THE VISITATION OF THE ARCHDEACON OF CALCUTTA.—The following programme of the visitation by the Ven. the Archdeacon of Calcutta during 1869-70 is published for general information:—The Archdeacon proposes to leave Calcutta as early in September as a steamer starts for Port Blair, and thence to proceed to Rangoon, Thyet Myoo, Mandalay, Moulmein, Akyab, and Chittagong on his way back. He hopes to be back in Calcutta some time in November. Letters should be addressed to Calcutta, and the Postmaster will forward them to him after his departure, as he will have his address. On December 1 he leaves Calcutta again for the North-Western Provinces, the Punjab, &c. Certain stations of the Punjab are reserved for October, 1870, and the following months.

WEARING UNIFORMS.—The Commander-in-Chief administers a slight rebuke to officers neglectful of the use of their uniforms at times when they should be worn:—Officers of the regiments and departments of the army are reminded that it is incumbent on them to be at all times in possession of their uniform. It frequently happens that officers absent from their stations on leave are required for duty, and it is necessary that they should be prepared for any emergency of the kind. This is the reason of the order which requires officers to report themselves at military stations. There are also many social occasions having more or less of an official character, on which it is proper for all officers to wear the uniform of their rank. The officers of the army are reminded that H.R.H. the Field Marshal Commanding-in-Chief has lately issued stringent instructions in the sense of the above, even indeed to the demand of officers to furnish themselves with a new outfit, who may be found to be without their proper uniform when they are required to wear the dress of their military rank.

MILITARY LEAVES OF ABSENCE.—The following officers have furlough to Europe on medical certificate and leave of absence, under rules of 1868, unless otherwise specified:—Capt. Duke, 16th lancers, to Ceylon, from Aug. 12 to Sept. 22, on private affairs. Lieut. St. Quintin, 19th hussars, to Nynee Tal, from Aug. 20 to Oct. 15, on medical certificate, in extension of privilege leave. Second Capt. Dixon, R.H.A. (E battery F brigade), to Simla, from Sept. 1 to 30, on private affairs. Lieut. Free, R.H.A. (F battery, C brigade), to England, for six months, from date of embarkation, on private affairs, doing duty with troops should his services be required. Second Capt. Dyke, R.A. (C battery 19th brigade), to England, for fifteen months, from date of embarkation, on private affairs, doing duty with troops, via overland, should his services be required. Lieut. Yates, R.A. (C battery 8th brigade), to Mussoorie and the adjacent hills, from July 15 to Oct. 15, on medical certificate. Lieut. Franks, 3rd foot, to remain at Calcutta, in extension, from Aug. 28 to Nov. 14, to study the native languages, as a special case. Ensign Keighley, 11th foot, to remain at Calcutta, from June 20 to Sept. 14, in extension of privilege leave; the leave granted to him in G.O. of Aug. 6 is hereby cancelled. Ensign Corse-Scott, 19th foot (doing duty 28th N.I.), to Calcutta, from Sept. 15 last to Jan. 15 next, to study the native languages, as a special case. Lieut. col. Palliser, 10th Bengal cavalry, to Cashmere, from Sept. 5, or such date as he may avail himself of it, to Oct. 15, on private affairs. Lieut. Trotter, 24th N.I., to Calcutta, from July 10 to Oct. 15, to study the native languages. Capt. Cumberlege, 40th N.I., to the hills north of Deyrah, from Sept. 5 to Oct. 15, on private affairs. The furlough on private affairs for six months granted to Lieut. Ryves, of the Bengal staff corps, 3rd squadron officer, 13th Bengal cavalry, is extended for a period of eighteen months, with permission to proceed to Europe, via Bombay, on the same account. The undermentioned officer has reported his departure on the date specified:—Lieut. Clarke, R.E., per Mooltan, Aug. 30 last.

CIVIL LEAVES OF ABSENCE.—The following civil servants obtained furloughs to Europe, on medical certificate and leaves of absence in September, under the rules of 1868, unless otherwise specified:—Mr. B. ## Official Papers.

SUBORDINATE OFFICIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

Public Department, Fort St. George, May 25.—H.E. the Governor in Council directs the republication of the subjoined proceedings of Government, under date May 21, 1859, No. 801, and invites the special attention of all heads of departments in the public service to the orders therein contained for their guidance in placing before Government matters requiring their orders.

2. The Government attach much importance to the directions contained in paragraph 9 of the proceedings above quoted, and desire that the heads of offices will strictly conform to these instructions.

3. Communications which may hereafter be submitted to the Government in which these instructions have not been observed will be returned to the officers sending them for correction.

Proceedings of the Madras Government, dated May 21, 1859, No. 801: The Hon. the Governor in Council has had under his consideration the mode in which subjects are laid before Government by the heads of offices or departments subordinate to it.

2. He observes that letters to Government from such officials are not unfrequently accompanied by a number of enclosures, usually copies of correspondence that has passed between the officers addressing Government and others, and the Government are referred to these enclosures, or are obliged to consult them, in order to acquire that information which should have been supplied in full in the letters themselves.

3. The consequence of this system is, that while the subordinate officers are relieved of some labour which should properly have devolved on them, the time of Government is unprofitably occupied—the Government press overburdened—the records of this Government and those of the Home Government and of the Government of India, to whom copies of all their proceedings are furnished, needlessly swelled—the disposal of public business retarded, and unnecessary expense, for printing, paper, freight for the transmission of records, and room for their deposits, incurred.

4. The Hon. the Governor in Council desires that it may be understood that henceforward it will be expected of all officers or departments addressing Govt., to state the subject of their application and all facts requisite to be known or arguments proper to be weighed for its due consideration, clearly, and in full in their letters. Their communications will be required to be complete in themselves, and to set out all the information that has been furnished to the writers on the subject, all that has been urged by subordinate officers, every point, in fact, necessary to the perfect understanding of the case, so that the Govt. may have it thoroughly before them in one paper, which alone need be recorded, and on which orders can be passed without reference to other documents.

5. The correspondence referred to in such letters will be submitted with them, for reference, if desired, or minor matters. Such papers should be furnished in original. They will be returned when no longer required, and will not be brought on record, but it is especially to be remarked, that all that is important in them, or necessary for the full exposition of the subject, must be stated in the letter which they accompany.

6. Letters reporting on petitions, applications of various kinds must, of course, be accompanied by the petition or application under report, but the report is to contain a full summary of the transmitted paper—the substance of the request preferred, and the circumstances and arguments adduced in support of it—so that the paper itself will not have to be brought on record.

7. When a controlling office, as the Court of Sudder and Foujdaree Adawlut, or Board of Revenue, has to submit the views of the various officers subordinate to it on a general question, the reports should be accompanied by a precis containing the substance of the replies. The precis will, when necessary, be recorded, and the reports returned.

8. Cases may occur in which it may be necessary to send up a letter from a subordinate office as an integral part of the proceedings of the officers by whom it is transmitted, but this can rarely occur, and should never be resorted to when it can be avoided. In simple cases, however, and when a suggestion or recommendation can be conveyed in a few words, it will be open to an officer to send up a copy of a letter that he may have received, with his own opinion briefly noted at the foot of it, or to forward it thus merely for information when no opinion is called for.

9. When the subject may be one on which reference will have to be made to other officers besides the one by whom it is to be immediately brought before Government, such reference should be made direct by the latter officer, and the result embodied in his report. Thus if the Court of Sudder Adawlut have to address Government on a question partaking of a revenue character, and on which the opinion of the board of revenue would be desirable, the sudder should ascertain the views of the board, and state them in their letter. The revenue board should act similarly in respect to any question where it may be advisable to consult the sudder. It should, in fine, be the study of all officers who may have occasion to address Government to lay the subject before them complete in all its bearings, and in a state to admit of immediate decision.

10. As a minor point, but one deserving of consideration, the Governor in Council further desires that all officers who may correspond with Government will give attention to the way in which their letters are copied. They should be written in a clear, bold hand, without erasure, in dark coloured ink, and properly punctuated, so that they may be in a state fit to be put at once into the printer's hand.

11. The Hon. the Governor in Council relies upon the above orders being carefully complied with, and it will henceforth be a standing rule of the Government office that all letters which do not conform to these requirements will invariably be returned for revision.

By order of H.E. the Governor in Council.

R. S. ELLIS, Chief Secretary.

GOVERNMENT OF N.W. PROVINCES.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT, IRRIGATION BRANCH.

Principles to be Observed in the Adjustment of Water Supply from Canals.

As alterations in the distribution of canal irrigation involve many large and weighty considerations, the Hon. the Lieut. governor has been pleased to direct the following observations on the subject, and on the procedure to be adopted prior to effecting any such alterations, to be circulated for information and guidance:—

2. In considering proposals for a change in the course of irrigation, the new distribution of capital, and the expectations and the arrangements, public and private, produced by irrigation, must be kept in view. Without admitting a title of right by prescription to the perpetuation of any existing distribution, the enjoyment of irrigation under such distribution for any considerable period may be allowed to establish a moral obligation on the Government to its continuance, in the absence of some stronger antagonistic claim, or some urgent cause, economical, sanitary, or otherwise, demanding a change.

3. Although the Irrigation Department may be free, at the first opening of a canal, to give or withhold water on general considerations of expediency, it is not equally free, after a system of irrigation has been introduced, to withdraw the water arbitrarily, and without reference to the new economical conditions which it has been the means of creating. Water, once given, works a change in the character and relations of property. It raises its value; and purchases are made at an enhanced price on the expectation of continued irrigation. The conditions of cultivation may be greatly altered by a canal; it supersedes wells and the cattle used in drawing water, and introduces new agricultural staples and modes of farming. It affects the direction in which capital is sunk, as in the construction of indigo factories, and other appliances required for the increased and improved produce of the soil. It affects markets, population, and prices. It raises rents, and gives an enlarged basis for the land revenue settlements, and the public engagements of the landholders. When canal irrigation has been once introduced, its withdrawal may affect public and private interests in these and many other respects. It is, therefore, a measure to be justified only by urgent reasons, and adopted in its details after full consultation with the officers responsible for the general administration of the country.

4. Various causes may demand a change of distribution. First arrangements may be to some extent tentative, and after a few years' trial may require modification. The claims of other districts may, in the development of a canal system, justify reduction in tracts enjoying a too liberal supply. Sanitary objects may call for a diminution of volume. Under certain circumstances, it by no means follows that diminution shall involve loss. Where wells can be resorted to, the productive powers may be fully sustained; and in water-logged tracts a judicious curtailment of canal irrigation may even enhance the agricultural out-turn.

5. Where reduction is determined on, it should not be made upon any arbitrary rule, such as a fixed percentage all round, but in reference to the individual merits of each tract, estate, or holding. A general standard or percentage of reduction will no doubt be necessary as a guide. But the circumstances of particular villages vary so greatly, that much latitude must be allowed in the application of the standard. Some estates may easily supply the deficiency from wells; in others the withdrawal may cause irrigated to become dry cultivation, or it might even throw lands hitherto irrigated altogether out of cultivation. The proportion of area open to irrigation in one estate may be much greater than in another, and a rateable reduction might consequently involve a greater loss in one than in the other. Again, some mehals (putteedaree or bhya-charn) may be owned and cultivated by a great number of distinct proprietors, each holding only two or three fields, and each preferring his separate and independent claim to share in the water; and it may be difficult, if not impossible, to effect a rateable diminution of the supply with a just advertence to all such interests. Even in zemindaree tenures, seeing that the canal deals with the cultivator directly rather than with the landlord, the same difficulty may arise.

6. These difficulties point all to the same conclusion—that no material change should be made in an established system of canal distribution without previous consultation between the Canal and Revenue Departments, and concert as to the detailed manner of carrying it into effect.

7. Besides the administrative reasons touched on above, there may be departmental reasons requiring careful attention. Thus, with the Ganges Canal, it may be that a scale which, on a tabula rasa, would be theoretically the proper one to adopt, is not the one which can now be practically carried with advantage into full effect. Rajbuhars may have been formed over a great portion of the field open to the canal, and an alteration of the system might involve losses and expenditure, public and private, altogether out of proportion to the gain derivable from an enforcement of the theoretical scale.

8. When a superintending engineer has fully satisfied himself that, departmental and economical considerations notwithstanding, a reduction of supply in any tract or district is necessary, the proper plan is for him to submit the grounds of his opinion to Government, in the irrigation department. If the statement is accepted in that department, the superintending engineer would be authorised to enter into consultation with the revenue authorities, who would be simultaneously addressed for that purpose through the Board of Revenue. The executive engineer would thus be placed in communication with the collector, and the general and detailed proportions of reduction for each pergunnah and estate would be settled in concert with him. The result would then be reported for approval to Government.

9. Looking to the present condition of the question as regards the Ganges Canal, and the disproportionate consumption in certain of its upper districts, there are two considerations which should not be forgotten. The first is, that the area irrigated during the past year of drought is not to be held as a part of the term entitling to prescriptive consideration. Water was then given to sustain life, apart from all ordinary rules. It may be safer, in estimating the grounds of expectation, to take the average irrigated area of the three years, 1865-66—1867-68, as the scale of distribution below which irrigation must not be reduced otherwise than on the principles and under the procedure laid down in this circular order.

10. The other point to be adverted to is the scheme now before Government for taking a second supply of water from the Ganges, in the vicinity of Anoopshuhur, for the irrigation of the Lower Doab. This may eventually admit of a certain saving in the demand upon the Hurdwar supply, and a corresponding addition to the amount theoretically assignable to the upper districts.

11. The general principles laid down in this circular order are applicable to all canals in the North-Western Provinces, and are intended for the guidance both of canal and revenue officers.—By order, &c.,

W. H. GREATHED, Col. R.E., Joint Secy. to Govt., N.W.P.

SUEZ CANAL.—An announcement made by Messrs. Horne, as agents of the directors of the Services Maritimes des Messageries Impériales, seems to discountenance the doubts recently expressed as to the Suez Canal being immediately ready for general traffic. They notify that the steamship Godavery will be despatched from Marseilles on the 10th November to Port Said, where she is expected to arrive on the eve of the inauguration of the canal. After the opening ceremony she will pass through the canal and continue her voyage direct to Calcutta. The Godavery's extreme length is 93 mètres. Her tonnage (English) is 1,380 gross and 965 registered, and her draught with full cargo is 5 mètres 41 centimètres.

MALWA.—A correspondent writing from Malwa, on the 13th ult., says:—"The old adage that 'it never rains but it pours' has been liberally verified during the past fortnight. It has been coming down merrily at the rate of one and two inches a day, and we have now nearly attained our average fall. The crops are looking exceedingly well. Our Bunnia friends, who seldom take a cheerful view of things, where their interests are concerned, were hugging themselves just before the late rain set in with the prospect of a bad harvest. Then their cry was 'dan sub jul gere'; now it is 'dan sub sur gere.'"—Times of India.—The following telegram from the Financial Department of the Government of India, dated Simla, September 14, 1869, was published on September 16th in an Extraordinary Issue of the Bombay Government Gazette:—"Rumours being abroad that a reduction of duty on Malwa opium is under consideration, it is hereby notified that no such change is contemplated. The present duty of Rs. 600 per chest will remain in force during the ensuing official year, and until further notice."

THE ALBERT ASSURANCE COMPANY.

The prosecution of the directors of the Albert Assurance Company was dismissed by the magistrate on Saturday. Mr. Lee, the prosecutor, had been put in the box, and given his evidence, and he was to have been cross-examined on Saturday, but when the case was called on, Mr. Lee was not present, though, in addition to the usual notice of adjournment, he had received a summons to be present on the previous day. Under these circumstances, the magistrate said it was not fair to the directors of the company to keep the charge hanging over their heads, and he dismissed the summons, intimating at the same time that if he wanted to go on he could take out a fresh summons, which would be heard on Saturday next.

THE EUROPEAN ASSURANCE COMPANY.

On Friday last the Vice-Chancellor dismissed the petitions for winding-up the European Assurance Company on the following grounds:—First, as to the inability of the company to pay its debts, that this must be inability to pay debts absolutely due—that is, debts on which a debtor could go to the company and insist upon payment. But it was not suggested—there was no evidence before him, at all events—that there was any debt in this sense of the term actually due within the meaning of the clause of the Act; any debt due—that was to say, payable. Then, as to its being “just and equitable” that the Court should wind-up the company on general grounds, he said:—“The Court is bound to exercise its jurisdiction if it is of opinion on the whole case, not that it is prudent or imprudent, but that it is just and equitable that the company should be wound-up; and in my view of the case it would be just and equitable to wind-up a company like this insurance company if it were made out to my satisfaction that it is—not in any technical sense—but clearly, commercially, and absolutely insolvent; that is to say, that its assets are such, and its existing liabilities are such, as to make it reasonably certain that the existing and probable assets would be insufficient to meet the existing liabilities. I take it that the Court has nothing to do with any question of future liabilities. I deal with it for the purpose of judging solvency or insolvency, and have got to deal with it exactly as it stood on the day to which the balance-sheet was made out, the 31st of December, 1868; though I might take it that the condition of the society now is substantially the same as it was then. And I must take it as if all the business that the company intended to do was then done, and that it did not intend to enter into a fresh contract. The evidence of the actuaries is based upon the assumption that they are dealing with a mutual assurance company, having nothing but the assurance fund to resort to; and they wholly disregard the share capital. That is very short to my mind of the evidence which it is incumbent on the petitioner to produce to induce this Court to say that there is that insolvency of the company which would make it just and equitable for the Court to interfere. The balance-sheet as it stands represents the company as not only solvent, but having their whole capital intact, and having £107,000 beyond that amount to meet the liabilities under their contracts. But on the side of the assets there is an item inserted of £261,000 odd for the purchase of the goodwill of other companies. That item I am sorry to see. I think it ought not to have been there. I cannot see that it can properly represent an asset. It may have been a judicious investment, but it ought not to have been an investment of the assurance funds, and if made at all the company ought to have made a call of their capital. I therefore deduct £261,000. Then, on the other side, it did for a long time appear to me that it would be necessary to add to the amount of the liabilities, which are taken at £312,000, the additional sum which Mr. Walker, I think, in his evidence, states would have to be added in case he added £70,000 a-year on account of the expenses; but there is force in what Mr. Worlhouse says in his affidavit, that a great portion of these expenses is for the purpose of obtaining new business, and need not be expended unless they choose. Then it was also said that I cannot take the whole of the uncalled capital as an available asset, and the fact that a call which ought to have produced £75,000 did produce only £50,000 is a proof that it is not all to be relied upon. And that may be so to a certain extent, but in the absence of any evidence as to the insolvency of the shareholders, any evidence of any kind whatever, it would be far too wide for the Court to act on the assumption that the shareholders are not able to pay the capital which they have subscribed. Therefore it appears to me that as the case now stands, taking the liabilities according to the calculation in this balance-sheet, and taking the assets, including the unpaid part of the share capital, that it is not open to any shareholder or to any policy-holder to say to the Court, ‘Now put an end to all the contracts that are existing, because I have made out that the assets of the company are unable to discharge the liabilities.’ With prudence or imprudence, with profit or loss, the Court has nothing to do; this Court has not to give an opinion as to whether persons ought or ought not to trust this company or have any dealings with it; but I am of opinion that the petitioner has failed to prove that the company is in a state of insolvency, and therefore the petition must be dismissed with costs.” Much applause followed the announcement of the decision of the Court. Mr. Fry asked if the Court would give two sets of costs, one to the shareholders and another to the policy-holders who had resisted the petition. The Vice-Chancellor: “No; I shall only give one set of costs to all parties.”

Miscellaneous.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL CHAMBERS was on Friday appointed Praeceptor Linguae Hindustanicae at Queen's College, Oxford, during the present term. The annual stipend is £150, with fees from students.

DELHI AND LONDON BANK.—An ordinary general meeting of the shareholders of the Delhi and London Bank (Limited) is called for the 27th October to receive the report of the directors, and the accounts for the half-year ending the 30th June last. Notice is also given that “the directors will submit for the consideration and decision of the same meeting the proposals of two meetings of shareholders held at Delhi and Mussoorie on the 10th July and 7th of August, 1869, respectively.”

THE “GREAT EASTERN” STEAMER AND THE ANGLO-INDIAN TELEGRAPH.—The Great Eastern steamer, with the Anglo-Indian telegraph on board, is ordered to leave the Medway on the 23rd inst. for Portland roads, where she will take on board her coals, and immediately after start for her destination. Owing to the great size of the ship the expense of docking her is very considerable; arrangements have therefore been made for the examination and cleansing of her hull below the water-line during the time she has been lying in the harbour. For this purpose six divers were employed, under the direction of Captain Osborn, C.B., and Captain Halpin, the commander, to remove the animal and vegetable accumulations on her bottom, the operation, which has occupied the divers six weeks, having been completed a few days since. Several hundred tons of mussels and other shell-fish have been removed from the Great Eastern's bottom, the mussels on which were, in many parts, a foot thick. The entire hull has been painted white, which gives the huge vessel a remarkable appearance, white being chosen as not absorbing the rays of the sun so much as a paint of a darker colour. An ice-making machine is being fitted on board, capable of producing a couple of tons of ice per day. This great quantity of ice is required not only for consumption by the officers and crew, but for mixing with the water in the tanks to keep the cables as cool as possible when in the tropical seas, and to prevent the melting of the covering of tar protecting the wires. The Great Eastern proceeds direct to the Red Sea, and will round the Cape of Good Hope for the first time. Immediately after laying the cable connecting Suez with Bombay and Calcutta she will return to the Medway, early in the ensuing year, for the purpose of commencing the shipment of the cable intended to be laid between Falmouth and Malta, which will thus place England in instantaneous telegraphic communication with her East India possessions.

RISE OF SHOT.—A phenomenon connected with the fire of rifled artillery has lately been illustrated afresh by the experiments of the Indian Equipment Committee. It is popularly believed, says the Globe, that the projectile from a rifled gun will have left the muzzle before any sensible recoil can take place; this is an error which was detected as follows:—It had frequently been noticed that when rifled guns, particularly light field guns, were fired point blank, or with the axis of the bore truly horizontal, the shot appeared to rise after it had left the muzzle, and the range was much greater than theory would lead us to expect. This was at first ridiculed, the idea of a shot rising was preposterous and contrary to the first principles of dynamics one might as well expect Newton's apple to rise in the air instead of tumbling to the ground. Facts, however, are stubborn, and it was asserted that, although theoretically it should not, practically the shot did rise. The first careful experiments in this direction made in this country were carried out by the late Ordnance Select Committee in 1864. The 12-pounder breech-loader rifled field gun of 8 cwt. was fired with an elongated shot of 11½ lbs. and a charge of ½ lb. at an upright wooden target of 40 yards. The gun was laid with the axis of the bore truly horizontal, that is parallel with the ground, and the exact level of the centre of the muzzle was taken on the target by a theodolite. Theoretically, the shot would fall by gravity in passing over the 40 yards, and its centre should have struck about two inches below the level; practically, however, it was found to strike 10 inches above it. This fact once established beyond all doubt, many theorists set about accounting for it; their speculations however cannot here be recapitulated. The probable explanation is that the recoil is sensibly felt before the shot has left the gun, and that the resultant of the forces acting on the gun and carriage tends to throw the muzzle up—thus the projectile although seemingly fired point-blank really leaves the gun at an angle. With the 12-pounder breech-loading gun this angle was found to equal about 30 minutes, while with the 9-pounder muzzle-loading Indian gun it equals only about 13 minutes. The difference is probably due to the projectile taking a longer time to pass through the bore of the breech-loading gun. It may be mentioned that when the gun is slung as a pendulum and fired with its axis horizontal, the shot strikes below the level.

INDIAN TRAMWAY COMPANY.—A special general meeting of the Indian Tramway Company (Limited) was held on Monday, October 18, for the purpose of considering a letter from the Secretary of State for India, containing offers to the company for the construction, under a guarantee of 5 per cent., of a railway from Conjevaram to Cuddalore, or some other point in that direction to be hereafter settled, upon the Indian gauge, &c. The following is the letter above referred to:—"I am directed by the Duke of Argyll to acquaint you that his Grace has recently had under consideration the question of the advisability of the construction of a railway, of the Indian gauge, from Conjevaram to Cuddalore, or some other point in that direction to be hereafter settled, and the alteration of the present line from Arcotum to Conjevaram, to a railway of the same gauge; and that he has resolved to offer this work to the Indian Tramway Company, provided they will undertake it on the following terms and conditions, viz.:—The necessary capital to be guaranteed at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, and to be raised by the issue of capital stock, or shares, or debenture stock, at such price as may be fixed by the Secretary of State; or tenders for the stock to be invited, the price at which the same shall be accepted being fixed by the Secretary of State; the premium arising from the sale of shares or stock being carried to an account headed 'Capital not bearing interest.' The present capital of one hundred thousand pounds (£100,000) bearing a guaranteed interest of 3 per cent. to be exchanged for sixty thousand pounds (£60,000) capital guaranteed 5 per cent. The net profits to be devoted, in the first instance, to reconquering Government the current interest advanced under its guarantee, and any balance that may then remain to be divided equally between the Government and the Tramway Company, during the whole period of the contract. Government to be at liberty at any time, should it be dissatisfied from any cause with the proceedings of the company either in regard to the construction or the working of the railway, to take over the same, upon giving three months' notice of their intention to do so, and upon payment to the company of the capital expended, with the sanction of Government, on the railway plant, &c. The other conditions to be the same as those embodied in the contract with the Indian Branch Railway Company, of which a copy is enclosed herewith. I am to add that a draft contract for carrying out the above proposal, and a draft deed determining the existing contract, are under preparation, and will shortly be submitted for the board's consideration." Sir M. Stephenson, the chairman, moved a resolution, which was carried unanimously, that the Secretary of State's offer should be accepted with or without modifications.

Mails to India, &c.

The Mails to all parts of India, via SOUTHAMPTON, are now made up at the General Post Office, London, every Saturday at 8 a.m., and those via MARSEILLES every Friday, at 6 p.m.

For Ceylon, China, Straits Settlements, &c., the dates of despatch up to the end of December will be as follows, viz.:

Via SOUTHAMPTON, at 8 a.m., on the Saturdays, October 2, 16, and 30, November 6 and 20, and December 4 and 18.

Via MARSEILLES, at 6 p.m., on the Fridays, October 8 and 22, November 5 and 19, and December 3, 17, and 31.

RATES OF POSTAGE TO INDIA & CEYLON.

LETTERS.

Via Marcellles, under ½ oz., 1s. 1d. | 1 oz., 2s. 2d. | each additional ½ oz. 1s. 1d.

The postage on letters may either be paid in advance or left to be paid on delivery, at the option of the sender, but in all cases where the postage is not fully pre-paid, the Letters will be charged, on delivery, with one additional rate of Nipence, besides the usual postage.

This increase of postage will not affect the Letters of Officers of the Army and Navy serving in India and Ceylon; such Letters will continue to enjoy the privilege of transmission at the reduced postage of Sixpence the half-ounce, via Southampton, and Tenpence the half-ounce via Marcellles.

In the case of Newspapers, Books, &c., the prepayment of the postage is compulsory. Parcels must not in any case exceed 5 lbs. in weight, or be of greater dimensions than twenty-four inches in length, and twelve inches in width or depth.

A French line of Mail Packets leaves Marcellles every fourth Saturday. Postage for Letters and Papers to India and China the same as is charged by the English Mail, via Marcellles. Letters intended to be forwarded by these Packets must be specially addressed—"By French Mail Packet from Marcellles."

Up to the end of December the dates of despatch from London will be the Thursday evenings, September 30th, October 20th, November 20th, and December 23rd, and by Supplementary Mails on the morning following.

Supplementary Mails will also be made up at the General Post Office, London, every Saturday morning, via France and Italy to Brindisi, and thence by Italian packet to Alexandria, but should they not reach the latter place in time, the departure of the regular Mails for Suez will not be delayed. The postage of letters will be at the rate of 1s. 4d. for each half-ounce, and of newspapers 4d. for each four ounces.

C H L O R O D Y N E

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE. The Public, therefore, are cautioned against using any other than
DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.

Remedial Uses and Action.

THIS INVALUABLE REMEDY produces quiet, refreshing sleep, relieves pain, calms the system, restores the deranged functions, and stimulates healthy action of the secretions of the body, without creating any of those unpleasant results attending the use of Opium. Old and young may take it at all hours and times when requisite. Thousands of persons testify to its marvellous good effects and wonderful cures, while medical men extol its virtues most extensively, using it in great quantities in the following diseases:—

Diseases in which eminently useful—Cholera, Dysentery, Diarrhoea, Colics, Coughs, Asthma, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Whooping Cough, Cramp, Hysteria, &c.

Those exhaustive diseases—Fever, Ague—so common in tropical climates, are rapidly arrested, and the cold stage in a few moments checked by a timely dose, when warmth and a general glow of the system is established, and comfort secured.

As a Sedative, Neurotic, and Antispasmodic, it is unequalled by any other known Medicine, and not to be surpassed in its specific effects.

Extracts from Medical Opinions.

The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in Cholera was Chlorodyne.—See Lancet, Dec. 31, 1864.

From A. Montgomery, Esq., late Inspector of Hospitals, Bombay.—"Chlorodyne is a most valuable remedy in Neuralgia, Asthma, and Dysentery. To it I fairly owe my restoration to health after eighteen months' severe suffering, and when other remedies had failed."

Dr. Lowe, Medical Missionary in India, reports (Dec., 1865) that in nearly every case of Cholera in which Dr.
 J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne was administered, the patient recovered.

Mrs. Forbes, wife of the Chaplain at Paris.—"I cannot speak too highly of Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne; I have not in any single instance been disappointed with the result, even in aggravated cases of Indian Cholera."

Extract from Medical Times, Jan. 12, 1866.—"Chlorodyne is prescribed by scores of orthodox medical practitioners. Of course it would not thus be singularly popular did it not 'supply a want and fill a place.'"

Extract from the General Board of Health, London, as to its efficacy in Cholera.—"So strongly are we convinced of the immense value of this remedy, that we cannot too forcibly urge the necessity of adopting it in all cases."

CHLORODYNE, the Great Remedy for CHOLERA.—See Report in the Times, Sept. 6, from the Malta Correspondent, who states, August 21th, that "108 cases and eighty-one deaths occurred at Messina; 50,000 people fled from the town, which is in a most deplorable condition; that Chlorodyne has been found most efficacious as a remedy, and a number of persons are reported to have been saved by its use."

Now as there are various imitations sold under the name of Chlorodyne, containing Indian Hemp, Morphia,
 &c., ingredients highly adverse to the cure of Cholera, the public are cautioned against the use of any compound under the name of Chlorodyne, unless it bears the name of Dr. J. Collis Browne, who coined the word Chlorodyne to designate his wonderful discovery, which he fully tested for many years in her Majesty's Service before introducing it to the public, the wonderful success of which has given rise to various imitations totally different to genuine Chlorodyne. See the decision of Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood, reported in the Times, July 13th, 1861.

The extraordinary medical reports on the efficacy of Chlorodyne renders it a subject of most vital importance that the public should obtain the genuine, which is now sold under the protection of the Government of Great Britain, authorising a stamp, bearing the words "Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne," without which none is genuine.
 Sold in bottles, 1s. 1d., 2s. 6d., and 10s. 6d., by all Chemists. Sole Manufacturer, J. T. DAVENPORT, 33, Great Russell-street, Bloomsbury, London.

Price 6s., by post, 6s. 6d.,

ENGLISH HOMES IN INDIA.

PART I.—THE THREE LOVES. | PART II.—THE WRONG TURNING.

PUBLISHERS' NOTICE.

The writer of these volumes—an accomplished member of a family whose name is conspicuous in Indian story—being now resident in India, they have not had the benefit of her final corrections. It is hoped, however, that this inevitable drawback will detract but little from the pleasure to be afforded by the perusal of the tales, which are, indeed, what they profess to be, stories of English Homes in India, represented as such homes are in different parts of the country and under various social and professional aspects. They endeavour fairly and without exaggeration to illustrate Anglo-Indian life as it is, in its many varying phases, and to bring upon the scene, in their everyday costume, many kinds of Anglo-Indian workmen, from the Resident at a Native Court, to the subaltern officer and the railway employé; and it is believed that all who have visited the countries described will recognise the truth of the portraiture.
